Mother, Son Killed In Collision

Car, Truck Collide On Curve Outside of Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS) — A 20-year-old Toronto mother and her two-year-old son were instantly killed on Tuesday evening, when the car her husband was driving collided with a truck on Highway 35 north of town.

Dead are Mrs. James Alexander of Toronto, passenger in the car in which the family were returning from a vacation, and her son James two. Both were instantly killed in the accident which occurred at a curve on Highway 35 north of here when their small English car collided with the side of a truck driven by Charles Box of Streetsville enroute to Gooderham.

Investigation into the mishap is still proceeding. Apparently the Alexander family were travelling south on their way home from their vacation. At the curve, the car collided with the three-ton stake truck just behind the cab, and jammed under the body of the larger vehicle.

ESCAPED DEATH

Mr. Alexander, who suffered concussion and lacerations and bruises but no fractures, apparently got out of the way of the floor of the truck as it sliced the top off the small car.

His wife and their son, however, were struck. The boy was decapitated by the force of the impact. Provincial Police Corporal Ken Denniss and Constable Tom Fitzpatrick of the Lindsay detachment, investigated the scene. Dr. H. G. Metcalf of Lindsay attended Mr. Alexander, and had him taken to the Ross Memorial Hospital, where his condition is considerably improved now.

Dr. W. R. Crowe, Lindsay, attended as coroner, and pronounced Alexander's wife and son dead. They were removed to McArthur's funeral home in Lindsay to be moved later to Toronto.

Damage to the truck was very slight, and Box, who was uninjured, was allowed to go on his way, after details were taken by police.

An inquest is likely, but none has been ordered as yet. The Alexander couple had been married for three years. Their child was two earlier this year. Father of the husband, Peter Alexander, of Toronto, was summoned to Lindsay following the tragedy.

W. German Parliament Refuses To Pass Repayment Of Treaty Debts To France

BONN (AP) — The West German Parliament today refused to approve repayment of German debts to France, declaring the French had "cheated the Germans through economic exploitation during the post-war occupation.

In a bitter burst of anti-French sentiment, the Bundestag lower house rejected a France of $11,840,000 under the 18-country London debts agreement signed last February. Canada was one of the signatories. The vote was 148 to 135, with 18 deputies abstaining.

It was the sharpest anti-French action ever taken by the four-year-old Parliament.

It followed by a few hours bitter attacks against the French over the disputed Saar territory. Numerous speakers accused the French of tearing away this coal-rich territory from Germany and virtually annexing it in violation of international agreements.

The Bundestag declared it considers the Saar territory an inseparable part of Germany and that it wants the Saar's "de facto separation" by France abolished.

The Bundestag made these points in adopting a new set of instructions for Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's government in any new negotiations with France over the territory.

Under the London agreement, Germany promised to pay off $3,270,000,000 in debts piled up from the end of the First World War.

The Bundestag had approved the bills to repay the U.S., Britain, Canada and other countries. But when it came to the draft law on France there was a sudden revolt after the powerful Socialists had accused French occupation agencies of plundering the German economy.

The action was expected to raise a storm in Paris. Some observers feared it would smash the whole facade of post-war German - Franch relations, which Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has worked laboriously to build up. It could deal a serious blow to the European Army Treaty.

Saboteurs Cut Power, Paralyze City

Industrial Plants, Transportation Brought To Standstill

BELFAST (CP)— Suspected sabotage by Irish nationalists cut off electric power in this industrial capital of Northern Ireland today at the moment the Queen entered the city for the first state visit of her reign.

A railway bridge near the southern border was bombed in an apparent attempt to stop special trains bringing citizens of the Irish republic to see the Queen. Traffic was blocked between Dublin and Belfast for several hours, and some excursion trains were delayed.

Strategic ship-building yards, aircraft plants, and hundreds of other industrial plants were paralyzed for two hours by a mysterious breakdown—reputedly in dynamo—at Belfast's harbor power station at 11:15 a. m., the moment the Queen was entering the city on a drive from Government House 15 miles away where she had spent the night. The city buzzed with rumors—all officially denied—that a bomb explosion was responsible.

NOT OVERLOOKED

A statement issued by the Belfast Corporation, which owns the electricity plant, said "deliberate interference" was not being overlooked.

The Queen and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, arrived Wednesday for a three-day visit that is part of the Coronation celebrations. Northern Ireland's six counties are under British sovereignty —a situation that the Republic of Ireland and a minority of anti-royalists here find hard to accept.

The power breakdown did not interfere with the routine of the Queen's visit. After a round of functions at Queen's University she drove through cheering crowds for a reception and lunch at Belfast city hall. Cooks at city hall who normally use electric ovens switched over to gas when the power breakdown came.

There were no reports of any casualties in either of today's two incidents

Few families had hot lunches. The cut caught dozens of women as they pressed their frocks for this afternoon's royal garden party. Taxi firms had a complete sell out as public transport continued stalled.

Engineers restored power to some suburban areas after an hour. But by early afternoon the city centre still was paralyzed.

Small Hurricane Strikes Western Ontario

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sudden and heavy storms struck the Niagara peninsula Wednesday night, blowing down trees, snarling power service and damaging some homes. A brief thunderstorm swept Buffalo and there was heavy rain in Toronto. At Niagara Falls, Ont., what was described as a small tornado whipped the rear roof of a frame house into the roadway, smashed a small frame garage and uprooted a large tree in front of the house. Windows were blown out of several houses, but no one was reported injured. Torrential rain resulted in some streets being under two feet of water.

Boat houses and trees in the Buffalo area were knocked down by 60-mile-an-hour winds during the 20-minute storm. Residents reported hailstones as big as golf balls. Power lines collapsed in suburban districts, cellars were flooded and some homes badly damaged.

HEAVY RAINFALL

In Toronto, about one-third of the average rainfall for July fell on the first day. In an hour 1 1-3 inches fell to bring the total for the day to 1.39 inches.

Sarnia counted thousands of dollars damage in the wake of a hurricane-like storm that swept up the St. Clair river Tuesday. One man was missing and believed drowned.

Officials said the storm did more damage to trees than the May 21 tornado. Steel scaffoldings used to repair tornado-damaged buildings collapsed under high winds.

Heaviest damage on the Canadian side of the river was at Bright's Grove, 10 miles north of Sarnia. Uprooted trees reduced eight cottages to rubble.

United States coast guard cutters dragged the St. Clair river for the body of Irving Holtzhouser, 43, of Detroit. He, his 15-year-old son and two other persons had been fishing when giant waves capsized their small rowboat.

The other three were rescued, suffering shock and exposure.

DUMPED IN RIVER

Three men were dumped into the Detroit river, several trees were felled and a number of streets were flooded during a mid-afternoon storm Tuesday.

Find Policeman Not Terrorist Shot Canadian

NAIROBI, Kenya (CP)—An African policeman—not a Mau Mau terrorist—shot and killed an executive of the Ford Motor Company of Canada here Wednesday The policeman then committed suicide.

Police at first reported that a terrorist had killed J. S. Richards, 48, four hours after he arrived here from South Africa on a business trip. The shooting occurred on Nairobi's main street.

Today police said the shooting was committed by a Nairobi policeman who apparently suffered a mental blackout and mistook Richards for a criminal.

The policeman took aim with his rifle and fired at Richards as he was window-shopping on Nairobi's main street—then went down an alley and shot himself to death.

LOOKING IN WINDOW

Richards, who is managing director of the Ford Motor Company of South Africa, was standing in front of a sporting goods store when he was shot down. With him was a family friend, Miss C. M. Oddy, of Port Elizabeth, South Africa.

She said they were looking at equipment in the store window when she heard a shot, and saw the African policeman facing them with his rifle still leveled.

He took deliberate aim, there was another shot, and Richards slumped to the sidewalk.

The Ford official was district manager of the Mercury-Lincoln division in Winnipeg from 1945 to 1947. He moved to Toronto from Winnipeg as district manager of the Ford and Monarch division and later that year went to South Africa.

IN TORONTO IN JUNE

Richards visited the company's Canadian head office at Windsor in May and he was in Toronto June 6-7.

Canadian Cheese Producers Hard Hit Once More Under New U.S. Restrictions

WASHINGTON (CP)—Despite Canadian protests against trade-throttling import restrictions, the United States agriculture department has announced new butter limitations as part of a general reduction of dairy imports. The announcement Wednesday followed a strongly-worded note from Canada to the U.S. protesting new American quotas on foreign shipments of dairy products, fats and oils. The Canadian note criticized the new rules as not only further impairing trade between the United States and Canada but also violating in effect American pledges to expand, rather than restrict, world commerce.

Canadian shipments of cheddar cheese are hard hit under the new quota arrangement, with a limit of 500,000 pounds annually instead of the 2,000,000 previously imported by the U. S.

$2,000,000 CUT

Canadian officials have estimated that the new curbs will likely reduce Canada's dairy trade with the U. S. by some $2,000,000 a year—from $2,700,000 to $700,000.

The new butter quota limits imports from all countries to 707,000 pounds. New Zealand is allowed 332,000 pounds, Denmark 212,000, and 163,000 pounds is the group total allowed Canada, Argentina, Australia, Finland, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland. The U. S. agriculture department did not break down the 163,000 pounds into allocations allowed the last seven countries

The U. S. has imposed the curbs at a time when U. S. larders are bulging with huge surpluses of cheese, butter and milk products. Canada expressed the fear the surplus products might be dumped into the channels of world trade, seriously affecting the established markets of dairy export countries.

The butter restrictions are effective until June 30, 1954, and are part of general restrictions recommended by the U.S. tariff commission and applied by the Eisenhower administration under provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act.

The Canadian protest, presented to the U. S. state department by Canadian ambassador Hume Wrong, called the new restrictions "severe" and said they are bound to raise grave problems not only for international trade but for the whole structure of international co-operation.

U.S. Truce Envoy To Leave, Talks Stalled

SEOUL (AP)—President Eisenhower's truce envoy will leave for the United States within two days whether or not he is successful in his efforts to win South Korea over to a truce, informed sources said today.

The U.S.-South Korea "little truce talks" were temporarily stalled today by President Syngman Rhee's unwavering price for an armistice—U.S. assurance of a unified Korea.

The sources said the departure of assistant secretary of state Walter S. Robertson would not mean the door is closed on a U.S.-South Korea truce alliance. They said Rhee apparently would have to show a real change of heart if Robertson is to stay any longer.

NO MORE OVERTURES

The sources said Rhee knows there will be no more overtures by the U.S. before a truce is signed if he doesn't agree with Robertson.

State Secretary John Foster Dulles has said the UN will proceed with a truce and will not change its basic position to satisfy Rhee.

Neither Rhee nor Robertson would comment after their sixth secret meeting today, but a reliable source said the talks are stalled while both sides consider their stands.

Rhee apparently is demanding unification or more war, and the U. S. is holding out for unification by negotiation.

St. Laurent Hopes Canada Soon Amend Constitution

WITH ST. LAURENT (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent flew into St. John's, Nfld., late Wednesday night for a day of campaigning in Canada's newest province. He winds up his tour of the Atlantic provinces Friday. He will fly back as far as Chatham, N.B., Friday and board a train for his summer home at St. Patrick, Que., for a weekend rest, making a few whistle stops on the way.

The prime minister Wednesday crowded in three speeches, a look at harness racing and a visit to the birth place of Confederation in a day of travelling which saw him in three provinces.

From Saint John, N. B., his plane took him to Charlottetown, where he visited the chamber where the Fathers of Confederation planned the Confederation which Canada celebrated Wednesday.

GROWTH AS NATION

His chief speech outside the weathered stone legislature building before about 1,500 persons was devoted chiefly to the theme of Canada's growth as a nation since the original union delegates met in the Confederation Chamber of the same building in 18564.

Then he sat through a light harness race in Summerside, P. E. I., where he made a short speech, and continued to Sydney for his third address.

Mr. St. Laurent did little direct politicking during his Prince Edward Island stops, except for a heavy round of handshaking and a

Crown Prince Slain In Tunisia

TUNIS (AP)—An assassin's bullet Wednesday snuffed out the life of Prince Azzedine Bey, heir presumptive to the Beylical crown of Tunisia and one of the few friends in high places France could count on in her troubled North African protectorate.

The murderer crept into the palace of the 72-year-old cousin of the ruling monarch, Sidi Lamine Bey, and fired twice. One of the bullets penetrated the prince's stomach and lodged in the intestine. The other went wild.

The prince's son, Abdel Hamid, helped capture the attacker.

Identity of the murderer was revealed as Hedi Ben Brahim Ben Ejebala Djeridi, 33, an ex-convict who had served prison terms for robbery, swindling and assault.

Police said he confessed that he had been paid 200,000 francs—$571—for murdering the crown prince. He gave a list of names of his employers which police described as fantastic and unlikely.

Clear Police Of Negligence

NORTH BAY (CP) — A police commission investigation into the search for three-year-old Susan Hutchins has cleared the North Bay police department and Chief John Pilgrim of any blame for failure to find the child before she was found dead May 28.

A summary of the three-man commission's findings released today absolved the police of public complaints of failing to check on reports of the child's whereabouts and failing to organize a sufficient search force.

The report said the police could not be at fault in the light of the evidence turned up at the hearings, for "failing to treat the matter as one of extreme urgency."

The commission hearing was ordered following a series of letters published in the North Bay Nugget charging that the police department had not expended enough effort in searching for the child after her mother reported her missing May 27.

The girl was found dead, her head crushed, on the outskirts of North Bay the next day.

Drew Takes Day Off To Go With Cowboys To Roundup

By ALAN DONNELLY

BRIDGE LAKE, B.C. (CP)—Hon. George Drew took the day off from election campaigning to spend Dominion Day with cowboys and Indians at a roundup at this central British Columbia village.

The Progressive Conservative leader, wearing a sports shirt and sleeveless sweater, donned a borrowed curled-brim western hat and had his picture taken with a few of the Indians who work on the ranches in this rich Cariboo cattle-raising district.

While the cowboys, many of them Chilcotin and Shuswap Indians, rode broncs and roped calves, Mr. Drew wandered through the crowd of some 1,200 persons around the tree-bordered hilltop corral.

NOT ENTIRELY FORGOTTEN

Campaigning wasn't entirely forgotten, however.

Mr. Drew and Davie Fulton, Progressive Conservative candidate in Kamloops constituency, talked to as many people, and shook as many hands, as they could reach.

In a two-minute talk, the party leader said he was happy to be here.

"You're going to grow up in a great country," he said, addressing the young people, "and the kind of thing you are doing today makes it all worth while."

Mr. Drew motored from Kamloops, 90 miles southeast of here, over a rough, twisting road through the mountains to reach the stampede.

Today he heads back into the campaign for the Aug. 10 election.

In a railway car equipped with a loudspeaker on the back platform, he travels through the Rocky mountains making whistle-stop speeches wherever possible. The day will end with a speech in Calgary.

Bombers Surprise 40 Communist Tanks

SEOUL (AP)—Allied Sabre jet fighter-bombers surprised 30 to 40 Communist tanks in a camouflaged valley just behind the western front today and saturated the area with 1,000-pound bombs.

Black smoke filled the valley, making an accurate count of wrecked tanks impossible, the 5th Air Force said.

Not since early in the war has a comparable concentration of Red armor been spotted so near the Korean front.

The 8th Army, meanwhile, reported that heavy fighting cost the Reds 36,000 killed and wounded last month, the equivalent of about three Red divisions.

Price Index Report Won't Change Much

OTTAWA (CP)—With a continuous half-year of price drops behind it, the consumer price index comes up for another measurement Friday.

This will be the May trend of living costs. Indications are it likely will show no radical departures from previous months when the price of foodstuffs was generally down and rent up.

The price yardstick, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, now stands at 114.4, down a fifth of a point during April when lower food prices outbalanced the impact of rising rents.

In the space of six months it dropped 1.7 points, through steady tiny monthly cuts. The biggest was seventenths of a point during February.

4 Killed, 4 Hurt In Head-on Crash

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Four persons were killed Wednesday and four others injured when a truck and car collided head-on three miles from Tilbury, about 15 miles west of Chatham.

Dead are: Wilfred Lajoie, 69, and Shirley Amy, 17, both of Windsor; Gary Steele, 16, of Camden township, Kent county; and James McCarthy, 17, of London, Ont.

McCarthy died in hospital here five hours after the accident.

Injured are: Shirley Green, 18, her sister, Velda, 17, Gene Miliucci, 23, and Lorne Steele, 21, a brother of Gary, all of Windsor.

Shirley Green suffered serious head injuries and is in "critical" condition, hospital officials said. Her sister suffered facial and other injuries.

Steele, driver of the car, suffered head lacerations and his condition is not considered serious. Miliucci, driver of the truck in which Lajoie was a passenger, escaped ith minor injuries.

BULLETIN

TORONTO (CP)—The Dominion public weather office warned this afternoon that severe thunderstorm are heading for Southern Ontario and will cover the area by early evening. Considerable crop damage can be expected, it said. Weather officials said the storms may be more severe than Wednesday night's disturbances which hit hard at southwestern parts of the province. They added, however, that there were no signs of a tornado. "The storm is boiling up over Michigan state and will move over most of Southern Ontario by 7 p.m. EDT tonight."

2 Children Die Charge Father

OTTAWA (CP)—Jean Baptiste Laframboise, 41, was charged Wednesday with criminal negligence following the death by suffocation of two of his children.

Police said that both Laframboise and his wife, Florence, 36, were absent Tuesday night when fire gutted Laframboise's two-storey frame house in centretown Ottawa, killing Leo Laframboise, 7, and Pauline, 6.

Ten other Laframboise children were rescued by neighbors but Leo and Pauline apparently remained under a olanket in an upstairs bedroom and were smothered. Firemen found the bodies.

$75,000 Damage In Sarnia Storm

SARNIA — About $75,000 damage was caused here by Wednesday's storm which felled some 1,000 trees and put hydro and telephone service out of commission.

The cost of tree removal and repair of sidewalks, curbs and gutters will run to about $25,000. Hydro's damage was reported between $40,000 to $50,000.

Says Company Co-operative

OTTAWA (CP) — The Dreke-Merritt Company of New York was described today as a company which has always co-operated with the Canadian labor department in hiring personnel for its Canadian operations.

M. M. Maclean, deputy labor minister, was commenting on a statement by J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West) that he had seen advertisements placed by the company in United States newspapers asking for civil engineers who "must be American citizens" to work in Labrador.

Mr. Murphy said he protested to Labor Minister Gregg Tuesday over this alleged hiring policy.

Mr. Maclean said in an interview today that even if the American company had placed advertisements such as those described by Mr. Murphy, it did not indicate a bias in hiring personnel.

Massey Has High Hopes:

Canada Facing Own Elizabethan Age

LONDON, (CP) — Governor-General Vincent Massey of Canada said Wednesday night Canada may be on the threshold of her own Elizabethan age.

Speaking on the 86th anniversary of Canadian Confederation, he surveyed the country's growth materially and spiritually and decided that for Canadians the old, self-conscious, doubting days are over.

"It is not easy to give any clear or accurate impression of all that is going on," he said in a dinner address. "I think, however, it may not be complacent or fanciful to suggest that Canada—in youthful vigor, enthusiasm and confidence, hailing her youthful and beloved sovereign—may even now be approaching her own Elizabethan age."

500 GUESTS

Mr. Massey, here on a private visit, was addressing the Canada Club, sometimes called the oldest dining club in London. It was formally organized in 1810 and traces its origin to the fur traders of the Northwest Company. British cabinet ministers, distinguished members of London's diplomatic corps and many prominent Canadians were among the 500 guests.

Mr. Massey opened and closed a reflective address by stressing the unifying influence of the Crown on Canadian and Commonwealth affairs.

"In a Commonwealth formed of nations both old and young, the Crown gives us all a common sense of oneness with the past. In a Commonwealth whose diversity is one of its glories, it brings about a true unity of spirit."

SLOW PEOPLE

Speaking of the "new epoch" in Canada, Mr. Massey said in earlier days Canadians were a slow and quiet people, their future apparently hinging on things beyond their own control. Emotionally and culturally the nation tended to wait on its neighbors.

"But now there is a change. We know now that we have a future of our own; we know that we must and can control it; we know that, manifest or not, we have a destiny for which we must m plans."

Socreds Head For Majority In B.C. Voting

Make First Inroads On Vancouver Island Look To City Now

VANCOUVER (CP)—Social Credit appeared today to be marching toward majority government in British Columbia with final success hinging on continued strength in the multiple-seat ridings.

Retaining or leading in the interior seats it captured in 1952, and making inroads for the first time on Vancouver Island, the party now looks to the big city ridings for a working majority in the 48-seat legislature.

Tuesday, the to-be-continued provincial election picked up where it left off three weeks ago and there was no change in the trend which showed itself voting day.

LATEST STANDING

The latest standing showed: Elected: Social Credit 19; CCF 12; Liberals 5; Labor 1 and Progressive Conservative 1. Leading: Social Credit 10; CCF 2. Total 48.

With 19 seats in the bag—the same number with which it formed a minority government in 1952—Social Credit was six seats short of a working majority.

The Vancouver riding, still a riddle in the counting confusion, could provide this strength, lack of which toppled Premier W. A. C. Bennett's minority government after seven stormy months in office.

The CCF, it appeared, would again form the official Opposition under school principal Arnold Webster who, like Premier Bennett, was one of the first to be declared elected in the June 9 balloting.

SALVAGE 3 MEMBERS

Defeated by Social Credit in last year's June 12 voting, the Liberals went into the new election with six members and salvaged three in counting Tuesday and Wednesday. Sitting member Dr. Lorenzo Giovando has been the only Progressive Conservative elected.

Standing at dissolution in the spring was: Social Credit 19; CCF 18; Liberals 6; Conservatives 2; Labor 1; vacant 2. Total 48.

Social Credit stormed into the Liberal stronghold of Victoria in counting completed Wednesday night and captured all three seats there for a total of four on Vancouver Island.

B. C. was voting for the second time under the alternative system of balloting. The three-week period before returning officers started on the count of alternative choices was to allow for transfer of absentee ballots to their proper constituencies.

RETURNED TO OFFICE

As of Wednesday night five of Premier Bennett's cabinet ministers had been returned to office. Education Minister Mrs. Tilly Rolston, meanwhile, was fighting it out in Vancouver-Point Grey with Liberal leader Arthur Laing, while Health Minister Eric Martin and Provincial Secretary Wesley Black were leading in their respective ridings. Attorney-General Bonner was in the lead in three-seat Point Grey with Mrs. Rolston.

One disappointment for Social Credit was the defeat of Finance Minister Einar Gunderson in Oakley, where Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson also suffered personal defeat. The seat was won by Phillip Gibbs, a Liberal and sitting member.

Up to Wednesday night, Social Credit had gained two seats from the CCF and three from the Liberals. The Liberals had gained one from the CCF and one from the Progressive Conservatives. In turn, the Socialists gained one from the Liberals.

Recounts of first-choice ballots slowed counting to a snail's pace in Vancouver and returning officers said it may be days before the final outcome is known.

The ridings of Vancouver-Burrard, Vancouver Centre, Vancouver East and Vancouver-Point Grey hold nine seats, seven of them undecided after the first count.

The CCF was elected in one and was leading in one, while first-count figures put Social Credit ahead in the other seven, more than enough for a majority if first-count strength can be continued.

Senate Tackles Trade Agreement

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to extend the reciprocal trade agreements law for one year comes up in the Senate today with strong bipartisan backing assuring passage.

The present law expired June 12, and Eisenhower administration leaders are anxious to get it back on the books.

Senate leaders promised their colleagues that they can have a long Fourth of July holiday if they pass the extension bill during the day or tonight.

The Reciprocal Trade Act, first passed in 1934, permits the president to lower tariff rates in return for concessions granted by other countries. Although the law has now expired, existing agreements are not affected.

President Eisenhower asked Congress for a simple one-year extension.

Canadian Government Criticizes Dairy Curbs

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government Tuesday officially criticized the United States government for imposing new dairy import curbs and expressed a fear that surplus American agricultural products may be dumped into the channels of world trade.

An official protest against the curbs was presented to the U.S. state department in Washington Tuesday by Canadian ambassador Hume Wrong. New Zealand made a similar protest last week.

The 600-word Canadian note called the new restrictions "severe" and said they are bound to raise "grave problems" not only for international trade but for the whole structure of international co-operation.

The Canadian government observed that the new curbs were proclaimed by the U.S. government "without advance consultation on the problems of joint concern which are thus created."

Royal Horse Guards Lose Famous Steed

LONDON— (REUTERS) —The Royal Horse Guards today announced the death of a real old veteran—Pompey, placid but proud drum-horse who led his regimental band in the Coronation procession. He was 19. He had taken part in every ceremonial occasion of the regiment since 1946. Last week he was in Scotland for the Queen's Coronation visit.

107 Employees Fired

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House of Representatives committee learned today that 107 state department employees have been fired this year as a result of investigations concerning homosexuality or questionable security. The information came from R. W. Scott McLeod, state department security officer, in a letter to the House government operations committee.

Boy 14, Admits Fatal Stabbings

SHELBYVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A husky 14-year-old Wisconsin youth has admitted the fatal stabbing of a newspaper publisher and his wife at Sturgeon Bay, Wis., but he says "I don't know why I did it."

The six-foot, 185-pound youth signed a statement Wednesday admitting the slaying of Sumner Harris, 53, publisher of the Door county (Wis.) Advocate, and his wife, Grace, 50.

Sheriff Robert Meltzer said the statement was made by James A. Duranty, who was arrested here Wednesday morning by two policemen who found him sleeping in a restroom at the courthouse.

Duranty was booked on a charge of vagrancy.

Stories of the Monday night slayings related that Duranty had left a note for his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Duranty, who live next door to the Harris family, reading: "Dear mom and pop. I killed Mr. and Mrs. H. You can call police. Tell them I'm headed for Michigan."

MORE ABOUT—
St. Laurent

private conference at Charlottetown with P. E. I. Liberals and Resources Minister Winters and State Secretary John W. Pickersgill, with him on this leg of the tour.

At Charlottetown, Mr. St. Laurent expressed the hope that Canada will soon attain complete stature as a nation by taking over power to amend its constitution in all respects.

CAN'T AGREE ON FORMULA

At present, the provinces can amend the British North America Act on purely provincial matters. Parliament can amend on strictly federal matters. But the two cannot agree on a formula for making changes of joint interest, and these still are done by the British Parliament.

"We are the only nation," Mr. St. Laurent said, "which has not the power to amend its constitution in all respects, and I am sure that most Canadians hope and expect that some day before long we will cease to be in that unenviable position."

No rights given the provinces under the BNA should be taken away without their consent, he said, and no government would dare touch "sacred" rights such as the use of English and French languages and education.

At Summerside he ran into his biggest crowd of the tour—about 5,000 shirt-sleeved islanders christening the town's new raceway for the province's traditional trotting contests. He spoke to them for a couple of minutes during the opening ceremony.

NO AREA NEGLECTED

Mr. St. Laurent said at Sydney that if the Liberals are returned to power no area of Canada will be neglected where it is within the means of the federal government to lend assistance that can be justified in the national interest.

Speaking in the heart of the Maritimes' big steel and coal industry, the prime minister said many people feel the real destiny of the industry lies in the future and that means must be found to make the area a great fabricating centre both for Canadian and export markets.

But, the government was not promising to do that. It was looking to Canadian industry to exploit the possibilities of the region.

He said that a modernization of coal mines—currently leaving some men idle—eventually would be beneficial to the industry.

LOOKED LIKE TORNADO

Capping the day-long windstorms, a cloud formation that resembled a tornado swept through the central part of the state at night. The storm brushed the tree tops in Bay City, felling power lines and blacking out part of the city.

John W. Kunz, 55, of Memphis, Mich., was electrocuted in attempting to remove a power line which fell on the Memphis Auto Parts Co.

The Flint area, scene of a tornado that killed 115 persons June 8, was hit by winds of gale force. Edward Phillips was injured seriously when a tree fell on him.

Conservatives Keep Slim House Majority

ABINGDON, England (Reuters)—The Conservative government Wednesday won a by-election in this "atom" constituency, retaining its slender 18-vote majority in the House of Commons.

Abingdon is traditionally a Conservative seat, but the Labor party felt it had a good chance this time because of the thousands of workers at the nearby Harwell atomic establishment.

The Conservative candidate, Airey M. A. Neave, polled 22,986 votes. Labor candidate Ted Castle had 17,126 and George R. Allen, Liberal, 3,060.

This gave the Conservatives a plurality of 5,860 over Labor—compared to 4,883 in a straight fight at the last election—and a majority of 2,800 over the combined opposition.

The contest was caused by the elevation to the peerage of Sir Ralph Glyn, Conservative.

Find Prices Mixed On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Prices continued mixed in early afternoon stock market trading today in spite of rising tendencies among western oils.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals were active after a slow start but turned in losses in two out of three issues traded.

Specialities in the rejuvenated western oils group were Canada Southern with its 70-cent rise and Pacific Petroleum, up a half.

Higher-priced base metals, such as Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay and Noranda led the grouping lower. Among junior issues, Cassiar dropped to a new low of $6.30 on a 20-cent loss.

Industrials were buoyed by papers, foods, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous industrials sections. CIL, White Pass and Yukon and Aluminium had gains of $1 or better while General Motors jumped $1.50.

Golds drew little interest as seniors weakened while juniors and holding companies were mixed.

Russians Use Pieck Again

BERLIN (AP)—The Russians dragged East Germany's aged President Wilhelm Pieck out of obscurity today to sound another call for German unity. Pieck's resurrection appeared to be new testimony that all still was not well across the German-splitting Iron Curtain.

The Red army newspaper Taegliche Rundschau devoted its whole front page to the 77-year-old titular head of the East zone government—photographs of him talking to party comrades in the Soviet union, a flowery tribute and an article, signed by him, calling for:

1. An end to the economic and political ailments which brought on the bloody workers' uprising in the Soviet zone; and, bridge near Newry in County Down ripped up 250 yards of track—despite the fact the Royal Ulster constabulary had been maintaining a special guard all along the railway.

2. creation of the necessary atmosphere for all-German approaches—Communist version— to the reunification of the divided country.

The explosion was heard across the frontier in the Irish Republic, where the authorities immediately placed their frontier guards on the alert and rushed reinforcement to the border.

The railroad planned to run 60 special trains into Belfast today so that as many Irish as possible could see the Queen on her various drives through the city. Many of these specials were to run over the damaged track, including one from Dublin bringing 600 Irish veterans of the British forces to see the Queen.

The first train from Dublin was five minutes late and breakdown gangs worked to repair the line as quickly as they could. But it seemed inevitable that big delays on the crowded line—now working partly on single track—would build up during the day.

WIRES DOWN

Telephone wires beside the line were blown down and five granite blocks were shifted in the bridge, which runs over a road at a height of 25 feet. One block was blown right out.

The bomb, apparently home manufactured and set to explode by a time mechanism, went off on the main track at Kilnasagrat, about three-quarters of a mile inside Northern Ireland.

PLANS UNCHANGED

The Queen's plans were unchanged by the explosion.

Today she and the Duke drove through beflagged Belfast streets to the northern Houses of Parliament to receive loyal addresses from the Senate and the Commons.

Besides the luncheon, there also was a ceremony at Queen's University, a parade of war veterans and an RAF fly-past.

Police said they did not fear an open attack upon the Queen but increasing petty bomb incidents in the last month have pointed to renewed activity by republicans actively opposed to the partition of Ireland.

They were on the alert for any attempt at demonstrations or interference with the state drives.

The site of the explosion is more than 40 miles from the nearest point the royal pair will visit during their tour.

REINFORCE GUARDS

But police immediately reinforced guards along the 90-mile Belfast-Londonderry railroad which the royal train will travel Friday.

Armed men cordoned bridges and grade crossings. Railroad officials said two or perhaps three special trains will move along the line ahead of the Queen's train.

In 1921 Irish anti-royalist wrecked a troop train on practically the same spot. That time the Queen's grandfather, George V, was in Belfast to open the Northern Ireland Parliament.

Meanwhile, Northern Ireland police began tearing down hundreds of posters plastered on the walls of Belfast and Londonderry overnight proclaiming that the Queen has no right to rule over any part of Ireland.

The proclamations were signed by 12 Nationalist members of Parliament and two senators in the Northern Ireland Parliament and by two members of the House of Commons in London.

Admits Stayed Open After Midnight; Fined

Anthony Marino, former proprietor of Tony's Lunch, was fined $5 and $2.50 costs in Magistrate's Court today when he pleaded guilty to a bylaw charge of staying open after 12 midnight.

In making his plea, Marino asked Magistrate W. R. Philp to "be lenient", because the accused gave up the lunch counter business since the charge was laid.

Gets Cheque Back

NEW YORK (AP) — A pay cheque whirled away by a tornado at Worcester, Mass., and lost for 21 days has been returned to railway mail clerk Charles F. Nowlin. Rain-streaked but still legible, the cheque landed 60 miles away at the South Weymouth navy base, near Roxbury, Mass. It was found by John J. Landry, a sailor and returned to Nowlin. The twister flattened Nowlin's house.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 9-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Tuesday's noon rate was 99 7-16. Pound sterling $2.79 13-16, unchanged.

Lazy Boy Stays In Bed 3 Years

GLOUCESTER, England (AP)—Kenneth V. Wherrat really did hate—with a purple passion—to get out of bed in the morning.

One day in 1950 Kenneth, then 15, decided he simply wasn't going to do it any more.

Kenneth didn't get up the next morning, or the next, or the one after that, or in fact until Wednesday when the police came.

Police had been summoned by neighbors, who wondered whatever became of Kenneth. They found Kenneth snug in bed, reading a comic book.

His mother said there didn't seem to be anything wrong with her son, now 18. He just wouldn't get out of bed.

The police removed Kenneth to a hospital where the tentative verdict of the doctors was: "Sane and healthy, but suffering from chronic inertia."

Medical Services In Surgery Also

Kawartha Co-Operative Medical Services extended their benefits into the surgical field beginning July 1.

They have 100 members in this broadened scope, and they should have at least another 50. Directors and group secretaries are meeting at Hooper's Friday evening at 7 p.m. for a "pep" talk, a calling forth of extra effort to enlist at least fifty more people of the district in the new surgical branch of the Services. The extra cost is $30 a family. One of the strongest points of recommendation of this financial backing for people has been the increasing number of accidents in rural life and work.

De Valera Wins Confidence Vote

DUBLIN (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera won a showdown vote of confidence tonight in the Irish republic's Dail (Parliament) by a two-vote margin.

The 70-year-old statesman risked his government—and possibly his own long political career—after his Fianna Fail party suffered setbacks in three recent by-elections.

He won 73 to 71.

The two votes was the exact measure of the edge held by De Valera's coalition in the dail.

Refused To Fire 18 Soldiers Executed

BERLIN (AP)—The West Berlin newspaper, Telegraf, says today 18 Soviet soldiers were executed by firing squads last weekend for refusing to fire on German rioters in Magdeburg when called in to quell the June 17 workers' revolt.

According to The Telegraf, the soldiers even refused to arrest the rioters after the Germans assured them that their uprising was not directed against the Soviet troops.

The executions were said to have been carried out in a Soviet army camp in a woods between Biederitz and Gommern, near Magdeburg.

No source was given by The Telegraf for its report, which did not appear in any other Berlin paper and could not be confirmed by any official source.

This was the first report of any Soviet soldier being executed.

Rhodesia Gives Queen Mother Royal Welcome

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabeth, and Princess Margaret received a royal welcome from thousands of excited Rhodesians Wednesday as they opened a 16-day Rhodes centenary tour of this central African colony.

The mother and sister of Queen Elizabeth II rested in the evening after their overnight jet flight from London into the heart of Africa. They have no further official engagements until their special train leaves tonight for a 300-mile journey to Bulawayo.

There on Friday the Queen Mother will open a Rhodes exhibition honoring the South African statesman who pioneered the development of South and central Africa. Rhodes was born in 1853.

CROWDS LINE ROAD

Crowds of white and natives lined the dusty sun-baked highway under a blazing sun to watch the royal guests ride in state from Salisbury's new airport to the colonial capital.

African schoolchildren waved Union Jacks and called out in piping voices as the 15-car procession passed.

Outside Salisbury a mounted escort of 16 lance-bearing policemen met the royal visitors and led the procession to Government House.

The Queen Mother and Princess Margaret lunched there with Maj.-Gen. Sir John Kennedy, governor of Southern Rhodesia and lady Kennedy.

City Had Slate Clean Of Fatalities Until May

Peterborough is one of fifteen cities that has a clean sheet for automobile deaths up to the end of April this year, but despite this, the May toll of 84 killed was the highest in the history of the province.

Cities reporting no fatal accidents for the first four months were: Belleville, Brantford, Chatham, Fort William, Galt, Guelph, North Bay, Peterborough, Port Arthur, St. Thomas, Sault Ste. Marie, Stratford, Welland, Woodstock and Waterloo.

The death of Frank Hughes on June 2, in a two accident at the corner of Park and Lansdowne Streets was the first fatality this year. It was followed closely, when on June 10, 11-year-old Bruce Burfield was killed, struck by a car on Lansdowne St.

Prime Minister Sees Agreement With Provinces

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's 86th birthday Wednesday furnished an apt excuse for election campaigning on constitutional issues. Prime Minister St. Laurent raised them in Charlottetown where the ground-work of Confederation was laid in 1864. Meanwhile, Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, took a day's rest from campaigning in the West to attend a stampede celebration of Dominion Day in south-central British Columbia.

However, he charged on the eve of Dominion Day that B.C. markets for salmon, lumber and other products were lost "because the Liberal government didn't have enough interest in the British market to keep it open." He told a New Westminster, B.C., audience that they can be regained.

In Ottawa Tuesday night Solon Low, Social Credit leader, also dealt with international trade in a national radio address. He proposed that Canada accept sterling in trade.

WILL AGREE SOON

Mr. St. Laurent, speaking outside the building where union delegates met in 1864, said he believes "spokesmen of all the provinces will be able to agree on a method of amending the constitution here in Canada which will give full protection to provincial autonomy."

The provinces can amend the British North America Act on purely provincial matters. Parliament can amend it on federal matters. But changes of joint interest still must be made in the British Parliament.

He gave a group of youngsters a talk on the meaning of Confederation and Dominion Day in the Confederation Chamber.

Mr. St. Laurent struck a similar note in Saint John, N.B., the previous night. He said any permanent re-allocation of taxation powers by a constitutional change will have to be made by some other government than his. The federal government might be hamstrung in an emergency.

RAID ON POWERS

Any such shuffling of tax rights would be a "raid on federal powers. I would feel it was a crime against the Canadian nation to take any risk of that kind."

Mr. Drew said the government had "ridiculed" Opposition suggestions in 1949 that sterling-area markets were in danger. Since then, the Liberal majority in Parliament had voted down repeated Opposition proposals to improve trade.

He said Canada's association with the United States was important but "I'm not prepared to hang onto Uncle Sam's coattails." Britain was a partner worthy of consideration.

Britain was a market of 20,000,000 people who relied on food from abroad and would rather eat Canadian than Russian salmon.

Referring to housing, Mr. Drew said in a Vancouver speech that lower down payments on homes is necessary and possible through co-operation among the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

INCREASED LOANS

He said that as premier of Ontario his government increased loans to home buyers which reduced down payments to 10 per cent.

"I believe that whole-hearted co-operation between the federal and provincial governments, as well as the municipalities, arrangements of this kind can be made."

Mr. Low said Canada should support development of an international clearing house to move surplus agricultural products to countries needing them. Failure to satisfy that need would expand hunger and want in the world and furnish communism with a fertile breeding ground.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner had suggested that farmers reduce production to maintain prices. A Social Credit government would increase production to meet the challenge of feeding the world's hungry.

Low Requests Sterling Used To Spur Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Solon Low, Social Credit leader, Tuesday night launched an attack against established international financial structures and proposed that Canada accept sterling to facilitate international trade.

He suggested, too, that Canada support development of an international clearing house to move surplus agricultural products to countries needing them.

There are many nations desperately in need of surplus farm products, said Mr. Low in a free-time CBC broadcast.

"Failure to do our part in helping to satisfy that need will only result in expanding hunger and want in many parts of the world, thereby creating a fertile breeding ground for the spread of Communism."

DOESN'T APPROVE

Mr. Low criticized the Liberal Government for supporting the Breton Woods agreement, the International Monetary Fund and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

It was quite obvious to any one, said Mr. Low, that these agreements have not been successful in achieving a balance of international payments and thereby paving the way for convertibility.

As for agriculture, Mr. Low said Agriculture Minister Gardiner had suggested that farmers reduce production in order to maintain price. A Social Credit Government would increase production, to meet the challenge of feeding the world's hungry people.

"Social Credit advocates that we keep up our production, and that after completely satisfying our own Canadian market, including the low income groups such as old-age pensioners, recipients of war veterans' allowances and physically incapacitated, we export our real surpluses of food to the nations of the world, particularly the sterling area, and that we accept sterling in payment."

20-Pound Parcels Allowed In Mail To UK

Parcels up to the weight limit of 20 pounds and under the general regulations of the surface parcel post service to Great Britain will be accepted in the mails for Trans-Atlantic air service to that country.

This service will commence on July 1 announced Postmaster General Alcide Cote.

The new air rates will be $1.00 for the first half pound and 40c each additional quarter pound, lower than the present air mail letter rates.

Extensions of this service will be put into effect as arrangements are concluded with other countries

Further Tax Cuts

CANBERRA (Reuters)—The acting prime minister Arthur Fadden, also treasurer, told Australians today they could look forward to further tax cuts. He said the country had a surplus of £13,100,000 (about $30,000,000) and described the financial future as "a pleasant prospect."

Shortage Of People Now No. 1 Problem Croll Says

HAMILTON — Denying danger of a possible collapse in the country's booming employment, Toronto Liberal David Croll told 700 perspiring adherents at a meeting Tuesday night that a shortage of people is fast becoming Canada's No. 1 problem.

Without a vastly increased population Canada could not hope to keep its date with destiny, he declared. There would have to be 250,000 newcomers pouring into Canada every year for many years to come.

"We can't continue to exepct our raw products and bring them back as finished goods to sell to Canadians at high prices," he declared. "There is a lot of complacent talk about the future of Canada; the golden age of expansion and the new riches being uncovered, but not enough has been said or done toward bringing in the people to help make our dreams possible."

Dealing with the need for a greater flow of immigrants, Mr. Crall said there should be no fear in the minds of Canadians that the country would be flooded with cheap labour.

"There is no such thing as cheap labor," he said. "We need a larger home market so that the goods we sell on that market may be lowered in price through mass production. There can be no expanding economy, no extension of social security, no upward movement in our living standards, unless we populate this comparatively empty land."

If narrow, selfish views were permitted to influence policy, then Canadians would not come into their rightful heritage, the speaker continued. Canada needed decent, healthy people, who would blend into the Canadian scene, whose blood would mingle with that of the native-born.

"In opening wider the door, we must, of course, renew our vigilance against those who seek to enter Canada and preach and work for the overthrow of by violence of our democratic way of life," he said.

On the question of the future, Mr. Croll said those who talked of mass unemployment and economic chaos coming in days of peace, were not only men of little faith in Canada and its people, but they weer thinking in the 'timid terms of the 1930's with its soup kitchens and bread lines, and doles." No matter what the future held, the stability of the Canadian economy, and its flexibility, would prevent those days from ever returning.

"Don't forget that seven short years ago these selfsame apostles of ruin cried from the housetops that the end of the Second World War would be followed by an end of high employment and economic stability," Mr. Croll reminded his audience.

"You know how wrong they were. The conversion from war to peace was virtually a painless operation, and it paved the way for the unprecedented prosperity we are now enjoying.

"We Liberals don't fear peace," he declared. "We welcome it."

Lt.-Col. Neil Gemmell Officer In Charge Of Vote In Far East

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Whether they are in Korea front-line positions, or in rear areas of the Far East command, Canadians serving in this theatre will be able to vote in the forthcoming federal election.

About 5,500 Canadian soldiers in Korea and Japan will be eligible to cast their ballots. In addition there are sailors with the three Canadian destroyers normaly on duty in the Far East, and RCAF fliers on attachment with the United States 5th air force.

Arrangements already are under way for the balloting, which will be from Aug. 3 to Aug. 8 in this theatre. Voting in Canada will be Aug. 10.

VOTING CENTRES

Ottawa has instructed the 25th Canadian infantry brigade to decide how many voting centres will be needed to poll the army in the Far East and to name a deputy returning officer for each. The DROs will be officers.

Senior returning officer in the Far East will be Lt.-Col. Neil Gemmell of Calgary and Peterborough, officer commanding 25th Canadian reinforcement group in Kure, Japan.

LT.-COL. NEIL M. GEMMELL

Approximately 15 polling centres will be set up, staff officers say. Wing Commander J. C. Hollies, formerly of Western Command headquarters in Edmonton and now of the judge - advocate - general's staff in Ottawa, is due in Tokyo July 6 to brief staff officers and the DROs on the conduct of the polling.

He will spend a week in Korea and Japan giving briefings, returning to Canada from Tokyo July 14.

The actual polling is to be supervised, say reports here, by Lt.-Col. Aime Desrosiers of Montreal.

Spread through a five-day period, the operation will enable the polls to move from the forward companies back through the successive echelons to Tokyo.

No information is available yet on where the Far East vote will be tabulated. The assumption is that it will be either in Tokyo or Kure, with the results being cabled to Ottawa for incorporation with the national ballot. (The service votes will be added to civilian totals in the different ridings a week after Aug. 10).

Speakers for the afternoon include Senator W. A. Fraser and the four successful Liberal candidates in nearby ridings in the 1949 election, namely: Frank Follwell, South Hastings; Dr. Fred Robertson, Northumberland; John James, Durham, and William Henderson.

Bringing Sunshine

CCF Promises Better Life For Labor

OTTAWA (CP)—A CCF government would bring "some sunshine" into the life of the old-age pensioner, a spokesman for the Canadian Congress of Labor said Tuesday night as the 370,000-member labor body threw its support behind the CCF election campaign.

"If any of you were surprised to hear a trade unionist on a CCF broadcast, you needn't be any longer," said Donald MacDonald, CCL secretary-treasurer, in a free-time political broadcast.

"Because labor, or at any rate, the Canadian Congress of Labor, supports the CCF. We support it because it promises a better life not only for the workers of this country but for all who work for a living in Canada, whether on a farm, in an office, or in a factory."

The reason the CCL is in politics, said Mr. MacDonald, is that "we've come to realize that a lot of the things we want just can't be had by bargaining with employers or going out on strike."

Labor wanted full employment, good housing within everyone's means, health insurance, incomes during illness and higher old-age pensions, said Mr. MacDonald.

These and other wants were matters of legislation, not collective bargaining.

"And if we expect to get them, there's only one way, and that's by electing to parliament the kind of government that believes in these things too."

Mr. MacDonald maintained that only the CCF stands for full employment.

"Not that the others don't want it, but they're not prepared to plan for it. The CCF alone stands four-square for health insurance. The Liberal government has been pussy-footing about it for years, and so far as I can see will continue to do so.

"One look at the housing situation and you don't need me to tell you what the same government hasn't done to meet the needs of the people. The CCF alone is committed to a large-scale housing program, including subsidized low-cost housing for low - income groups, and low interest rates to make it possible for people to own their own homes. And a CCF government will bring some sunshine into the life of the old-age pensioner."

Wants Law To Deal With Reds

VANCOUVER—Serving a foreign country to destroy Canada's democratic institutions should be defined by law and made punishable, Conservative leader George Drew said at a press conference here in an attack on Communism.

"The one think which could give rise to McCarthyism in this country would be trying to deal with communism without there being a law to define the offence."

Point Seven in the Conservative platform says a Conservative government would introduce such a law, he declared. He emphasized that he did not suggest communism should be outlawed by name; if that were done it would merely assume another.

By implication at least, Mr. Drew accused the present government of practicing a form of McCarthyism when he said it had kept or removed persons from employment for a reason— communism— which it refused to define in law.

One characteristic of McCarthyism, which takes it name from Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin, is that a charge of disloyalty, whether or not supported by evidence, is presumed proved until it is disproved.

It was Mr. Drew's contention that the absence of a law which would make it possible for subversives to be dealt with in the courts, rather than by arbitrary decision, held the danger of McCarthyism growing up here.

The question of communism in Canada was introduced to a press conference by Mr. Drew when in reply to a question on the possibility of a Conservative government cutting CBC expenditures, he said in part:

"If we are going to spend heavily on broadcasts to behind the Iron Curtain we should be more sure of the type of people that are making and preparing those broadcasts."

He said the CBC had been careless in the choice of some such people.

Asked if he believed there were subversives in the CBC, Mr. Drew replied: "There is a difference between subversion and lack of loyalty."

He said Canada, in broadcasts to Iron Curtain countries, should be seeking to interpret life in Canada as it is rather than doing the type of broadcast they've actually made at times.

Voting Machines Next?

TORONTO (CP) — Voting machines may be used in municipal elections here. Edgar Norris, deputy city clerk, said Tuesday he examined the machines in Buffalo, N.Y., and will recommend that they be introduced here. He said that, because there are no ballots, the vote in each poll can be tabulated accurately minutes after the poll closes.

Conservative Choice

PETROLIA (CP)—Grant Dean, 57, of Wallaceburg, was nominated at a party rally Tuesday as Conservative candidate for the Aug. 10 federal election in Lambton-Kent riding.

Tustin To Run Again

NAPANEE (CP)—George J. Tustin of Napanee was nominated Tuesday as Progressive Conservative candidate to contest the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox in the Aug. 10 federal election. He has held the seat for the last 18 years.

Force Free Rides

CALCUTTA (AP)—Irate streetcar riders, angered by a fare increase, took over the British-owned Calcutta Tramways Limited today and forced free rides to all. Police watched helplessly.

Hunan Hit Hard

HONG KONG (AP) — Belated Communist press dispatches just received here indicate that two-thirds or more of Hunan province, China's rice bowl, was hit by a flood in mid-June. Some farmer losses exceed 70 per cent.

Diplomats To Take Over

The necessity of taking a rest has been imposed on Sir Winston Churchill. The chief external effect of this condition has been a postponement of a meeting of the British and French premiers and the American President. This Bermuda conference—considered to be prelude to a meeting of Churchill and possibly Mr. Eisenhower with Malenkov—was not a popular conception. It was Sir Winston's own impetuous proposal, and the regular diplomats and foreign chancelleries viewed it uneasily. There was no French Prime Minister, and the American President was rather reluctantly drawn into it. The prospects were not greatly improved by the designation of M. Laniel as French Premier. He has no special knowledge of foreign affairs at all. Now the indisposition of Mr. Churchill has cleared the air and given time for preparatory work, so that whatever meeting does take place between the elected heads of state will not go off at half-cock.

* * *

The emergence of Mr. R. A. Butler as principal figure in the British Cabinet has been foreseen, his star has risen high in the last twelve months. The illness of Mr. Anthony Eden, and now the withdrawal of Sir Winston to his country home for a rest, make Mr. Butler the prime influence in British political life at a rather critical time in its external relations. Sir Winston cannot, of course, be kept from putting his hand and mind to work, despite his fatigue, yet the daily decisions will be Mr. Butler's.

* * *

A significant move has been to name the Marquess of Salisbury Acting Foreign Secretary. This is an obvious preparation for a conference of British, French and American foreign ministers, which is now expected to begin next week. Lord Salisbury is not only experienced in the British Foreign Office; he knows the policies which have informed the decisions of his predecessors, Mr. Eden and Sir Winston. On the whole, the new conditions of meeting, taking into account the recent complexities of both Eastern and Western national interests, seem better than the original proposal. The foreign ministers with their special staffs can cover more ground more thoroughly, and in a tried diplomatic way, than the heads of states could do at a conference for which little preparation had been made. The Bermuda conference, we hope, will come later, when policy schisms have been repaired.

Piece-Work Squeeze Started German Uprisings

All sorts of guesses were made in the West about the causes of the uprisings in East Germany. Some wondered whether a powerful underground movement had come into the open in a coordinated outbreak. Others said that Western political warfare agencies were responsible (as the Russians claimed). Still others believed that the strikes and demonstrations were incited by Moscow for devious political reasons, one perhaps being a conflict in policy between the Kremlin and East Berlin. Actually, the affair was started by a prosaic incident, a regulation requiring workers to do more for the standard wage. The underlying cause was a deep dissatisfaction with the standard of living.

On May 28th, the East German Government issued a decree requiring a ten per cent. all-round increase in the production 'norms' which a worker has to fulfil in order to qualify for the standard wage. The first wages on the new basis were paid between June 5th and June 8th. Many workers found their pay envelopes had shrunk by much more than ten percent., owing to loss of bonuses hitherto given for over-time or 'overfulfilling' the old norms. Skilled workers and others who had formerly been praised for their production became disaffected. A Politburo decision and Government announcement quickly followed: that the regime had made mistakes in not taking sufficient care of the people's standard of living. Concessions were offered to farmers, private craftsmen and traders, but none to factory workers. The next week-end the new low wages were again paid.

A few downed tools in one or two factories, and some party officials, not having union headquarters' direction on the matter, gave tentative support to the malcontents. The official hesitation and fumbling offered the workers the edge they needed; the walk-outs started, demonstrations occurred. Even then the police and military were uncertain what line to take, and so for a couple of days the movement went out of their hands. The groups formed nuclei and leaders were pushed forward. The demonstrators realized they had more power than any of them had thought possible. Some members of strike committees were even seeking to get in touch with the free labour movement in West Berlin. The East Berlin demonstrations were an example for factory groups in other parts of the Soviet sector. There was little co-ordination between one factory and another, or one city and another.

The extent and force of the demonstrations, begun with pay envelopes and ending with riots and carried through without leadership, are a sign to the West of the seething discontent and meagre standards of living in East Germany. They must be a sign to the Communist Government of East Germany, and to the Kremlin, of deep unrest which, if it found full expression, could upset the Communist regime in Germany and unsettle it elsewhere.

The blood and violence with which the Communist police and military finally quelled the disturbance and finished off the leaders shows how seriously the Communist officials viewed the situation, when it came into focus. The persecution which has followed the rising will fan, not dowse, the spark which began it.

Rain And Drought

Agricultural officials in Ontario warn that despite the heavy rains this spring and this month, there may be a period of drought in July and August. Their reason for saying this is an examination of past records. "A study of the rainfall records of the past thirty years indicates that for most of southern Ontario there has been a moisture deficiency in all but one or two years."

Then the officials launch into their propaganda, which is on behalf of irrigation ditches. "If this moisture (annual) is applied at the proper time, vegetables and small fruits improve both in quality and quantity and potato yields have been doubled and tripled." The type of irrigation which Professor H. D. Ayers of the Ontario Agricultural College recommends is not the irrigation ditches which are familiar in the very dry sections of the world, or even in British Columbia valleys. "Such ditches waste land and obstruct field operations. In Ontario's climate it is more practical to irrigate in a spray which is distributed under pressure through a system of pipes." Sounds like the old garden hose to us. But no, Professor Ayres could not write a whole pamphlet about garden hoses, surely. The new Circular 176 describes, with tables and illustrations, the various types of portable sprinkler systems. It outlines their costs an acre, their arrangement in the fields, the rate of water application for various crops, and other pertinent matters.

The new agricultural pamphlet seems to have emerged in the wrong year, despite the prediction that drought may be possible in July or August. This could be the one of the two years in thirty when southern Ontario has enough moisture and to spare all through the season.

Egypt A Republic

The kingdom of Egypt has been proclaimed a republic by General Neguib, present strong man of that country and ouster of King Farouk. Whether any benefits will result from the changed status of the country may be questioned. General Neguib and his army party had full control before the step was taken, for the heir to the throne was a child.

Republicanism is itself no magical instrument; the temper and character of the people are as they were, and will improve or not whether a President or King is titular head of the nation. In some countries in some eras the ending of monarchy was an essential step in reform. In Egypt Farouk was merely the symbol and exemplar of the evils which beset the country, not the evil itself; his removal abolished the symbol, not the corruption. For more than a year reform has been in the hands of the revolutionary junta surrounding Neguib. The dissolution of the monarchy offers the people no better opportunity than they took under the monarchy, or have had during the last year.

This final act of republicanism may have been dictated not by the popular desire for reform, but in order that the military junta might fully consolidate its power to control the people. It should be remembered that there have been no elections since Farouk was exiled, and General Neguib has promised them only after several years, when in his opinion, the country is sufficiently stable and the people are ready for free parliamentary elections. In the meantime, the dictatorship is being cemented.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The famous "lie detector" has been discarded by U.S. police because it has shown itself to be unreliable. So unreliable, in fact, that it couldn't even detect when it was itself lying.

We agree with the Oshawa Times-Gazette that any suggestion that the Queen might spend part of her time in Canada to attract tourists is cheap and nasty, and should be given no countenance whatever.

NEW FRENCH PREMIER

No Following, No Enemies

By NORA BELOFF

THE NEW FRENCH Prime Minister, Joseph Laniel, a competent and conservative French businessman, takes up to-day almost exactly where his predecessor Rene Mayer, also a competent and conservative businessman, left off. With only two differences: he has been given precisely those extra powers which the Assembly had refused to grant M. Mayer, and he is saddled with new financial burdens acquired during the five weeks of crisis.

The exciting succession of events in which four would-be Prime Ministers were defeated and the international conference of Bermuda twice postponed must bring France back to where the whole thing began. M. Laniel was exultantly applauded for reproducing M. Mayer's programme: the same demands for administrative reform and budgetary economies, the same emphasis on the need for housing and agricultural development; the same insistence on limiting public investment to the level of the state's borrowing capacity, the same acknowledgement that France can be adequately governed only by an executive given additional powers.

ON THE FOREIGN SIDE also there is repetition of the Mayer policy: loyalty to The North Atlantic Treaty Organization, willingness to hold East-West conferences only if the Russians give "tangible" proof of good faith, conditional support for ratification of the European Army— though leaving deputies free to decide for themselves— and the same determination to get the Americans to pay for Indo-Chinese war.

Nothing in the programme proffered and adopted by the Assembly to-day differs from the programe proffered and rejected five weeks ago. But all this is less paradoxical than it sounds, because M. Mayer was not overthrown for his policy alone— and M. Laniel was not accepted for his policy at all.

The main parties had indeed decided to vote for him before his programme was shaped. At the bottom of the crisis was the decision of the Gaullists, released by the General from their intransigent opposition to enter the ruling coalition. M. Mayer was judged to be personally unpopular and the Gaullists therefore concluded that his overthrow need not present a political liability. A rich Jew, linked by marriage with the Rothschild family, he had not yet been forgiven by the large mass of French peasants for his bold effort to halt the runaway inflation in 1948 by blocking 5,000-franc notes. This was in fact an all too timid repetition of M. Camille Gutt's policy of blocking currency in Belgium which halted inflation in that country altogether.

The demand for full powers was at least as much an excuse as a reason for M. Mayer's defeat.

THE FACT that the same request for full powers was granted to M. Laniel was partly a matter of timing. The assembly dared not prolong the crisis, particularly as the Treasury had been induced to emergency borrowing from the Bank of France which will now have to be paid back out of additional taxation. It was also partly due to party exigencies: the Radicals and M. R. P. having contributed to the "massacring" of each other's candidates, someone had to be found from outside these groups. It is true they both felt disinclined to give votes to an avowed Conservative. The M. R. P. had publicly opposed the nomination of M. Laniel's party colleague, M. Antoine Pinay, but then Pinay was associated with inflation, which made him unpopular with the workers, while his personal popularity with the middle and lower-middle class in itself made him suspect. The Gaullists also declared themselves a "social" party and were similarly hostile to M. Pinay, particularly as the personal myth which had grown up around his name in such an important sector of French opinion made him an indirect rival of Gen. de Gaulle.

M. LANIEL has no personal following and no personal enemies. Furthermore, the two groups concerned could point to the fact that whereas M. Pinay had stayed in office as Mayor of his home town all through the war, M. Laniel had gone underground into the Resistence movement, in which he played an important role. How far this was the motive and how far it was the welcome excuse which enabled these parties to group their votes around a Conservative— and so end the embarrasingly long crisis— is something which can never be accurately ascertained.

It is still an open question whether M. Laniel will be allowed to proceed very far in introducing the Mayer reforms. At least he will have to go one step further than his luckless predecessor towards reinforcing the executive and depriving the 628 deputies of their veto which to-day paralyses the French State. Many reforms will still be necessary, but the country is lucky to have found a Prime Minister who will use his personal authority and unblemished prestige to urge in his own words that the French State "be given powers more appropriate to the crushing responsibilities it is forced to assume."

An American View: "I BROUGHT YOU A PILLOW"

Letters To The Editor

MACBETH WITHDRAWS

Sir: Regarding Ceirog's letter in Saturday's Examiner, I am very sorry that there is no better sportsmanship in some certain cases. If the person is well and truly defeated, why call it abuse? After all, although this is one of the easy ways out, it is also very unfair. I withdraw from making any more comments because I am (and I say this regretfully) definitely disgusted at such a childish display. However, I will still let you know occasionally of my feeling on some certain subjects, and this type of exit will make no difference to me.

Thine, MACBETH.

AMBULANCE SERVICE

Sir: In answer to a letter in Saturday's paper, (Fairplay for Injured Humans), I happened to be a witness to the accident at Trinity Church. The injured man was put in a chair, with injured spine, under the instructions of ambulance driver, and this was done with the assistance of police and fellow-workers. The driver did not have any other proper equipment available.

For the short distance the ambulance had to travel it certainly took them far too long, and since this is the only service in Peterborough this is who the public has to depend on.

BETTER AMBULANCE SERVICE FOR PETERBOROUGH.

AN ORIENTAL SUGGESTION

Venerable Sir: It is with interest to read humble query regarding to ambulatory service in native city (is styled Lift Lock city and world famous.)

Is indisputable fact peoples of human race suffer from many broken accessories and sickness, yet distinguished elites of city, find city impoverished with empty money bags when fellow peasants humbly requesting delivery of selves to hospital.

Said city money bags full, however, with dollars, shekels, roubles and other sterling when noble gendarmies is require 5 or 6 more arms of the law, and no doubt same are required for exemplary purposes of adhering parking tickets to Cadillacs of hard working pauper peasantry.

Money bags also overflow for rental of fire-fighting gentlemen, same anticipating, no doubt, record number of illuminated addresses.

Purveyors of Hydro likewise give hearty laughter in overpaying servants who no doubt all jolly good guys anyway.

Suggest honourable firefighfers, piloted by siren-blowing police cops operate civic ambulatory wagons for good of long suffering villagers.

Said merciful service operated from world famous Memorial Centre, surplus from which no doubt can purchase necessary wagons.

Salaam, (encore) Effendi,
YOHO HAMA.

THE SCOTTISH MYTH

Sir: I am charmed by the promptitude with which Mactavish and Macbeth have confirmed my suspicions that Scots are hiding a sense of inferiority under a bold exterior. How else could we explain Saturday's display of bombast and downright bad manners?

So the Scots are come to bring their culture and traditions to the benighted (though well-fed) Canadians. Impertinence! What culture? What tradition? I can't think of a single living Scotman and very few dead ones who have achieved international fame in any art form.

They did once achieve a hedge-poet with a certain facility for sentimental lyrics and were so surprised that they made him into a sort demi-god, at whose shrine they worship annually, though few of them could quote a single one of his poems accurately. He, be it noted, was a realist; he tried to emigrate to Canada; perhaps he foresaw that his culture-loving fellow Scots were to let him cough out his life prematurely, in circumstances of abject poverty and mental distress.

As I write I have the programme for the Edinburgh Festival in front of me. It is a splendid list of distinguished Artists from all over the World but where are the Scots? Their contribution is so poor as to rouse my suspicion that the Festival is merely a method of making dollars.

As to tradition, I admit I am puzzled— do they mean the great Scottish Myth they have sedulously built up over the years, of independence, frugality, honesty and the rest? Surely their sturdy independence would have led them to reject the canned beans of Lend-Lease, that act of American generosity without parallel in history. Is not the air of the House of Commons filled with pleas from Scotland for a little of their own money back to run a ferry or keep Clyde piers open. Frugal they had to be. Honest? I lived in Glasgow once, and thieving was so bad that nameplates on doors had to be fastened with rivets.

If the Scots wish to claim credit for the invention for steam engines, radar, etc. I'll remind them that the Russians and the Americans have a head start on them in the matter of such claims.

The bagpipes would need a letter to themselves.

I close by quoting Burns, who assuredly knew his fellow Scots:

"There's naething here but Highland pride
An' Highland scab and hunger,
If Providence has sent me here
'Twas surely in His anger.

And he summed it up when he said:

Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us
Tae see oursels as ithers see us,
It would frae many an error free us
An' foolish notion.

Thank you, Mr. Editor,
ROSA DARTLE

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thou hast dealt well with thy servant, O Lord, according unto thy word . . . . I am thy servant; gave me understanding, that I may know thy testimonies . . . . The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple. (Ps. 119: 65, 125, 139).

Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, know of whom thou hast learned them; and that from a child thou hast known the hold scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. (II Tim. 3: 14, 15.)

✧ ✧ ✧

We have also a more sure word of prophecy: whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts: knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. (II Pet. 1: 19-21.)

Eisenhower Versus Republican

(Le Devoir, Montreal)

Those who hoped that the recent visit of Prime Minister St. Laurent to Washington would moderate the protectionist trend manifest in Congress would seem doomed to disappointment. Customs reforms so often promised by the United States and the lower tariffs so energetically demanded by Europe and the entire free world are not likely to take place this year. In this regard the Eisenhower Government has suffered a defeat the gravity of which it is difficult to estimate. And this is not the only domain in which the White House and the Republican majority in Congress are at loggerheads. A recent speech by Senator Taft discloses decidedly pronounced divergences of views.

When Eisenhower was named Republican candidate for the Presidency, the question was raised on all sides whether he would be the veritable chief of the party or whether he would not have to submit to the principal directors of the Republican party? The question has yet to be answered, but if we may judge by what is taking place in the matter of foreign trade, the President, notwithstanding his great personal victory at the election, is not in a position to fulfil his electoral promises even in a domain of primordial importance in which his promises correspond to an urgent need and to a fundamental condition of peace.

Summer Theatre To Stage 'Winslow Boy'

Possessed of the rare blending of pathos, humor and suspense, the brilliantly written "Winslow Boy" opens next Monday at the Summer Theatre. An outstanding cast headed by David Powell as the father is directed by Robert Gill.

Terence Rattigan is the playwright. The play is based upon the real story of a British family which sacrificed all its good name and security to vindicate a young son who had been unjustly accused of a petty theft. The dramatist became fascinated with the celebrated legal battle in which Martin Archer-Shee, a minor bank official, took on the whole British navy and war office in his fight to vindicate the honor of his 13-year-old son. A five-shilling money order suddenly took on the proportions of liberty versus tyranny, or right versus might, and the cherished Anglo-Saxon belief in the inviolable sovereignty of thei ndividual.

MADE MOVIE

In London the play had a phenomenal success and ran for two seasons, and also in New York where it ran for almost a year at the Empire Theatre. The play won the Ellen Terry Award (the equivalent of the American Pulitzer Prize) in London, and in New York it won the Critics' Circle Award for the best play of the year by a foreign author. Alexander Korda then made a movie of the play with Robert Donat in the starring role.

The playwright, Ratligan, has drawn a family in trouble, with warmth and with genuine humanity. "The best thing about it," commented Richard Watts of The New York Post when the play opened on Broadway, "is the unemphatic manner in which it seems to suggest that the modest, dogged stubbornness of the Winslows fighting their battle for what they believe is justice, indicates something of the unspectacular quality which made their country great."

Even the coldly astute Sir Robert Morton is possessed of this "unspectacular" quality for everything that he is, or ever has been as at stake when he takes on the Winslow fight. In the actual legal battle Sir Robert Morton of the play was the great Sir Edward Carson, the lawyer, whose brilliant and merciless cross-examination had been the undoing of Oscar Wilde.

Only Ronnie, the young lad who had been unjustly blamed with stealing a five-shilling postal order is completely indifferent to the whole rumpus which his expulsion from the Dartmouth Naval College had started, and on which the whole play is based. Ironically enough he was killed in action in France in 1914 while serving with the infantry.

Robert J. Kidd Death Termed 'Intolerable Loss'

The funeral service of R. J. Kidd took place at the Trinity United Church on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m. with a large gathering of friends attending.

Mr. Kidd was an active member of this community for a period of 73 years, coming here in 1880 from Walkerton, Ontario, to enter the leather and harness business. He started with Wm. J. Devlin, moved to Port Perry and back here with B. F. Ackerman, and eventually joined the Robt. Neill Shoe Co.

His first church here was the Charlotte Street Methodist, which later became Trinity United Church, where he acted as treasurer for 40 years and Sunday school advisor for 25 years. The Rev. Gordon S. Maxwell said at the funeral, "a half-century of devoted service on the part of this man is an almost intolerable loss, but we must take comfort in the thought that he has gone to his eternal reward, which is far greater than anything that can be attained here. God can be depended upon. He is infinite love, and since He is the creator of all things then we can be sure of one thing —the bonds of heaven are love and untold happiness is there."

Mr. Kidd was predeceased by his wife, the former Lois Kent. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. R. J. Allen (Marguerite), one brother, Richard Kidd of Harnstoy, and one grandson, John Robert Allen.

FIRM REPRESENTATIVES

Many representatives of the Robt. Neill Shoe Co. were present as well as the entire staff of the local store.

Pallbearers were Ralph Kidd, Horace Coones, R. J. Shaw, T. J. Allen, Dr. Wilfred Preston and Dr. Donald Whyte. Honorary pallbearers: C. E. Blewett, C. G. Collins, R. F. Downey, W. J. Carlisle, Dr. A. J. Mitchell, W. A. Cochran, G. A. Gilespie, A. P. Kuffman, A. A. Clark, Frank Raines, John Allen, C. C. McIntyre, Thomas Morrow and H. S. Casford.

Royals Sweep Twin Bill From Springfield

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royal—Wednesday swept an International League twin bill, downing Springfield Cubs 14-8 and 4-3.

The Cubs [illegible] pitchers in the opener but were unable to halt the booming bats of the Montreal sluggers. Springfield shoved five runs across in the fourth inning on four successive singles. Montreal bounced back in the fifth with a six-run outburst on an error, four hits and two walks.

In the seven-inning nightcap, pitcher Gil Mills paved the way for what proved to be the winning run in the fifth with a triple, edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2 in 12 innings in the first tilt of a scheduled doubleheader. The second game was rained out in the top of the second with the Red Wings ahead 1-0.

PITCHERS' DUEL

The first game was a pitchers' duel between reliefer Bob Tiefenauer of the Wings and Don Johnson of Toronto. Tiefenauer took over from starter Red Hahn in the fifth and allowed the Leafs only one hit—a single to Ed Stevens in the seventh—for the remaining 4 1-3 innings.

Ottawa Athletics and Baltimore Orioles split a doubleheader at Ottawa. The Orioles won the first game 6-4 in extra innings and the nightcap 3-0.

Stan Jok's 14th home run and the brilliant relief pitching of Tom Herron enabled Baltimore to win the opener. The Athletics won the second game as John Mackinson pitched a six-hitter for his third win against five losses.

At Buffalo, Syracuse Chiefs snapped the Bisons' seven-game winning streak by scoring four runs in the ninth for a 4-0 victory.

Local Dodgers Get Win From Bethany

Wimp Borland's hustling young bantam Dodgers from here won a 7-4 Durham Baseball League fixture over Bethany on the latter's grounds Monday. The winners were held to three hits by Reynolds but he allowed nine walks, while fanning six, and had one miscue behind him. Wade of Peterborough kept seven bingles pretty well scattered and he issued no walks in a good slab display, whiffing five. His mates booted three.

They scored three runs in the first frame and one each in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth. Bethany got three in the sixth and one in the seventh. Patterson hit a double for Dodgers as Whitehill and Griffin got a single each. Teams:

Dodgers: R. Rowe, Morley, Griffin, Patterson, Whitehill, Riel, W. Rowe, McArthur, Wade, Kimball.

Transports Take Extra Innings To Defeat Motors

Transports edged Seabrooke Motors at the East City Bowl Tuesday night in a thrilling 11-inning men's senior softball struggle, with issue always in doubt to the final out; the win kept the Bennett Toronto-Peterborough-Transport lads atop the loop, with seven wins and three reverses.

Seabrooke's took an early lead with two in the first and one in the second; but the fighting Bennett squad whittled away with singles in the next two. A dogfight continued until the seventh when Red Sullivan poled an Eakins' fast ball far over the rightfield fence. TPT came back in the eighth, however, to tie the ball game when a triple by Collins, a life to Mackness and Buck Legrow's liner to right with two away, netted a pair.

In the eleventh, Legrow doubled, West walked and Ken Guilfoyle poked safely to centre to salt away the verdict after a tense battle. Haddy Eakins was the winner.

Howie Dalton hurled seven-hit ball to shut out Revoy Motors in the nightcap of Tuesday's regular men's senior softball double bill; the final score read 15-0 and backed by good support afield, despite four minor bobbles, UEW had little trouble over the route.

Led by Robson, McGillis, Thomson, Dalton and Taylor, the first two driving home a pair, the others singles, the Tom Walton crew hammered home five runs in the fifth, six in the eighth and three in the ninth that assured a one-sided victory. The win also enabled UE to keep close behind the league-leading Toronto-Peterborough Transports.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The best pass-catcher in pro football, Mac Speedie quit Cleveland Browns Tuesday for Regina Roughriders in the Western Canada Interprovincial Union.

Bunny Morganson says the Toronto West Yorks are now officially the Orillia Terriers. Says he: "Bill Clarke, Orillia's lacrosse booster since his playing days, bought out Don Holden's interests and has asked another former Orillia player-executive, Ken McNabb, to assume his role as team manager. Orillia fans demanded the return of the Terriers, financed by local interests and with players who could stay around for a few practises. Scotty McPhail has a lifetime chore as playing coach." Wonder if this business is just a cover-up to permit Yorks to be called Orillia Terriers and thus draw more home fans, with Don Holden being the power behind the scene? Jim McNulty is out of action with a shoulder separation, Bunny adds.

Second-place Petes' Trailermen wind up a stiff senior OLA with two toughies against the leading St. Catharines Athletics. The A's are here Friday night, and the same squads clash in St. Kitts next evening. We picked St. Catharines nearly two months ago as the team the Trailermen must beat this season to retain OLA honors. Yorks—podden plizz—The Terriers are tough enough, too, but the speedy young Saints have the legs. They've won either nine or 10 in a row now, but we look for the Thorpe team to halt that streak here tomorrow night. And maybe take 'em right in the Garden City on Saturday. The fray at Miller Bowl should be another classic.

As It Looked Like Rain

No baseball was played here on the holiday. Whitby Merchants and the local Liflocs were listed for a double-header July 1 at Riverside in Lakeshore League play, but the games weren't staged. The Whitby management phoned early to say it was raining hard there and he asked for a postponement. After consultation and checking of the weather outlook—it was muggy and overcast here at the time with the probs "showers during the day"—Shockey Mein and Howie Dalton agreed to call the twin bill off. A lot of postponements piling up so far this semester. Liflocs go to Port Hope on Saturday and to Whitby next Monday, having Cobourg here the following Wednesday, July 8.

TPT Petes took a 6-4 win over Seabrooke's in a fine, scrappy City Softball League fixture Tuesday eve with Haddy Eakins pitching dandy ball for George Bennett's bunch to keep 'em atop. Howie Dalton hurled nice ball, also, for UEW as they rolled to a 15-0 victory against Revoy's. A fairly fast fray at that, despite the count. Games tonight over Bowlward: TPT vs. UE, and Revoy's vs. Seabrooke's. The schedule winds up in slightly less than three weeks, on July 21 to be exact, and it'll be a hot race down to the wire. Threatening skies kept down the crowds at the day-long softball tourney Wednesday in the Bowl, but fans who attended saw sharp action in some of the tilts.

Grid Huddle Called Off

Orfuns' grid executive meeting last p.m. was postponed as some of the officials weren't available, but they'll hold a huddle shortly to deal with the matter of a 1953 coach and arrange for sale of booster tickets. These latter are a good bet for regular football followers, being quite reasonable for all home scheduled games, allowing a ear right up by the gridiron, giving folks a choice of playoff seats, and allowing every buyer a draw on two Grey Cup pasteboards when the east-west senior final rolls around. Matter of a coach will have to be settled shortly, since drills are due to start in early August. And this is July already.

With longer schedules and drawn-out playoffs, as well as floodlights and artificial ice, sports overlap in most cities now. It is true of Peterborough, but even truer in the autumn than in the spring. There's generally a short break between the hockey season and the beginning of baseball and lacrosse. But there's no break comes fall. Summertime sports are in playoffs in September when football commences, and football is hardly halfway through its short season when hockey begins a long grind. The gridiron game is right in the middle, but nevertheless enjoys a lively if short semester as folks go for that rugged autumn sport in the brisk air of late September and through October into November. Wearing woollies, if necessary.

Transports Win Ball Tourney On Holiday

East City Bowl was the scene of a fine softball tournament July 1 with 10 teams participating from 10.00 a.m. until 11.30 p.m.

The Toronto - Peterborough - Transport entry of the men's senior city league, walked off with major honors finally, after nine hectic action games had been played; TPT's eliminated Seabrooke Motors in the grand finale 15-9. Jupiter Pluvius threatened to halt activities as the afternoon set of games finished; but clearing skies enabled the show to continue before a fair crowd.

Numerous draw prizes added to the gaiety of the day and a complete list of winners will appear Friday. The touranment was to aid civic softball in Peterborough.

Busmen took Sacred Heart in the first; while Bell Telephone ousted Seabrooke Electrics in the second during the forenoon session; Seabrooke Motors triumphed over Revoy's to start the afternoon and TPT trimmed UEW.

Busmen were put out next by Seabrooke Motors; then St. Peter's Parish defeated Bill's (Monaghan Rd.) Lunch; Bell went down next before TPT's and St. Peter's fell before Seabrooke Motors to set the stage for the dramatic finale. All games were reasonably well-contested. Seabrooke's of course won second money.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

With entries from Campbellford, Cobourg, Port Hope, Osahwa, Bowmanville, Port Perry, Agincourt, Cannington, and Peterborough, the local club held its annual Ovaltine Trophy mixed doubles tournament on Dominion Day afternoon and evening. And although there were heavy showers around 6 o'clock, and it did halt the tournament temporarily, all 44 pairs played out the regulation three 15-end games.

Mrs. H. Beatty and E. Wall from our local club were the top three-game winners, and therefore won the Ovaltine Trophy.

The visitors came in for their share of the prizes—the next four 3-game winners went out of town, with Mr. and Mrs. C. Renaud of Peterborough being the sixth 3-game winners.

While the bowling on the whole was good, there were many big ends scored—and when there are three possible ends scored in one tournament, it makes history. G. McMillan, Oshawa, scored the possible eight, as did C. Renaud and A. Mander, both of Peterborough. There were also several seven-ends scored.

All pairs played the usual three 15-end games, with the maximum score of 20 allowed.

H. Freeman was chairman of this tournament, and he handled everything in good style.

Our next big tournament is set for Wednesday, July 8 — men's doubles, Lift Lock Trophy.

2 American Eights Survive Competition

HENLEY, England (AP) — Merton College of Oxford, two American eights and a German rowing crew were among survivors in competition for the Thames Challenge Cup which started in a thunder-storm Wednesday at the Henley Royal Regatta.

Merton College won its heat over Downing college of Cambridge. Princeton University's 50-pound crew had to extend itself mightily to defeat Balliol College of Oxford.

Kent School of the United States won over Trinity College of Dublin.

The German crew, the Ruderge- [illegible] Florsheim-Ruselsheim beat King's College of London easily.

Gagnon Knocks Out Almond In 8th Round To Defend Crown

QUEBEC (CP)—Fernando Gagnon knocked out Stan Almond of Vancouver in the eighth round Wednesday night to score the fourth successful defence of his Canadian bantamweight boxing championship.

The speedy, muscular Quebecer wore down [illegible] challenger with hard rights to [illegible] before he knocked him out with a hard blow to the side at 2:51.

Gagnon outweighed Almond 118 pounds to 113¼, but the West Coast boxer, at five feet six inches, held a four-inch edge in height.

The bout's only knockdown came late in the first round when Gagnon floored Almond for a nine-count with a hard right cross to the chin.

The 28-year-old champion suffered a small cut over the right eye in the sixth round and was jarred a few times by Almond's hard rights and lefts.

ATTACKED THROUGHOUT

Gagnon attacked throughout the fight which was scheduled to go 12 rounds. He pounded rights and lefts to Almond's body, mixing up the occasional jab and right cross.

Gagnon held a wide edge on points when he stopped his 28-year-old opponent whose left side was a deep red.

The winner appeared much sharper than he did last December when he lost two decisions to Pappy Gault of Spartanburg, N. C., in North American bantamweight championship fights and said he would seek a third match with Gault.

After the fight, Gagnon said his body attack on Almond had been planned for maximum effect.

"I hit in the kidneys in every round knowing that sooner or later it would cause heavy pressure in his side," he said.

Almond said he had been away from the ring too long. It was eight months since his last fight and he had to come down from 128 pounds in two months training for the scrap.

"I went too far down and I was dried up," he said.

Satterfield Downs Baker With Right

CHICAGO (AP)—Light heavyweight Bob Satterfield of Chicago unleashed a brutal right to the chin which blasted out fourth-ranking heavyweight Bob Baker in 2:32 of the first round of their scheduled 10-rounder at the Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

Outweighed by 33½ pounds, the 180½ pound Satterfield dealt a crushing blow to Baker's bright hopes for a shot at Rocky Marciano's heavyweight title in a surprising upset of the ponderous Pittsburgh scrapper.

Yankees Unable To Break Jinx Bow 4-0 To Bo-Sox

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankees, who usually don't have to ask anybody for anything, might consider borrowing Charlie Grimm's Milwaukee text-book on "how to start winning when losing." The Yankees go into today's game at Boston with a chance to set a "second best" losing record for the club. The all-time mark is 13 in 1913. The next worst is nine in 1945 and equalled by the 1953 edition in Wednesday's 4-0 defeat at the hands of the Red Sox.

The Braves went into a tailspin the same day the Yanks did and lost eight in a row before righting themselves Tuesday night. Wednesday they won again with ease 10-2 over Cincinnati.

It looked for a while Wednesday night as if the Braves would vault back into first place but Brooklyn rallied for two runs in the last of the 10th to nip Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 and keep their half-game edge.

OVERPOWER CHICAGO

The third-place St. Louis Cardinals overpowered Chicago 10-5 to stay 2½ games behind. Hal Rice homered in the 11th to give Pittsburgh a 5-3 decision over New York Giants.

Although they lost, the Yankees preserved temporarily their five-game American league lead because the second-place Cleveland Indians also were beaten. Detroit stopped the Tribe's six-game winning rush towards first place 4-2. Chicago's third-place White Sox moved to within 5½ games of the pace-setters as they trampled St. Louis Browns 13-4. Washington defeated Philadelphia 5-3.

The Yankees managed only four singles off southpaw Mel Parnell who won his 10th game. The loss, charged to starter Johnny Sain, was the fourth shutout job against the Yankees this season.

Al Rosen sent Cleveland off to a two-run lead in the first inning with a home run scoring Dale Mitchell but Ted Gray stopped the Indians the rest of the way. Bob Lemon wild-pitched one run home, threw the ball away in permitting another and walked the third man who scored as he lost his seventh game.

9 EXTRA BASE HITS

The White Sox rattled the fences at Comiskey Park with nine extra base hits against the Browns. Minnie Minoso drove in five runs with a pair of triples.

The Senators climbed back to the .500 mark by winning their second straight over the Athletics. Home runs by Wayne Terwilliger and Ed Fitzgerald helped Chuck Stobbs to victory.

Three doubles brought Brooklyn its success over Robin Roberts and the Phillies. With one out in the 10th Carl Furillo doubled. Pinch-hitter Roy Campanella brought him home with a double and after an intentional walk George Shuba, another pinch-hitter, belted one off the rightfield scoreboard to drive in the winning run.

Stan Musial belted a pair of triples and a single in the St. Louis triumph over Chicago. Gerry Staley breezed to his 12th victory.

Milwaukee's power hitters found the range at Cincinnati. Sid Gordon started the fireworks with a two-run homer in the first. Eddie Mathews belted his 23rd of the season, with a man on, in the third and Joe Adcock contributed a bases-empty blast in the eighth. Mathews, who also singled and doubled, moved into the league home run lead.

Canadians Draw With Britain In 2nd Match

FORMBY, England (Reuters)—The touring Canadian women's golf team drew Wednesday with Britain in its second match of the ladies Commonwealth championship here.

Each won one of the fours events and two singles, with the fifth singles game being halved.

Marlene Stewart of Fonthill, Ont., Canadian and British women's champion, lost 2 and 1 to Scotland's Jean Donald. She defeated Miss Donald last week in the semi-final of the British women's open while on her way to the British title.

It was Miss Stewart's second straight singles defeat in the match here. She lost Tuesday to the New Zealand champion, Margaret Hughes, by one hole.

OTHER RESULTS

Mrs. J. H. Todd of Victoria and Mrs. Graham Pyke of Montreal won their singles games, while Barbara Davies of Victoria managed to halve hers.

The fifth game was lost by Mary Gaye of Waterloo, Ont.

"I tried hard but I just couldn't fight," said Marlene after her defeat by Miss Hughes.

The touring Canadians won 4-3 over New Zealand Tuesday.

Miss Gay defeated Una Wickham, 2 and 1.

In a foursome, Miss Stewart and Mrs. Todd defeated Miss Hughes and Zoe Hudson, 2 and 1.

120 Athletes To Compete In Junior Meet

WINNIPEG (CP)—Some 120 athletes from Quebec to British Columbia will compete in the Canadian junior boys track and field championships at Winnipeg Friday and Saturday.

Gord McLennan of the host Winnipeg Athletic Association Hounds said that to date 48 entries have been received from Manitoba and 72 from outside points.

The visiting entries include: Hamilton Olympic Club, 9; Windsor AKO, 11; Montreal Olympic Club, 3; Montreal St. Lambert, 6; Toronto East York 3, Toronto Track Club, 19, Toronto Gladstone AC, 2; Saskatchewan branch of the AAU, 6; Vancouver OC, New Westminster AC, Vernon AC, Cumberland AC, and Fort William, one apiece. Others were unattached.

The meet has been held in Toronto for the last five years.

45 FINALS RUN OFF

Officials said a total of 45 finals will be run off, including 21 in the junior class (19 and under); 16 juvenile (17 and under); and eight midget (15 and under). Twenty-one events will be completed Friday night and the remaining 24 Saturday afternoon.

Several old rivalries will be continued at the meet. Bob Tjaden, ace track star from Sperling, Man., was defeated by six inches in the juvenile 100-yard dash last year by Harry Nelson of New Westminster. Both are entered in the junior 100 and 220.

In the junior mile, Ron Wallingford of Ottawa will be out to avenge his defeat by Winnipeg's Ed Morton in the juvenile mile at Toronto in 1951.

4 Former Champions In Field July 8

TORONTO (CP)—Four former champions are included in the field for the Canadian open golf tournament at Toronto Scarborough, starting July 8.

Buffalo, Beach Paddlers Keep Regatta Supremacy

By CRAIG SWAYZE

TORONTO (CP)—Buffalo West Side oarsmen and Toronto Balmy Beach Paddlers Wednesday maintained their supremacy over Canadian and United States rivals by dominating the 52nd running of the Dominion Day regatta at Centre Island here.

Undaunted by heavy rain and high humidity, the 22 American huskies piled up 40 points on eight firsts, a pair of seconds and one third to outdistance seven other clubs competing in the 20-race rowing program.

Beaches, replying to the challenge of four other canoeing aggregations, poured on the paddlers to sweep the day with 48 points on seven wins, two seconds and five thirds.

Hamilton Leander Boat Club grabbed the runner-up spot in the rowing aggregate with 26 points. Toronto's Don Rowing Club gained four firsts and picked up 25 points.

TIED FOR FOURTH

Toronto Argonauts and St. Catharines tied for fourth with 19 points, the Double Blue gaining two firsts to St. Catharines' single win. Brockville won a light four race for the majority of its nine points while both Ottawa and the Detroit Rowing Club won thirds for single points.

The Toronto Island Canoe Club finished second in the paddling aggregate with 32 points. Toronto Sailing and Canoe Club was third with 26 and Sudbury fourth on three wins, two seconds and a pair of thirds for 21 points.

The junior heavy singles failed to live up to advance expectations as Don Guest, 18-year-old son of former Diamond Sculls winner Jack Guest, Sr., finished two length up on Leander's Jackie Pearce. However, the 16-year-old Pearce kept his father, Bobby, happy with a stirring finish over Larry Stephan of Etobicoke High School for the high school singles crown.

20-FOOT VICTORY

Guest also came up with a 20 foot victory over Bobby Williams of Hamilton in the quarter-mile dash. Jackie Pearce finished third.

Don Stringer of Sudbury Canoe Club, last year's Dominion junior champion, walked away with the senior singles paddling event by finishing 10 lengths up on Lloyd Rice of Toronto Sailing and Canoe.

Sudbury's senior double-blade four topped Island and Balmy Beach in that order. Stroked by Rusty Hubb and bowed by A. Duval, the four included Tony Petrovich and Louis Lukanovich members of the 1951 Danish world championship four.

A plucky Brockville lightweight four finished third in the 145-pound fours, took a second in the 155-pound fours and then won a heat to qualify for the 135-pound fours final which they won handily from Toronto Dons and St. Catharines in that order.

Nine Countries Entered In World Plowing Match

TORONTO.—Nine countries, including Canada, have confirmed their entries in the first world plowing championship to be held in October at Cobourg, John A. Carroll, president of World Championship Plowing Organization, reported on his return from England.

Mr. Carroll attended meetings of WCPO and the annual meeting of the British Plowing Association.

Confirmed entries for the world match are expected from other countries. Four countries, said Mr. Carroll, have already chosen their national champions to compete at the match. Others will be selected within the next two months

The first world plowing championship, restricted to two tractor classes, is being held by WCPO in conjunction with the Ontario Plowmen's Association's annual four-day International Match, which will be held on the grounds of the Durham-Northumberland counties home farm at Cobourg, October 6 to 9.

CONFIRM ENTRIES

To date, said Mr. Carroll, Great Britain, Northern Ireland, Eire, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Holland and Germany have confirmed their entries.

Britain will be represented by Leslie Dixon, tractor plowman of county Durham, and Reginald Hogg, horse plowing champion from Yorkshire. Mr. Dixon has won some 80 first prizes in British plowing competitions since the war. He still has a long way to go to equal the record of his 73-year-old father who won 263 plowing first prizes and championships in 40 years. Both British entrants plan to enter some of the OPA open classes in addition to the world classes.

The Northern Ireland competitor, Robert J. Carse, Ulster's champion tractor plowman and a bachelor farmer from Carryduff, near Belfast, will travel as a member of the British team. The team will be managed by a Scot, William Muirhead of Stirling, past vice-president of British Plowing Association and a well-known breeder and judge of Clydesdale horses. S. G. Powell of Westmorland, president of the British Plowing Association, will accompany the party. Also from Britain will come Alfred Hall and G. T. Weir, secretary and treasurer of WCPO.

Ronald Sheane of Wicklow and Thomas McDonnell of Louth will carry the banner for Eire. They became Southern Ireland champions at a special test match which saw Eire's top 10 plowmen compete for the national championship. Their manager will be J. J. Bergin, secretary of National Plowing Association of Ireland for the past 23 years.

Norway's two national champions are Odd Braut and Olaf Nedberg. They will be managed by Tore Wiig. Braut's plow is of Norwegian make and will be shipped to Canada in advance, along with plows for the British and Dutch teams.

Braut's 70-year-old father, Arne Braut, himself a plowman of note, intends to accompany his son.

The Swedish champions will be chosen next month at a national plowing match at which the winners of 12 area competitions will compete. They will be managed by Bengt Svensson, a director of WCPO. The names of Finnish competitors and their manager have yet to be announced. The Dutch champions have not yet been chosen, but Arie C. Stenhouwer has been named manager of the Dutch team. Mr. Stehouwer intends to enter some OPA open classes himself.

GERMAN ENTRIES

West German world competitors will be chosen at the first federal plowing matc hat Cologne. Mr. Carroll said that the stimulation of interest in match plowing in Germany was very gratifying to the WCPO.

"Last November Germany sent special observers to the British national match," he said. "They took lots of notes and asked many questions. They were very impressed by the fact that the British Plowing Asosciation was a democratic organization which assumed leadership rather than wait for the government to lead the way—a common attitude in Germany. They returned to Germany intent upon creating a similar organization."

Mr. Carroll said the measure of their success was that since last fall they have organized a series of area plowing matches in which 36 horse and tractor area champions were named. From these 36 will be chosen the two world competitors.

SOUTHAMPTON (AP) — Mrs. Walter P. Reuther, wife of the CIO president, said Wednesday trade union. Then she regretfully added: "My husband has never got around to organizing it." Mrs. Reuther and her husband, arrived here en route to Stockholm for an international labor convention.

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—State Secretary Dulles arrived here by plane Wednesday to spend the July 4 week-end at his summer home on Main Duck Island in Lake Ontario. He was accompanied by Mrs. Dulles.

15 Fatalities Counted Over Holiday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fifteen Canadians died in accidents across the country during Dominion Day celebrations. Seven persons were drowned, five were traffic fatalities, two died in a fire and one was killed by a train.

A Canadian Press compilation showed 11 deaths were reported in Ontario, two in Quebec and one each in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. No fatalities were reported from western provinces.

Four persons were fatally injured in a head-on collision between a car and a truck near Tilbury, Ont. Dead are Wilfred Lajoie, 67, of Windsor; Garry Steele, 16, of Camden Township; Shirley Amy, 17, of Windsor, and James McCarthy, 17, of London.

Forest Fires Cause Blood Bank Shortage

MONTREAL (CP)—Forest fires are causing a shortage of blood in hospitals in western Quebec.

Dr. Cecil Harris, director of the Red Cross blood transfusion service in the province, said in an interview today the blood bank is at a dangerously low level because donors in many areas are out fighting forest fires.

"This week we are short about 200-300 pints of our normal requirements of 1,400 bottles," Dr. Harris said. "Our mobile clinic has been operating in the Mont Laurier area about 120 miles north of Montreal, and there has been a sharp falling-off in the number of donors. Many of the able-bodies men are out in the bush fighting fires."

Studebaker Re-opens Week Ahead Of Time

HAMILTON (CP)—The Studebaker Corporation of Canada Limited will resume work July 7, one week ahead of the expected date, due to the settlement of a strike at Borg-Warner Corp., Muncie, Ind., which has crippled Studebaker production throughout the continent.

D. C. Gaskin, president of the Canadian corporation, said that the Hamilton plant would receive preference over all other Studebaker works in the shipment of transmissions from Borg-Warner.

Mr. Gaskin said recall notices had been distributed to the 650 employees who had been laid off since May 25 as a result of the strike.

Girl Falls From Car Hit By Second Auto

TIMMINS (CP)—Police said today a 20-year-old girl fell from a fast-moving car Wednesday and was hit by another vehicle which did not stop.

Erna Farrell, 20, of Timmins was taken to hospital with severe head injuries and deep cuts.

Police said the driver of the car from which she fell was Real Breand, 23, of Timmins. They gave no explanation for the accident.

Officers started searching for the driver of the second vehicle.

County Cricketers Advance To Final Down Middlesex

On July 1 at Nicholls Oval Peterborough County met the Middlesex team from London, Ontario, in a semi-final match for the Ontario county cricket championship and the Matthews Trophy. The final score on Wednesday was: Peterborough County, 121; Middlesex County, 89. It was a well-contested match and both sides owed much to their opening batsmen.

For the locals F. Booth, 27; R. Smith, 29;; G. Smith, 11; T. Scott, 11, took the score to 111 for 6; S. Jennings later scored 15 and the total was 121, including 17 extras.

In bowling for Middlesex, J. Mackie bowled 23 overs, 9 of them maiden, and took 2 wickets for 33 runs. H. Marshall had 3 for 20; S. Dennis 4 for 33.

This did not seem a very large winning total, but Middlesex men fared badly against the local bowlers. Thanks to B. Rush's 26 and Ellard's 17 the score was 47 for 3 wickets, but the rest did little except Meston, No. 7 in the batting order, who scored 18, and the total only reached 89 which included 17 extras.

The successful bowlers were T. Clarke, 3 for 20; Boardman 11 for 15; Illingworth, 1 for 19. The chief feature in the bowling was the success of last ones tried: E. Collin in 6 overs took 2 wickets for 7, but the great feature was an over-and-a-half bowled by G. Smith, in which he took 3 wickets for 1 run.

So the semi-final in the Ontario County cricket championship was won by the local county team by a score of 121 to 89.

The locals are now waiting to hear who they will meet in the final game to be played on Labor Day. Score:

Lindsay Trounces Colborne 18-6

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Merchants, with veteran Joe Stewart leading the way ran up their season's highest hit and run total, here Wednesday afternoon as they turned back the Colborne Dodgers 18-6 on 15 hits to consolidate their hold on second place in the Lakeshore League.

Stewart hit four for five, including a double, in the rout, which sent three Colborne pitchers to the mound. Starter Art Wright was shelled for six hits and eight runs in the first two innings, Manager Al Kelcher gave up eight hits and nine runs in the next four, and Bill Mitts held the Merchants to a hit and one run in the final two frames.

Joe Lowery, returning to action with a double and single, Al Menzies, Art Truax and Doug Loucks had two hits each, and Bill Huntley was the only Merchants' batter to fail to hit safely. Lowery also scored the most runs, four. Doug Loucks steadied down after a four-run second inning, to hold the visitors to five safeties in gaining the win. He struck out seven and walked seven.

Car Ditched On Detour 4 Passengers Escape

BANCROFT (ENS)—Mrs. Emily Vallier of Toronto, driving with her husband and two small children lost control of her car on a detour three miles west of Bancroft on Highway 28 on Saturday. The car left the road, rolled over and came to rest on its roof in a ditch on the north side of the highway. Mrs. Vallier sustained a cut elbow but the rest of the party were not injured.

Provincial police declared the steering of a car driven by Donald E. White of McArthurs Mills to be faulty when the vehicle went out of control on Highway 62 near Steenburg. Five guard rail posts were torn out and the car sustained damage estimated at $150. OPP Officer M. Perry investigated both

Game Called Off In Hamilton Petes Ahead 11-2

Traffic and thunderstorms prevented Bob Thorpe's Trailermen waltzing to an easy victory over Hamilton in a senior OLA games Wednesday in Hamilton. The Trailermen were well on their way to victory at half-time, running up a 11-2 score, but a cloudburst washed the game out.

This game, the second postponed this year between Hamilton and Peterborough, will be replayed later this season no date has been set for the replay.

The Trailermen were caught in a six-mile-long traffic jam at Burlington and were nearly a half-hour late arriving for the game. That half hour could easily have cost them the game. For with that time the Trailermen could have finished the third quarter, which would have been ruled a game.

The traffic from Toronto to Burlington hemmed in the Trailermen. Only seven players arrived in time but the game was held up until 9:15 p.m.; they then started with that seven. A few minutes later the remainder of the team arrived.

The Trailermen pushed from the start, keeping Hamilton well in check. Meanwhile Roger Smith, Curly Mason, Ross Powless and Don Ashbee started up front, Smith netting four goals in the half. Moon Wootton as usual was brilliant in the Trailermen's goal.

Toronto, Halifax Choirs Awarded Lincoln Trophy Best In Music Festivals

The announcement of national trophy and prize winners in the coast-to-coast chain of Canadian music festivals and discussion of the establishment of a national music festival were the highlights at the opening session, Tuesday, of the Fourth Annual Convention of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals being held at the Empress Hotel, June 30-July 2.

More than 30 delegates, representing every province in Canada, with the exception of Quebec, are attending the 1953 convention.

TROPHY AWARDS

Two choirs, Metropolitan Church Choir of Toronto, under the direction of J. R. L. Sidgwick, and the English Choral Singers of Halifax, under the direction of Harold Wright, tied as winners of the Lincoln trophy in 1953. The trophy is awarded by the entire team of Adjudicators officiating at the main chain of Canadian festivals for the best performance by an adult choir at the festivals at which any of them officiate.

The Mathieson Trophy was won by Riverdale Collegiate Choir under the direction of Dawson Woodburn. This trophy is also awarded by the entire team of adjudicators for the best performance by a children's or junior choir. The age limit is 19 years and under.

The Tankard prize for the best performance at a festival adjudicated by Leonard Isaac of a Bach Prelude and Fugue was won by Wanda Dick of Winnipeg. Honorable mention went to Lloyd Zurbrigg, Stratford; Elsie Wiebe and Shellagh Gilmour, Winnipeg; and Claire Snoulton, Toronto.

NATIONAL FESTIVAL

The establishment of a national music festival will not take place for at least another year. Delegates voted against definite action on a national scale at the afternoon session.

A motion by Elgar Higgin, delegate from Calgary, Alberta; "that the directors from each province be prepared to submit a list of concrete ideas to the 1954 convention of the possibilities of a national festival," was adopted by the delegates.

This motion followed suggestions by Toronto and Saskatchewan delegates that each province work out a scheme as a separate provincial project and submit plans at next year's convention.

The question of a national convention first came before the federation at the 1952 convention. At that time a committee was formed "to consider the possibility of a national annual festival and report back to the directors." Benjamin Guss of St. John, N.B., was appointed chairman of the committee:

"It is believed that we stand now at the cross-roads of development of the national music festival movement and that a spirit venturesome would establish the federation as a potent force in the musical life of the country," Mr. Guss said in his report to the 1953 convention.

During the discussion the following recommendations for a national festival drawn up by John Melnyk, prominent Winnipeg musician, were read by the Federation's Secretary-Treasurer Richard W. Cooke:

The competition would require the absolute necessity of every applicant to have been a participant of the festival as we know it in Canada.

Competitors will be required to present a complete concert program from a specified list or free list, as may be decided by the governing committee.

Two concerti, one classical and one romantic or modern will be required.

The competition will be in three stages: (a) the preliminary examination; (b) the public competition; (c) the performance with orchestra.

Competition to be judged on the highest international standard.

The judges to consist of 10 or 12 outstanding Canadian artists and teachers.

The first award should be a trans-Canada tour and concerto performances with every orchestra in Canada.

The chairman of the convention sessions is Reg Hugo of Manitoba, federation president.

The federation is the administrative body for about 20 festivals held across Canada every year.

One of the special features of this year's convention was the federation dinner held Tuesday evening at which the guest speaker was the Rev. Dr. R. S. K. Seeley, Provost and Vice-chancellor of Trinity College, University of Toronto.

600 Youths Get Vote At 16

OTTAWA (CP)—There likely will be close to 600 young men in Canada eligible to vote in the Aug. 10 election before they are old enough to shave.

The group, spread across Canada will be the 16-year-old "private apprentices" of the army's new soldier apprentice plan scheduled to start—by coincidence—Aug. 10, the date of the election. The date for start of the plan was set last winter.

As far as can be determined, this will be the first time the vote has been granted 16-year-olds anywhere in the democratic world. The apprentices are eligible because anyone in the armed services can vote.

The apprentices are paid $44 monthly as against $87 monthly basic pay for a private in the army. There now are 113 youths signed to take training in various trades and skills. By the end of July the army hopes to have an additional 500 studying under the special program.

Retired Farmer Dies In Crash

Police said Cartwright's car collided with an oncoming transport loaded with bales of paper Cartwright was hurled to the pavement and police said the transport's dual wheels passed over his head.

A dump truck, waiting to enter the intersection, was also struck by the truck as driver Robert Vincent of Galt tried to avoid hitting the car. The dump truck was thrown into the ditch. Cartwright's car was sent across the road where it burst into flames.

The heavy transport ended upside down.

Vincent suffered minor cuts.

Council Votes To Establish New High School Area

COBOURG (ENS). — The controversy between the northern and southern sections of the East Northumberland High School area, which has been flaming like the war of the north and south of United States, or the north and south of Ireland, flared at Monday's session of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council, and after hearing deputations outline both sides of the question, council voted 23 to 19 in favor of dividing the high school area so that Campbellford, Seymour Township, and all of Percy Township, except SS No. 9, become a separate high school area.

This will leave the Brighton, Colborne and Murray Township part of the original high school area to paddle their own canoe in regard to construction of the proposed $500,000 district high school.

Tabled for consideration of the council was a petition from the northern end of the area asking that Campbellford, Seymour and all of Percy, except SS No. 9, be allowed to withdraw from the area. From the East Northumberland Board came a request that no change be made and from Percy Township a request that Campbellford, Seymour and Percy be detached from the area.

RUMBLINGS

There have been rumblings of discontent from time to time from the northern end of the area, but they gathered into a roar of protest when it was decided to build the half-million dollar school in the Brighton end of the high school area.

Morley Simpson, speaking for the Brighton deputation, said that it would be poor business to prevent the school being built because the department in this case was making grants which had been discontinued from other schools. If the area were split up they would have to start all over again and this time the department would not be so generous. The fact was that more accommodation had to be provided, he warned.

George Free of the Campbellford delegation, said the original area had been formed by a vote of 21-19, which showed that a large number of the Counties Council in 1950 were in doubt about the wisdom of the move when it was formed in that year. Those in the north were always opposed to it. In the area were five townships, a village, and one town in an area 30 miles square. It was not right that children should have to wait out in all kinds of weather for the bus that would take them to school.

Twenty-three years ago a 12-room high school was opened in Campbellford. It was just about paid for. The Campbellford and Seymour schools, which were two in number, have been doing an adequate job of education, meeting all requirements of the Department of Education, he said.

EDUCATE NEAR HOME

"It is far better to educate them up where they live than have them sent to some remote place. This year we are opening our new hospital, another service we have provided for the community.

"We are going to have to build a public school in the near future. Yet we would be saddled with the extra cost of this new super school that is planned for Brighton, to which we should not need to send our children. We have been asked to provide $40,000 in Campbellford, $50,000 in Seymour, and $40,000 in Percy Township for this new school in Brighton. It means a big jump in our tax rate," declared Mr. Free.

Art Lamy of Percy Township asserted that Percy Township was pushed into the high school area setup, as at present constituted. It was through no fault of Percy, he declared.

"Once that new school goes through, they can put the bus to our door and it is get on or stay home from school," said Mr. Lamy.

Wesley Downs of Brighton Township, told the council that the geographical features of the high school area made it imperative that it be left as it was.

DO NOT ATTEND

The Campbellford members do not attend the high school area board meetings, and thus they were not informed properly as to the situation. The new school would cost $515,000 towards which the department paid a good grant. It would be necessary to raise $14,000 a year, or 1.5 mills, to handle it.

That was what Campbellford was bucking, although the area was keeping Campbellford high school up to standard. Colborne school and Warkworth school were being kept open and thus could be accommodated Grades 9 and 10, while the crowded grades could go to Campbellford. At present, 30 from Cramahe went to Warkworth school and 30 from Brighton went to Campbellford, but if 60 pupils are taken away it would mean that Warkworth school will have to close. The Brighton school has to be built, and it would cost a great deal more if it is done after the area has been split up. Campbellford has done no kicking until the present time. But now they have even issued an injunction to try to disqualify Bob Ross and Morley Simpson as members of the board, just to hold things up, declared Mr. Downs.

Gordon McCubbin of Percy Township said that while some in his township wanted to go with Campbellford, there were others who felt differently. The northern end was content with the way things were until the matter of the new school at Brighton came up. Eric Merril of Percy Township told the council that the great majority of those in his township were in favor of separating.

Fiery Bob Ross, the 78-year-old perennial councillor of Brighton, blasted the Campbellford section as being selfish.

"There is such a thing as give and take, but all they know up there in Campbellford is "take.—capital T, capital A, capital K, capital E. Years ago Campbellford canvassed right down to Brighton to get pupils to go to school up there. They had a judge and jury down in Brighton to see if Bob Ross had paid his taxes, and thank goodness I had paid them. We are working in cramped quarters down here, and we have to expand," declared Bob Ross.

"We don't deny bussing pupils to Campbellford," said Mr. Free, "but we did so at the request of the school boards. We have the educational facilities."

Reeve R. McCann of Brighton Township said that he could remember when Campbellford was drawing pupils from a mile out of Brighton and they were canvassed by Campbellford as soon as they passed the entrance. If Brighton had had the pupils there would have been a bigger school by now, he said.

Before the vote was taken, Warden J. H. Lowery told the council that he and Reeve Carl Nichols, chairman of the finance committee, had been to the department of education in Toronto and got some suggestions. Reeve Nichols explained that the department liked to see everybody agreed on separation, as in the case of Lincoln County. It was quite evident that this agreement did not exist here. The department thought a consultative committee might be a good idea.

However, the feeling of most of the council was to settle the matter at once and the vote was taken.

It's better business to buy Chevrolet Advance-Design Trucks

Here are a few things we think are worthy of your consideration before you buy your truck.

In 1953, Chevrolet trucks are more rugged, have huskier and more rigid construction than ever in the past. This means longer truck life and lower over-all costs to you.

You'll find the increased horsepower and higher compression ratios of the four great valve-in-head engines bring you greater power, greater stamina, greater performance, greater ability to do the job. You'll find that means faster acceleration, greater ability to climb the steepest grades. And you'll find a wonderful gain in gasoline mileage, too!

As any owner of a 1953 Chevrolet truck knows, these are the sturdiest, most powerful trucks Chevrolet has ever built. In every load range, they have proved themselves to be the world's leading money-makers on any hauling job.

Before you buy, drop in at our showroom and talk things over. Let us show you why it's better business to buy Chevrolet Advance-Design Trucks.

more engine power!

Chevrolet Trucks offer you a selection of four famous valve-in-head engines to match load, grade and schedule. The two great 235.5 cu. in. Loadmasters (conventional and C.O.E.), the 248 cu. in. Torquemaster and the 270 cu. in. Workmaster all feature, full-pressure lubrication and improved Power-Jet carburetion for longer life, smoother performance and extra economy.

more braking power!

Twin-Action rear Brakes and Torque-Action front brakes, both with long wearing linings effectively sealed against dirt and moisture, combine to provide effective braking for greater safety and driving ease. Torque-Action front brakes are standard on all models. The positive Duo-Shoe parking brake on H.D. models, mounted at the rear of the transmission, eliminates cable stretching and greatly reduces service adjustments.

more staying power!

Now, heavier, stronger, more durable frames increase rigidity, add to ruggedness and stamina of all 1953 Chevrolet trucks. Long famous for their ability to take the toughest jobs day after day, Chevrolet trucks are now brawnier, sturdier than ever.

more economy!

The new and greater stamina of 1953 Chevrolet trucks plus extra gasoline economy in heavy-duty models with improved valve-in-head performance reduces hauling costs per ton-mile, brings you greater over-all economy throughout the long life of your trucks.

There are several playing levels and scenery will be eliminated. The plays, "Richard III" and "All's Well That Ends Well," will be directed by Tyrone Guthrie, of the Old Vic.

SHAKESPEARE IN A TENT—The huge tent, only slightly smaller than the big top for Ringling Brothers' circus, is raised over the Elizabethan-type amphitheatre at Stratford, where the Shakespearean Festival will be staged starting July 13. Starring Alec Guinness, the festival has cast of 80, mostly hand-picked Canadian actors. Tent expert Skip Manley, Chicago, supervised the raising of the canvas which will cover the 1,500-seat theatre located in Shakespeare Gardens on the banks of the Avon River.

LOW BAROMETER

Pete McGillen phoned at noon today that the barometer at 29 was the lowest he had noted in about two years. As an amateur meteorologist he thought it looked ominous of a gathering storm.

CUSTOMS FIGURES

Money collected at the local customs office on goods brought into Peterborough from foreign countries during June this year was down from the same month last year. June, 1953, showed a total of $727,175.29 and for June, 1952, $989,508.93 was taken in.

KITCHEN SMOKED UP

Greased boiled over Wednesday afternoon at the home of E. F. Harrison, 89 Bennett St. When the grease came in contact with the elements in the electric range a volume of smoke began to fill the kitchen. Firemen were called but didn't have to use an extinguisher.

BREAKS ANKLE

Bethany girls' softball team's second baseman, Audrey Mulligan suffered a broken ankle Tuesday during a game between Bethany and Harwood. She was running into third base when she slipped on the wet base paths and fell, breaking her ankle. She was taken to St. Joseph's Hopital for treatment. Bethany won the game 23-2.

1954 Festival March 10 To 17

The 1954 Peterborough Kiwanis Music Festival will be held March 10-17.

This announcement along with the schedule of all the Canadian festivals in the chain was made at the Thursday sessions of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals convention being held at the Empress hotel.

The names of three members of the team of English adjudicators to be officiating at the chain of festivals were also announced. They are Frank Odell, Guy Johnson and Ronald Biggs. This is Mr. Biggs second trip to Canada as an adjudicator. He officiated at Canadian festivals in 1952 and in that year was one of the two English adjudicators at the Peterborough festival.

The allocation of these adjudicators to festivals will not be completed and announced until the fourth member of the team is decided.

NATIONAL CREST

The winner of the national federation crest competition conducted by festival committees of the chain during the past year was also announced at the Thursday session. R. L. Beach of Longlac, Ont., was the winner, and his crest with some modifications will soon appear as the official crest of the federation.

A motion was passed by the delegates that the federation prepare a resolution to be forwarded to the Associated Board Royal Schools of Music, London, England, asking the board to reconsider its decision to stop holding examinations in Canada.

The federation president, Reg. Hugo, said that this motion was in no way a criticism of the examination work conducted by Canadian examining bodies.

Retailers Try To Decide Store Hours

Some Merchants Favor Whole Day Off Each Week

The Retail Section of the Chamber of Commerce met this week to try to agree on a uniform policy for store closing hours in the city; and to decide if stores should close one day a week or to continue on as now, closing Wednesday afternoons only.

No decisions were reached at the meeting.

On behalf of the Retail Section, the Chamber of Commerce conducted a store-hour questionnaire. The results being that 36 out of 120 stores that answered if wished to close all-day Monday every week, except immediately prior to December 25. Twenty-three others wished to close all-day Wednesday every week, except prior to Good Friday and two weeks before Wednesday afternoon only

AGAINST OPEN EVENINGS

In regard to opening one evening a week, 29 were in favor of it and 91 against opening. As to closing during the week, when there is a statutory holiday, except Easter and Christmas during the week, 87 were in favor of closing and 25 were against it.

Up to now, there has only been a gentleman's agreement between store owners, that they would all close at the same time. But during Christmas and Easter and other holidays some stores failed to stand by the agreement.

Business men now believe that store hours cannot be decided upon by mere agreement alone and are trying to decide on a suitable closing day to suit all stores in the city; and have it made a bylaw by city council.

As yet, the hardware and fruit store group of the Retail Section of the Chamber of Commerce are the only ones that have decided on any set day for closing; and that is Monday.

Gunman Farmer Keeps Hydro Off

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — An angry, gun-toting farmer continued his one-man fight against the Ontario hydro-electric power commission today but said he would bow to the courts if ordered to give up some of his land for a power line installation.

Colin Crews, who chased hydro workmen from his property Tuesday morning, said he was "not giving up that good piece of land easily."

The squabble came to a head when hydro workmen ran a bulldozer on Crews' property Tuesday and started preparing for the line. The commission said then that its offer to buy land on the 75-acre farm near here had been turned down by Crews and that the tract was being expropriated.

Crews said he had not been paid for the three-acre piece of land. He said the hydro offered him $450 for the deal but that he wants $5,000. He backed up his demands with a gun, ordering the workers from the property and warning them "not to come back."

CASE TURNED OVER

Hydro officials said the case had been put in the hands of Crown attorney Harry Deyman of nearby Cobourg.

Crews commented today:

"Those hydro workers had no right coming on my property. They were trespassing. I wouldn't let them have their bulldozer on Tuesday but they can come and get it now. As long as they don't start ripping up the land. I don't care. But I won't let them start work again without a court order."

Hydro officials said work was started because the Power Commission of Ontario Acts permits the commission to seize private property for hydro projects when it is in the public interest.

"I don't know anything about that law," Crews said. "All I know is that I want a fair price for my land However, if the court says I must sell at such and such a price, I'll do it."

Lightning Blasts Needles From Hands

ISLINGTON (CP)—Mrs. Agnes Young thinks she's lucky she wasn't killed when a bolt of lightning blasted knitting kneedles from her hands and spun her around in a chair during Wednesday night's storm.

A "ball of fire" seemed to explode in my lap she said and "my hands were paralyzed, you can still see black marks from the needles."

Islington is in Toronto's western suburbs.

De Laval Union Ratifies New Contract

Production workers of the De-Laval Co. Ltd. at a meeting Tuesday night in the PCVS auditorium ratified the terms of a collective bargaining agreement which include a general wage increase of five cent an hour. Two hundred and seventy-five workers are in the bargaining unit.

It is the first contract between the company and the International Association of Machinists (AFL-TLC).

Following are the main clauses:

1:—A general wage increase of five cents an hour retroactive to June 1;

2.—Incorporation of the present eight cents C-O-L bonus into the base rates;

3.—A contribution of 2½ cents an hour by management to a health and welfare plan;

4—Three weeks' vacation after 17½ years.

5.—Standard work week of 43 hours for both shifts;

6.—Overtime on a daily basis and time and a half for all hours worked;

7.—Elimination of labor grades 3, 4, 5;

8.—Union security clause;

9.—Pay for the eight statutory holidays written into contract (no change), and a half day before Christmas with pay;

10.—Agreement to discuss establishing a contributory pension plan;

11.—Wage opener after six months;

12.—Seniority recognized; and three-step grievance procedure with the usual arbitration provisions established.

Certification of the DeLaval workers and their new contract came after a swift campaign by two IAM representatives — Dan Dean and Pat McQuade. They were assisted by Jack Kellythorne, AFL-TLC organizer, and members of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council headed by President Glenn Price, Henry Nokes and Arnold Campbell.

Both IAM organizers said that management had co-operated 100 per cent in negotiations and added that they believed "a sound foundation of excellent labor-management relations" has been established.

Water Skiers Entertain Holiday Crowd

Water skiing was the entertainment at Wallace Point water show on the holiday. Despite threat of rain and the annual beckon of bass and 'lunge fishermen to the lakes, more than a thousand attended.

Members of the Peterborough Water-Ski Club displayed a number of feats including jumping, pyramiding and trick riding. A trio of girls, Flinda Simmon, Barbara Tiffen and Doreena Patton opened the show by performing crisscross patterns. An unexpected wave upset one of the girls and as a result Miss Patton received an injured ankle.

A water clown (Johnny Franks) caused the children to scream with excitement as he skidded near the dock and threw handfuls of candy in all directions. Not only the dock, but many of the anchored launches were showered with sweets by the generous clown.

Gus O'Brien exhibited the use of the disk ski, a four-foot circular piece of wood that is quoted as being, "10 times as difficult as skis to handle". Immediately following this, he and Doug Laird left the dock on four skis and ended up on one.

RETRIEVER DOG

Another form of water sport was introduced in the appearance of Dr. M. F. Clarkson and his retrieving dog. The dog successfully brought back everything he was ordered to in spite of the fact that he was constantly being distracted by power boats and swimmers. The final retrieve was that of an actual live duck which had been hidden in a blind, and which he was directed to by the signals.

SKI JUMPING

The water show was climaxed by the ski-jumping of Bill Thompson and Doug Laird and then a pyramid formed by Terry Hill and Doug Laird who acted as bottom men and Trevor Mitchell who rode on their shoulders.

Alf Pink who managed the show was assisted by Terry Hill, president of the four-month-old Water Ski Club, Doug Laird, 'Hec' Thompson, Bill McDonald, Stu Gardener, Len Pulver and Barbara Jones. The St. John Ambulance Brigade was on hand to administer first-aid.

WATER SKIERS, all members of the Peterborough Water Ski Club, performed for more than a 1,000 people Wednesday at Wallace Point. In trios, duets and solos the skiers went through their paces on the skis. Johnny Franks, veteran district skier, provided laughs and candy for the children while playing the role of a clown. Franks (at left) zips past the dock shortly after delivering the candy suckers. The skiers' jumping and pyramid acts were the afternoon water ski highlights. Terry Hill and Doug Laird (left and right, right photo) with Trevor Mitchell on their shoulders perform the pyramid act.

Fishermen Swarm Lakes Season Now Wide Open

The number of fishermen afloat in the Kawarthas as the sport went wide open on Dominion Day was unprecedented. About 300 boatloads were counted by a casual shore survey on the west end of Rice Lake near Bewdley and a fair amount of pickerel was brought in and some bass. Pigeon Lake and River was the next most popular area where the 'lunge lurk and the best catch reported there was by Earl Ireland, RR 1, Warsaw, who boated a 15-pound er, a keeper and some pickerel. Many other 'lunge over keeper size were also taken but not reported.

At the Burleigh Falls' end of Stony Lake many small muskies were hooked but one seasoned observer said that the fishermen were inexperienced and should have brought home many fish that they tangled with and lost. Pickerel fishing was fair off Mount Julian an an American at Wantassa Inn, McCracken's Landing, came in with a 15-pounder in the late afternoon. Others at the same lodge caught a few pickerel and fewer bass.

67 BOATS

By actual count 67 boatloads of optimists were noted on Lake Katchewanooka, north of Lakefield. Glen Hanes of 784½ George St., Peterborough, caught an 18-pounder, the largest reported during the day. Pickerel were biting well at Buckhorn but not 'lunge, and luck was reported good around Wallace Point south of the city.

No opening season would be complete without a few nice fish being landed within the city limits. Ed Dushane of 860 Water St., whose property runs down to the Otonabee River, landed a 'lunge weighing eight pounds off the bottom of his garden; the lure was worms.

Most resorts are half-filled to date but the big rush is expected to start on Friday evening. By then bookings indicate that tourists who have not booked will have a slim chance of getting places to eat and sleep.

Resort operators say that had fishing opened a few days earlier, they would have been solid then, but since the season opened in mid-week, guests are holding off until July 4 to start their vacations.

Some Americans were disgruntled to find upon arrival in the Kawarthas early last week that the fishing season was not fully opened and claimed that American newspapers had reported the season would open earlier than July 1.

Killed By Guerrillas

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — The Chinatone news agency, a minor agency claiming underground sources on the Red China mainland, said today Gen. Li Yen-hua and 13 other high Red officers were killed by Nationalist guerrillas June 19 in a raid in Kwangtung province. Li was identified as commander of the 6th military area in Kwangtung.

Music Appreciation Has Its Place

Making Of Music Provides True Joy Dr. R. S. K. Seeley Tells Delegates

"The history of the development of music festivals in Canada is truly a remarkable and phenomenal one," the Rev. Dr. R. S. Seeley, Provost and Vice-Chancellor of Trinity College, University of Toronto, said in a speech in Peterborough Tuesday night.

Dr. Seeley was the guest speaker at the federation dinner of the Fourth Annual Convention of the Federation of Canadian Festivals being held in the Empress Hotel June 30-July 2.

The dinner was one of the highlights of the 1953 convention.

The speaker congratulated the federation delegates for their "splendid efforts in promoting the making of music in Canada."

MUSIC APPRECIATION

He commented that in Canada, as in other Western civilized countries, there is a higher level of music appreciation and performance than ever before. This, he said, had been greatly developed by radio and modern recording techniques. But he warned that these two mediums, if left to themselves, might promote one of the already inherent national dangers—the tremendous development of spectator enjoyment.

"It is the making of music even more than the appreciation of it that provides the true joy of this art," he said. "By working to promote the making of music, you are helping to solve one of our major problems—how to use leisure time creatively."

The speaker pointed to music as one of the most effective mediums for promoting friendliness. It breaks through barriers of language, custom and tradition. It is an international language and does much to promote harmony among nations.

Special words of appreciation were expressed for ecclesiastical music. "Surely it is the richest stream of all our musical heritage."

Still in the same vein, Dr. Seeley asked for the continuation of congregational singing in churches. "It is the function of the choir to lead the congregation and not to take away from the congregation its privilege of making music," he said.

In his concluding remarks, the speaker spoke of "one of the glories of Canada is having within its borders many peoples of many nations, who bring with them their great and ancient traditions of making music."

He stressed the importance of keeping alive the vigorous folk music introduced into the country.

"You are the people who really insure the preservation of the tradition being brought into the land. By encouraging groups of people to enjoy the joys of making music, you are promoting cheerfulness, friendliness and high morale in the nation."

Dr. Seeley was introduced by Richard Cooke, federation secretary-treasurer, and thanked by Mrs. Lorna Grayston.

"The federation represents the festival movement in Canada," Reg. Hugo, federation president, of Manitoba, said in his remarks at the dinner. "The delegates who attend the convention represent select officials of the festivals from coast-to-coast. They come primarily to fit their own festivals into the general scheme. A general strengthening of the whole purpose of the festival movement in Canada is a natural result of these conventions."

Mr. Hugo traced the development of the festival movement in Canada from the first festival held in Edmonton in 1908 to the newest festival held for the second time this year in St. John's, Newfoundland. He also explained that this year's convention was the 28th annual convention of festival delegates, the fourth annual meeting of the federation, which was formed in 1949, and the first as an incorporated body.

A welcome to the city was extended to the delegates by Mayor Hugh Waddell. The delegates were also welcomed and praised for their work by Arthur Pitchford, on behalf of the Board of Education, Jack McCarney, chairman of the Separate School Board, and Christopher Gledhill, vice-president of the Peterborough Branch of the ORMTA.

Musical entertainment for the evening was provided by the PCVS Double Trio, Miss Phyllis Hart, vocal soloist, and Betty Lapp, piano soloist. Miss Hart and Miss Ruth Grandy also sang two duets.

Quaker Co. Makes Offer Committee To Advise Workers Reject Terms

Production Employees Will Vote On Recommendation Have Been On Strike Since A[illegible] 22

Striking production workers of the Quaker Oats Co. in Peterborough will tonight vote on a recommendation from their negotiating committee on the latest offer from the company. William Triggs, president of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), said early today that the union committee will recommend that the membership turn down the offer. After discussions earlier this week in Toronto the company offered a contract that would run to Jan. 1, 1955. It was the biggest move by either party since the 435 production workers went on strike April 22.

The offer includes a modification of the company's former stand on swing shifts. It grants the 40-hour week as soon as work resumes; an immediate wage increase of 15 per cent; and a further increase of 2½ per cent of present wage rates, effective July 1, 1954.

UNION'S DEMANDS

The main union objectives, stated repeatedly, are a 40-hour week with no swing shifts, and a base rate of $1.39½ an hour, similar to the rate in force at the Robin Hood and Maple Leaf mills in Port Colborne.

This new company offer would immediately jump the base rate from $1.18½ an hour to $1.36½, and it would guarantee the $1.39½ a year from now.

Regular male employees would get $90 and female employees $75 in a cash settlement in lieu of retroactive rate increases.

Today a letter, signed by General Manager James G. Wharry, was sent through the post to all employees. Here is a partial text:

SETTLEMENT PAY

To male employees who have worked a full schedule of hours since January 1, 1953, and who return to work immediately for a minimum of two weeks, the sum of $90.00. To female employees, under similar conditions, we will pay the sum of $75.00. To those employees who meet the conditions as to the return to work but have not worked full time, a proportionate amount will be paid.

WAGES

(a) A wage increase of 15% of present wage rates immediately upon return to work;

(b) A further increase of 2½% of present wage rates effective July 1, 1954.

HOURS OF WORK

40-hour week immeiately upon return to work.

VACATIONS

The Vacation Plan to be improved to provide for three weeks' vacation with pay to employees with 15 years or more of seniority.

Soldier's Body Found By Fishermen

The body of Edward Wilson, 21, 1560A Danforth Ave., Toronto, who drowned Saturday in the Trent River, near Hastings, 18 miles east of here was discovered by two American fishermen Tuesday afternoon.

The two tourists, Walter and Ivan Parshal, Eshtabula, Ohio, had been asked by OPP Constable Archie Eady to be on the lookout for the body of the Korean war veteran.

The Parshals saw the body floating about 200 yards from where the accident is believed to have happened. They towed it ashore and notified police.

Wilson was drowned when he was out with friends trying a new motor. With Harry Abbott, 37, and Bud McFarland, 26, he was staying at the cottage of William Mills, 19, of 20 Marlow Ave., Toronto. They said the accident happened as Mills was operating his new motor. One of the tiller ropes broke and he was pitched overboard.

Abbott dove in after him, and brought him back to the boat. In an attempt to help Mills and Abbott back into the boat, the boat capsized and Wilson and McFarland were thrown into the river.

Wilson couldn't swim. He disappeared and McFarland and Abbott managed to bring Mills back to shore.

Lt.-Col. G. F. B. Ritchie, No. 6 personnel depot of the Canadian Army, arrived to make arrangements for the funeral. The body will be taken from the McConnell Warner funeral home, Norwood, to McDougall and Brown funeral home, Toronto. The funeral service will take place Saturday at 10 a.m. with burial in St. John's cemetery.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

The Peterborough County Law Association wishes to announce that all lawyers offices will be closed all day Saturday during the months of July and August.

FASTEST WOMAN — Jet-propelled Jacqueline Cochran, 43-year-old wife of an American millionaire, is the first woman to fly through the sound barrier. In an F-86 Sabre-jet built by Canadair of Montreal and powered by an Orenda engine, she flew at 652.33 m.p.h. over a 100-kilometer circuit to win not only the women's speed record but exceeded the men's record as well. She also defeated her rival woman speed aviator, Jacqueline Auriol of France, who previously had wrested the women's speed record from Miss Cochran.

INTERNATIONAL JET FEUD—Jacqueline Auriol, 35-year-old daughter-in-law of the president of France, is engaged in a long-range jet-air duel with the American flier, Jacqueline Cochran. After her marriage Mme. Auriol took up flying and May 12, 1951, broke the world speed record for women, averaging 509.245 m.p.h. in a Vampire jet. Last December she went even faster, a record which fell when Jacqueline Cochran broke through the sound barrier for a world's speed record. (CP Photo)

Jet-Propelled Jacquelines Staging Real Air Battle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canada has been dragged into aviation's battle of the jet-propelled Jacquelines. The flying women's rivalry has been pushed through the sound barrier by a Canadian plane.

In California, Jacqueline Cochran, 43-year-old wife of an American millionaire, flew a Canadian-built F-86E Sabre jet fighter faster than sound.

But probably more important to her was the fact it went faster than the other Jacqueline. Jacqueline Auriol, 35, daughter-in-law of the president of France, had had the temerity to steal Miss Cochran's women's speed record.

Chances are Mme. Auriol now will get herself another jet and do some supersonic hair-pulling of her own.

WENT TO CANADAIR

The inside story of how Miss Cochran got hold of a Canadian Sabre has not been told. She tried to get a Sabre in the U.S. but couldn't so she came to Canada. She tried the RCAF and was turned down. Then she went to the Canadair plant in Montreal which builds Sabres and finally became a consultant to its directors. After that it was easy. Technically she took the Sabre south to make some tests that couldn't be made here.

Jacqueline Cochran has been used to getting what she wants since she took her first solo 15 years ago while working at a beauty parlor. She went on to head her own cosmetics company, become director of an airline, marry Floyd Odlum, multi-millionaire financier, start a big ranch with him and dominate women's flying—until Mme. Auriol came along.

The Harmon Trophy, awarded by the International League of Aviators to the world's outstanding woman flier, stood on the Cochran sideboard from 1937 to 1950. In 1938 she won the Bendix Transcontinental Trophy race against a field of men and became the only woman to receive the Billy Mitchell Trophy as the outstanding pilot of the year.

That was the year the other Jacqueline, a shy girl of 20 unheard of in the aviation world, married Paul Auriol. Thére was a child the next year and another three years later.

While Jacqueline Auriol lived the quiet life of a wife and mother, Jacqueline Cochran was organizing a group of American women pilots to fly with the British Air Transport Service in England, became director of U.S. Women's Air Force service pilots (the Wasps), and in 1945 was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal.

In 1947 she established two world flying records which still stand, and in 1948 she set two more.

MME. AURIOL'S START

That year Jacqueline Auriol, 39, with her children in school most of each day, took flying lessons. In 1949 she gave an exhibition of stunt flying at Paris.

A few days later she crashed into the Seine on a routine flight. Her face was badly smashed but she flew again even before surgeons had finished a series of 22 operations on her.

May 12, 1951, Mme. Auriol broke the world speed record for women, averaging 509.245 MHP in a Vampire jet fighter over a 100-kilometre circuit. The Harmon Trophy went to France. Last December she raised her record to 534.375 MPH and was awarded the Legion of Honor.

Jacqueline Cochran already had the Legion of Honor and the honorary wings of the French, Turkish, Chinese and Spanish air forces, but she no longer had the record.

So last month in her Sabre, above the Mojave desert, she became the first woman to fly through the sound barrier. In making the 100-kilometre circuit at 652.337 MPH she not only regained the women's record from Jacqueline Auriol, but exceeded the men's record as well.

It looks as though the Harmon Trophy will be on the Cochran sideboard again. But for how long?

Fibre Glass Opened Up New Industry

NEW YORK (AP)—The glass-makers have woven a bright new industry with shimmering strands of fibre glass.

Today, 15 years after the first commercial production began, the men who make fibre glass say there are so many potential uses that they sometimes don't know what field to invade next.

In various forms, fibre glass is going into insulation, curtains, boats, fishing rods, wallboard and thousands of other products. Research turns up new uses every day.

The spectacular growth of fibre glass has been based on a unique combination of advantages: It is exceptionally strong for its weight, can't shrink or absorb moisture, can't rot, oxidize or corrode, and is non-combustible.

Commercial production of fibre glass began in 1938, after years of research by Owens-Illinois glass company and the Corning glass works. Owens - Corning Fiberglas Corp. was formed in that year to make a handful of products, principally filters and insulating materials.

Owens -- Corning sales soared from $3,878,701 in the first year to $101,730,483 in 1952 as the number of uses for fibre glass multiplied many times.

$500 Cash Offer In Tuna Fishing

GRAND MANAN, N.B. (CP)—This Bay of Fundy island is offering big stakes to try for a share in the tuna fishing spotlight long held by Wedgeport, N.S.

The board of trade has announced a cash prize of $500 for the first fisherman to catch and land a tuna on rod and reel in the waters off Grand Manan.

The contest will be open to sportsmen from Canada and the United States and will run from July 15 to Aug. 15. Competitors must provide their own fishing gear according to approved sport fishing standards.

They may also use their own boats, but it's expected that 10 craft, rigged with flight chairs, will be made available by the tournament committee.

The contest is part of a larger program to determine whether tuna sport fishing can be developed in island waters. Tuna have been sighted and trapped in herring weirs around Grand Manan for many years, but never has one been taken on rod and reel in approved sport fashion.

Fox, of Amherstburg, Ont., and two other U.S soldiers drove ambulances hauling a cargo of drugs, Japanese doctors and nurses over the treacherous 64 miles in four hours to bring the first relief to this community where almost 700 homes were swept away during the week-end by the worst flood in modern Japanese history.

A too-rapid heart beat may be caused by a dietary lack of thiamine, or vitamin B1.

Hollow Mountains Give Swedish Armour

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Sweden is building 500 giant shelters under her grafite cliffs and mountains where her warships and aircraft will be stored and serviced safe from atomic attacks in any future war.

The shelters, costing a total of about 450,000,000 crowns (about $90,000,000), will also accommodate Sweden's defence staffs, chief radar stations and other essential military and civilian services.

More than $40,000,000 worth of these shelters have already been built.

After the first atom bomb fell on Japan, Sweden's military leaders made a secret inventory of all the country's cliffs and mountains strong enough and high enough to serve as "roofs" for underground shelters, proof against atomic attack. They wanted something bigger and better than the underground u-boat pens built by the Germans in France.

Nature had already done some of the excavation work. In many cases, man had only to enlarge, elaborate and improve.

Because of this, the experts estimated, the total cost of this "operation fortress" could be kept down to $90,000,000. Of that total, about $32,000,000 is being spent on "stores and workshops," $17,600,000 on "hangars and ships tunnels," $13,600,000 on "battle positions," $12,800,000 on "fuel stores," $9,000,000 on "enemy aircraft detection units," $4,500,000 on "staff premises" and $500,000 on "shelters for diverse purposes."

Above ground, are runways for aircraft landing for attention or taking off for operations. The aircraft are towed by jeeps through long tunnels to underground workshops.

Alongside the workshops, are hangars where aircraft can be stored, safe from atomic and other forms of attack.

The "battle positions" include underground coastal artillery units complete with radar and other devices, placed at strategic points along the route which a sea-borne invasion force would take if it came from the east.

European Countries Missing East-West Trade Of Other Years

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

East-West trade is a warm topic in Europe.

By East-West, of course, is meant the Communist-controlled world and the Western world, particularly the European West.

Just now, historic trade patterns are disrupted by the cold and hot wars between the two areas.

To some countries, such as Austria, the division is an unnatural economic situation; and such mighty world traders as Britain are not likely to feel content so long as such vast areas are virtually closed to them.

The more that western countries fail to find solutions by expanding trade among themselves, and the more the rich dollar areas of North America maintain barriers against foreign goods, the more longingly do European countries hope for the re-establishment of more normal East-West exchange.

SIREN'S CALL

As long as Russia poises a visible threat to their independence, they may, regretfully, and of necessity, forego the paths of old trade routes. But the more that Russia sheathes her claws, the more will they lend an ear to the call of new-old markets.

East-West trade wasn't on the agenda of the May congress in Vienna of the International Chamber of Commerce, but it kept popping up.

Rolf von Heidenstam, of Sweden, retiring president of the ICC, told newspaper men the matter had been discussed at council meetings at ICC international headquarters in Paris.

The Paris meetings had been unanimous that some countries needed East-West trade, and there was a feeling that at present probably both East and West wished to increase trade with one another. He thought the presence of two Russian observers at the ICC meetings might indicate a Russian interest in the matter.

The Paris meetings, however, were unanimous that there should not, at this time, be trade in strategic materials.

SHOULD BE STUDIED

Quintin J. Gwyn, of Montreal, said at one ICC session that East-West trade should be studied. He wasn't suggesting what should be done, because that could be decided only after consideration, but the matter shouldn't be overlooked, because many European countries were looking for some definite lead.

Hisaakira Kano, of Japan, commenting on possibilities of trade with China, said:

"The Chinese are very nationalistic. In the past they have sometimes had anti-British boycotts and sometimes anti-Japanese boycotts. Today, they are friendly with the Soviets, but the time will come when they will have anti-Soviet boycotts. If there is peace, the door of the Chinese market will gradually open."

Professors' Experiments Created Modern Petroleum Industry

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—One hundred years ago this week, two Dartmouth College chemistry professors bent over a test tube in which a greenish-brown liquid frothed and bubbled.

In that test tube was born the petroleum industry which made possible the farm tractor, the family automobile, the jet plane and the diesel streamliner — the mechanization of land armies and the development of powerful air and naval forces.

The two Dartmouth chemists were on the threshhold of destiny on that day in June, 1853, when they completed the world's first scientific examination of crude oil.

Their report, that the Pennsylvania crude they had analyzed was "indeed of great (commercial) value," led to the formation of the world's first petroleum company. This company later drilled the world's first commercial oil well at Titusvile, Pa.

RELIED ON WOOD, COAL

When Professors Dixi Crosby and Oliver Hubbard analyzed their sample of Pennsylvania "rock oil," the world was largely dependent for its fuel requirements on wood and coal.

Today, without petroleum fuels and lubricants, factories would shut down, trains, automobiles, ships and planes would not be able to move. Petroleum touches practically everything you eat or wear.

Synthetic hormones derived from petroleum spur plant growth. The cotton thread in your dress or shirt was lubricated with petroleum when it was woven into cloth. The grease in your lipstick, the ink your newspaper is printed with, the plastic shell of your telephone, the pain-killing drugs used by your dentist or surgeon, the detergent that gets your clothes and dishes clean—these and thousands of other things in daily use are derived from the chemical treasure chest in the crude oil extracted from porous rock formations three, four and five miles below the earth's surface.

History has proven the two Dartmouth professors were more right than they knew when they reached the conclusion that their sample of crude oil was "indeed of great value."

Barbecues, Picnics Feature Of Holiday

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians celebrated Dominion Day by attending sports events, barbecues and picnics, by taking one-day trips to points in Canada or to neighboring United States centres, or by enjoying themselves at cottages and beaches.

A Canadian Press survey of the nation's 86th birthday celebrations showed the weather generally favorable, although heat waves generated thunderstorms in some sections.

Nova Scotians and New Brunswickers celebrated in sunny weather. More than 5,000 persons at a Truro barbecue ate 2,500 chickens. Other thousands attended a Scottish clan gathering and fishermen's regatta at Pugwash, N.S.

A chicken barbecue at Fredericton served 4,800 persons and turned another 1,200 away.

GO TO COTTAGES

Most Ottawans spent the holiday at cottages along the Gatineau, Rideau and Ottawa rivers near the capital. A heavy thunderstorm broke over Toronto late in the day, drenching competitors in the last two events of the Dominion Day regatta.

Edmonton was clear and warm for the holidays but some scattered showers and thundershowers fell elsewhere on the Prairies. Baseball tournaments were staged at Lethbridge, St. Paul, Alta., and Saskatoon.

The day was marked at Kingston by the ceremony of the changing of the guard at old Fort Henry, watched by some 12,000 persons.

A detachment from the Royal Canadian School of Signals took over from the Fort Henry guard dressed in the uniforms of British regulars of the Confederation era.

A mock battle was staged between five RCN ships and the Fort Henry guard with rockets and mortar fire.

HONOR JEAN BAPTISTE

In day-long celebrations, which opened with high mass and included a fireworks display, races, games and dances, Windsor's French Canadians honored their patron saint, Jean Baptiste.

Some 250 persons attended the out-door mass.

In Britain, the United States, France and Korea Canadians gathered to observe the anniversary.

There was open house at Canada House in London.

The BBC's Town Forum program put the spotlight squarely on Canada, with a panel answering questions from the audience about the senior Commonwealth partner across the sea.

A rebroadcast of "The Flower in the Rock," by Joseph Schull of Montreal, was also scheduled. The play was first heard in February and was so popular the BBC decided to repeat it. The cast included Bernard Braden of Vancouver, Stanley Maxted of Ottawa and Macdonald Parke of Cornwall, Ont. formerly a player with the Toronto Argonauts football club.

Car Out Of Control Interrupts Lunch

HAMILON (CP)—A family of four from Cornwall had their lunch interrupted alongside No. 5 Highway near Dundas Tuesday when a car went out of control and knocked down the roadside table where they were standing.

Mr. and Mrs. John Greer and their two young sons were about to start eating when the car veered into a tree and struck the picnic table.

Sheds Fifth Wife

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., 55, shed his fifth wife Tuesday, in a brief hearing before district Judge John Belford. Vanderbilt won a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty from Mrs. Patricia Murphy Wallace Vanderbilt, 33. She and Vanderbilt were married in 1948.

Purse Presented Bethany Minister

BETHANY (ENS) — The Rev. James Hampson, who is moving to Greenwood this week, preached his farewell sermon to the congregations of the three churches on the Bethany circuit, Yelverton, Ebenezer and Bethany, on Sunday. At the close of the regular service in Bethany a social hour was spent in the Sunday school room, during which an address of appreciation and good wishes was read by Mrs. Clarence Rowan and a purse of money was presented by Arthur Stewart as a wedding gift from the three congregations. Mr. Hampson's marriage to Miss Grace West of Pembroke takes place on Tuesday.

A. H. Monk was chairman for the program, and in his remarks stressed the appreciation of everyone for the very fine leadership and inspiring sermons given by Mr. Hampson during his three-year term here. Others representing the different societies of the church who expressed their regret at his leaving and offered congratulations and good wishes for the future were Donald Lowes, George Waddell, Milton Weatherilt and Allan Beer. "Blest Be The Tie That Binds" was sung.

Mr. Hampson thanked everyone for the gift and requested the same loyal support he had received for his successor, the Rev. Clifford Grant, BA, BD, who will arrive this week from Toronto to take over the work.

Lunch was served by the members of the Women's Association and Young People's Union.

Indian Crusade Held At Burleigh

The American Indian Crusade is holding its annual Bible Conference at Curve Lake and Burleigh Falls this week. The Rev. Willard Day was the host pastor and made the arrangements for the services in both churches.

Each day was started with a bible study class at 10.30 a.m. conducted by Rev. Huron Williams, an Oneida Indian from Muncey, Ontario.

The evangelistic services in the evening were led by Rev. H. Thomas Claus, a Mohawk Indian Evangelist and Director of the American Indian Crusade. The Claus Indian family provided the music for all the meetings and messages were also brought by Ken Antone.

The conference welcomed many special guests. Perhaps the ones that came the farthest were a Hopi Indian family from Winslow, Arizona, Mr. and Mrs. Setella and son. Then too, there were a delegation of girls that stayed throughout the whole conference from the Oneida reservation near London, Ontario.

In all, the conference was attended by capacity crowds in every servic

Steelworkers Union Reaches Agreement With Bethlehem

MARMORA (ENS).—Workers of Bethlehem Mines, members of Local 4854 of United Steelworkers of America, CIO, ratified a collective agreement with Bethlehem Corporation at a meeting of the membership Monday night.

The spokesman for the Steelworkers Union, International Representative Ralph Carlin, said Bethlehem management and the union committee met at Club Aragon, Peterborough, for the purpose of finalizing the contract.

The agreement provides for a general wage increase of 23 cents per hour—retroactive to June 12, with a reduction of hours in the work week from 44 to 40 hours per week; overtime will be paid for on the basis of time-and-one-half for all work performed in excess of eight hours in one day and in excess of 40 hours per week. The wage increase will bring the labor rate up to a minimum of $1.34. A premium for shift workers of six cents per hour for afternoon shift and nine cents for midnight shift work will be paid in addition to the general increase. The vacation plan agreed to, provides for one week paid vacation after one year service, two weeks after five years' service, and three weeks after 15 years' service. Six paid statutory holidays, and the medical-hospital-surgical and insurance plan in effect prior to the union contract shall remain operative under the terms of the agreement.

JOB CLASSIFICATION

A proper job classification program, said Carlin, under the CWS Plan now in effect in all collective agreements covering "basic steel" in Canada and U.S.A. will be worked out jointly by Bethlehem management and the union. A four cent increment between each job class goes into effect, and all wage increases resulting from classifications when the program has been worked out will be retroactive to June 12.

It is just nine months, said Carlin, since the Steelworkers Union came into Marmora to rescue the Bethlehem miners from the Communist dominated Mine-Mill and Smelter Workers Union. When facts were made clear to the miners, that the United Steelworkers of America held the bargaining rights for over 125,000 employees of Bethlehem Steel Corporation in the U.S.A., the Mine-Mill Union quickly lost whatever support it had among Marmora miners.

Negotiations, remarked Carlin, between our organization and Bethlehem management were conducted on an amicable and business-like manner. Bethlehem Mines were represented by T. D. Delamere (chairman), Toronto; Harold Olsen, general manager; D. Coleman, personnel manager, and Horace Hyck, Toronto. Representing the union: Percy J. Gray, local president; Graham Bell, recording secretary; Jack Grant, treasurer; Percy Embury and John Storring. The union's negotiating committee was chaired by Larry Sefton, district director of U.S.A., who was assisted by Pat Terrill, steel staff representative of Toronto.

WEDDING SPARKS RAIDS—As 30-year-old Doukhobor John Verigin, an enemy of violence, was married, torch raiders of the diehard radicals of the Sons of Freedom sect came out of hiding to strike at three communities and set fire to 10 homes in British Columbia. Verigin, who married attractive Doukhobor Laura Relkoff, is secretary of the orthodox Doukhobors communities' 10,000 inhabitants. Serving girls stand behind the young couple following the service in the tradition brought to Canada from Czarist Russia.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Varied Meat Dishes Offer Limitless Possibilities

Food buying is a fine art, and meat buying requires all of the skill you can muster.

The frienship of a good butcher is indispensable to young brides and inexperienced meat buyers. Knowing and experienced housewives have the good sense to keep on the right side of their butcher.

When you observe Mrs. Average Housewife buying her meat for Sunday's dinner she appears to limit herself to roast beef, roast pork and chicken.

Why limit the possibilities by snuggling down in this kind of a rut and blinding yourselves to the limitless food horizon?

How many of you make pressed oxtongue, or corned beef and cabbage a la Jiggs, or boil a whole Restigouche salmon as they do in the Maritimes, for Sunday's dinner?

Your butcher can tell you if you ask him what inexpensive cuts are available and how to cook them.

Would you know what cut to buy for the best pot roast? and if so, would you know how to cook it to the best advantage and what to serve with it? There is a boiled beef and noodles dish that I think should be in every cook's meat file. See it below.

You will have noticed in many of the supermarket advertisements "red and blue brand" beef is listed. Now red and blue brands very often sell at the same price, but are usually put in the meat counters together.

When you examine and turn over the cuts you will find, often as not, twenty bluebrand cuts to every one red brand cut. Choose the red brand cut every time. It is clearly marked on the skin in continuous red ink. The red brand beef is from carcasses that have been Government inspected and stamped "top grade" by Government inspectors. These skilled gentlemen know the choice beef carcasses when they examine them, which they do all of the time for you. "If you could give me some suggestions on how to prepare the cheaper cuts of meats..." that is the theme of many of the letters I receive from you.

BOILED BEEF WITH NOODLES

The girl who originated this dish made her own noodles, but that's asking too much I'm afraid

Buy a 3 or 4-lb. shank of beef. If the meat is still on the bone the broth has better flavor. Cover it with cold water, add 4 bay leaves and about ¼ teaspoon pepper, bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer about 3½ hours or until meat falls from bones. (If this is cooked in pressure cooker have pressure at 10 lbs. for 75 minutes.) One-half hour before serving time, fish out the bay leaves and add the finest noodles you can buy and about 2 teaspoons salt and simmer until noodles are tender. Lift out the meat, and place at centre of hot platter. Strain out the noodles and arrange in border around meat. Thicken the broth with a paste of 2 tablespoons flour stirred into ¼ cup cold water. Pour a generous amount of this gravy over the meat and around the inside edge of the noodles. Garnish lavishly with parsley.

Thus you have the hot part of a summer meal cooked in one pot and served on one serving dish.

Did you notice that there are no onions in it? Sometimes I think I am too heavy-handed with onions in my cooking.

CORNED BEEF

(to slice cold)

Ask the butcher for brisket point. This part of the brisket has the lean meat in 1 thick layer and slices most satisfactorily. Ask for "corned" brisket.

Wipe the meat with cold, damp cloth. Put in kettle. Cover with cold water and bring toboil. Boil for 3 minutes then skim off skum. Reduce heat, cover and let simmer until tender, allow about 3¼ hours at least. Let meat cool in cooking liquor until warm. Then transfer to platter and cover with another dish, and place weight on top to press meat together, having layered side parallel with platter. Chill until very cold. Slice crosswise of grain. This is delicious for a cold supper served with fine slaw and mustard pickles.

Exactly same cut and method are used for New England Boiled Dinner but meat is not chilled, and vegetables are added during last half hour, such as potatoes, cabbage, turnips and carrots, and horseradish is served with this dinner.

DOROTHY DIX:

Woman Finds Dating Coming Too Late

DEAR MISS DIX: Perhaps you can straighten me out on something. I'm in my late 20's, and, until about two years ago, led a very sheltered life. Almost all my time was spent with my parents. However, after they passed on, I began dating, and here's my problem. Are all men the same? Those I have met seem to be more interested in talking about sex, than in anything else. I thought a man would appreciate a girl who could converse on books, art or music. Am I wrong? Am I old-fashioned?

NELLIE V.

BROADEN YOUR CIRCLE OF FRIENDS

ANSWER: You are still finding it difficult, and frightening, to adjust to conditions in a world that was completely remote from you for 25 years. Complicating the over-protectiveness of your early years is the fact that you are now meeting just one type of man—and that the wrong one, especially for you. It seems almost impossible that in two years you have met no young man with honorable intentions or of repectful attitude. There are certainly lots of them around, and perhaps you're looking in the wrong places. To broaden your circle of acquaintances, I'd suggest a complete change of interests. You don't mention what your activities are, or where you meet the men you have dated, but look elsewhere. Your city abounds in social, cultural, and athletic groups; carry your search there.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 22 and have been married to a railroad man for three years. We have two children. My husband is away all week and comes home only on week ends. When he's here he won't take me any place. He won't get a job where he can be home all the time. Our other trouble is that he won't make enough effort to pay his debts. We owe quite a bit of money, but he pays very little of it off. He won't let me get a job to help, either.

M. H. V.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: As a railroad worker, your husband should be earning enough to keep his family comfortably and pay off his debts. It would be foolish for you to try to work and care for two young children while your husband has a good job. Instead of nagging him all week end, suppose you see what you can do to make life more pleasant for him. You make his time at home so disagreeable that it's no wonder he doesn't relish a steady diet of the same. Do try being more reasonable.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Will you please tell two perplexed girls how to meet a couple of servicemen without seeming to be "pick-ups"? We have just come to the city to work, and we have our parents' permission to go out with servicemen.

ANN AND MAY

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Why not combine service with pleasure and help out at a servicemen's canteen? There are lots of them around and most of them could use reliable, voluntary assistants.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 38 years old, a divorcee with three grown children. I've been corresponding with a widower in his fifties for the past six months, during which time we have become fond of each other. We have never met, but plan to this summer. Do you think there's a chance of happiness for us together?

M. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Why not? Just don't be too hasty about becoming serious until you have met, and have had sufficient opportunity to become acquainted.

BOTTLE-FED BABIES

If your baby is bottle-fed, be sure to watch little bowels closely. Mother's milk has a natural laxative effect which helps take care of baby's need. Lacking this, a bottle-fed baby often gets fretty, feverish and suffers constipation and upset stomach. Let Baby's Own Tablets help you keep baby's bowels on schedule—sweeten upset stomach. Used with confidence by mothers for more than fifty years. No "sleepy" stuff—no dulling effect. Equally good for simple fever, constipation, restlessness and fretfulness resulting from irregularity at teething time, and other minor ills. Get Baby's Own Tablets today at your druggist.

Remembrance keeps him near.

—Ever remembered by wife and family.

GARRETT — In loving memory of William Garrett, who passed away July 1, 1946.

The nearest husband this world could hold,
A beautiful smile and a heart of gold.
And those who knew him, all will know

The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.

KILLINGBECK—In loving memory of Edith Killingbeck, who passed away July 2, 1950.

ROBERTSON—In memory of Joseph Alexander Robertson who entered into rest July 2nd, 1952.

Mother Of Five Refuses Give Divorce

MONTREAL (CP)—A mother of five children said Wednesday night she will never divorce her husband, now planning to marry a 27-year-old girl in Germany.

"And if I ever see him again I will beat him up," said Mrs. Ted Woods in an interview at her suburban Ville St. Laurent home.

Mrs. Woods said she "fainted away" when she read a news dispatch a few weeks ago saying her husband, with the Canadian army in Hannover, plans to marry and settle in Germany.

In an interview in Hannover Wednesday, Woods said he is trying to get a divorce from his Montreal wife "and I'm going to get it."

He said that when he left Canada to return to Germany his wife had agreed to a separation providing he supported her and the children. He indicated that for certain reasons he subsequently cut off financial support.

CIVILIAN EMPLOYEE

Woods was described as a civilian employee of the Canadian army as a physical training officer.

Said Mrs. Woods:

"He just walked out on me and the children and if I ever see him again I'll beat him up. The story said he was a ju-jitsu expert but he couldn't fight his way out of a paper bag . . .

I hope the girl doesn't know he's married. I'm just sorry for her. But if she does, I'd like to beat her up too.

30,000 Chinese Repatriated To Formosa

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) — Thirty thousand Nationalist Chinese soldiers interned in Indo-China since 1949 have been repatriated to Formosa. Transport of the troops to the island stronghold was accomplished by Nationalist merchant ships without military escorts.

The long-delayed repatriation began May 24 and the last convoy left Indo-China in greatest secrecy June 22.

The repatriation of the interned Chinese was decided upon by French authorities following a United Nations resolution April 23 in which all the Communist bloc, except Communist China, accepted the principle of the return to Formosa of Chinese Nationalists interned three years in Burma.

Until this resolution, France had always made it clear that she would keep the internees until the end of hostilities between Communist and Nationalist China.

This was decided on despite numerous protests by Chiang Kai-shek who demanded their immediate repatriation.

The Chinese Nationalists were part of the army group commanded by Pai Chung Si, defeated by the Communists. They fled into Indo-China with the Communists not behind them nearly four years ago.

FAMILY REUNIONS, usually held in large numbers in Peterborough's parks each July 1, were apparently discouraged Wednesday by the threat of rain and the muggy day. A tour of the parks revealed only one. This was the Donald family get-together which was held in Nicholls Oval. Shown here are the heads of the Donald family, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Donald, Frankford, and their great-grandson, Wendell Ash, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ash, Eldorado. The Donald clan has been holding reunions since Mr. and Mrs. Donald celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary July 9, three years ago. —(Examiner Staff Photo).

Not Planning U.S. Intervention

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday that revolt sparked by tyranny seems to be spreading like wildfire in Iron Curtain countries. But he said there is no thought of active U. S. intervention to liberate these nations.

Rebellion in the Soviet satellites, the president told a press conference, reinforces the idea that people who have known freedom rate it as the highest of human values and consider life itself worth spending to regain it.

Yet Eisenhower indicated there is little his administration feels it can do now to liberate the Satellite countries aside from statements and speeches to show them they still have friends standing by.

Extra $20,000 Approved By Highway Department For United Counties' Roads

COBOURG — (ENS) — Northumberland and Durham Counties Council concluded a two-day session on Tuesday afternoon, which, while being the regular summer session, had been called earlier in order to deal with the pressing problem of the proposed division of the East Northumberland High School Area. Council on Monday granted the request of Campbellford, Percy and Seymour to be taken out of the high school area and made a separate area. On Tuesday, the council passed the necessary by-law which will be forwarded to the Department of Education for final approval.

At the session in April the matter of paving a section of road at Hoard's Station was discussed and council decided to see if one-half could be paved and the rest of the money spent elsewhere. Reeve R. McCann of Brighton Township reported at the session just ended, that the Minister of Department of Highways had been consulted and the Road Commission was informed all the road would have to be paved and the Department would approve an additional $20,000 to the road appropriation which would bring it up $373,000, just $2,000 short of what the appropriation had been estimated at.

ASKS BYLAW BE ENFORCED

M. D. Kirk, zone forester for Durham County, wrote council that wooded areas were being destroyed by ruthless cutting below the legal diamater and that the by-law should be enforced more rigidly.

The Warden pointed out to Mr. Kirk that the tree cutting by-law had been amended last April and was now regarded as being devoid of the previous loopholes which had rendered it very puny in effect. Mr. Kirk said that he had not received a copy of the amended by-law and did not know that it now had teeth in it.

The county property committee recommended removal of a partition in the health unit office and suggested that a report on the cost of decorating the interior be brought in at the next session of council. The road and bridge committee recommended that the road superintendent erect "slow" signs at the village of Camborne and that the provincial police check on speeding in that area. The committee recommended that the counties take over 100 rods of road in the Township of Cavan from the proposed new highway to Argue gate, provinding the soil test is suitable to the McFarland Construction Co. for fill on the new highway. A written agreement is to be signed by all parties concerned before work starts and the necessary by-laws passed at a later session.

The legislative-and-by-laws committee recommended that the road commission see that steps are taken to remove all obstacles parked on county roads for excessive periods of time and that the road superintendent, after consulting with the Road Commission ask the provincial police to carry out the regulations of the covering by-law.

The finance committee turned down the request of Belleville General Hospital for a five dollar per day rate for indigent patients.

Archbishop Denounces Sponsored TV In Britain

YORK, England (AP) — The Archbishop of York denounced sponsored television today as a greater threat to the British way of life than the atomic bomb.

Dr. Garbett said British TV should be "kept under a corporation which regards public welfare as more important than private profit BBC.

The archbishop, Dr. Cyril Garbett, declared United States advertisers would spend heavily on the commercial medium to push sales in this country, forcing the adoption of "American methods of presentation."

He told the York diocesan conference in a prepared address the U. S. methods include such things as children's shows portraying "a series of murders, robberies and holdups."

The government is investigating whether to permit commercial television in Britain where the state-sponsored BBC now has a non-commercial monopoly. The Church's highest dignitary—the archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher—spoke out against commercial TV Tuesday.

BLOOD DONOR RECORD

HAMILTON (CP)—A new national Red Cross record was claimed at the Canadian Westinghouse plant Tuesday when 535 employees gave blood. The record was previously held by the Atlas Steel Company at Welland.

THE STRAIN OF OVERWORK and need of rest, which have forced Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill to ask for indefinite postponement of the scheduled Big Three conference in Bermuda, show few outward signs in this most recent photograph taken in the garden at 10 Downing Street this week. With Sir Winston is his Italian counterpart, Premier Alcide deGasperi, who flew to London from Paris for an informal chat after attending a European Community meeting. Of interest is the fancy footwear sported by the statesmen, with Sir Winston in zippered shoes and the Italian leader in moccasin-type boots.

Roaring Welcome Greets Queen In North Ireland

BELFAST (AP)—A roaring welcome and a special armed police detail greeted the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh Wednesday on their arrival for a three-day Coronation season visit in Northern Ireland.

This trip, following a similar tour in Scotland last week, will take the royal couple by train and boat on a 100-mile swing through the six northern counties. It is the first visit here for the Queen since 1949.

The Queen, in a light pastel green summer coat and matching hat, inspected an RAF honor guard and drove through the green countryside from Aldergrove air base to Hillsborough Castle, official residence of Northern Ireland's governor, Lord Wakeshurst, where the royal party is staying.

Some Northern Irish bitterly are opposed to the link with England. Strong contingents of police guarded the 15-mile route from the airbase to Hillsborough.

But there was no sign of any nationalist demonstrations and all along the way the local Irish whole-heartedly welcomed the Queen.

Every village was decked with red, white and blue flags, bunting, and pictures of the Queen.

Shortly before the royal plane landed, there were angry scenes in Belfast's city council when members of the Eire Labor party—affiliated to the socialist movement of the Republic of Ireland—bitterly protested they had been excluded from all official functions during the Queen's visit.

Majority spokesmen on the council said the Labor members had not been given invitations because all 10 Labor members publicly had refused to drink the Queen's health.

Plan Drive In Church

TORONTO (CP) — A drive-in church will be tried out here next Sunday. Islington Evangel Centre has rented a drive-in theatre northwest of the city and Rev. Ernest W. Zilch said it will hold services there until a new church building is completed. The sermon and the songs of a women's choir will be carried to each car by individual loudspeakers.

Sideswiped Cruisers Jailed One Year

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Gilbert Lossing, 19, Woodstock, who was arrested June 24 after he sideswiped two police cruisers during a wild chase, was sentenced Tuesday to one year definite and three months indefinite when he pleaded guilty to theft of a truck.

He also was fined $10 after pleading guilty to consuming liquor while a minor.

He was charged with theft of a truck valued at $3,000 from a local car dealer.

TWO BOYS DROWNED

TORONTO (CP) — Two small boys on a picnic with 75 others were drowned in the Don river Tuesday in suburban North York.

Dead are Harvey Goryo, 8, and Lawrence Bellefleur, 10. The bodies were recovered.

Canadian Troops Open Sports Field

By BILL BOSS

IN KOREA (CP)—Canadians in Korea celebrated July 1 with a ceromonial parade, receptions, and the official opening of a sports field. Representatives from all Canadian units in Korea and Japan attended.

The honor guard in the parade was commanded by Capt. Les Basham of Calgary. Taking part were men from all units in the 25th infantry brigade.

Brig. Jean Allard, brigade commander, christened the new sports field Maple Leaf Park in a ceremony which followed a one-minute silence in memory of fallen comrades.

Each unit of the brigade sent at least six truckloads of spectators to watch the athletic contests which followed.

L.Cpl. Bob Palmer of Calgary, from the dental unit of the Royal Canadian Regiment, was acclaimed best athlete of the day.

The Patricias' band made its last public appearance in Korea before leaving for a two-week tour of Kure and Tokyo in Japan.

The entire 59th field squadron of the Royal Canadian Engineers paraded to receive from Brigadier Allard a plaque commemorating the 15th anniversary of their corps. The plaque contained replicas of badges of every unit in the brigade.

In Tokyo, Canadian Army staff members held an afternoon reception for Canadian and other national dignitaries.

Lakefield Boy 9, Drowns At Junior Bathing Beach

ROBERT KING, nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles King of Lakefield, was drowned Thursday afternoon in the junior section of the public bathing beach in Lakefield. He was found (top photo where the "X" is) directly in front of the supervisor's office in seven feet of water only three minutes after he was missed. Dr. L. O. Bailey (lower right, middle photo) worked on the lad along with supervisor, John Sparling, and several others while the boy's parents (kneeling in centre, middle photo) look on. Mrs. Vincent Killoran of Sandusky, Ohio, (top left, middle photo) along with Mrs. Robert McCracken of Lakefield continually massaged the boy. Ed Ramsier of Rittman, Ohio, (lower middle photo) found the boy (lower left photo) in the water and with help from fellow visitor, Paul Emch, also of Rittman, (lower right photo) brought him to shore.

Work For 4 Hours To Revive Lad; Could Swim Little

LAKEFIELD—(ENS)—While dozens of children played about him in the water, nine-year-old Robert King drowned in the Otonabee River at the junior section of the public bathing beach about 2:45 p.m. Thursday. Attempts to rescue him were hampered by the fact that the water had been made murky with sand placed in the area earlier in the day preparatory to commencement of supervision and swimming instruction today. His body was discovered about three minutes after he went under by Ed Ramsier, a visitor from Rittman, Ohio, but when he was brought to shore the boy's pulse had ceased. In spite of this, artificial respiration was applied for four hours while the lad's limbs were massaged and a resuscitator, hot water bottles and an electric blnaket were used in a vain attempt to stimulate any possible spark of life.

The drowning occurred in the section of the river marked off with log booms for junior swimmers and beginners by the Lakefield branch of the Red Cross Society and the village recreation committee. Mrs. A. R. Gariepy, pool supervisor, said Robert went under in about four feet of water, directly in front of the office door of the bathing house

BROUGHT TO REGISTER

Shortly before the accident, the boy's mother, Mrs. Charles King, had brought him and his two younger brothers, Wayne, 7, and Gary, 5, to register for swimming classes. The beach was not under supervision at the time because the instructor, John Sparling, and the supervisor, Mrs. Gariepy, were both busy in the office of the bathing house registering scores of children for classes which are to begin today.

Living Costs Increased During May

Say Sudden Change Caused By Higher Prices Of Foodstuffs

OTTAWA — (CP) — Living costs rose during May—after a steady half-year of declines—with the consumer price index increasing by one-half an index point to 114.9 from 114.4, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The sudden change in the index—based on 1949 prices equalling 100—was caused mostly by higher prices of foodstuffs. Price boosts for fresh and cured pork, fresh fruits and vegetables and smaller increases for bread and eggs outweighed declines for butter, canned fruits and vegetables. Rents also climbed.

The old cost-of-living index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, also increased, rising by 1.2 points to 184.8 from 183.6 in April. This was the first increase in this yardstick after a continuous three-month decline.

BIGGEST INCREASE

It was the biggest increase in the consumer price index since a jump of four-fifths of a point in October, 1951. The yardstick's peak was 118.2 in December, 1951. High for the old cost-of-living index was 191.5, also in December, 1951.

With food costs rising during May, the food sub-group in the new index rose by 1.3 points to 111.4 from 110.1. It was the first increase in this column since October, 1952. The peak was 122.5 in November, 1951.

The shelter group, which includes rent and home-ownership costs, rose to a new high of 123.6 from 122.9, following increases in rent.

Other sub-groups were unchanged. The clothing group stood at 110.1; household operations at 116.6; and the other commodities and services column at 115.1.

On the wholesale side, industrial prices showed some weakness during June. The index for industrial materials prices, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, eased to 232.7 on June 19 from 234.2 on May 29. The Canadian farm products index dropped to 217.9 from 220.9.

Price losses were noted for scrap steel, raw rubber, beef hides, tin, domestic raw wool, sisal, steers and raw cotton. These outweighed increases for crude petroleum, white lead, wheat, iron ore, sulphite pulp and copper.

Bigger And Better

HAMILTON—(CP) — Reports of approaching thunderstorms snowballed Thursday into rumors of tornadoes in the Hamilton and Burlington districts and even doctors were put on the alert. However, the rains failed to show up. With each telling of the story, the speed of winds increased and by early evening there were suggestions they might be as high as 70 miles an hour.

Report PoWs Would Like To Surrender

By ROBERT GIBSON

SEOUL (AP)—Many of the 27,000 anti-Communist North Korean prisoners who escaped from Allied stockades would gladly return now if assured there would be no reprisals, an official source said today.

Others would return to prison only on direct orders from President Syngman Rhee.

A spokesman who cannot be named said the prisoners who were promised food, clothing and help by the South Korean government are finding it hard to live and work in the wrecked South Korean economy

Some have been enlisted in the Republic of Korea Army and thousands appear to be headed for army duty, even against their will.

Trucks carried several hundred anti-Communist former war prisoners to the South Korea army replacement depot for the third straight day today.

NO STATEMENT

The defence ministry refused to make any statement concerning the former prisoners and the total number that have gone into the army was not disclosed.

Few if any of the escaped prisoners are expected to return to UN prison camps.

South Korean officials have said freely that the UN command never will get back the prisoners whose release has stymied an armistice in the Korean war.

Most officials agree that even prisoners who want to return would not do so unless assured by the South Korean government that no reprisals will be taken after their eventual legal release.

As far as is known, little or no employment has been given to North Koreans taking refuge in the cities. They seem to be awaiting transfer to an outlying district for work on farms or a call from the service.

The only attempts by the UN command to retrieve the North Koreans has been in radio broadcasts appealing for voluntary surrender to prison camp authorities.

RESULTS POOR

Results have been poor. Fewer than 1,000 North Koreans have been re-taken, and most of these came back within the first 12 hours of their exchange.

All of the escaped prisoners have new identification cards, making it possible for them to show they are bonafide citizens of South Korea.

American intelligence agents are believed to have located many of the escaped North Koreans. But official sources say it is unlikely an attempt will be made to recapture them since this would challenge the Korean government's threat to protect the prisoners with force if necessary.

Reds Send Tanks Quell Poles

Armor From Berlin Ordered To Deal With New Outbreaks

BERLIN—(Reuters) Northwest German radio said today that Russian soldiers have clashed with Polish demonstrators in the areas adjoining the East German Border.

The report said demonstrators had wrecked a movie theatre showing a Russian picture. At Kuestrin, it added, clashes followed a demonstration aimed at ousting Russian occupation troops.

The United States high commission newspaper in Germany, Neue Zeitung, said it was believed that Soviet tanks, withdrawn from East Berlin, had headed for the border area.

German officials said the Russians had pulled their last tanks from the eastern sector of Berlin last Wednesday. The tanks were sent in on June 17 to quell anti-Communist rioters.

Western Allied authorities confirmed that the tank unit was withdrawn "in a northeasterly direction" in the early hours of Thursday, but there was no official confirmation that the tanks had gone to Poland.

The Neue Zeitung said Polish underground fighters reported a 900-yard wide strip has been cleared along the entire Polish-Russian frontier, and this area is patrolled day and night by Russian troops with bloodhounds.

These reports bolstered rumors which have been leaking into West Berlin for days that there is considerable unrest in Poland.

One West Berlin newspaper said Polish anti-Communist mobs clashed with Soviet troops in widespread disorders on the Oder-Niesse frontier soon after the East German uprising.

About 100 tanks were reported to have left East Berlin June 25 and since then armored vehicles of every description and Russian soldiers have been withdrawing in organized fashion each night.

Rhee Stubbornly Refuses To Yield Inch

SEOUL (AP) — Korean truce talks were stalemated today as President Syngman Rhee clung stubbornly to his demand for a unified Korea and said he "will never abandon the struggle halfway."

In a plea recorded by CBS, Rhee called on the United States to back him, and promised that his people "will keep fighting and dying" in the battle against communism.

"The Korean people will never swerve from the original objective of our common cause," he said. "We cannot afford to rest or halt until we consummate the one democratic world."

Rhee's plea came after a 65-minute morning meeting with U. S. envoy Walter S. Robertson—their seventh secret session.

REJECTS DEMAND

A high source said Robertson rejected Rhee's demand for more war if a post-armistice political conference doesn't agree within 90 days to unify Korea.

After the conference Robertson told newspapermen:

"Our discussions are continuing. I expect to see President Rhee again."

No time has been set for the next session.

Even if Rhee and Robertson reach agreement, the UN must get the Communists to sign the truce.

The Reds apparently were ready until Rhee freed 27,000 anti-Red Korean war prisoners last month. Since then, they have balked.

Germans Reverse Plan Will Pay France

BONN (AP)—The West German Parliament reversed itself today and agreed to repay France for post-war economic aid. The decision partly made up for a double blow at French-German relations Thursday when deputies rejected the debt settlement and demanded return of the Saar.

With Chancellor Konrad Adenauer whipping his supporters into line, the Bundestag (lower house) voted 190 to 147 to approve the section of the London debts agreement providing for repayment of $11,840,000 in economic aid given by the French to their occupation zone of Germany between 1945 and 1948.

While Adenauer was out of town electioneering, the Bundestag Thursday had voted 148 to 135 against repaying the French after deputies accused them of "exploiting" and "plundering" their zone. The lawmakers approved the rest of the London agreement, however. By it West Germany promised to pay back a total of $3,270,000,000 in debts piled up since the First World War to 18 other countries. Canada's share is about $1,725,000 with about 300 Canadians involved.

Cool Air Sweeps Into Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—A rush of cool dry air swept into Ontario Thursday night and brought welcome relief from the hot wet weather of the last few days.

Originally forecast as a series of thunderstorms, the cool air front which developed in northwestern Ontario moved south ahead of schedule and brought clearing instead of darkening skies to the southern half of the province.

Sunny skies and low humidity were forecast throughout most of Southern Ontario today and Saturday, although a new development over northern Manitoba is expected to move into northwestern Ontario tonight, causing increasing cloudiness and a threat of showers over that area Saturday.

Queen Travels Under Guard

BELFAST (AP) — The Queen toured the heart of Northern Ireland today under heavy guard.

Explosive experts checked bridges between Belfast and Londonderry along the 90-mile route the Royal train passed. Security measures were strengthened after anti-royalists damaged a bridge with a time bomb Thursday near the Irish republic border. This incident was regarded as a protest against the partition of Ireland rather than a direct attack on the young Queen. The bridge was miles from the Royal party's route.

Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh got a friendly reception in the six counties which still owe allegiance to the British crown. The Queen was smiling and calm making the rounds of the countryside on the third—and last—day of her Coronation tour here.

A pilot train preceded the Royal party. Troops and police were posted every few hundred yards. The Queen gave no indication of taking notice of—or being disturbed by—the unusual precautions to prevent possible demonstrations by extreme nationalists living in Northern Ireland.

Prime Minister Has Informal Chats With Fishermen In Newfoundland

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent campaigned along 100 miles of Newfoundland's rocky seacoast Thursday, talking informally with fishermen and their families in a half-dozen tiny settlements.

He then returned to the capital of St. Jonn's for two night meetings, and at one answered a question that political Canada has been wondering about for weeks:

How did John W. (Jack) Pickersgill, clerk of the privy council in the civil service, come to be chosen as secretary of state and representative in the federal cabinet of Newfoundland?

Premier Smallwood picked him, he said. Mr. Smallwood made the recommendation because of Mr. Pickersgill's interest in Newfoundland affairs, particularly for his guiding hand in drafting the Canada - Newfoundland Confederation pact of 1949.

The 47-year-old state secretary is running for the Commons in the Newfoundland riding of Bonavista-Twillingate.

The Prime Minister, who flies to Chatham, N.B., today on his way to his summer home in Quebec before heading West, was accompanied by Mr. Smallwood and Mr. Pickersgill during his seven-hour tour of the southeast coast of the Avalon peninsula.

DECKED IN FLAGS

Outpost settlements decked out in flags and bunting greeted the mile-long cavalcade of automobiles as it wound over the narrow, precipitous roads, and Mr. St. Laurent laid some emphasis on family allowances, a topic evidently close to the hearts of the relatively poor outporters.

Several children questioned at the microphone by Premier Smallwood were able to answer to the cent how much their families draw in baby bonuses. Mr. St. Laurent also said it was the Liberal government who launched unemployment insurance, floor prices for producers, and cheap insurance on fishing boats and gear passed at the last session of Parliament.

He said the government is trying to expand Canadian trade for the benefit of producers. But he added that he would not make any promise except that of trying to give good government.

STUDIES INDUSTRY

"Your fishermen husbands do not promise a catch when they go out to fish. Well, neither will we, but if there are any fish to be had we will bring them." He said one of the main purposes of his trip through the area was to learn more about the fishing industry and its people.

He travelled in an open convertible, sometimes wearing a fedora under a blazing sun, and at lunch stopped at the outskirts of Calvert village, where he sat on a soapbox to eat a salad while about 100 in the cavalcade joined in the informal meal of sandwiches and soft drinks handed out from the back of a truck.

He later told a large meeting in St. John's that the federal government is launching a big-scale drive to enlarge world markets for Canadian fish. He was referring to the fisheries of both the Atlantic provinces and West Coast.

He said it was not an "insuperable task" to put the fisheries in a position where they can compete outside Canada at world prices, but added that the federal and provincial governments must be prepared to take vigorous action to put it on a basis where its products could be sold profitably on world markets.

Donate $500,000 For War Children

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada today contributed another $500,000 for war-destitute children, the external affairs department announced.

The department said the Canadian government has contributed $8,475,000 to the United Nations international children's emergency fund since it was set up in 1947 to help children of war-devastated countries. Voluntary contributions from Canadians have reached almost $1,500,000.

More than 60,000,000 children in 184 countries have received help from UNICEF.

Speckled Trout Weighs 7¼ Lbs.

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Oldfield of nearby Bolton recently caught a speckled trout in Thor lake, north of Sudbury, which may set a Canadian record for 1953.

The fish, caught with a small red-eye wiggler, weighed 7¼ pounds when weighed by officials of the Ontario department of lands and forests at Capreol, and that was after it had been gutted and gilled. Oldfield estimates it weighed 8½ pounds when caught.

The world record for speckled trout was set in 1915 when Dr. D. Cooke of Fort William pulled one weighing 14½ pounds from the Nipigon river. Last year's largest in Ontario weighed eight pounds, nine ounces. It was caught by Wilfred Laine of Port Arthur in the Nipigon.

'Dead' 8 Years Man Returns

EAST LOFTUS, England (AP)—Herbert Armsby is the first name on the village memorial to its dead of the Second World War.

But Thursday, more than eight years after he was posted as missing in France, 28-year-old Armsby came home.

Armsby said he lost his memory after being treated in a hospital at Ghent, Belgium, in February, 1945. He was taken in by a Belgian family and had been living there ever since.

He said he recovered his memory earlier this year, but feared to return to England because he would be classed as a deserter by the army.

However, Armsby said he learned a few days ago that the Queen had declared a Coronation year amnesty for deserters and decided to come home.

Hero's Welcome Given Everest Climbers

LONDON (Reuters)—The conquerors of Mount Everest came home to a hero's welcome today. Sir Edmund Hillary stepped off an airliner with his Sherpa guide Tenzing to a ringing cheer from crowds gathered at the airport.

Tenzing and his wife and two young daughters accompanied Hillary and other members of the expedition to Britain to share in the triumphant reception.

Representatives of Britain, India, New Zealand, and Nepal greeted the smiling party.

The members of the Everest expedition settled for good—they hope—the raging controversy of which one got there first.

Hillary and Tenzing agreed to share the honors.

Col. John Hunt, leader of the expedition explained it this way: "You get to the top of a mountain only as a result of climbing with other people on a rope. It is not a matter of who is first, second or last on the rope. Each has a particular job to do and one is to help others."

Drew Says Hard Tax Law Hampers Industrial Growth

CALGARY—(CP)— Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, says the federal government's income tax laws are hampering the expansion of Canadian industry. He told an election meeting here Thursday night that the laws are stifling new industries by limiting income tax deductions for research expenditure to five per cent. Most other countries which encouraged research permitted all legitimate research costs as income tax deduction.

"Certainly, by every device within our power we should encourage research here in Canada. Our tax laws are hitting at expansion of new industries by Canadians themselves with our own methods and with our own capital when we limit the amount that can be spent on research in this way."

In his speech, which was also broadcast over a number of Alberta radio stations, Mr. Drew also suggested Prime Minister St. Laurent has "made it clear" the Liberal government intends to keep "centralized control over the tax dollar."

NEVER BE CHANGED

Quoting the prime minister as saying that "any reallocation of taxing powers would have to be made by some other government than his," Mr. Drew said this meant that "the burden fixed on the local taxpayer by this government will never be released."

The Progressive Conservatives would propose an immediate federal-provincial tax conference to revise the entire taxation system and "substantially" reduce taxes on real estate for education, health and other essential services.

Mr. Drew said he favors an all-Canadian route to carry Alberta's natural gas to Eastern Canada. This route would go north of the Great Lakes, rather than south of the Lakes through the United States.

While the cost of the Canadian route would be $23,000,000 more than that of an American pipeline, the assurance of a continued supply to eastern markets had a "very large dollar value" and the economic advantage of capital expenditure in Canada. Also the route would benefit Northern Ontario and Quebec mining areas. It had been estimated the all-Canadian route would cost $296,000,000.

Canada would be well advised to give first responsibility to the "legitimate self-interest" of her people.

Seixas Captures Men's Singles Title

WIMBLEDON (CP)—Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, top-seeded American, won the all-England men's singles title at Wimbledon today, defeating Kurt Nielsen of Denmark in straight sets 9-7, 6-3, 6-4.

This was the sixth Wimbledon victory for an American player in the last seven years.

The 29-year-old Seixas, captain of the 1952 U. S. Davis Cup team, had never before won a major tennis title. He came close in 1951, but lost in the American finals at Forest Hills, N. Y., to Frank Sedgman of Australia.

Sedgman won the championship last year, defeating Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt, but the Australian star turned professional last winter after helping his country repel the American Davis Cup squad.

Massed Bands To Present Sunday Concert

The massed bands of the Royal Canadian Regiment, the First Canadian Infantry Battalion and the Royal Canadian Signals will present the weekly Sunday night band concert this week at Nicholls Oval. More than 100 bandsmen will take part in the concert.

Conducting the concert will be Lt. William A. Armstrong and WO 1 P. R. Graham, both of the RCR band; Capt. James Gayfer and WO 1 C. A. W. Adams, FCIB band; Lt. Bernie J. Lyons and Band Staff Sergeant R. Biolcati. Narrator will be former Peterborough dance band leader Band Sergeant Del Crary, now with the Royal Canadian Signals band.

FORMED IN 1883

The history of the RCR's band, now stationed at Petawawa, dates back to the formations of the regiment in 1883. It recently returned from a three-month tour with the 25th Infantry Brigade in Korea then took part in the Coronation ceremonies in Ottawa.

The Battalion's band was formed only two years ago during Exercise Panda, later going to Germany with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade. It was the first Canadian Army band to be stationed overseas in peacetime.

The Royal Canadian Signals Band is the youngest, being formed in January, 1952. Since then it has been fulfilling engagements in the Eastern Ontario area, especially at the Royal Military College and most recently at the Coronation ceremonies in Ottawa.

Sunday's program, which begins at 8.30 p.m., includes:

Brings Message From Queen

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabeth today brought a personal message to Britain's central African territories from the Queen.

The Queen Mother read the message at the opening of the Cecil Rhodes centenary celebrations here. It said, "I have such happy memories of my visit to Southern Rhodesia in 1947 that it gave me real pleasure to become the patron of this exhibition which my mother is to open today."

The message wished "continued prosperity" to the three territories of Southern Rhodesia, Nyasaland and Northern Rhodesia, which are scheduled to be united into one country.

Rhodesian farms families and Africans huddled in blankets all night near the Bulawayo station to see the Queen Mother and Princess Margaret arrive for the four-day celebrations.

Indo-China Promised Greater Independence

PARIS (AP)—Premier Joseph Laniel today handed notes to the representatives of the three Associated states of Indo-China promising them a greater degree of independence within the French Union.

At the same time, the government announced the appointment of a veteran diplomat, Maurice Dejean, ambassador to japan, as commissioner-general of Indo-China.

The two moves were a reply to growing unrest in the three Indo-Chinese states, Cambodia, Laos, and Viet Nam, which became a part of the French Union in 1949.

The youthful king of Cambodia, Norodom Sihanouk, quit his country in a brief but dramatic self-exile three weeks ago to underline his demands for complete Cambodian independence.

demanding the almost-impossible recapture of all the prisoners and positive assurance of UN control over South Korea.

The UN answered the Red demands Monday and called for a quick signing of the present armistice, but there has been no official Red reply, nor any indication when they would. Unofficially, North Korea has expressed displeasure with the UN answer.

In more than a week of U. S.-South Korean talks, Rhee has refused to temper his demand for a guaranteed unification of North and South Korea. The U. S. has offered to work for unification by peaceful means, but won't promise to go back to war if the political conference doesn't agree within 90 days, a high source said.

Well-informed observers predicted Robertson will start his homeward flight to Washington within a few days—successful or not. The UN has indicated it will go ahead with an armistice despite any holdout by Rhee.

URGES DECISION

In New Delhi, close political associates said Prime Minister Nehru may urge the U. S. to act "more decisively" unless Rhee comes into line by Monday.

An authoritative source stressed that Rhee is holding out for an American pledge that U. S. forces will bear arms again in Korea if the political conference fails to solve his nation's problems within 90 days.

Some Washington quarters have voiced the belief that President Rhee will accept the armistice in a showdown once he feels he has gained all the pledges possible in American military and economic aid and the firmest assurances for a mutual defence pact between the United States and his country.

Named CCF Candidate

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Hugh T. Burtch, president of the CCF club of Lambton West, was nominated Thursday CCF candidate to contest the riding in the forthcoming federal election.

Fourth Casualty In Churchill Cabinet

LONDON (Reuters) — Duncan Sandys, minister of supply and son-in-law of Prime Minister Churchill, entered a London hospital Thursday night for a minor hand operation

Sandys, 45, is the fourth casualty in the ranks of Churchill's cabinet.

Churchill himself is restin under doctors' orders; Anthony Eden, foreign secretary, is convalescing after an operation in Boston, Mass.; Harold MacMillan, minister of housing and local government, goes into hospital next Monday for a medical check and possibly an operation

Sandys hopes to be back at his office by Monday. He was earlier reported to be suffering with foot trouble, the result of a war injury, but it has been decided to postpone this operation indefinitely.

Seeks To Represent Woollens Employees

The Ontario Labor Relations Board Thursday heard an application by the Textile Workers Union of America (CIO-CCL) to be the bargaining agents for 188 production workers at the Dominion Woollens and Worsteds plant. Judgment was reserved.

Dick Hines, TWUA representative, said that the union had filed 105 cards of signed and paid-up members with the OLRB.

If the ORLB find that 45 per cent of the eligible bargaining unit are bona fide they will order a vote at the plant.

Chinese Reds Retake Crest

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese Reds attacking behind an artillery barrage recaptured Lookout mountain on the east-central front tonight 12 hours after the South Koreans had seized it.

About 450 Communists swept over the crest of the 1,600-foot mountain, drove the South Koreans down the steep southern slopes and held control of the entire mountain, which commands a network of roads supplying the Allied front.

South Koreans who had fought to the summit earlier in the day had found the bodies of three Chinese lashed together with wire. Apparently the Chinese had wowed not to fall back, or had been tied together to keep them from retreating.

The South Koreans were consolidating taeir hard-won positions when the Communists opened up with a terrific barrage.

BEGIN INFILTRATION

The Chinese began to infiltrate the mountain position about 6 p.m. just before the barrage lifted, and the Republic of Korea 3rd division pulled back after darkness fell.

The retreat from Lookout mountain was a bitter one for the South Koreans, who have fought up and down its slopes for a week.

A three-prong South Korean attack launched before dawn ousted a Chinese battalion of about 750 men from three main positions on the ridge which forms Lookout mountain, the 8th army said.

The RoKs and Communists have been locked in bitter see-saw fighting for a week in the pocket formed by the Pukhan and Kumsong rivers on the east-central front.

Snow Cone Perfect Summit On Mt. Everest, Hillary Describes Climb

By SIR EDMUND HILLARY

KATMANDU, Nepal—(Reuters)—The story of our final ascent really begins on the morning of May 28 after a rough night on the south col. Tenzing and I made our way up the walls of the great basin to the southeast ridge. As we toiled forward we came to the tattered remains of the camp set up by the Swiss expedition last year when Raymond Lambert and Tenzing reached 28,215 feet. We slowly made our way up, looking for a camp site. Your mental processes at this height are not very good even with oxygen and we were getting worried.

The Tenzing suggested turning leftwards, recalling a possible site he has seen while with Lambert. We finally reached the place—a slope of 30 degrees. It was good compared with the steep path we traversed on the way up. The site was 27,900 feet above sea level. For two hours we hacked away at snow and ice and frozen rock to make a platform for our tent.

Here we spent the night, half-sitting to brace the tent against the tearing winds.

HAD FINE WEATHER

Sun came with the morning, giving us fine weather for our assault. At 6:30 we strapped on our oxygen equipment and goggles and started along the steep narrow ridge winding upwards.

The last 400 feet of the south summit were very steep. Attached by rope, we took turns to rest while the other went ahead cutting steps.

At last, we stood on top of the south peak. On one side it dropped away at a slope of 40 degrees. On the right great cornices of snow overhung a drop of thousands of feet.

We kept going steadily until we came to a 40-foot smooth-faced rock (about 300 feet off the summit).

It had no footholds and we thought we would never get up it. But on the right side we found a space filled with packed snow. Tenzing drove the shaft of his ice-ax into it and anchored me to it.

By wedging myself into the gap, I managed to force myself up and haul Tenzing after it. This last effort took us to the top of the world.

FIRM SNOW CONE

It was almost a surprise to see the top—a firm snow cone forming a perfect summit with room for several persons to stand. It was 11:30, five hours after we had set out from our final camp.

Tenzing threw his arms around me and we embraced happily.

I took photographs of him holding the flags of the United Nations, Britain, Nepal and India.

I scouted around for signs of George Mallory and Andrew Irvine to see if they had reached the top in 1924. (The two British climbers vanished into the mist near the summit.) There was nothing to be seen of them.

Tenzing and I sat and stared at the country below. We could see over the jumbled mass of Himalayan snow peaks.

We drank sweetened lemonade and nibbled mint cake as we sat there picking out places like the Shekar Dzong and Rongbuk glaciers in Tibet.

By now our oxygen was running short and finally after about 20 minutes we retraced our steps.

Plane Down In Bering Sea

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—A twin-engined navy patrol seaplane with 12 men aboard went down today in the Bering Sea near Adak in the Aleutian islands. Hours later, search planes sighted only an oil slick and floating debris.

A naval spokesman said the plane's pilot radioed at 8:50 a. m. (2:50 a. m. EDT) that one engine had failed and that he was attempting an open-sea landing in heavy fog and a 50-foot ceiling. The pilot gave his position as about 30 miles northeast of Adak and 1,000 miles southwest of here.

The navy said the plane, a Martin Mariner, was on routine patrol.

A friend of Robert, 10-year-old Carl Hudson was playing on a section of the log boom while Robert was playing in the water some feet away. Carl heard another boy ask Robert if he could swim to the logs and he said he would try. A few seconds later, Robert sank beneath the surface, Carl said.

A few minutes before the accident, Robert was registered for the junior class in swimming instruction, which indicated that he could swim a little bit. To win a junior Red Cross certificate entails swimming 30 yards.

'He wasn't an awfully good swimmer but he could swim a few strokes," Carl Hudson said.

MOTHER'S VIGIL

Mrs. King kept vigil the whole time that attempts were being made to revive her son. She was joined later by her husband, who is employed by the Peterborough Canoe Co. and was unaware of the accident until he returned from working in the city.

Mrs. King thought her son may have gone under due to an injury to his knee which he suffered when he fell off a bicycle which his parents had bought for him just last week.

She ruled out the possibility of his having suffered a cramp because, known that the children would be going swimming, she had given them an early lunch at 11:30 a.m.

When the accident occurred, someone shouted into the office of the bathing house that the lad had gone down. Immediately, the instructor, John Sparling, the supervisor, Mrs. Gariepy and the Anglican rector's wife, Mrs. J. L. Delaney rushed to the water and began diving for him.

"The water was so murky it made it very difficult to see," said Mrs. Delaney, who had brought her own three children to the beach to register for swimming classes.

Ed Ramsier and his friend Paul Emch, also from Pittman, Ohio, were just getting ready to go water skiing. They were standing near the north-east corner of George Davey's boat livery adjacent to the bathing area.

"My wife (Irene) heard a couple of kids say someone had gone under," Mr. Emch said. "We had our bathing suits on so we went around. Ed went in right away and found him in seven feet of water. Ed hollered to me and I went out and helped bring him in."

Mr. Ramsier said Mrs. Gariepy pointed out into the water. He waded out and felt the body with his feet just at the point where he began to tread water, which he estimated at between six and seven feet. He didn't think the body was on the bottom of the river.

Mr. Emch said when they brought the body in they were met by Dr. L. O. Bailey and they laid the boy on the beach where artificial respiration was begun with Mr. Emch assisting the doctor and Mr. Sparling. Meanwhile, the village fire department had been called and Archie Stewart and Bernard Johnston set the resuscitator in operation.

Hour by hour the attempt continued in a drizzle of rain which later increased to a steady shower with only a beach umbrella to shield rescue workers. The Holger-Neilsen method of artificial respiration was used with a number of men spelling off, including some visitors to Lakefield. One of them, a man from Toronto, said: "I'm just Mr. Kennedy."

Continual massaging of the body was performed by Mrs. Robert McCracken, of Lakefield, and Mrs. Vincent Killoran, of Sandusky, Ohio.

It was the first drowning in Lakefield in a number of years

"It's the first we've had here since I can remember," said George Davey, who has operated his boat livery there for several years. "Between swimming lessons and supervision there has been no trouble here of that kind."

Mr. Davey, who was standing on the beach when the accident occurred, was active all afternoon, bringing water for the hot water bottles and connecting the electric blanket to an outlet in his boat livery about 75 yards away.

Before the supply of oxygen ran out, provincial police brought extra oxygen from Peterborough. Efforts to revive Robert were discontinued at 6.30 p.m. when the body was taken to the Anderson funeral home.

He was born in Lakefield, son of Charles Edward King and the former Florence Marie Pilon. He attended Lakefield Public School and was a member of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church and the Lakefield Wolf Cub Pack.

The body is resting at the Anderson funeral home, Lakefield, and the funeral service will be 2.30 p.m. Saturday in St. John the Baptist Church with the Rev. L. J. Delaney of St. John the Baptist Church officiating. Burial will be in Lakefield cemetery.

FLOOD RESCUE—In Northern Kyushu, Japan, a U.S. helicopter (upper centre) rescues a victim from the roof of a house. The man was stranded there by what has been called the worst floods to hit Japan in modern history. The flood left 492 people dead and another million people homeless. The flood damage will take five years to repair, officials estimated.

Out At The Kawartha

Another week has gone by and during this time a considerable number of competition matches have been played.

Kawartha Cup—Those successful in the first round: R. Dorsey, C. Corbett, W. Dunford. The deadline for this round is well in the past and we note that the boys in the second are fighting it out to get in the third. The winners this week to date are: R. Bergey, R. Ried, R. Lawes, R. Mounce, L. Foster, P. Thomas.

President's Cup—The following have moved into the second round; J. Raine, W. Durant, D. Hough, H. Correll, H. Woodcox.

Men's Two-Ball—Some of the liveliest matches of the week have been played in this competition. Those coming out on top are the following teams: M. Vermette and J. Inglis; J. McCaig and A. Rhodes; R. Dorsey and D. Moser; R. Shadgett and H. Woodcox; G. Myles and C. Reynolds; T. Giardino and L. Longo; G. Burns and W. Moore; D. Chamberlain and J. Lake; R. Reed and F. Dunfield; L. Ackford and I. MacGillivray; P. Peel and A. Menzies moved into the third round in the same competition.

McGregor Cup—This competition, which takes in the boys with handicaps of 17 to 25, has brought forth a good response in the number of entries. Winners in the first round were: C. Heath, M. Vermette, A. Young, R. Welch and D. Chamberlain; and into the third round well on schedule were W. Bunker and V. Rawlence.

Junior Cup—Some very fine young golfers are entered in this play. During the week two matches have been played. W. Stewart came out on top over D. Langhorne and T. Collins downed R. Jameson.

Some club news in brief. First, the Business Girls have again this year invited the male golfers to join them in a mixed two-ball to be played on Thursday, July 9. Men golfers are asked to add their names to the list already started.

Members and their guests are reminded that another of the Saturday night dances is to be held this Saturday at 9 p.m.

Also, the "Out At the Kawartha" radio program will be heard again this Saturday, at 6.15 p.m.

Also, plus also, just in case the men golfers think that they alone share the honors of getting the "birdies" on Number 4, we might mention that Barb Siddall sank a very long putt to show the men that it can be done by the ladies, too!

LADIES' SECTION

In the 18-hole players' group the competition was for the total on par three holes; Mrs. H. Woodcox was credited with a point and Mrs. F. Reid won the sterling silver spoon. Mrs. J. Gatfield won a point for low net and Mrs. H. Allison won the golf ball.

The 9-hole players finished their spring trophy event and Mrs. D. Meredith was the winner. Mrs. W. Griffin and Mrs. N. Williamson each won a point in the putting competition, with Mrs. W. Wedlock winning the silver spoon and Mrs. Don Meredith the golf ball.

BUSINESS GIRLS

Much activity takes place in the next week as far as the BGs are concerned. On Tuesday the Kawartha girls will be guests of the Peterborough BGs, and on Thursday the Kawartha BGs are entertaining the Kawartha men golfers in a mixed two-ball.

Matches are well under way now and it is hoped that they can be kept up to date for vacations will enter into the routine of the next few weeks and this delays the competitions.

Isobel Shearer won the spoon for low putts and Roma Brindle for low net.

The Spring Trophy competition will be played this weekend.

Palace Officials Silent About Posting

LONDON (Reuters) — Buckingham Palace officials today were silent about Group Capt. Townsend, royal equerry whose surprise posting out of the country has recalled earlier talk associating him romantically with Princess Margaret.

"We cannot say anything about the whys and wherefores of this case," said Cmdr. Richard Colville, palace press secretary.

The air ministry Thursday announced that the good-looking, 38-year-old air ace, long a friend of the princess, had been appointed air attache at the British embassy in Brussels.

He leaves for the new job July 15, the day before Princess Margaret returns with her mother from a royal visit to Southern Rhodesia.

Colville said he could not reveal whether Townsend had asked for the Brussels post or been advised to take it.

DON'T KNOW

Air ministry officials, asked the same question, said: "We don't know." But they added that, as a regular air force officer, the group captain "may have decided" the path to promotion would be too slow if he stayed at the palace—where he has been for nine years.

The Brussels post is an important one, they added, because Belgium is a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Palace officials may take the view that, though the transfer was bound to provide a momentary sensation the rumor-mongering will quickly end.

Rumor about the affair cites the fact that Townsend divorced his wife and divorce is taboo in royal circles.

DIVORCED WIFE

He divorced his wife, formerly Rosemary Pawle, last year after a marriage lasting 11 years. They had two children, one of them a godson of the late King George VI. The wife has since married the co-respondent, John de Laszlo, son of a famous portrait painter.

Despite the divorce Townsend has always been a good friend of the Royal Family. For some time he has been acting comptroller (manager) of the Queen Mother's household and had been tipped to get the job permanently.

As acting comptroller he should have gone to Southern Rhodesia with the Queen Mother and 22-year-old Margaret. But instead he was posted to accompany the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh on their state visit to Northern Ireland. Lord Plunkett, equerry in waiting to the Queen, went on the Rhodesian trip.

Reallocation Of Tax Power Returns In Election Drive

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The question of reallocating tax powers between federal and provincial governments returned to the election campaign scene Thursday night. Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, replied in Calgary to Prime Minister St. Laurent's statement on the question, made earlier this week in the Maritimes. Mr. Drew said Mr. St. Laurent "made it clear that he intended to maintain the centralized control over the tax dollar which was established as a war emergency." He quoted Mr. St. Laurent as saying that any reallocation of taxing powers would have to be made by some other government than his.

Meanwhile, Mr. St. Laurent, campaigning in Newfoundland, said the federal government is launching a drive to enlarge world markets for Canadian fish. It was not an insuperable task to put fisheries in a position to compete on world markets.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government has in mind the Atlantic and Pacific provinces' fisheries. In the four eastern provinces, fisheries had not kept pace with modern progress.

MUST TAKE ACTION

Federal and provincial governments must be ready to take vigorous action to put the fisheries on a competitive basis in world markets. That would be a Liberal government's main activity on Newfoundland's behalf in the next few years.

Mr. St. Laurent made several speeches in St. John's and the surrounding district, accompanied by Premier Smallwood and John W. Pickersgill, former clerk of the Privy Council who became secretary of state and is running in Newfoundland's Bonavista - Twillingate riding.

In Edmonton, Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said in a speech at a nominating convention that a Social Credit government would liquidate the public debt of Canada which cost $450,000,000 yearly in interest charges.

A Social Credit government did that with Alberta's debt and the same could be done in other provinces.

SEES DESPERATION

He said people eventually will turn to Social Credit "in sheer desperation because they can't have any hope in policies which bring depressions."

He charged that a "conspiracy" of the press kept people in other provinces from knowing what was happening in Alberta. The press printed criticism "but not truth."

In Calgary, Mr. Drew promised that a Progressive Conservative government would call an immediate federal-provincial tax conference. It would revise the taxation system and "substantially" reduce taxes on real estate for education, health and other services.

The system of federal-provincial tax agreements begun in 1943 must be replaced by a new agreement to "reallocate taxes, place the provinces in a better financial position and take the crushing burden of local taxes off the homes and real estate property."

NEED FULL AGREEMENT

Full agreement was needed on taxes, the constitutional position of federal and provincial governments and on the method of amending the constitution. The provinces received less and less from the present agreements "as the federal government grabs more and more of the tax dollars."

"That makes the clear definition of our constitution and our constitutional procedure a matter of vital and urgent importance."

In Edmonton, Mines Minister Prudham said in a broadcast address that Canada's future must not be entrusted to "splinter" groups that are strictly provincial or regional in character.

He said the Liberals are the only party with any prospect of getting support from all provinces, the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The government should be re-elected because it balanced the budget, expanded trade and reduced taxes.

May Elect Gov't Before Polls Close In West

OTTAWA (CP)—A new federal government may be elected Aug. 10 before the polls close on the Prairies and British Columbia.

However, the people in those provinces won't know the result until their polls close.

A provision in the Federal Election Act prohibits the publication or broadcast of election returns in any province before the polls are closed. This means that returns, speeding over Canadian Press coast-to-coast leased wires election night will be held unpublished in newspaper offices for varying times.

Canada has seven time zones and the Election Act provision was enacted to prevent returns from the East influencing the vote in the West, where the polls close later.

FIRST TO CLOSE

The closing time for all polls will be 6 p.m., local standard time, or 7 p.m., local daylight time. This means that the first polls to close will be those in Newfoundland where the time is 30 minutes ahead of Atlantic time.

Following Newfoundland in closing will be the Maritimes, which are on Atlantic time, Ontario and Quebec on eastern time, Manitoba on central time, Saskatchewan and Alberta on mountain time, British Columbia on Pacific time and the Yukon on Yukon time. Polls in British Columbia will close 4½ hours after those in Newfoundland.

In 1949, The Canadian Press flashed re-election of the Liberal government at 8:16 p.m. EDT, one hour and 44 minutes before polls closed in British Columbia.

The provision forbidding publication of returns in any province before its polls close was written into the Election Act following the 1935 election.

BROADCASTING CURTAILED

Broadcasting, as well as publication, is curtailed by the provision. The CBC will broadcast returns in the East and gradually expand its network westward as the polls close in various parts of the country.

Section 107 of the Elections Act, 1938, reads:

"No person, company or corporation shall, in any province before the hour of closing of the polls of such province, publish the result or purported result of the polling in any electoral district in Canada, whether such publication is by radio broadcast, or by newspaper, news-sheet, poster, bill board, handbill or in any other manner. Any persons contravening the provisions of this section (and in the case of a company or corporation any person responsible for the contravention thereof) is guilty of all illegal practice and an offence against this act."

Says Pickersgill To Succeed St. Laurent

TORONTO — The Liberals, if elected, will hold a convention and select Jack Pickersgill as Prime Minister, George Hees, PC candidate in Broadview riding, told a Barnabas Parish Hall.

Those close to the political scene have known for some time that Mr. St. Laurent plans to retire after the next election, Mr. Hees declared. He said Lester B. Pearson had at first been considered the heir-apparent but the spotlight has shifted to Mr. Pickersgill.

Appointment of Mr. Pickersgill to the cabinet is part of the Liberal strategy of promoting him as the next leader, Mr. Hees said.

"Those close to the scene say that the Prime Minister believes Mr. Pickersgill is the only man with the political know-how to handle the cleaverages within the party and the manoeuvring for position which began when the Prime Minister's decision to retire became known," the speaker said.

Another step in the moving of Mr. Pickersgill to the front ranks, Mr. Hees said, was the announcement that almost all his duties as secretary of state would be divided among other cabinet members, leaving him free to act as the Prime Minister's assistant.

BRIEF TRAINING

"Mr. St. Laurent," Mr. Hees said, "thinks he will be re-elected and wants to train Mr. Pickersgill in the shortest possible time in statesmanship and vote-getting. Mr. Pickersgill has, for all practical purposes, been made assistant Prime Minister so that he will be able to take over the prime ministership without a hitch, if the Liberal party is returned."

Also significant is the fact that Mr. Pickersgill is accompanying Mr. St. Laurent on his cross-country election tour, Mr. Hees declared.

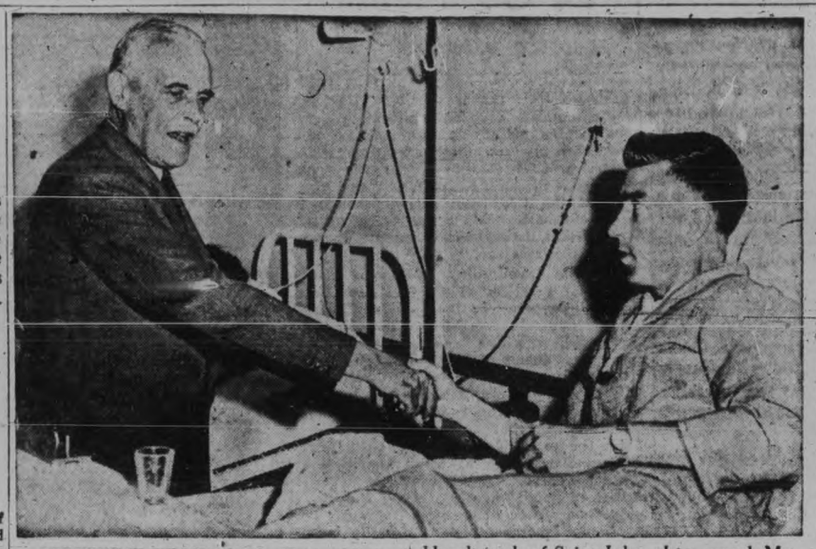
"He will be able to help Mr. St. Laurent and the Prime Minister can introduce his protege to those who will be delegates at the next leadership convention."

Mr. Hees said the Liberal party has always accepted the choice of the outgoing leader.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier designated Mr. King—who designated Mr. St. Laurent. It is important to understand Mr. St. Laurent is already making plans to turn over the leadership to an outsider. Those who would like to support Mr. St. Laurent should first say to themselves, 'Who will I be voting for?'"

Swiss Expedition Fails On Dhaulagiu

NEW DELHI (AP)—A Swiss legation spokesman announced today that an eight-man Swiss expedition had failed in an attempt to climb 26,540-foot Dhaulagiri peak in west-central Nepal.



The team left here last April en route to the Himalayas. It was believed the Swiss made their unsuccessful attempt in early June, shortly after a British-led expedition successfully conquered 29,000-foot Mt. Everest. Their defeat apparently was due to bad weather.

Milk Almost Free

RUSHVILLE, Ill. (AP) — Milk was almost free today in this western Illinois community of some 3,000 residents. The price of a quart of milk Thursday was 4½ cents. There were indications it might be lower today. The normal price is 19 to 20 cents a quart. But the price cuts started a month ago between three milk producing companies with each distributor bettering reductions made by a competitor.

Cobourg Plans Banquet

COBOURG (ENS)—Mayor John D. Burnet has sent forward a letter to J. A. Carroll, president of the World Plowmen's Association, to extend an invitation to the overseas plowmen to attend a civic banquet on Oct. 7 when they come here for the world plowing match in October. The plowmen from overseas will be guests of the mayor and Council and representative citizens at the banquet.

MARITIME CAMPAIGN—Prime Minister St. Laurent visits Lancaster military hospital at Saint John, N.B., beginning the Maritime leg of his federal election campaign. He shakes hands with W. Malcolm Hazelwood, of Saint John. In a speech Mr. St. Laurent defended Liberal policies on federal-provincial division of taxing powers and said he is willing to meet the Progressive Conservatives head-on if they want to make that the chief issue of the election campaign.

Counting Slows To Crawl In B.C. Election

VANCOUVER (CP) — The finished product of British Columbia's election jig-saw puzzle—a number of pieces are still missing—will be a Social Credit majority government.

Needing 25 seats for a working majority, Social Credit today went into the unfinished battle holding 21 and leading in eight others. The runner-up CCF held 13 but appeared to be just about out of ammunition.

Social Credit Thursday elected two members on the fifth count, Alex Matthew on Vancouver Centre ballot A and George Tomlinson in North Vancouver, while CCFer Frank Calder was returned in the far-north Atlin riding.

These three were the only candidates elected throughout the day and the standing at midnight, when returning officers called it a night, showed:

Social Credit 21; CCF 13; Labor 1; Liberals 3 and Progressive Conservatives 1. Leading: Social Credit 8; CCF 1. Total 48.

MORE DELAY

Meanwhile, final results in a majority of the Vancouver seats aren't expected to be known until next week because returning officers are bogged down in recounts.

B. C. voted in its second general election in less than a year June 9. Only first counts under the transferable voting system started Tuesday after a three-week delay to allow for distribution of absentee ballots.

Social Credit formed a minority government last year. When it toppled on the floor of the House after seven months in office the standing was: SC, 19, CCF 18, Lib 6, PC 2, Labor 1 and vacant 2.

The Social Credit victory in North Vancouver brought to four the number of seats the party has gained from the Liberals. Mr. Tomlinson defeated Liberal candidate W. R. McDougall by a majority of 157 votes.

The CCF has lost three to Social Credit, gaining one from the Liberals. The Liberals have gained one from the CCF and one from the Progressive Conservatives.

Restore Value To Dollar If Elected Low Promises

EDMONTON (CP)—Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said Thursday night his party "will put cents back into the Canadian dollar" if it gains power in the Aug. 10 federal election.

Speaking at a nominating convention here before heading into his home riding of Peace River for a week of campaigning, Mr. Low said a Social Credit government, if elected, would eliminate "mismanagement" which had reduced the value of the dollar to 52 cents.

Mr. Low said his party would liquidate the public debt of Canada, which cost $450,000,000 yearly in interest charges. This had been done in Alberta by a Social Credit government and could be done in other provinces.

Mr. Low accused the Liberal government of "consistently robbing" the people who saved money over the years through its policy of "mismanagement." Older persons found $70 a month now was worth only $30 and were forced to accept 92 cents for every dollar invested in some government bonds when they had to liquidate capital.

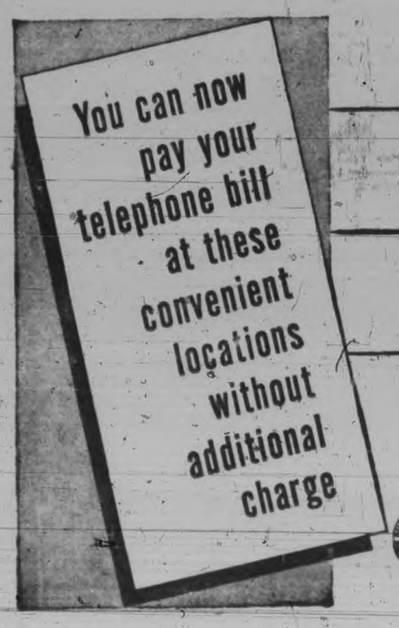
P-L QUIP OF THE WEEK

Winston Churchill hailed a taxi in the Strand and asked to be driven to the British Broadcasting Corporation.



"Sorry, mister," said the cabbie. "Ye'll 'ave to get yourself another cab. Mr. Churchill is broadcastin' in thirty minutes and I wouldn't miss it for all the fares in London."

Churchill was so flattered that he pressed a pound note into the cabbie's hand. The latter looked at it in astonishment and came to a quick decision. "You're a bit of all right, sir," he exclaimed. "'Op in, and to 'ell with Mr. Churchill."

Discouraging Philanthropy

We all know that money which we give to approved charities may be deducted from our taxable income when we are reckoning our Income Tax. If we have a receipt from a charity which is on the government list of approved causes, we attach it to our income tax form. But not many people know that when a man dies, any charitable gifts which he made during the last three years of his life must be reckoned as part of his estate, when it is considered for succession duties.

* * *

Such a law affects a large number of people. Because the succession duties upon the wealthy are very heavy, we are too apt to forget that succession duties are levied upon small estates, as well. As no man can say with accuracy when he is going to die, he cannot arrange to make the charitable gifts he intends a full four years before his demise. Therefore he must be aware that anything which he has given away within three years of his death will be taxed just as surely as if he had kept it.

* * *

We are not going to pretend that this law makes a Scrooge of every charitably inclined man over sixty. People who have a strong sense of responsibility toward charities or educational institutions find money to give to them, and will also find the taxes on that money, if it is taxed. But we think that such a provision of the Succession Duties regulations is discouraging to philanthropy. It is too sharp an assertion of the common principle that, whatever happens, the tax-gatherer will have his slice.

* * *

A government exists not only to rule, but to improve, a country. Therefore a government must recognize that certain charitable donations are for the advancement of the country, in a broad sense. To tax those donations is surely wrong?

Are Canadians Dull?

Last week the English magazine Truth published an anonymous article which said that Canadians, supposedly citizens of an important world power, were very dull people—dull in comparison with New Zealanders, Australians, and, of course, the people of the British Isles. Some Canadians have resented this; others have agreed with it. At the risk of seeming dull, we suggest that the truth lies in the middle ground. Some of us are terribly dull; others are not dull. We think that the livelier sort of Canadian is rather more numerous than the dull Canadian, but there are moments when it is touch-and-go.

Consider, for instance, some comment on the Stratford Festival which appeared on June 30 in Stratford's own paper, the Beacon-Herald. It regrets that the festival will open with Shakespeare's RICHARD III, and its reasons are best given in its own words:

> Having in mind that this Summer's Shakespearean Festival must win strong approval and support if it is to become a permanent enterprise, the thought will not down that an unfortunate choice was made when "King Richard III" was selected as the spearhead stage offering. It is definitely the most unwholesome of all Shakespeare's tragedies, and its only character of any real dramatic interest is that of Richard himself—a physically repulsive hypocrite, liar and murderer, without one redeeming feature. No modern-day criminal has yet matched in foulness this detestable villain, whose evil hypocrisies, falsehoods and cold-blooded murders are an unbroken string from beginning to end. He occupies the stage much of the time, and there is nothing to applaud unless the audience enjoys a monstrous menu of blood-letting, with women, and even children the victims of the rottenest recorded character in the history of the British Throne and of English "nobility".

Frankly, this column regrets that a deplorable chapter in history—one which is better forgotten at any time—is being made the centre-piece of a supposedly "cultural" crusade. That this hideous blot on Royalty should be featured so brazenly in this Coronation Year of 1953 seems incredibly poor judgement. Can we turn so easily from acclaiming the glories of the Monarchy of Queen Elizabeth the Second to applaud the murderous King Richard the Third? It is surely a pretty tall order!

If the Beacon-Herald wants "wholesomeness" it must not turn to Shakespeare, and particularly not to his histories. What could the festival have offered? King John was a bad egg; definitely not wholesome. Richard II is about a naughty king who was made to abdicate by a self-seeking thug—not wholesome, especially in Coronation Year. The two parts of Henry IV and Henry V, are about the thug who deposed Richard, and his son, a tavern tough and a faithless friend; tut tut—worse than crime comics. Beside, they contain that old reprobate Falstaff, who could never have got a job on the Beacon-Herald. Henry IV is full of wars and treachery and takes a poor view of Joan of Arc; markedly unwholesome. And that leaves us with Henry VIII which, as the Beacon-Herald knows, is chiefly about a parson who went into politics, and came to a bad end; we must preserve respect for the clergy, at all costs. No, with all the goodwill in the world, we cannot find a single wholesome play among Shakespeare's histories. As for the tragedies—well, we wouldn't expect the Beacon-Herald to tell its readers what goes on in those regrettable pieces.

In fact, wholesomeness is not a Shakespearean characteristic. Poetic, certainly; but who cares about that? Keenly perceptive and intuitive about people, of course; but the whole staff of the Beacon-Herald may say the same of itself. But not wholesome. Too many murders.

Murders which succeed, too. Not like the murder which the Beacon-Herald is trying to commit upon the infant body of its local festival; that murder somehow has not succeeded. We suspect that the Beacon-Herald's dagger is too dull. Perhaps the staff should see Richard III after all, and watch the deft manner in which he polishes off those little princes. Clever fellow, Shakespeare.

Communist Bugaboo Again

We are sorry that Mr. Drew is making the Communist bugaboo such an important part of his election campaign. He says that Communists within Canada are a great threat to our vital industries and particularly to defence industries. He says he knows of Communists in defence jobs. He says that if he is elected he will outlaw the Communist party in Canada.

This is not convincing. If Mr. Drew knows of Communists in vital posts in Canada, the obvious thing for him to do is to tell the R.C.M.P. without further delay. And he knows that outlawing the Communist party means nothing. He might as well talk about outlawing the Presbyterian Church. People who think along certain lines will continue to do so—and probably with increased determination—when the symbol of their belief has been outlawed. We would be very much surprised if Communist agents in Canada were acknowledged members of the party in this country, or are even known to the party officials. There has never been any evidence that Moscow trusts the Communist party in Canada to do anything more important than to make a nuisance of itself.

Talk of outlawing the Communist party is a poor vote-catcher. It savours too much of the kind of witch-hunting which is going on under the direction of Senator McCarthy in the U.S.A. Like thousands of other Canadians, we think that Mr. Drew is far too intelligent to attach importance to what he is saying along these lines. And a politician seeking office should not underestimate the intelligence of the electorate.

The Graft Court

Back-stage politics of Egypt in the last years of the reign of King Farouk are being curiously revealed in trials before a special court, popularly known as the Graft Court. The Army leaders, now in control of the country, are bringing to this bar characters as oddly important as the former King's press counsellor and his valet.

The press counsellor was charged with wrongfully taking a commission on charitable collections intended for a hospital in Alexandria. This man, Tabet, took some $14,000 commission, ten per cent. of what had been collected. He was accused of having "corrupted the political life of Egypt." The head of the hospital was also involved, and an influential individual in the life of the country in those days—Farouk's valet—testified that the "commission" was divided among Tabet, the king himself, and one of the court ladies.

All sort of droll information came out at this particular trial, revealing a picture of intrigue which, had it not been so pervasive and serious in results, would have been comic; it is as fantastic as anything in a Ruritania melodrama of court life. Egypt's "Graft Court" is well named.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Prune whip is suggested as an appetizing summer sweet by a food columnist. Frankly, we do not feel any hungrier when stewed prune has been transformed into chewed prune.

We are amazed by the feeling in the U.S. that that country "paid for the Coronation". Certainly not through Marshall Aid, which is carefully controlled. And the U.S. visitors who flocked to England were not really forced to go there.

Because 70 per cent. of pipes are bought by women, manufacturers are consulting feminine tastes in pipe design. Horrors! Women like to see a man smoking a pipe that weighs ¾ lb., holds a ¼ lb. of tobacco, and would sprain the jaw of a bulldog, "because it looks so masculine"

A Daughter Of Confucius

By O. M. GREEN

OF ALL the dragons of China that the Communists have to conquer—drought, flood, famine and the super-abundance of a race which produces four generations while Europe produces three—by far the most stubborn is the strength of family and clan, basis of the Confucian system though it dates back at least six centuries before the Sage gave it its regimen of minute observances 2,500 years ago.

Since the Revolution of 1911 some of the superficial practices of Confucianism have been chipped away by the younger Chinese. But the structure remained in all essentials unchanged, rock-like, and in every detail the implicit enemy of Communism.

* * *

HOWEVER the struggle between the two may end, it is most unlikely that Confucianism can ever again be what it was. Hence the peculiar value of Wong Su-Ling's brilliant and fascinating book "Daughter of Confucius," recently published, which describes in detail the life led by the great middle-class clans that supplied China's officials and merchants and virtually ruled China for two thousand years. No other description of Confucianism in practice that one can recall can compare with it. Apart from its vivid interest it may come to have extreme historical value, as a record of a vanished civilisation.

The Wong clan, numbering three thousand persons, in which Su Ling was born in 1918 in the seventeenth generation was evidently settled in Fukien province, where they jointly owned large estates—Su Ling's own family completely ruled her native town, which she calls Kan San.

* * *

THEY LIVED in a huge mansion of many courts, in all fifty-one people—uncles and aunts, cousins (always called "brothers"), slave girls and servants. When a Chinese marries he brings his wife to the ancestral mansion, extra rooms if necessary being built on. The members of the family were known by numbers not names. She herself was Ah Chih—Miss Seventh. Her uncles and aunts she always refers to as "First Brother," "Second Aunt," etc. But in speaking to them she used various terms of respect.

Confucianism, she says, has some two hundred terms for expressing various degrees of relationship and these determine the structure of Chinese society . . . "Something of this sort was found necessary centuries ago to enable large families like ours to live in unity and concord. We were like the pieces on a chess board, each with a definite position and fixed moves."

* * *

RIGID SEGREGATION of the sexes was enforced. The "inner apartments" of the women were never entered by the men nor the men's by the women. The clothing of each sex could not be hung in the same closet nor on the same bamboo pole to dry. "We girls were not allowed to sit on a seat recently vacated by a man." At the age of nine Su Ling's brothers were taken to live in the men's apartments. Women went out to visit friends only by permission of the grandmother, and then in a closed sedan chair. Many a wife never saw her father-in-law till he was dead and being prepared for burial. (The death and funeral rites imposed twenty-seven months of abject mourning, when not even a flower might be seen in the house).

* * *

THE GRANDMOTHER just mentioned was absolute ruler of the whole household. Her word was law, even for First Brother (a wealthy merchant nominally head of the family after the grandfather's death) and any family crisis was decided by her alone.

Every morning grandmother toured the house leaning on the shoulders of two gorgeously-dressed slave girls. (Their dress denoted the power and prestige of the clan, the grandmother's plain black represented Confusian modesty). Every room had to be in apple-pie order for the visit, everyone stood to attention and bowed deeply. Her keen eye missed nothing; her comments were short and pungent; yet the book shows that she was a kindly old lady, and very wise.

* * *

THE STRENGTH of this hidden feminine rule, which probably goes back to the prehistoric days when the Chinese tribes were governed by matriarchs, is emphasised by Su Ling in one sentence. There can be no change in China, she says, which does not change the clan and no change in the clan which does not change "the inner apartments."

Every girl was put at the age of two in the charge of her own slave girl. The word suggests something far worse than the reality. With very few exceptions the slave girl was well treated, the terms of sale requiring that she must be married before twenty to a respectable man and given a dowry of clothing, bedding and bridal jewellery.

* * *

BETWEEN Su Ling and her slave girl Orchid Blossom the warmest affection developed, as indeed in all other such couples. One instance brings up a curious case of Chinese etiquette.

Second Sister married, taking with her her slave girl Beautiful Plum Blossom, who before very long was found to be going to have a baby. This irregularity exposed the family to great loss of face. Plum Blossom, brought before grandmother, dissolved in tears, offered to kill herself or retire into a Buddhist monastery. But she and Second Sister were so devoted to each other that the latter utterly refused to allow either remedy.

* *

FINALLY grandmother decided that the only course was for Second Sister's husband to make Plum Blossom his concubine (Second Sister as yet had no children) before the scandal got about. This was done, and harmony and "face" preserved all round.

When Su Ling was about eleven her grandmother became a Christian, which meant that all the household did the same. It means considerable financial loss, for the head of the Wong clan decided that as the family, being Christians, could make no more sacrifice to the clan ancestors, they must be deprived of their share of the revenues from the extensive Wong property.

* * *

BUT it is curious to see how the family's Christianity was still deeply imbued by Confucian beliefs and dictates. Su Ling's mother, in particular, was distraught with fear that her dead husband, deprived of the customary feasts and sacrifices, would become a hungry, helpless ghost. At last she decided try to get in touch with her husband through a witch, and Su Ling was allowed to go with her. For a time the witch paid no attention to her visitors. Then she fell into a trance and described a number of figures that she saw. At last one was identified by Su Ling's mother as her husband, who told her, through the witch, that she need not worry, that he had been adopted by a high general and was well cared for. The wife left the seance radiant.

Not Issue Traffic Tickets?

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

MAGISTRATE James B. Garvin, in traffic court last week, stated that traffic tickets were issued by the police to violators of regulations only as a courtesy. He also intimated that there was a possibility that the tickets might be discontinued; he said he had been hearing so much about the tickets that "perhaps the best thing to do is not issue them." These remarks followed the statement of a Toronto man, charged with breaking a city by-law, who said he had found no ticket on his car.

Issuance of traffic tickets may be a courtesy to the person in charge of the vehicle tagged, though we doubt that many of them so regard it. But there can be no doubt that the practice is a great convenience to the police, and it is virtually certain it was devised and instituted for that reason. If the practice were discontinued the work of the law enforcement authorites would be heavily multiplied. In addition, the cost of law enforcement would also be heavily increased; it is obvious, for reasons given in the following paragraph, that more policemen would be needed, more justices and clerks, and probably one or more additional magistrates. We submit that considerations of convenience and economy, rather than any thought of courtesy, were responsible for the adoption of the traffic ticket system.

The only other method of notifying an alleged offender, as far as we know, would be by summons. This would mean a tremendous amount of work for whoever fills in and swears out summonses. In the case of local residents, there would then be the task of serving warrants. And in the case of out-of-town residents, there would be the nuisance of tracing the license number to find the owner, then service of warrants by police in the communities involved. We venture to say this would not make local law enforcement authorities popular in those communities. Furthermore many motorists who now take their "tickets" to the police station and pay small fines, would, if summoned to court, place the onus of proof of infraction squarely on the police. We venture to say there would be so many policemen on duty constantly giving evidence in court as would be employed in all other branches of police work in the city.

We do not for a moment question the sincerity of the Toronto man who said he found no ticket on his car. We believe, however, that we know how Magistrate Garvin felt on hearing once again one of the oldest and feeblest excuses offered in traffic courts, and we fully sympathize with him. But we do not think he was then or is now seriously considering discontinuing issuance of traffic tickets. He is far too experienced in this branch of law enforcement to advocate a course that would either multiply its problems and costs or else lead to almost complete breakdown.

Case For Sherlock Holmes

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

AS Sherlock Holmes might have put it: The little problem of the tobacco tin in The Pas hotel presents certain distinct features of interest. It does more than that It hints at possibilities of high adventure, drama and fabulous wealth.

The facts are easily recorded. Mr. Harry Howell, a veteran prospector, was checking over the workings of his geiger counter the other evening in his hotel room. He passed the instrument idly across a tobacco tin serving as a doorstop. The sudden rattle and buzz of the geiger brought Mr. Howell to his feet. He seized the tin, emptied a jagged chunk of rock onto the bed and stared at it incredulously while the geiger kept up its insistent ticking.

Where had the rock come from; where was its mother-lode? How long had it lain concealed in the old tobacco tin? Most important of all: Who had left it there? The search was on. The previous occupants of the room, were checked off eagerly in the hotel registry—salesmen, business men, government officials, surveyors and prospectors. At last report the search had been narrowed down to the six most likely candidates for fame.

The people of The Pas would be more, or less, than human if they did not build brave dreams upon this unprepossessing bit of stone; if they did not think of Eldorado? And what of the missing man. Did he hack this sample from some likely-looking outcropping and, filed with high hopes, journey with his prize into The Pas only to be told by the assayer that it was worthless? Perhaps in disgust he flung the discredited specimen into the corner, packed his knapsack, and set out again on his quest for the "real thing."

Such stories do not always have happy ends, and certainly it would seem that even the mind of Sherlock Holmes might be baffled by clues as tenuous as those which lead out from that bedroom in The Pas. But the stone is real enough and old prospectors, who ought to know, say that it looks like pitchblende. It can therefore still be hoped that the man who once grazed fortune's skirts will retrace his steps and with the heartfelt blessings of The Pas, claim her as his own.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And here appeared a great wonder in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars: and she being with child cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered.

And there appeared another wonder in heaven; and behold a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and seven crowns upon his heads. And his tail drew the third part of the stars of heaven, and did cast them to the earth: and the dragon stood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for to devour her child as soon as it was born.

And she brought forth a man child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne . . .

And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought against the dragon; and the dragon fought and his angels, and prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven. And the great dragon was cast out, that old serpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was cast out into the earth, and his angels were cast out with him.

And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of our brethren is cast down, which assused them before our God day and night . . . Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. (Rev. 12: 1-5, 7-10, 12.)

Miller Film Brings Advice From Old Fans

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Aaron Rosenberg, the man who is producing the film about Glenn Miller's life; agree with Jimmy (Dimmy) Durante: Everybody wants to get into the act!"

The producer remarks: "When I got the Miller story, I thought a lot of people of my generation would be interested in it. But I didn't expect the tremendous personal interest that so many people have about Miller and his band. Everybody has been issuing suggestions, warnings and even threats about what I should do with the picture."

I saw some of the mail he has received. One letter was from an Englishman in Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, who said: "I'm a member of the Glenn Miller Appreciation Society—an ardent Miller fan. The G.M.A.S. is of the opinion that the role should be given to a comparatively unknown actor . . . I doubt if you could get Prince Bernhardt of The Netherlands, but the resemblance is good."

NOT ALL POLITE

Another came from an enlisted man in the RAF: "Might my wife and myself, who are Miller fans and workers of the G.M.A.S., make a suggestion for the Miller role—the star who plays the part of Superman in the serial of the same name. He bears a striking resemblance."

Not all the letters are polite.

Other kibitzers insisted that the old Miller band be assembled to play in the picture. That sounded fairly practical, since many of the members are now working in and around Hollywood. But Rosenberg found that the boys were too wrapped up in the recording and other dates to clear time to appear in the picture.

However, he was able to hire a number of them to make the recordings for the film.

At least one letter writer has told the producer that Jimmy Stewart, who plays Miller, must wear the familiar rimless glasses. But the band leader's widow says her husband never wore glasses during his early days and later sported them only on the bandstand. That's how it will be in the picture.

A LUCKY LADY, Mrs. Joseph Halpin, of 34 McKellar St., was overwhelmed on Monday evening when her name was drawn as the lucky winner of a fine car, grand prize of a draw sponsored by the Peterborough Lions Club. The name selection was made at their Brock St. weekly bingo. Mrs. Halpin is shown above in the driver's seat being presented the car keys by past-president Geddes Harper, left, and president Joe Brown.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

HAVELOCK (ENS)—A vacation school, with an enrolment of approximately 200 children from the community is being held this week at the Pentecostal Tabernacle with two school teachers from Toronto, Miss Iris Shields and Miss Elma Barber, in charge.

The children will stage a large parade Thursday evening, wearing fancy hats and carrying flags and other decorations.

The activities will be brought to a close Friday evening with a big rally in the church, open to parents and any others who wish to attend. A program will be provided by the children.

HAVELOCK (ENS)—"Contrary Winds", a film, based on the text from Jonah "There was a mighty tempest," was shown in Fellowship Baptist Church Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Pratt of Litchfield, Mich., representatives of Evangel Films.

The picture was about a young Christian called for service in India. He gradually let business come first in his life, forgetting God's call.

When he finally remembered, his health was broken. His wife in the meantime had become a Christian and finally took his place.

Joyous Anniversary

OSLO (CP)—When the largest steel plant in Norway, Christiana Spigerverk, celebrated its 100th anniversary this month, the firm donated the equivalent of $150,000 for scholarships and humanitarian purposes as well as gifts to employees. The 1,750 workers enjoyed a dinner dance.

There will be one change in the High School staff for the coming year. Miss Ruth Thomas, BA, the teacher of French and Girls' Health and Physical Education, has accepted a position on the staff of the Fergus high school. Miss Thomas has been a very competent teacher during her stay in Marmora, and her many friends wish her every success in her new position. The board has been fortunate in acquiring the services of Miss Margery E. George, BA, of Muskoka, as her successor. Miss George is a French specialist with several years experience and comes to Marmora high school with very good recommendations.

Bethany Inducts New Minister Clifford Grant

BETHANY—(ENS)—The Rev. Clifford Grant, B.A., B.D., was inducted Tuesday as the new minister for the Bethany circuit in the United Church.

Mr. Grant replaces the Rev. James Hampson who has been transferred to Greenwood. The Rev. N. Cole Hastings, president of Peterborough Presbytery, had charge of the service, hearing the vows of the new minister as he accepted the duties as prescribed by the doctrines of the United Church, and those of the congregation as they accepted their obligations to Mr. Grant.

He was introduced to the members by the Rev. Mr. H. P. Harrington of Keene, secretary of the Presbytery.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland of Peterborough read the scripture lesson taken from Paul's letters to Timothy "Preach the Word; Watch thou in all things; endure afflictions. Do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry."

Later, in his sermon, Mr. Rowland took his text from the second chapter of Haggai "The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former; and in this place will I give peace."

Mr. Grant announced the closing hymn and pronounced the benediction.

Following the service a social hour was enjoyed and lunch was served in the Sunday school room, with Mr. Grant and his wife meeting informally the members of the congregation.

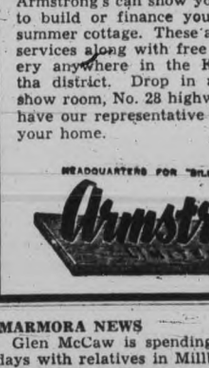
The Rev. H. Yarr of Fraserville spoke briefly welcoming Mr. and Mrs. Grant to the Peterborough Presbytery from Toronto. Mr. A. H. Monk as one of the Elders, Laymen and Sunday School superintendent of Bethany officially welcomed the new minister.

Other speakers were Gordon Robinson, Elder from Yelverton Church; Bruce Sharpe, Elder from Ebenezer Church, Harry Preston, Bethany choir leader, Mrs. Mansell Finney, president of the Women's Association and Mrs. George Waddell, president of the Women's Missionary Society.

Visitor Impressed By Country's Growth

MARMORA (ENS) — William and George Aunger received a visit over the week-end from relatives Mr. and Mrs. Leland Aunger of Toledo, Ohio.

Leland Aunger, after an absence of some years, was impressed by the changes he saw.



From the number of cars which he had seen on the highways, the number of new motels and the many new industrial buildings about the towns and cities, he discerned that the Dominion was going ahead very fast.

Seabrooke Gets Close Win From Revoy's

Seabrooke Motors came from behind Thursday evening at the East City Bowl, to down Revoy's 10-7 in the nightcap of the regular men's senior softball twin bill to keep close on the heels of the league-leading Petes. It was a keen struggle all the way, witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the season. The same teams will see action on Saturday night in a special replay along with UEW and TPT's.

Seabrooke's took an early lead in the first two frames on hits by O'Heron, Thompson and Sullivan's fielder's choice, and on O'Heron's walk and Sully's double in the second. The Lakefield boys scored one in the first and three in the third to take over the lead with Henry, Cam Wasson, and Bob Smith leading the attack.

THREE IN FIFTH

Revoy's scored three in the fifth on hits by Cam and Red Wasson, the former a triple; walks to Henry and Grafstein with Smith's fielder's choice. Seabrooke's came back in the home half, and led by Red Sullivan with his eighth homer of the season, scored seven runs to virtually clinch the ball game.

Jimmy Driscoll toiled for Seabrooke's to start, then yielded to Lefty Doris, in the fifth, who twirled effectively for the final four and two-thirds frames to get credit for the victory. Jack and Dick McCracken pitched for the visitors, the former lasting four and one-third before taking the showers in the midst of Seabrooke's fifth inning explosion. Sullivan batted in four runs in all; Red Wasson two and Smith and Cam Wasson, one apiece. The fielding of Neil Thompson again featured.

Max Schmeling of Germany retained his world heavyweight boxing title 22 years ago tonight by knocking out young Bill Stribling in the 15th round at Cleveland. Schmeling had gained recognition as champion by beating Jack Sharkey in 1930, two years after champion Gene Tunney retired, and Schmeling lost the crown to Sharkey in 1932.

P.G. & C.C. CHIPSHOTS

The favorites were falling like flies at the Peterborough Golf Club last week. In the club championship three matches were played.

Ossie Anderson pulled the biggest upset of the year by defeating Jack Hardill, a former club champion 1 up. Jack had a 2 up lead after nine holes but Ossie overtook him and sewed it up on the 18th.

Mac Campbell came up with a good game to dispose of Joe Watson, another former champion. This match ended after one extra hole.

In the other match Moon Wooton scored a lop-sided win over Howard David, defeating him 7 and 6.

Stu Williamson produced one of his best efforts of the season to defeat Stan Payne one up. Immediately after beating Stan, big Stu took on Moon Wootton in the Westclox competition and shot a sizzling 77, but lost the match by one hole as Moon came through with a 76.

The winner of the 18-hole competition this week was Mrs. S. Williamson who took the spoon for low gross and also 2nd low net, and Mrs. L. Lawrence had low net and Mrs. Dit Clapper 3rd low net.

Playing in the finals for the Strickland Trophy this week Mrs. S. Williamson and Mrs. H. Baptie had an exciting match which wasn't decided until the last putt. Mrs. Williamson was 5 up at the turn—going out in a smooth 41. But in the back nine Mrs. Baptie steadily gained until she won on that last putt. Both players played to their handicaps and it was a worthy finish to one of our time-honored competitions.

MACDONALD TROPHY

A. Brady defeated O. M. Steer.
B. Campbell defeated D. Vyse.
J. Richardson defeated B. Sullivan.

MEN'S TWO BALL

One match was played in this competition, ending in a draw. Les Reid and Ed Dixon were held to a tie by Ossie Anderson and Stan McBride. A replay will be held at a later date.

Don Vyse scored a birdie three on the 7th hole last week and won a case of Coca Cola.

Our popular pro, Alf Hill, has left for Quebec to take part in the Canadian PGA tournament next week. Here's hoping Alf comes up with a couple of good ones. If his putter is working he could give the rest of the boys a run for the money.

TPT Petes Take Men's Tilt Over UE Team

TPT Petes continued their winning ways in men's senior city league softball at the East City Bowl Thursday night, defeating UEW 8-2 in the curtain-raiser of the regular twin bill. It was a fine struggle all the way but Petes held a steady edge throughout to win on their merits.

Ken Guilfolyle, veteran of many years of clever twirling, started on the hill for the Transports and had his drop working in fine style to shut out the Walton boys for four frames. However, his control slipped slightly in the fifth as he walked three, and he gave way to speedballer Haddy Eakins. UE scored two this frame, one forced on a pass the other on a fielder's choice. Meanwhile Petes had racked up five tallies to hold what turned out to be the winning margin.

SCORED EARLY

Transports scored one in the second on hits by Legrow and Gus Leonard, a walk to Crowe and West's fly to centre. They added one in the fourth when Crowe reached first and later scored when UE booted the melon. Three more in the fifth, on hits by Floyd, a triple by Mackness, single by Leonard and walks to Collins and Crowe gave TPT a margin over hard-working Jack Crowley toiling for UE and the George Bennett crew added one in the seventh and two in the final to sew up the game with UE unable to effectively solve Eakins.

The victory was number eight for the leaders against three defeats.

GRANT'S SPORT CORNER

By DON GRANT

Today it's motorcycling.

As soon as some see the word, motorcycle, they picture some maniac zig-zagging through traffic at a terrific speed. These same people probably will ask, "Is that sport?"

Naturally there are a few who like to defy death as they rip down George and Water Sts. narrowly missing cars and trucks. But the majority of motorcyclists feel that motorcycling, both for pleasure and racing, is as much a sport as baseball, golf, lacrosse and other games.

This sport is gradually securing a foothold in the United States and Canada. In European countries such as Germany (which has the largest number of bikes in the world), France and England, motorcycling has been a favorite sport for years.

KAWARTHA CLUB ORGANIZED IN 1937

All this brings us around to Peterborough and the Kawartha Motorcycle Club.

In 1937 when motorcycles were increasing in number in Canada and the United States, a few city enthusiasts grouped together to form the cycling club. Sam Carew was president; Clare Heard, vice-president; Jack Skitch, secretary, and Cliff Brian, treasurer.

They devised a few rules which club members follow even to this day. The cyclists (remember these are for club members, not the 60 to 70-mile-an-hour variety) agree to keep to speed limits, be more considerate of the rights of pedestrians, suppress all noise with cutouts forbidden, and to adhere to traffic regulations.

Like other sports motorcycling faded during the war years, but shortly after Clare Heard reorganized the club. Now it has 30 members and large grounds with a clubhouse near the McFarlane St. bridge at the canal.

They're quite proud of their safety record which since the war has been pretty fair. For example during 1952 the club members had an accident-free year. Perhaps a few others could stand joining the club.

So far, club members prefer to stick to pleasure trips rather than racing. They make annual trips through Ontario, Quebec and the States during the summer months.

The club's first trip this year was on Mother's Day weekend. They travelled to Toronto for the annual memorial day service which honors motorcycle drivers killed during the wars. About 1,500 Ontario, Quebec and United States motorcyclists took part.

Early in June they cycled to Buffalo where with 2,500 motorcyclists, they paraded to the St. Christopher Shrine for the blessing of motorcycles.

The club sent a delegation, including Mr. and Mrs. Clare Heard, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Heard, Mr. and Mrs. Don Welsh, Stan Saas and Joe Maloney on the longest trip this year to Laconia, New Hampshire. There in the mountains they saw the 100- and 50-mile national championships. More than 25,000 motorcyclists took part in the three-day meet at the state park there.

Besides some short weekend trips throughout the countryside, the club also plans longer jaunts to Montreal and down into Pennsylvania.

VARIOUS CLUBS SPONSOR FIELD MEETS

To keep on the bit with their driving the various clubs sponsor field meets. During the past weekend the Kawartha club members competed against Lindsay and Toronto cyclists in a meet at the canal grounds.

It sounded much like a school or factory picnic. They held pie-eating and egg-throwing contests (remember they're riding bikes all the while), riding the plank, zig-zag courses, slow and dizzy races.

The club plans a larger field day for August 16. They expect many out-of-town competitors and will shift the activities to a farm on the Sixth Line (off Highway 7) or to the old rifle range.

The club's only racer is Doug May, Brioux Ave. In the Canadian championship (held Wednesday at Oshawa) Doug was dogged by bad luck. His bike seized up during the trials. Meanwhile in other races his luck has held and he has brought home the bacon more than once.

Like auto, boat and other types of high-speed racing, motorcycle races appear to be dangerous, making one think of fatalities and serious injuries. Some have even classed motorcycling as the most dangerous, but statistics prove that it's the safest on the raceway and the highway.

Just the same, fellows, I think I'll stick to the city bus lines.

Brampton Boys Gain Win From The Pats

BRAMPTON — The Minto Cup championship Brampton junior lacrossers swept to a 21-7 OLA junior "A" victory over Peterborough Pats here Thursday night to stay in front in the keen race. Playing in sultry weather, before small crowd, Brampton began dominating play shortly before the halway mark in the second period and they never looked back. They turned in their smartest lacrosse of the season while the tired visitors gradually faded before the drive.

It was a clean contest but for the third period when both sides roughed it up to draw most of their penalties. McDonald and Farley tangled for five-minute majors, with Ward also getting a major. Johnston and Bloom later got the gate for 10 minutes each for fighting. On top of that Hobart got a major for high-sticking, and the Pats were shorthanded pretty much throughout the third heat as Brampton racked up the score. Teams:

Pats — Goal, Hill; defence, Bloom and Brioux; centre, O'Reilly; wings, Hobart and Daniels; rover, Chapman; alternates, Galley, Logan, Farley, Thomas, Ward, Allan.

350 Golfers To Tee Off

TORONTO (CP) — Some 350 young Ontario golfers were to tee off today at six southern Ontario golf clubs in qualifying rounds of the Ontario junior golf championship.

Qualifiers of today's rounds will be eligible for the final at the Toronto Oakdale club July 16. The champion will represent Ontario in the Canadian junior final at Montreal Aug. 21-22.

The qualifying rounds are being held at Toronto Summit, London Hunt, Hamilton Glendale, Belleville Bay of Quinte, Sarnia Club and Windsor Beach Grove. The rounds are divided into three age groups: Class A, 16 to 18 years; class B, 14 and 15 years; and class C, 13 years and under.

Under the age regulations, Gerry Knechtel of Kitchener, last year's champion, will be too old by 24 hours to defend his title.

Keene Boys Victors

Keene Dodgers defeated the Peterborough Braves 8-3 last evening to open the PMBA midget-juvenile ball schedule. Elmhirst pitched four-hit ball for the winners, and fanned 10 in a neat slab showing, as his mates kicked in with three miscues. McIlmoyle on the other mound gave up eight hits and whiffed six, having five miscues behind him. Keene got two runs in the first inning, one each in the second, third and fifth, with three tallying in the fourth. The losers shoved one over in the first and two more in the fifth. Towns had a double, while McCarthy and Elmhirst each hit two singles. Teams:

Keene: Renwick, 3b; McCarthy, cf; Whalen, 1b; Shearer, 1b; Cott, c; Lang, 2b; Elmhirst, p; Houle, ss; Turnbull, cf; Shelton, lf.

Braves: Towns, 3b; Killen, lf; Lawrence, cf; Board, cf; Hickey, 1b; Wright, c; Garvey, 2b; O'Connell, ss; McIlmoyle, p; Goodson, rf.

STEEPLECHASE RECORD

HELSINKI, Finland (AP)—Olvai Rinteenpaa, a young Finnish dentist, ran the world's fastest 3,000-metre steeplechase race Thursday.

Rinteenpaa was timed in 8:44.4 over the Olympic Stadium course where Horace Ashenfelter of the United States ran the previous fastest 'chase in the 1952 olympics. The Finn's time was an exact second faster than Ashenfelter's mark. Rinteenpaa ran fourth in the Olympics.

There is no official world record for the steeplechase since courses vary in their makeup.

Brampton Forced To Quit League

TORONTO (CP)—Brampton Excelsiors of the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association announced Thursday night that the club is forced to suspend operations. The decision was made known at a meeting of the senior clubs' committee in Mimico.

The club has been faced with a shortage of senior calibre players and the support of fans at home games has been disappointing. The Excelsiors were unable to complete amalgamation plans with Mimico Mountaineers.

Excelsiors faced expulsion and forfeit of a $100 bond because they defaulted a game in Peterborough last Friday night. The withdrawal leaves the senior circuit a six-team league.

Chuck Rowan, secretary of the OLA, said that players on the Brampton roster will be divided between the Mountaineers and Hamilton Tigers.

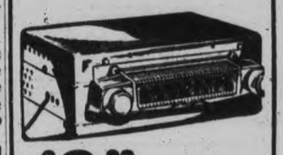
U.K. Bookies Afraid Of Ben Hogan

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP)—British bookmakers, scared to death of blazing Ben Hogan in his first bid for the British open golf championship, made the little Texan their betting favorite today at odds of 7 to 4.

A few of the canny Scottish odds-layers who have watched the U.S. champion in warm-70 rounds for the week-long grind starting Monday would offer no better than 6 to 4.

This is the same as saying they'd rather not bet against him.



The way Hogan has dominated pre-tournament speculation was further reflected in the odds of 5 to 1 generally available against Bobby Locke.

The big South African has won this title three times and is the defending titleholder.

Roberto de Vicenzo, the Argentine star, was on offer at 8 to 1.

Yankees Break Losing Streak Edge Bo-Sox 5-3

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that the Yankees finally have quit losing maybe Cleveland Indians will go back to playing better ball. Instead of concentrating on their own business, the Indians this week have been going through their paces with one eye on the scoreboard to see how much ground they were gaining on the fading New Yorkers. As a result they have lost two in a row to the tail-end Detroit Tigers. They have a chance to make immediate amends since they go home tonight to face the usually docile Bengals in three more games.

The Yanks broke their nine-game victory drought by edging the Red Sox, 5-3, in 10 innings at Boston Thursday Cleveland bowed 4-2 to Detroit and slipped six full games behind the world champions.

Chicago White Sox, who had Thursday and today off, also are six games back and just two percentage points behind the Indians.

BLANK PHILADELPHIA

In the National League Brooklyn Dodgers made sure they will be in first place on the morning of the 4th of July, traditional turning point of the pennant races. The Dodgers defeated Philadelphia, 8-0, and second place Milwaukee skidded a game and a half behind by losing to Cincinnati 3-1. Other National League clubs weren't scheduled.

Johnny Mize hammered the hit that broke the Yankee slump. Pinch-hitting in the 10th with two out and Yogi Berra on third, Mize drove a 3-2 pitch from Sid Hudson into left centre field for a double.

Gil McDougald then drew an intentional pass and Bill Martin brought in the insurance run with a single that scored Bill Renna, running for Mize.

THIRD HOMER

Al Rosen hit his third home run in three games to get Cleveland off in front, but the Tigers went ahead with a pair in the third on a walk, a wild pitch by loser Mike Garcia and singles by Johnny Pesky and Walt Dropo.

Don Lund produced the winning runs with a home run scoring Matt Batts ahead of him in the seventh.

Steve Gromek, who toiled for Cleveland until two weeks ago, scattered seven hits in registering his third victory.

Washington's scheduled game at Philadelphia was rained out.

NOT MUCH WRONG

So far this year Brooklyn's biggest difficulty has been its pitching but you couldn't find much wrong with Carl Erskine's seven-hit performance against the Phillies. The ace righthander, belted hard last month, had been given a 10-day rest and he was at the top of his form.

Cincinnati has hit 94 home runs, more than any other major league team, and the Redlegs used them to good advantage in handing Milwaukee its eighth straight home loss.

Ted Kluszewski put the Reds ahead in the first inning with his 23rd home run, and Gus Bell hit his 21st in the ninth.

Bisons Down Chiefs 5-4 Behind Jordan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Former major league righthander Milt Jordan is the hottest pitcher in the International League today and don't let any Buffalo fan hear you say differently.

Jordan, who came to the Bisons earlier this season from Detroit Tigers of the American League, is the loop's top hurler. He pitched his 10th victory Thursday night in a relief role, downing Syracuse Chiefs 5-4.

This put the Bisons within 1½ games of the pace-setting Montreal Royals, who fell 3-1 to Rochester Red Wings. Buffalo's win was the club's eighth in the last nine games.

Jordan has won his last seven games and has only one defeat.

NOT EASY VICTORY

However, Buffalo's victory wasn't easy. The Bisons hammered three Syracuse hurlers for 14 safeties, but the Chiefs rallied for all their runs in the eighth inning. The Chiefs were allowed only six hits, but two errors played against the Herd.

Outfielder Ed Mierkowicz' two-run homer in the seventh gave the Red Wings the game at Rochester. Righthander Jack Faszholz got the win, his third, but needed help from lefty Dennis Reeder in the ninth. Southpaw Bob Ludwick was charged with the loss.

Veteran Martell Looms As Championship Threat

QUEBEC (CP)—Veteran Henry Martell of Edmonton Highlands loomed today as a possible threat for the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship on the strength of a practice-round four-under-par 68.

The tall, smooth-hitting golfer is no stranger to Royal Quebec's broad fairways. He reached the semi-finals of the Canadian amateur championship there in 1947.

Martell's score was the best of Thursday's leisurely rounds by most of the 50-odd entrants whose warm-up was interrupted by a driving late-day rain.

The rain was expected to make the greens lightning fast for a friendly four-ball competition in which professionals will team with amateurs from Quebec district. Forty-seven pro-amateur teams will tee off.

The 54-hole medal play championship, which Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon will defend, starts Saturday with an 18-hole round. Two rounds will be played Sunday.

SWELL FIELD

A dozen or so post-entries arrived to swell the 33-man field announced earlier this week.

The post-entries included Fletcher, Gord Byrdson of Toronto Mississauga, the 1948 champion; Jim Swarbrick of Montreal Marlborough, Bob Cunningham of Toronto, George Harrison of Sudbury and Ray Marshall of Arnprior, Ont.

Fletcher and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, four times winner, arrived Thursday and both shot a one-under-par 34 on the first nine. Leonard took a six on the par-4 first hole but quickly recovered.

The golfing Huot brothers—Jules of Montreal Laval-Sur-Le-Lac, Rodolphe of the home club and Rolland of Quebec Lorette—hold the Royal Quebec course record of 65, seven under the par of 72. All are entered in addition to brother Tony of Levis, Que., and cousin Gerard of Mount Orford, Que.

Hamilton Tigers Give Workout Date

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series announced Thursday that the new 1953-54 club will start workouts at the new Hamilton Forum Sept. 15.

Manager George Redding said he has already signed former Tiger player Ron Rhomer, 25-year-old sharpshooter who played last year with Washington in the United States Eastern Hockey League.

Babe Didrikson Coming Back

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Women golfers who play for pay were given notice today that Babe Didrikson, greatest of them all, is coming back.

Mrs. Zaharias, who recently underwent a cancer operation, said "I'm going to lick this thing" and announced she will play in the Tam O'Shanter tournament to be held in Chicago later in the summer.

The greatest U.S. woman athlete of the century returned to her Tampa home during the week-end and disclosed Thursday that she is playing golf daily to strengthen her legs for the big tournament.

She said she played five holes Tuesday, seven Wednesday and nine Thursday. She carded a 37 for the nine holes she played at the Tampa Golf and Country Club.

TILLSONBURG (CP)—Jack M. Climie, secretary-treasurer of the Tillsonburg Turf Club, released Thursday the entries for the 1953 Supertest three-year-old Pacing Stake to be raced at Tillsonburg July 15.

The estimated $4,000 purse for the stake is the largest in Canada this year.

Among the entries and owners are Lady Lee Hal, Todgham and McIntyre, Chatham; Linda B. Lee, Don McDonald, Chatham; Theoras Ensign, Neil Pringle, Sarnia; Harry Prince, Dave Inkey, Stratford; and Dwight Dillon, John K. Shepherd, Oshawa.

Here And There In Sports

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Johnny Palmer was the only tornado to strike the Birmingham Country Club Thursday, and the moonfaced North Carolinian swept to the qualifying medal of the United States PGA golf tournament with a record-equalling 134.

Grooving his shots through wild gusts and racing against an anticipated thunderstorm, the chubby pro from Badin, N.C., clinched the $250 medalist prize with a five-under par 66.

He thus tied two records—the course and the PGA qualifying marks.

The competitive record for the compact 6,465-yard, par 71 Birmingham layout was made by old Al Watrous, of nearby Oakland Hills, 20 years ago, and equalled only Wednesday by Vic Ghezzi, the giant Long Island pro, who took the first round qualifying lead.

Palmer's 68-66—134 matched the two-round qualifying record set by Jim Ferrier at Portland, Ore., in 1946 and paralleled by Skip Alexander at St. Louis in 1949.

Palmer won the Canadian Open championship at Winnipeg in 1952 and will defend his title next week at the Toronto Scarboro course.

Ghezzi, 1941 champion, settled for a 73 and a total of 139.

Chandler Harper, the 1950 champion from Portsmouth, Va., finished with a 69 for 137.

This was good for second place, three strokes back. Pete Cooper of White Plains, N.Y., followed with 138, on a pair of 69s.

The cutoff point for making the 64-man championship flight, which begins today with two 18-hole sudden death rounds of match play, was 149.

FIRES A PRACTICE 65

TORONTO (CP)—Pete Fleming of St. Andrew's, Ill., one of eight United States pros on hand early for the Canadian open golf championship at Toronto Scarboro next week, shot a six-under-par 65 in a practice round over the course Thursday. Among others to beat par during the last three days was Bill Mawhinney of Vancouver, who fired a 67.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers announced Thursday the signing of a veteran end and three Montreal intermediates for the 1953 Western Interprovincial Football Union season.

President Karl Slocomb said at a press conference that defensive end Normie Hill will be back with the club again. The Montrealers, halfback Gordie Rowlands and guards Moe Bremner and Winty Young, will report to the training camp opening July 15.

Ends 12-Day Fast

YELLOW SPRINGS, O. (AP)—A sociology professor and former missionary has concluded a 12-day fast in protest of the execution of atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. Ralph T. Templin, 55, professor at Central State College at Wilberforce, O., ended the fast Thursday night by drinking fruit juice. He said he had not had anything to drink or eat since June 20, the day after the Rosenbergs were executed.

Prince Albert National Park in Saskatchewan covers 1,496 square miles.

Walls-Layne Meet In 10-Round Fight

EDMONTON (CP)—Earl Walls, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, and Rex Layne, one of the top 10 contenders for the world title, meet tonight in a 10-round fight expected to ring up a gate of between $40,000 and $60,000.

Promoter Jack Berry said he expects between 10,000 and 14,000 fans. They would pay a general entry fee of $5 and a top of $15, a record for an Edmonton fight.

Walls, a native of Windsor, Ont., who also fought in the eastern United States and England, was expected to go into the ring at 191 pounds, nine pounds lighter than his opponent.

Layne will carry the weight advantage but will have to move in close to get at Walls. The Canadian battler has a reach of 77 inches, two inches longer than Layne.

NEVER HELD TITLE

Layne, who holds victories over Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott, but who has never held the world title, will pick up a $10,000 guarantee or 30 per cent of the gate, whichever is greater, for his efforts. Walls will receive 20 per cent.

Walls, who stands six feet, 2½ inches, has an impressive fight record in the West. In 10 fights here and in Vancouver he won six with knockouts in two rounds or less. Joe Kahut of Portland, Ore., was the only man to go 10 rounds with the champion. He has been promised a re-match.

The 25-year-old Negro opened his career in New York in 1948. He lost three fights that year, one in 1949 and one in 1950.

In England he scored victories over the Scottish and Australian champions.

He returned to Canada and moved to Edmonton in May, 1952. He defeated Verne Escoe in June, 1952, to take the Canadian crown and defeated Escoe again in July in a re-match.

Legion Sponsors Field Day

MILLBROOK (ENS). — The Millbrook branch of the Canadian Legion held its annual sports day on Wednesday at the Exhibition Park. Threatening weather kept the attendance below the mark of previous years and forced curtailment of some of the sports scheduled for late afternoon. An added attraction this year was the Bowmanville Legion Pipe Band, a smartly attired organization, whose music was the subject of much favorable comment.

Bethany and Millbrook were matched in the first baseball game with the hometowners taking a 3-1 verdict. The two veteran pitchers, Edmonds for Bethany and Dawson for Millbrook each sent three batters back to the bench via the strike-out route. Dawson set Bethany down with only a pair of scattered hits while the Millbrook stickers picked up five bingles. Bethany turned in an errorless game with the locals kicking in three miscues. Challice and Rowan combined for the only twin killing of the day. An ankle injury late in the game forced Ryley, Bethany's smooth young third sacker, out of action. Millbrook moved in the final game against Blackstock which was shaping up as a tidy tussle when rained out in the third with the locals holding a 4-3 edge. The Millbrook Lions thus retain possession of the Tip Top Trophy.

Millbrook: Wright, M. Lord, Ginn Handley, Edmonds, Lunn, Lowery, Smith, G. Lord, Dawson.

Bethany: Ryley, Pomeroy, W. Rowan, C. Rowan, Edmonds, Reynolds, Challice, McGill, B. Reynolds, Jackson.

Blackstock—Cochrane, Gunter, Gallagher, Bailey, Phillips, Werry, Venning, Crawford, Van Camp.

Umpires — Wood, Venning, Dawson.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL

Millbrook girls took an easy win over a young Bailieboro team in a league softball fixture. The score was definitely lop-sided.

Only two races were run off before the shower with Brad Medd running away from the field to take the first of two silver cups presented by Jimmy Larmer, a middle distance runner of note of a few years back. In the girls' event Jane Ouelette finished in the lead.

Ponies and mechanical rides kept the younger children occupied. The dance in the evening in the town hall was well attended.

Rigger Electrocuted

SARNIA (CP) — Leonard J. Cooper, 39, Polymer Corporation rigger, was electrocuted Thursday when the boom of a crane he was supervising touched a 2,200-volt hydro line in Point Edward. A veteran of the Second World War, Cooper was a sergeant major of the 31st Field Regiment, RCA (reserve). He died in hospital.

Helpful Storm

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — Charles Schultz, 93, and almost deaf, was sitting on his front porch in a storm Wednesday night when lightning struck a nearby tree with a thunderous crash. He says he doesn't need his hearing aid any more.

4,000-Volt Shock Fatal

TORONTO (CP)—Alex Kruszerick, 30, a Hydro lineman, was killed Thursday when he suffered a 4,000-volt electrical shock. He was installing electrical equipment when the accident occurred.

Direct Rhythm Wins Pacing Derby

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Direct Rhythm, owned by W. G. Reynolds of Louisville, Ky., won the $25,000 National Pacing Derby Thursday night at Roosevelt Raceway as the 7-to-5 favorite. Hi-Lo's Forbes, finished fourth in the 1¼-mile classic.

Second, a half-length behind, was Thomas B. Scott, owned and driven by Tom Carlock, Greenville, Ohio, in the eighth edition of the Pacing Derby in which 10 of the world's fastest pacers competed.

Dudley Hanover, from the Hayes Fair Acres Stable, Du Quoin, Ill., was third, three-quarters of a length behind Thomas B. Scott, while Hi-LO's Forbes was another three-quarters of a length behind.

Grant Hodgins' Prince Adios Clandeboye, Ont., was fifth.

RECORD UNBROKEN

The time was 2:33 4-5, and didn't threaten the world track record of 2:31 3-5 made last year in this race by Good Time, leading money-winning harness horse of the world. Direct Rhythm was driven by Del Miller of Meadow Lands, Pa.

Prince Adios was followed by Wilmington's Star, R. L. Craig, Urbana, Ohio; Guinea Gold, Pearle S. Hungerford, Shelbyville, Ind.; Solicitor, Hanover (Pa.) Shoe Farms; Irish Hal; and Prince Jay.

Canadian Golfers Defeat British Team

FORMBY, England (Reuters)—The touring Canadian women's golf team Thursday defeated a British junior women's team, 4-1, with two matches halved, but took second place to the senior British team in a four-day Commonwealth tournament which ended the same day.

Final results: Britain, 16½ points (of a possible 21); Canada, 12½; British Juniors, 7; New Zealand, 5.

Marlene Stewart, 19-year-old Canadian and British champion from Fonthill, Ont., was held to a draw by 18-year-old Janet Robertson. Miss Stewart lost both her other singles games in the tournament.

She teamed with Mrs. J. H. Todd of Victoria to win one of Thursday's foursomes, however, one up over Miss J. Robertson and Miss A. Phillips.

Mary Gay of Waterloo, Ont., halved her match with Miss J. Redgate.

Stole Paper, Fined

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Allan Eddy, 26, was fined $15 and costs of $10.50 after he was convicted Thursday of stealing a newspaper from a self-service street corner box.

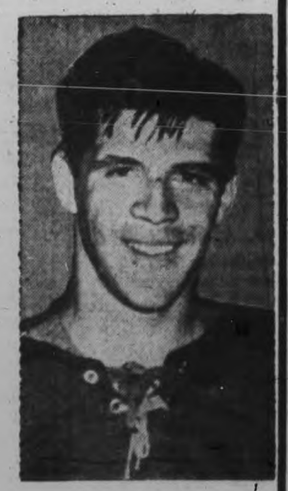
TO OPPOSE CANADA

NEW YORK (AP) — Mexico's three-man Davis Cup tennis team arrived Thursday to get in 10 days of practice on Forest Hills' grass courts. Mario Llamas, Rafael Ortega and Francisco Contreras will meet Canada in Montreal July 17-18-19 in a first-round match in North American zone Davis Cup eliminations.

Support The Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association!

How Your Donation Helps the Youngsters Of Peterborough

For the past six years the Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association has been operating teams in tadpole, peewee, bantam, midget and juvenile leagues. From fifteen to twenty teams are formed each year. A full-time supervisor is employed during the summer months, to properly instruct the youth of Peterborough, in the game of lacrosse. Don Ashbee, coach of the P.M.L.A., is an experienced senior player and is considered well qualified to instruct the players of the minor leagues.



Along with operating city leagues, teams from each league, are entered in Ontario lacrosse playoffs, thus affording them competition with out-of-town teams. The work of the P.M.L.A. is highly regarded in Ontario Lacrosse circles.

Lads of all ages are welcomed at Miller Bowl. They are placed on a team and receive the benefits of good coaching. Lacrosse sticks are provided for those who require them.

A considerable amount of money is required to carry out this program. To raise a portion of the required funds, players, team managers and girl taggers from the Minor Lacrosse Association will be selling tasty packages of Life Savers on Saturday, July 4th. Say Provincial Spending To Set Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Total revenues and spending by Canada's 10 provinces likely will climb to all-time highs in the current fiscal year ending March 31, 1954, the bureau of statistics estimated Thursday.

Total net general revenues are forecast at a peak of $1,197,789,000, up about $136,000,000 from the previous high of $1,060,000,000 in the last fiscal year.

Net general expenditures, after deducting provisions for debt retirement, are expected to rise to a high of $1,277,015,000 from $1,142,000,000 last year.

Revenue increases are forecast for all provinces with the exception of a decline for Newfoundland.

Estimate of net general revenues by provinces with last year's figures in brackets:

Ontario $333,486,000 ($288,493,000); Quebec, $289,275,000 ($262,282,000); Newfoundland $30,947,000 ($21,194,00); Prince Edward Island $7,044,000 ($6,567,000); Nova Scotia $45,942,000 ($43,747,000); New Brunswick $45,338,000 ($42,997,000); Manitoba $53,009,000 ($45,733,00); Saskatchewan $85,094,000 ($72,583,000); Alberta $125,483,000 ($106,382,000); British Columbia $182,061,000 ($159,648,000).

General spending:

Ontario $435,325,000 ($364,349,000); Quebec $277,831,00 ($251,143,00); Newfoundland $33,236,000 ($30,652,000); Prince Edward Island $7,777,000 ($7,747,000); Nova Scotia $52,107,000 ($45,787,000); New Brunswick $46,153,000 ($42,303,000); Manitoba $47,073,000 ($40,652,000); Saskatchewan $84,249,000 ($79,611,000); Alberta $8,249,0000 ($99,609,00); British Columbia $174,086,000 ($179,862,000).

HIDDEN CORNERSTONE—Probing for the cornerstone of the Ontario Hospital which was formerly Victoria College in Cobourg, officials are trying to decide if the hollow stone they have located in the wall is really the cornerstone before they attempt to open up the wall. A drill from the outside located a hollow in the stone at the southeast corner of the building. New they are checking from the inside. Working on the job are (left to right) Bob Jackson, maintenance staff, Ontario Hospital; Ted Clamp, chief engineer, and William Chipman, superintendent of mechanical services, Department of Health for Ontario. The board of governors of Victoria College want the original cornerstone of the college for the new building.

Judge Reserves Decision On Reporter

VANCOUVER (CP) — Decision has been reserved by Mr. Justice Norman Whittaker in a case involving the right of a reporter to conceal his sources of information.

The case is a libel suit brought by Gordon S. Wismer, former attorney-general of British Columbia, against Maclean-Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd., of Toronto and Blair Fraser, Ottawa correspondent for Maclean's Magazine.

Mr. Justice Whittaker reserved decision Tuesday on an application for an order to compel Mr. Fraser to give the names of persons who gave him information on which he based an article entitled: "BC Coalition Commits Suicide."

TRY TO FORCE ANSWER

The move by Mr. Wismer's counsel, Senator J. W. deB. Farris, was an attempt to compel Mr. Fraser to answer questions put to him in a pre-trial examination in Toronto May 13.

Meanwhile, Mr. Fraser and his publishers have an appeal coming up in September from Mr. Justice A. M. Manson's order of June 9 that they give full particulars of their defence.

D. N. Hossie, counsel for the defendants, argued that the freedom of the press includes its right to refuse to disclose the source of information.

MISS FRANCES FINE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathen Fine, 17 Childternhill Rd., Toronto, and former residents of Peterborough, and granddaughter of Mrs. Ida Goldberg, Montreal, recently graduated with her bachelor of arts degree at the University of Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Fine moved from the city to Toronto five years ago.

Strips To Bathing Suit While Testifying In Court

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP)—A one-time resident of Collingwood, Ont., appeared in federal district court Thursday.

"I want to offer my defence in both mental and physical briefs," said Harold Marshall.

Then he proceeded to strip down to blue swimming trunks.

He seized the court Bible, on which he had sworn only moments before to "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," and presented it to the startled district judge, Harold P. Burke.

"This is my defence," he said, arms akimbo.

Marshall, full-bearded and with hair hanging to his shoulders, said he was a vegetarian and a one-time butcher.

CLEARS COURT

Burke, taken aback by the unusual defence, cleared the court of feminine spectators. Then he and the U.S. marshals supervised the 32-year-old defendant as he resumed his checked shirt and blue trousers.

Burke directed that Marshall, charged with illegal entry from Canada, be returned to the Monroe county jail. The judge also reserved decision.

Marshall, who stands six feet tall and weighs 170 pounds, pleaded innocent.

He told a reporter that he had never felt better in his life than since he became a vegetarian a year ago and gave up the restraints of his modern life for the open road.

HAS NO BORDERS

"Borders don't exist in my mind," he said. "I feel it's the natural thing to do to migrate south in the winter and north in the summer."

And that's where the trouble came in. The government claimed that Marshall ignored the border between the U.S. and Canada and walked across the international railway bridge between Fort Erie, Ont., and Buffalo without benefit of customs.

Marshall said his last "permanent" residence was in Collingwood. He said he left a wife and step-daughter there a year ago after giving up everything else to pay for a home for them.

COVENTRY, England (CP)—Work has started on quarrying 20,000 tons of pink-grey sandstone for the rebuilding of war-bombed Coventry Cathedral. The stone hewn in blocks of four or five tons each, is being quarried in Staffordshire.

House Approves Air Force Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-dominated House of Representatives rolled up a major victory for President Eisenhower Thursday when it approved his $5,000,000,000 slash in air force funds for the next 12 months.

Then it passed a $34,434,000,000 bill to finance all the armed forces.

By a roll-call vote of 230 to 161, the House rejected a Democratic-led move to restore $1,175,000,000 of the $5,000,000,000 reduction recommended by the Eisenhower administration.

The vote marked the end of the first phase in the bitter dispute over the administration's call for a reduced air force budget—a move hotly challenged by top brass of the air force.

Police Seek 2 Youths After Man Wounded

SAUBLE FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police said Thursday night they are trying to locate two youths who had been seen with rifles in the vicinity of the home of Fred York, 60, of Kitchener when he was shot in the back by a stray bullet earlier in the day.

Investigators said York was talking to his wife while inspecting the basement of his home when he was shot. They said he attempted to drive his car to reach help but collapsed before he reached help and was brought to hospital in Owen Sound, 15 miles northwest of here. His condition was reported as satisfactory.

Court Asked Refuse Licence

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. court of appeals has been asked to prohibit the federal power commission from granting a licence to New York state to join with a Canadian agency in construction of the $600,000,000 St. Lawrence river power project.

A petition seeking the writ of prohibition was filed with the court Wednesday by John H. Coffman, counsel for Public Power and Water Corp., Trenton, N.J.

Public Power and New York are applicants before the FPC for authority to construct the St. Lawrence project.

Glen R. Law, a commission examiner, has recommended that the FPC reject Public Power's application and accept that made by the power authority of New York state.

Parties to the proceedings have eight days in which to file an answer to Public Power's petition in the court of appeals.

Hope To Learn Fliers' Fate

HALIFAX (CP)—Did two Americans survive the crash of their civilian plane and then perish in the Labrador wilds while trying to walk to civilization, or are they living with a remote Indian or Eskimo tribe?

A 10-man RCAF ground party is attempting to find the answer in the desolate scrub country 90 miles southeast of Goose Bay, Labrador, where a twin-engined Beechcraft crashed Oct. 16 on a flight from New York to Goose Bay.

The bodies of its two crew members, Francis McLaughlin of North Hollywood, Calif., and J. Kurtz of Brooklyn, N. Y., were not found in the wreckage, reached Tuesday by a ground party after an Indian trapper discovered it last week.

A Canso amphibian Thursday flew in seven fresh searchers, led by FO. W. Stockdale of North Bay, Ont., and they spent the night in the rocky, lake-dotted country after a day's searching for a trail the men may have taken.

NEW YORK (AP) — Burglars Thursday broke into the apartment of Mrs. Dorothy Schiff, publisher of the New York Post, and stole jewels valued at $25,000, police reported.

Rhee One Of World's Most Stubborn Men

By FORREST EDWARDS

SEOUL (AP)—When President Syngman Rhee was told Sir Winston Churchill, a man of his own age, had denounced him in the British Parliament, the South Korean snorted:

"That old man doesn't know the opium war is over."

That's Syngman Rhee, outspoken, 78-year-old fighter and kook boo—national father—of the Republic of Korea.

One hundred and 77 years ago Saturday a handful of weakling American colonies proclaimed their unified independence, went to war, and won it.

Today that nation, the world's most powerful force for democracy and freedom, is on the verge of splitting with the slight, wrinkled, old man who has fought all his adult life for the unity and independence of his own small country.

What kind of a man is this Syngman Rhee, who has led his fledgling Republic of Korea to the brink of parting with the United States after three years of fighting together against a Communist aggressor?

He has been imprisoned, tortured, exiled, but he has never wavered in his fight for an independent, unified Korea—first against the Korean monarchy, then against the Japanese conquerors, and now against the Communists.

In his 78 years he has been called many things besides patriot—a revolutionist, a radical, a reactionary, a dictator who has crushed wherever possible those who opposed him even when their motives were as patriotically inspired as his own.

His brand of democracy is not the brand the West knows. He believes in freedom of speech and freedom of the press only when it is not directed against him or his regime.

Held "in protective custody," today in Seoul's Westgate jail is Chough Pyong Ok, Opposition party leader who dared two weeks ago to brand as "unwise" Rhee's release of 27,000 anti-Communist prisoners of war in defiance of United Nations attempts to secure an armistice.

Despite his age, Rhee is not senile. His mind still is quick, active, keen. He has a good grasp of world problems. American diplomats who have pleaded, cajoled and fought with him on truce problems can testify that he is not subject to blandishment, not swayed by persuasion.

His greatest disappointment has been what he considers his abandonment by the United Nations at a time when he considers military victory still possible in renewal of all-out war against the Communists.

He has no faith in a post-armistice political conference, little faith in the success of a "peaceful unification" of Korea.

He has fought against an armistice on the present battle line since the talks began nearly two years ago. He believes that there is only one justifiable cease-fire line—on the Yalu river boundary between North Korea and Manchuria.

At press conferences with foreign correspondents he is good humored, earnest, eloquent, and frequently repetitious. If he has a point he wishes to emphasize, he is adept at finding ways to inject

Although he rules Korea with an iron hand, Rhee is widely and genuinely popular with the masses and respected and admired by his close associates.

Their feelings for Rhee apparently extend without reservation to his Austrian-born wife, 20 years his junior. She is treated with respect by Koreans in Rhee's inner circle.

How much she influences Rhee in affairs of state has long been the subject of conjecture. Only this week, after a competent source said Rhee had reneged on original acceptance of President Eisenhower's offers of aid in return for Rhee's acceptance of an armistice, she called the source and gave him a severe dressing down.

Soviet Theory Of Genetics Said Dictated By Stalin

WASHINGTON (AP)—The man credited with establishing the Soviet theory of genetics, ridiculed outside the Iron Curtain as political puppetry, now says the whole idea was Stalin's.

Prof. T. D. Lysenko labelled his statement an "eulogy" to the late Russian prime minister.

But the statement, published today by the magazine Science, might be interpreted in the West as an attempt to get off the scientific hook.

It says Stalin dictated to Lysenko how he was to present the theory that acquired characteristics of a plant or animal may be passed on to offspring.

Many Western scientists denounced Lysenko as a tool of the Communist party and ridiculed his paper when it appeared in 1948. Nevertheless, it was adopted as doctrine by the central committee of the all-Russian Communist party.

MANY KICKED OUT

As a result, many leading Russian scientists who didn't go along with the theory were kicked out of high teaching posts in agricultural and other colleges.

Then, under Stalin's direction, the whole system of teaching biology in Russia was changed to fit the theories approved by the politicians.

The theory that acquired characteristics of a plant or animal may be passed on to its offspring conflicts with Mendel's explanation of heredity, developed during more than 80 years of work by scientists throughout the world.

The Mendel explanation is that characteristics are determined by genes, an element of germ plasma. This theory says changes in characteristics are created through breeding and the combining of various sets of genes which individuals may possess.

FALSE THEORY

Scientists who criticized Lysenko said the Communists were trying to teach a false theory that plants and animals can be changed by exposing them to favorable environment, and that the desirable characteristics they acquire will be passed on to their offspring. Thus, changes might be produced much faster than by the long process of seed or animal selection used in conventional breeding methods.

Lysenko's "eulogy" first was published by Pravda, official organ of the Communist party. It was sent, translated, to Science magazine by Ivan D. London of Brooklyn College.

Lysenko's statement said Stalin first pointed to the significance of the theory of acquired characteristics. It said, too, that it was Stalin who personally helped prepare the scientific paper by Lysenko that touched off the round of criticism from non-Communist scientists.

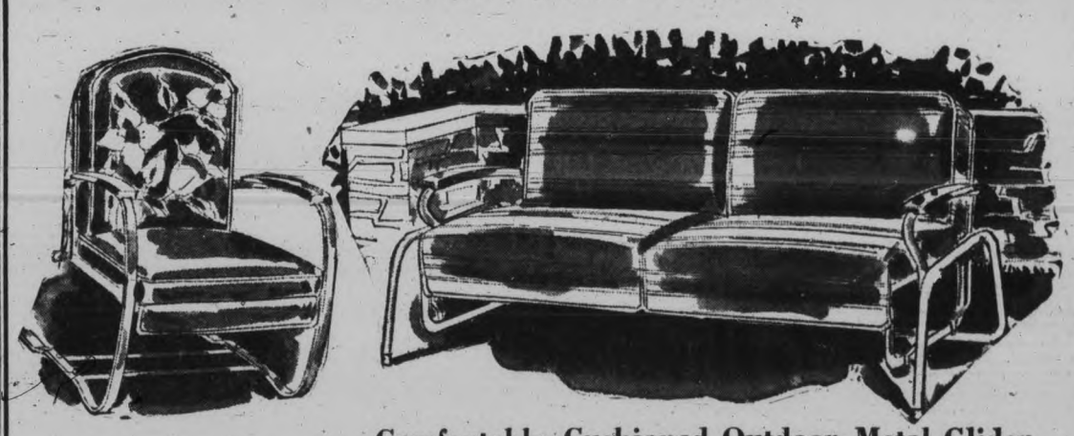
"He (Stalin) directly edited the plan of my paper; in detail explained to me his corrections; provided me with directions as to how to write certain passages in the paper," Lysenko wrote.

CGIT Makes Plans For Summer Camp

KEENE (ENS).—The CGIT met with the president, Shirley Cruikshanks, in the chair.

The worship service opened with a sing-song followed by prayer by June McNevan and scripture reading by Carol McNevan.

Audrey Wood rendered a piano solo and Joy Ellison read a poem. Erline Sexsmith read a story, after which a hymn was sung and June McNevan took up the collection.



The roll call was answered by 14 members. It was agreed that the vice-president would take the chair for the next meeting. Forms were handed out to the girls wishing to attend camps during the summer and plans were discussed.

A recitation was given by Betty Eason and the meeting closed with the playing of games under the leadership of Mrs. Ross McIntyre. The next meeting will be held July 14.

Discover Imprint Of Emperors, Composers Strong In Vienna

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Imperial Hapsburgs or famous composers—it is difficult to say which has left the most imprint on Vienna.

In material evidence, the Hapsburgs win, for much of the city is dominated by vast buildings and open spaces of imperial magnificence.

Spiritually, however, the composers win, for they seem to be still almost living presences, while the Hapsburgs speak of the past.

One sees where Beethoven, Schubert, Mozart, lived and worked. Wagner, Liszt, Greig once stayed at the very hotel which housed most of the Canadian delegates to the May congress of the International Chamber of Commerce.

To come back to the Hapsburgs: One of the most unreal experiences in Vienna is to visit the place where they have been laid to rest for 300 years and more. It seems unreal because one doesn't expect to find them where they are, but rather in some imperial pantheon, or in old St. Stephen's Cathedral.

STRANGE SPOT

Instead, one finds them in the crypt of a rather unprepossessing Capuchin church, whose pinkish, stuccoed front is flush with a street off one of Vienna's busiest squares —Neuer Markt. They rest almost among small stores and tooting taxis, though over them is the benediction of a monastery garden and a church which is old, despite its plain exterior.

Inside the church lie in neat order the sealed coffins of some 150 Hapsourgs, in the care of Capuchin monks.

The bodies of Maria Theresa, empress for 40 years, (1740-80), and her husband, Francis, lie in a great affair of intricately-worked pewter which would fill an ordinary-sized room, with life-like figures of the two in reclining positions on top. Inside, but unseen, are the individual wooden coffins, enclosed in lead coffins.

MANY SIMPLE

Some others, including that of Emperor Charles VI, are similar, but much smaller. Most, however, are relatively simple, many of them of lead or copper.

From these solemn surroundings one went to the beautiful summer palace which most of the Hapsburgs have known since Maria Theresa, the empress whose presence still seems to dominate it. It has 1,400 rooms, compared, for instance, to Buckingham Palace's 600.

In the first public reception there since before Hitler came in, the present-day rulers of the Austrian republic received their guests with the easy friendliness of democracy; although, one thought, much of the mantle of courtly grace had descended on them.

Will Investigate Scanty Apparel

OTTAWA (CP)—Suburban Eastview council is going to make an investigation to decide how to define "scanty apparel."

A councillor said Thursday night that women who went about the streets scantily dressed were "creating a storm of disapproval" from certain residents.

"But," asked Mayor Gordon Lavergne, "when are shorts short?"

That's what the investigation will decide, council decided.

Couple Married On Ambassador Bridge

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Ambassador bridge spanning the Detroit river served as a wedding chapel Thursday for the third time in recent months.

Married at the boundary between Canada and the United States were Frida Dammers, 28, a German immigrant now residing here, and Deral D. Simmons, 54, of Detroit.

Judge David C. Vokes, Detroit, performed the wedding.

The couple left on a honeymoon in Ontario before newspapermen arrived. Judge Vokes said he did not know why the couple chose the unusual spot for the wedding.

However, it was presumed, as in the previous bridge weddings, one was a Canadian immigrant who lacked a visa to enter the U.S. and the other had been divorced and could not be married here because the divorce was not recognized in Ontario.

Cattle Receipts Down During Week

TORONTO (CP) — Receipts of cattle were down slightly from last week at the Ontario stockyards this week. Cattle prices dropped $1 to $2 bringing the market to its lowest prices since 1948. Calves were $3 to $5 lower in spots while hogs and lambs held steady. Hold-over at the close was 800 cattle. The market was closed July 1.

A light cattle run of 4,237 head was added to 1,200 carried from last week. Choice light steers $18-18.50; one early lot $20; choice heavy $17.25-17.75; good light $17-18; plain as low as $12; good heifers $17.50-18; a few at $18.50; plain $12-15; choice fed yearlings were $20-21 Monday and $18.50-19.50 Tuesday; mediums $15-17; good cows and bulls $13-13.50; a few tops $14; canners downward to $8; plain bulls $10-12; medium to good stockers sold in small lots at $17-19 with one top load $20.50.

Calves totalled 1,338 head. The market dropped $3-5 with some unsold. Opening tops were $23-24; sales on Tuesday were medium to good $12-17; a few tops at $20.

Hogs were 2,203 head. Prices were steady at $32 for grade A; dressed sows $23.

Sheep and lambs were 717 head. Good lambs were steady at $28; culls $20-24; common to medium sheep $5-8; a few good light ewes up to $10.

Christie May Get Stay Of Execution

LONDON (AP) — The government indicated Thursday sex-slayer John Christie, whose hanging has been fixed for July 15, may be granted a stay of execution.

Sir Hugh Tooth, undersecretary in the home office, told the House of Commons a stay could be granted if a "public inquiry" is ordered into the hanging in 1950 of Timothy John Evans.

Misgivings over the Evans case were raised in Parliament after Christie, self-confessed slayer of seven women, admitted at his own murder trial last week he killed Evans' pretty young wife. Mrs. Evans was found strangled with her 14-month-old daughter.

WHERE POPPIES BLOW

ARTHUR ROSE who left Millbrook 72 years ago as a young man of 20 to pioneer in Manitoba when the country was just opening up, returned to Peterborough this week for a holiday. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

"With 17 yoke of oxen and 67 men, we boarded the train and left Millbrook with the Sowden Colonization Co., heading for the Plum Creek area of Manitoba." So ninety-one-year old pioneer Arthur Rose began his story of his part in the birth and growth of Souris, Manitoba.

"We left home on April 5, 1881 and eight days later we landed in Winnipeg—and that was the end of the train ride. There was no bridge across the Red River in those days. We unloaded the oxen and started the drive to Plum Creek, (that was the name of the Post Office there at that time, it was later changed to Souris, which is French for 'little mouse').

"We crossed the Assiniboine on the ferry at Curry's Landing and pushed on with every kind of weather and unknown land ahead of us. There were no stoves but the wood of the Red Willow would always burn regardless of the rain so we managed to keep from freezing. My brother Alex and I were young and hardy anyway and didn't mind the hardships, but some of the others suffered quite a bit."

KEPT SPIRITS HIGH

The late A. E. Hetherington, a senior member of the colonizing party, described Mr. Rose as being a real wit, helping to keep the party in high spirits during the long and tedious trek.

"On the evening of May 1, 1881, We got our first view of Plum Creek and the valley it had cut on its way to join the Souris river."

A year before, Capt. Gilbert Wood had halted his covered wagon and witnessed the same sight. He pronounced it, "a beautiful district", the best he had seen in two months travel throughout Manitoba. The Sowden settlers agreed and Plum Creek became the new home of the Millbrook pioneers.

"My brother and I spent the next few days scouting the surrounding country selecting the land we wanted for our 'homesteads'. We settled on two strips of 320 acres apiece, which ran parallel to each other and hiked to mouth of Souris river where the land office was and filed our claim. The first 160 acres sold for ten dollars and if after three years you had 'proofed-up' (made a go of the farm), the preemption, or other 160 acres could be purchased for $2.50 an acre."

SETTLED DOWN

Arthur and Alex Rose built sod stables for their livestock and one log shanty for themselves. "Most of the others built sod shanties to live in with their families — the sod makes a warmer dwelling, but Alex and I were 'batching it' and as long as there was plenty of food we didn't mind the rest."

For the first few years the two brothers had to haul their wheat 30 miles to the rail depot at Brandon and during this time they raised large numbers of hogs. The fourth winter, Arthur spent at home visiting his family, but he returned in the spring to spend the next 50 years working his farm.

In 1891, Catherine Douglas, who had come with her family from Lindsay to Souris in 1885, became the wife of Arthur Rose. After 50 years of farming and raising a family of six girls and one boy, the couple retired to Souris. Mrs. Rose died last year but Mr. Rose, the last of the Souris pioneers, still lives there. He enjoys excellent health, rises early every morning and often mows the lawn and does the general chores about his home. He makes one trip a day to the local post office.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

On his 90th birthday all the members of his family were present including: Mrs. G. T. Taylor, of Holland; Mrs. E. M. Craig, of Wilmar; Mrs. W. G. Pilling, of Port Colborne; Mrs. L. B. Powell, Mrs. W. C. Butler, Mrs. Bert Clark and Douglas Rose, all of Souris.

Mr. Rose was born in Dummer township, Sept. 6, 1861, one of seven sons of the late David Rose and Anna Anderson. Five of his brothers, John, Alexander, Duncan James, David and the Rev. George Rose have died.

At present Mr. Rose is visiting his only living brother, Tom, at his home on the River Rd. south. He will be leaving for his home in Souris in the near future, planning to go by boat from Port McNicholl to Port Arthur and the rest of way by train.

US Woman Hurt In Crash At Dale

COBOURG—(ENS)— An Ohio woman is in Civic Hospital today as a result of an accident Thursday at Dale Corners, north of Port Hope. She is Miss Helen Haught, 51, of East Liverpool, Ohio.

Miss Haught suffered a fractured arm and multiple lacerations and abrasions when the car in which she was a passenger smashed into a turning truck at the intersection of Highways 28 and 106.

Two other U.S. tourists, Mrs. Sarah Dexter and the driver of the car, Harry Martin, were taken to Port Hope Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises. Condition of all three is satisfactory.

Provincial Constable C. Meadows of Cobourg who investigated said a truck driven by Edward Sullivan of Toronto was turning left off No. 28 to No. 106 when the accident occurred.

Martin was driving south at the time.

Employment Improves Tops 1952

June Unemployment Shows 5th Drop Situation "Fair"

Employment conditions during June in the Peterborough district were described today as a "decided improvement over last year" and "fairly satisfactory" by a National Employment office spokesman.

At the end of June the Peterborough office had only 720 city and district people on insurance claims. A year ago the office reported 1,359 drawing money, a little less than double this year's June total.

June was the fifth straight month this year that the office recorded a monthly decrease. The year's peak in January was 1,916. Then the monthly totals gradually decreased until there were only 786 on claims in May. June's decrease was the smallest in the five-month period.

During May and June the district office placed 185 men and women into summer resorts in the Kawarthas. This helped relieve the unemployment and decrease the monthly totals.

FULL TIME

At the same time the spokesman pointed out that a year ago a number of city and district factories were working short-weeks. These are now working full time with no layoffs in view.

The number of city people drawing unemployment insurance in June remained the same as in May, only 430. This is less than half last year's June city total of 1,034.

As in May when the major decrease was noted in the postal or district claim totals, the postal claims in June accounted for the slight decrease in the main total. The office had 290 district men and women on claims in June as compared with 325 a year ago and 358 in May.

At the same time the spokesman said the office in June had 1,061 men and women in city and district as job-hunting. This is slightly lower than 1952's figure of 1,149.

Job opportunities listed at the office showed 104 positions available, but these were mainly for highly skilled people. They had 42 jobs for men, especially for tool designers and steel inspectors, and 62 for women, mostly experienced typists and stenographers.

Reg Hugo of Winnipeg, Man., was re-elected president of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals at the final session, Thursday, of the federation convention being held at the Empress hotel.

Cooke, Winnipeg, Man.; directors, W. J. House, St. John's, Nfld.; Miss Irene McQuillan, Halifax, N.S.; Mrs. Tom Guy, St. John, N.B.; Mrs. E. H. Cook, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; Mrs. F. S. Control Stubborn Fire On Oil Bunkering Pier

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—A stubborn fire on an oil bunkering pier at East Saint John, on Courtenay Bay, was brought under control Thursday night.

Fire chief H. S. Knight estimated the damage would reach $100,000. Loss of fuel and equipment was estimated by Imperial Oil Limited at $10,000. A 1,000-foot stretch of the timber pier, owned by the national harbors board, was destroyed.

THIRTEEN BLOSSOMS—Thirteen may be an unlucky number of some people but it's a beautiful array of buds and blooms for Mrs. Offa Williamson, 252 McGill St. She has among her Madonna lilies one plant, three years old, with that number of blossoms. Among the other lilies along the east wall are a number of plants with nine and 10 blooms. Mrs. William (above) poses beside her prized plant. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Hatton Property Planned For 95 Permanent Homes

The former Hatton property at the west end of Charlotte St. is being re-subdivided for 95 permanent houses in a design that was approved by the city planning committee Thursday night, with Hubert Sills chairman. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is changing the lots from their present 40 foot frontage to 60 feet, is retaining the established streets and their names, and also providing a spacious central play area. Three entrances to this area will be 60 feet wide.

The property was purchased by the Crown in the name of Wartime Housing Corporation for the accommodation of workers during the war period coming to Peterborough factories engaged in the production of war material.

Adjacence of the site to manufacturing plants in the southwest section of the city gave it an advantage for the 125 temporary houses that were built by agreement with the city. Only four of them remain today, and their removal is in progress, virtually in precise fulfillment of the corporation's agreement.

The new terms and pattern of permanent housing will be sent on from the city planning committee to the city council and the Ontario Department of Planning and Development.

PREVENT SPECULATION

They include particularly a restriction to prevent speculation in the lots.

Sale of lots will be similar to the policy adopted at the Queen Elizabeth subdivision. Purchasers will not receive deeds until buildings reach the progress stage of first floor joists. A further condition calls for a minimum of 1,500 sqt. ft. of floor space in two-storey houses and 1,000 sq. ft. for a one-storey dwelling.

The area was divided into about 156 lots of 40 feet frontage in their original occupation. They were not all used. Temporary houses were erected on 125, and there was an additional building on the property that was converted to housing use.

The central part of the play area will be available for children and each of the three entrances has enough space for tot lots. Removal of the remaining four temporary houses will be effected in a few days, it was reported.

Little Damage Caused After Storm Warning

Little damage was reported Thursday night after the Peterborough area was warned of severe thunderstorms heading across Southern Ontario.

Lower Otonabee township sustained what damage there was when hydro line fuses blew out on rural side lines. Not more than a dozen or two dozen houses were affected, a hydro official reported today.

Bell Telephone and Department of Highways spokesmen reported nothing amiss following the storm today.

TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Judge John de N. Kennedy, judge of Peterborough County, has been appointed by Attorney General Dana Porter to be the third man on an arbitration board that will hear a wage dispute involving Ottawa police. Senator Arthur W. Roebuck, QC, is the nominee of the Ottawa police and J. C. Goldenberg is the nominee of the Ottawa Police Commission.

Car Rolls Over Three Injured

COBOURG (ENS)—A Toronto car carrying three hitchhikers and its driver, was totally wrecked early today when it left Highway 2 just east of here, broke a telephone pole and rolled two and a half times before coming to a stop.

In Cobourg General Hospital are Wilfred Pickard, soldier stationed at Picton, with fractured ribs and sternum; Joseph Lord, stationed at Trenton with the RCAF, who sustained a broken nose; and the driver, Harold Burnett of Toronto, suffering shock and cuts.

The third passenger, Desmond Gurnett, also stationed at Trenton, escaped unhurt.

OPP Constable Frank Clough of Cobourg who investigated said the car was rounding a curve on the highway when the accident occurred.

Quaker Workers Reject Compromise Offer; "Our Last Word"—Faryon

Company President Says Union Has Made Practically No Concessions
Employees Vote 267-54 Against Terms

Quaker Oats Co. production workers Thursday night voted 267 to 54 to reject a company compromise offer to settle the strike which is now in its 11th week. The unanimous recommendation of the union's negotiating committee, under the leadership of William Triggs, president of Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), was to reject the company offer. Thus the union backed up their negotiating committee by nearly five to one.

"That's our last word," was the comment today of Reginald R. Faryon, president of the Quaker Oats Co. of Canada. "We've made practically all of the concessions while the union has made practically none."

JAM INTO HALL

Altogether 323 workers jammed into the hall to mark their ballots on which were printed: "Are you in favor of accepting the last offer of the Quaker Oats Co. of Canada?"

In the secret vote 267 marked an "X" beside "No" and 54 voted "Yes." Two ballots were spoiled.

The perspiring crowd took up every available seat in the third-storey union hall. Extra chairs were brought in but they were not enough to seat all the membership. Some stood and others sat or squatted on the floor to hear the speakers.

It was the biggest gathering of the membership since the strike began on April 22.

President Triggs hammered with his gavel for order as he opened the meeting. He announced the purpose of the meeting and then said, bluntly:

"I want to tell you right now what your negotiating committee told the government conciliation officer (James Hutcheon). The committee said if this is the last offer made by the company then it would be turned down . . . The executive unanimously recommend that this local union turn this offer down."

SHOUTS OF APPROVAL

Mr. Triggs' statement met with cheers and whistles and shouts of approval.

William Beggs, UPWA staff representative, reviewed the long negotiations leading up to the strike and what has happened since. He said that swing shifts "have been and probably will continue to be the most important item."

Sam Hughes, UPWA Eastern Canadian director, also urged the membership to vote "No."

"The company offer doesn't amount to anything more than this: They are willing to pay you, a year and a half later, rates that are already being paid in the Robin Hood and Maple Leaf mills in Port Colborne ($1.39½ base rate)."

Mr. Hughes also reminded the membership that there were 130 production workers on strike at

Isolation Hospital To Be Listed With Board

The vacant Queen Mary Hospital building on Langton St. will be listed for sale with the Peterborough Real Estate Board.

This was the recommendation of the property committee of the council with Ald. H. S. Longhurst chairman Thursday afternoon. Application of Ernest Ridout Real Estate Co. for exclusive listing was not granted.

Any offers received by the real estate board are to be submitted to the property committee for consideration and their recommendation to the council for acceptance. They must be accompanied by information and undertaking in detail as to the use to which the building will be put by a purchaser.

The council will retain the right of refusal or acceptance of any tender. In the meantime City Clerk Outram as property manager was authorized to get an estimate of the cost of repairing the roof.

Property committee received a letter reporting that Ontario Provincial Police have renewed their lease of the present tenancy of the house at Charlotte and Park Sts., and are not interested in the city's building at Water and McDonnel Sts. It was used by municipal Department of Health until offices were provided in the City Hall.

The committee recommended to council that no action be taken at present for providing public toilet facilities at the market, corner of George and Rink Sts. It was reported recently to the council that service station owners of the neighborhood had closed their toilet doors to the market vendors and customers. As an alternative, it was suggested that some arrangement might be made with the Peterborough Lacrosse Club for the use of the toilets at Miller Bowl. That would require an attendant for part of the time on market days. The committee is not convinced that investment by the city in market toilets is warranted.

Property manager was asked to obtain specifications and estimate of the cost of repairing Dixon House, also to get separate tenders for the eavestroughing.

Extensive Work On Norwood Fair Grounds, Including New Buildings, Under Way At An Approximate Cost of $36,000.... Northumberland Holstein Club to Honor Lindsay Anderson at Dinner November 11 .... Ontario Haying Hampered By Rain.

Norwood Fair turned a new leaf in its history last week with the breaking of ground for improvements of an estimated cost of $36,000.

Being a director of the Norwood Agricultural Society, the sponsors of the fair, must be quite a merry-go-round, except that they are not only moving, but they are going somewhere. In G. A. Brethen they have a president who is more than willing to carry the bulk of the work and worry.

The details of the building program were recently published in the Examiner in the stage of approaching the problem of finding the money.

To repeat briefly, the federal Department of Agriculture is contributing one-half the cost, or $18,000, the provincial department $9,000, and Norwood is raising the rest. Customers won't know the property next Thanksgiving Day. The fence and cattle cover along the east side have been removed and the grounds have been merged into the High School premises. At least no fence stands between them, and it is likely that the school property may provide some parking accommodation at Fair time.

There is a new building under way on the west side. Most of the ground to the south has been reduced in grade, excepting the knoll that affords a complete view of the grounds at Fair time. There is a horse barn and more parking space in that quarter.

Grading, rolling and seeding should make quite a lot of difference in appearance in the Fair grounds. The horse race circuit evidently is being left unchanged.

SUCCESSIVE ACTIVITIES

In recent years, the Norwood directors gave their approval to a Beaver Oats Club "derby," a fertilizer experiment, followed by the English Yorkshire Swine Club and now the western Hereford cattle club for young people. All that and the renovation of the Fair Grounds! And getting $36,000.

Norwood Fair simply refuses to fold up after Thanksgiving week, and suspend business for the rest of the year. Directors have been enlisting the support of the new Junior Farmers' Club, altogether East Peterborough in its Norwood focus is one of the liveliest rural spots in the province.

PEOPLE LIKE TO HELP

Mr. Brethen said the pay-off was mainly the aroused interest of his community, and the willingness to help. But, coming to Peterborough, he tells with gusto of the experience of a director who was assigned several years ago to call on the head of a Peterborough industry.

"No, no," was the brush-off. "Norwood Fair is of no value to us," when an "ad" in the prize list was proposed. The dismissal was swift and sore.

But this year in that office the reception was entirely different in tone.

"You people appear to be doing things down there," was the greeting. "Sure we'll take an 'ad'; glad to help you get along."

"That's a true story," Mr. Brethen told the Examiner. "And when we mentioned the cost of the "ad," this business man said: "You fix up the 'ad' and we'll send you a cheque for it and as much more."

"I could name a score of people in the city who are helping us with the prize list not just as a routine, but because they are convinced that Norwood is doing things. We've had a fine response from industry and business."

Controlling Dodder

Dodder is the number one enemy of clover crops. Prevention is the best means of control. tion is the best means of control, the Ontario Department of Agriculture recommends.

"Use only seed that has been officially graded by the Canadian Seed Laboratory. Under the Seeds Act, Dodder is classed as a prohibited noxious weed seed and seed containing Dodder cannot legally be offered for sale in Canada.

"At the first sign of Dodder, all crops must be cut before seed is oduced. If mature seed is present, the crop should be destroyed by burning to be sure that Dodder does not spread. Dodder must never be allowed to produce seed. Infested land should be summer-fallowed, followed by a good hoe crop. Seed may lie dormant in the soil for years but when sufficient moisture is present, seeds are more likely to germinate. Although cereals will not support Dodder, it will grow on broad leaved weeds and clovers, therefore be certain that fields are as weed-free as possible and seed down only with grasses."

Plan Anderson Dinner

Northumberland Holstein Club executive has decided to defer until November 11 a dinner in honor of Lindsay Anderson of the Campbellford area whose appointment to the staff of Massey-Harris Farms at Milliken became effective July 1.

Ralph Banbury, of Brighton, agricultural representative, writes: "The executive Friday night accepted with regret the resignation of Mr. Anderson who has been secretary for 20 years."

These two decades are the entire life of the county organization. In discussing organization, Mr. Anderson recalled that a local Holstein club was in existence for the Campbellford area, and that county plans were arranged by the late Ed. Butler of Brighton, who became the first president, and A. H. Martin, then agricultural representative and now director of the Crops, Seeds and Weeds branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto. Thought was given through the years by the club for the development of the breed and arrangements for sales outlets.

President John Goodfellow and vice-president Howard Evans have been authorized to look for a suitable secretary to succeed Mr. Anderson. He was also calf club leader in his home community since the beginning of that work, and manifested the quality of his interest by his attendance at leadership conferences in the district.

Earl Nelson, of Campbellford, is taking on that leadership now. He spent his boyhood years in club work under the training of Mr. Anderson, and with a Junior Farmer background as county president and provincial director is well qualified to direct the farm club.

"Mr. Anderson goes to the M.H. Farms as superintendent of the dairy herds. We are hoping that he will not forget the home county and may be with us on many occasions.

"The Quinte area loses an outstanding judge, but it is hoped that he may be back for the odd fair. The dinner November 11 is to be held in Wooler church. Its planning committee are: Wesley Down, Alfred Gooding and Jack Dorland.

"Plans were tentatively made for the Holstein Club banquet to be at Morganston again with Ralph Campbell as speaker. He is now head of the economics department of O.A.C., and was formerly a Junior Farmer in Hastings county."

A purebred Holstein owned by G. S. Macklin, Cobourg, has qualified for a red seal certificate of long-time production presented by the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada. She is Linmack Peerless Maud with an eight lactation twice-a-day milking lifetime total of 106,228 pounds milk containing 3,936 pounds fat, average test 3.71 per cent butterfat. Maud's largest individual record was made as an eight-year-old when she produced in 305 days 604 pounds fat from 15,918 pounds milk.

What Nitrogen Does

Crops in centre Cavan are looking "real good", Robert Armstrong said yesterday.

"These intermittent rains are delaying the haying a bit, and there is likely to be some damage in the field curing, but there is a heavy crop. Pasture, wheat, spring grains, all in good condition."

Mr. Armstrong says the contrasting strip that he deliberately missed in spring fertilizing of a field of wheat stands out more remarkably now than in the first stage of growth.

"I think even the heads are bigger and the field as a whole looks far better where it was fertilized. It is worth seeing right now."

Mr. Armstrong skipped a row in a light fertilizing of the field when the grain was coming through, and at ten inches the rest of the field was of fine color and vigor. But, the omitted row looked scrawny and lean without much promise of a worth while yield.

+ + +

Used Registered Seed

Stuart Bowman remarked yesterday that he had not seen in his district travels any better field of oats than on the farm of Thomas O'Rourke, west of Campbellford.

"Mr. O'Rourke told me that he bought the registered oats seed at the Central Ontario Spring Show. It was some of Robert Armstrong's Lorain. He spoke as being highly satisfied with the seed. It is his practice to sow top quality seed, and his farm looks like it."

Freight On Tomatoes

At the Northumberland Vegetable Growers Picnic last Saturday, W. I. Walker said freight rates had much to do with lack of sales of eastern packed tomatoes in the Canadian west. California could deliver a can for one cent as against "our charges that run about six cents a can to the same place."

Nearing Goal

Bruce county is nearing its goal of 100 Farm Forums, Lloyd Jasper of Mildmay said in his talk as invited speaker at Durham Federation picnic at Orono.

Making hay while the sun shines has been a figure of colloquial speech definitely traced to 1509. It can probably be found more remotely than Tudor times in the lore of the land. This phrase of enterprise may have been evoked in the beginning from the experience of the first foragers of antiquity. Such embossed fields as above still represent a good method of curing, but they are disappearing from the landscape in the effect of urban lure of labor. Higher wages left many farmers without seasonal reinforcement, and hastened the invention of the hay baler and the forage harvester. Whether in bales or stooks hay has been having a damp time of it during the last three weeks, and in most of the counties of Ontario. The crop is exceedingly heavy, but poor drying conditions have been preventing storage. This Otonabee picture was taken in promising sunshine, but how the field has fared since then, ten days ago, lacks report. Where bales have replaced the haycocks there will be no tempting comfort for Little Boy Blue to fall fast asleep and let the cows in the corn.

Big Hay Crop Waiting For Sun

With a big crop of hay staring their balers in the face, Ontario farmers have been marking time between rains in many of the counties.

At the beginning of this week, the report from York, in the centre of the province, was: 'Rain and poor drying conditions have prevented the storage of large amounts of hay. Pasture and hay crops are very heavy."

About 25 per cent of the Elgin crop has been taken off, Middlesex 50 per cent and Norfolk 75 per cent. Hastings says: "Continued rains have slowed up haying."

Weather in Welland was "excellent" through last week. But, Perth county: "Haying is making little headway on most farms."

Glengarry sounds more cheerful: "Considerable hay has been harvested under excellent conditions." Leeds: "Haying is proceeding rapidly, and earlier than usual."

From east to west, a notable expansion of grass silage practice is manifested. Prescott: "A good number of farmers are putting grass silage in upright silos, stacks and horizontal silos."

Grenville: "With the advent of the forage harvester, farmers are taking to the grass silage idea as if they had been brought up with it." . . . Huron: "More farmers than ever before in the county are putting up grass silage." . . . Wellington: "There is a good deal of interest shown in trench silos."

Some of the counties report wheat "fence high and beginning to turn." Lincoln: "Fall wheat is turning." . . . Huron: "Wheat is now completely headed out and is fence high."

Peterborough, Durham, Victoria, Northumberland mention some lodging in wheat fields.

Repeated in the survey is the comment indicating hay exceptionally heavy, and ranging from "tremendous" to "good"; and spring grains from "headed out" to only "four inches high."

This week's mirror of rural Ontario adds up to a big job on farmers' hands.

Drowns In Lake

TORONTO (CP) — William Hutchison, 16, was drowned Thursday while swimming in Lake Ontario at suburban Long Branch. Witnesses said he was in the water 20 minutes before the body was recovered. Firemen applied artificial respiration for more than an hour.

HEADS GOVERNMENT—Richard A. Butler, 50-year-old chancellor of the exchequer, has taken over the reins of the British government during the "complete rest" of Prime Minister Churchill. A shy, brilliant former professor called Rab, Butler will preside over cabinet meetings, referring only top foreign policy matters to Churchill for final decision. He has been touted as Churchill's successor ever since illness felled Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Dam Of Kirkton Hercules One Of Seven Imports For Louada Manor Farms

Delivery of four cows and three calves from the famed Kirkton herd of Shorthorn cattle, near Inverness, Scotland, is expected one of these days at Louada Manor Farms, on Pigeon Lake, in Harvey township, W. W. Donaldson, manager of the farms, informed the Examiner this week.

They are being held at Quebec for the usual period of two weeks in quarantine that is required of the import of agricultural livestock.

Shipment from Scotland was delayed since last autumn by circumstances affecting the time of their export.

"Shorthorn breeders, of course, know that the Kirkton herd was dispersed by auction sale on October 1st of last year," Mr. Donaldson said. "This is the first shipment of purebreds directly from Scotland to Canada during the twelve months ending in May, just passed."

"One of the cows, six years old, is the dam of Kirkton Hercules. He sold for 5,000 guineas at the 1950 Perth sale, and is now the chief stock bull of the Bampton herd in Kent, England."

"Hercules is one of the best Shorthorn breeding bulls in Great Britain. Two of his sons sold at the Perth sale and show in Februrary. They won their respecitve classes at the Shorthorn show, and sold at high figures, around 3,000 to 4,000 guineas each."

That is an indication of the quality of the latest accession of Shorthorn breeding stock in the herd of Louis Cadesky, the proprietor of Louada Manor Farms.

ACQUIRING FAME

"Anyone who knows the record of the Kirkton herd," Mr. Donaldson remarked, "will understand the importance of this purchase.

"They are outstanding cows and calves, and will obviously be a strong addition to Mr. Cadesky's herd which is now headed by the senior and junior sires, Louada Marshall and Calrossie Armada."

The senior bull has already made his mark in the Canadian show ring. At the Royal Winter Fair two years ago, the Supreme champion female and the reserve champion female, were the get of Louada Marshall. Last year at the C.N.E. he was winner of the "get of sire" class, and the champion bull was a son of Marshall, who was imported in dam from Scotland six years ago.

Calrossie Armada, two years old, was imported by Mr. Cadesky from the renowned herd of Captain John MacGillivray of Rosshire. He was bought at the Perth sale in the spring of 1952, and at the price of 7,900 guineas he was the second highest priced bull ever to come to Canada. The equivalent at that time in Canadian currency was $23,520, and by the time he reached Louada Manor Farms the Cadesky investment in this young bull was approximately $25,000.

Quite a number of the daughters of Louada Marshall have already been graduated into the breeding herd with the imported cows and calves with which it was founded. Calrossie Armada's first calves are already showing the vigor and type that was hoped for and expected of them.

LOU CADESKY'S PROJECT

The Louada Manor herd now consists of 125 head, in pasture these summer days, but with their own estate of three capacious modern barns and some 1,400 acres of farm land. Its development readily points the way back to Lou Cadesky's calculated project. That was nearly seven years ago when he conceived the idea of building up a purebred herd of Shorthorns based on imports from Scotland. This is a breeder's herd as distinct from a commercial beef herd, and its reputation has already become widely circulated. Incidentally, the farthest delivery of a junior animal from Louada Manor was to a Shorthorn breeder in California.

Establishment of a herd of cattle that quality is not easily of soon accomplished, but the owner of Louada Manor Farms should be pretty well satisfied already with the record his stock has made.

Mr. Cadesky is not a man of many words, but his attitude toward his Shorthorns is reflected in the way he walks among them in the field, and with a special stroking of his senior sire, remembering that supreme championship to its credit at the Royal.

Manifestly the project at Pigeon Lake was not lightly adopted. That fact stands out from the very beginning of the founding of the herd, and is amplified by the purchase of Calrossie Armada last year, and now the arrival in Canada of the seven Kirkton females, including the dam of "Hercules".

The Examiner asked Mr. Cadesky what objective he had in his planning when he made the decision that now brings Shorthorn breeders up to the west border of Peterborough county.

THE CADESKY PURPOSE

"I thought we might be able to have here one of the outstanding Shorthorn herds in Canada," was his reply. "That would be some contribution in developing a herd in this country of the breed of cattle that many of the best farmers in Great Britain, through generations did so much for."

Just as a recent example of the attention the Cadesky Shorthorns attract, Mr. Donaldson was expecting this week a visit from John McWilliams, manager of the Massey-Harris farms at Milliken, accompanied by Alan Wright a young farmer from Northern Ireland whose father is the owner of the Prumplestown Shorthorns "just about the best in Ireland".

Mr. Wright is on tour of the United States and Canada, and his itinerary included Louada Manor Farms in Harvey township.

The property provided abundant forage for the cattle last year, with some surplus when the meadows were green again. They have been making hay again, Mr. Donaldson said, "and it looks like another big crop."

One of the words that has become shiny with much use particularly of late, and properly so in the press stories of the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth, is "fabulous".

FABULOUS AND ACTUAL

In one aspect, at least, it applies to the Pigeon Lake farms. A layman motoring along the road that stems off the Peterborough-Bobcaygeon road into the Cadesky estate might notice the roan cattle grazing in lush pasturage. To him, they would probably be just another herd of cattle, and he might be sufficiently agriculturally informed to notice that they were Shorthorns.

Tell him that the Armada bull cost something like $25,000 to place in that field and that the calves and yearlings are of direct descent from two of Scotland's famous herds, and he would probably agree that the superlative adjective was not overdrawn in that pastoral scene.

And, it was Mr. Donaldson who remarked that possibly Calrossie's cost might be realized from this year's sales from the herd. One of the details of information he mentioned was that six men are required to take care of those purebreds during the winter.

Mr. Cadesky said that when he was thinking about Shorthorns for that section of Harvey, "some of the neighbours told me that from long experience with that breed in the township they believed there was something extra in the soil that made good grazing. We've been here now long enough to agree with them. The cattle do well on our grass.

"Don't they look it?"

LOUIS CADESKY, Toronto, proprietor of Louada Manor Farms, in Harvey township, was expecting delivery this week of four cows and three calves from widely known Kirkton herd of Shorthorn cattle, Inverness, Scotland. One of the cows is dam of Kirkton Hercules, a great stock bull in Great Britain, which, at the Perth sale in 1950 went to the Bampton herd in Kent, (Eng.) for 5,000 guineas. The proprietor of Louada Manor Farms is shown here with his senior herd sire, Louada Marshall, imported in dam, sire of the supreme female champion at the 1951 Royal Winter Fair. The Cadesky herd now numbers 125 head, with housing of three barns and forage from about 1,400 acres, an important Shorthorn breeding establishment. "I'd like to have in Harvey Township one of the best Shorthorn herds in Canada," Mr. Cadesky remarked to the Examiner the other day.

Say Matthews Attacking Clergy In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—J. B. Matthews, Red-hunting aide to Senator Joseph McCarthy, has been accused by three Democrats of launching "a shocking and unwarranted attack against the American clergy."

The outcry was stirred by an article Matthews wrote in the July issue of the American Mercury magazine alleging that "the largest single group supporting the Communist apparatus in the United States today is made up of Protestant clergymen."

McCarthy, saying he has "not the remotest intention of investigating the clergy under any circumstances," rallied to Matthews defence Thursday.

"This is hardly an attack upon the Protestant clergy," McCarthy said in a prepared statement which noted the article also said "it hardly needs to be said that the vast majority of American Protestant clergymen are loyal to the free institutions of this country."

Matthews took over a week ago as staff director of the Senate investigations sub-committee which McCarthy heads.

Senator John McClellan of Arkansas, W. Stuart Symington of Missouri and Henry Jackson of Washington, all Democrats, petitioned McCarthy to call a special closed door meeting "to consider appropriate action." McCarthy said the meeting probably would be held Tuesday.

Cobourg Boy Scout Winner Special Conduct Award

COBOURG (ENS)—Jim Tyson, nine-year-old Creighton Heights cub troop member, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Tyson of Baltimore, has been advised that he has won a certificate of commendation from the Canadian headquarters of the Boys Scouts' Association, Ottawa. The certificate, which is given by the governor-general, is officially known as a "Certificate for Meritorious Conduct."

The incident which drew the commendation occurred about a year ago. Jim was watching a farmer removing gasoline from a drum. In some manner the gas caught fire where the hose entered the drum. Remembering from his boy scout training never to throw water on a gasoline fire, young Jim Tyson threw sand on the blaze before it could proceed far enough to explode the drum.

Jim Tyson is an enthusiastic member of the 1st Creighton Heights cub troop, and his boy scout knowledge averted what might have been a serious fire. Cub mistress of his troop is Akela June Gunn. Incidently Jim's dad is the scoutmaster of the Creighton Heights Boy Scout troop.

Railway Station Now German Literary Centre

By EDO KOENIG

Cologne (Reuters) — The third-class waiting-room of Cologne's main railway station has become one of the most crowded discussion centres of post-war Germany.

Founder of the discussion centre is Gerhard Ludwig, a 44-year-old Berliner who was assistant editor of the pre-war Frankfurter Zeitung. He took over the bookstall at the station after the war. Like thousands of other booksellers and publishers, he was dismayed by Germans' lack of interest in books.

He decided that if perfume factories and fashion houses could maintain public interest in their products, so could book publishers.

"We must give the people something to talk about, we must make them want to discuss literature again," he said.

"Take our secretaries. What do they talk about when they have a moment to spare? Fashions, cosmetics, men.

FRANCE DIFFERENT

"But in France the secretaries have yet another subject—literature. They take the winner of literary prizes more seriously than cabinet ministers."

So in December 1950 he launched his first "Mittwochsgespraech" (Wednesday talk) in a badly-heated waiting room at the station. Forty persons heard an author, Jakob Kneip, speak about "the tasks of poets in our times." Afterwards there was a lively discussion. It was a great success.

Still more people were attracted to later discussions, such as those on "Youth and Books," "Workers and Publications," and "Why is our Modern Literature so Outdated?"

Soon, Herr Ludwig had to move the centre to the larger waiting-room. Even then, there was a struggle for seats.

Today, an audience of several hundred is the average, with those who cannot find seats leaning over the refreshment counter, sitting on the window sills and standing around the walls. People of all walks of life come.

Besides a variety of literary subjects other themes have included the low quality of German post-war movies, the life and meaning of Joan of Arc, divorce, the art of travelling, German-Jewish relations, and equality for men

Music Festivals President Praises Kiwanis Club

"We've come to associate festivals in Canada with Kiwanis clubs," Reg. Hugo of Winnipeg, Man., said Thursday during his address at the Kiwanis luncheon meeting.

Mr. Hugo, who is president of the Federation of Canadian Music Festivals, attended the luncheon along with the majority of the delegates attending the federation convention held in the city, June 30 to July 2.

The speaker commended the local club on their sponsorship of the festival. "You are doing a really worthwhile thing in this community in your role as sponsor of the festival."

Mr. Hugo also enumerated a few details to be watched to ensure a successful festival.

PRESENT GOOD MUSIC

"Never forget that the main purpose of festivals is to familiarize the public with good music and good performance," he said. "Therefore it is important to have good audience participation."

He also warned that it was important that sponsors should know what is going on in the festival. They should make it a point to interest themselves in the festival operation and give those in charge their full co-operation.

"Another thing that should be watched is making sure you don't overlook thinking teachers are deserving of your greatest appreciation. Never forget that a festival can't be a success without them."

BEGIN EARLY

Continunity of work on festivals was another point stressed by the speaker. He explained that work on the next festival should begin as soon as the last one is over. Also, there should be no set pattern for festival operations. Operations should always be under review so that a festival won't get set in its ways.

"We must also remember that there are approximately a quarter of a million people taking part in festivals across Canada each year," he said in his concluding remarks. "Festivals are growing every years and we must always keep in mind that weakness in one festival spreads across the whole chain."

Mr. Hugo was introduced and thanked by Wilson Gemmell, president of the club.

Festival Is Given Foundation Grant

STRATFORD—A grant of $10,000 to the Stratford Shakespearean Festival from the Atkinson Charitable Foundation is announced today by Dr. H. A. Showalter, festival board president.

"With opening day less than two weeks away, this generous contribution is a most timely gift and brings the fund within $25,000 of our required objective," said Dr. Showalter.

Early in May, the festival committee was faced with a "real emergency, and it was touch and go" whether sufficient funds would be forthcoming to permit us to proceed with the festival as planned. Since that time, the president said, public support of the project permits us to open on schedule with the first of the two Shakespearean plays, Richard III, slated for July 13."

This will be followed by "All's Well That Ends Well," with international stars, Alec Guinness and Irene Worth sharing lead roles, supported by a cast of nearly 75 Canadian actors.

Name Norstad Air Deputy

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, supreme commander, Allied power in Europe, announced today the appointment of U. S. Gen. Lauris Norstad as air deputy at SHAPE.

The announcement said Norstad, who now commands Allied forces in central Europe, will have "wider responsibilities and great authority" and will enjoy "increased centralization of control of air units."

Authoritative sources said the change was adopted primarily so that atomic air warfare could be brought into the SHAPE curriculum. Norstad succeeds Air Marshal Sir Hugh Saunders of the RAF.

Ridgway also announced appointment of Marshal Alphonse Juin of France as commander-in-chief of Allied land, sea and air forces in central Europe. France's No. 1 soldier has been commanding only the land forces in that area.

Norstad will be succeeded in his present post by Britain's Air Force Marshal Sir Basil Embry. A successor has not yet been named for Juin's present command, but Ridgway said it would be taken over by another French officer.

Church Charges Queen Exploited

LONDON (AP)—The Church of England newspaper today complains that the Queen is being subjected to "sheer exploitation" by her own subjects.

The weekly publication refers to the official parades, tours and other public appearances which have been going on ever since the Coronation June 2. It says in an editorial:

"Without respite she has endured the strain of one public appearance after another. This would take toll of a strong man. Youthful and resilient though the Queen may be, she is not insensitive and is not entirely immune from fatigue."

The Queen is 27.

The newspaper says the Queen's post-Coronation program, which has now taken her to Northern Ireland, "looks like sheer exploitation."

"Anybody engaged in public affairs knows well how, with the best desires imaginable, the public can be the cruelest of taskmasters."

Welfare Fund Will Be Taxed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The bureau of internal revenue reportedly has ruled that the United Mine Workers union must pay taxes on the income from its $90,000,000 welfare fund and that retired miners must pay taxes on their pensions.

Informed persons said today the decision presumably means that 60,000 retired pensioners of John L. Lewis' union will be billed for taxes from the start of their pensions—in some cases back to 1948.

The fund has paid out more than $500,000,000. Individual pensions are $100 a month. Tax bills would vary according to what other income the pensioner had but individuals could be liable for hundreds, or even thousands, of dollars.

The fund is supported by a 40-cents-a-ton royalty paid by mine operators on coal produced. This has built up the big reserve as well as meeting current pensions and other costs.

The income from invested funds was reported as close to $769,000 in the last year.

CCF Support Urged By CCL

OTTAWA (CP)—The two top officials of the Canadian Congress of Labor today recommended to the CCL's 370,000 members that they support CCF candidates in the Aug. 10 federal election. The stand was the same as that taken by the CCL executive in previous elections.

A. R. Mosher, president, and Donald Mac Donald, secretary-treasurer, said in a statement:

"Our organization fully recognizes the right of every individual to vote as he or she sees fit. This right is, in fact, an essential part of the democratic system which we enjoy and which the free labor movement is determined to preserve.

"At the same time, in the light of the position repeatedly adopted by representatives of our organizations assembled in convention . . . . we feel that the CCF is the only party whose position fully justifies this support."

The CCL's political stand was outlined earlier this week by Mr. MacDonald in a country-wide radio broadcast.

Hungarian Gov't Resigns After Shuffle

LONDON (Reuters) — Hungary, Soviet satellite state with 9,000,000 population, learned Thursday night its government had resigned two days after the announcement of a top-drawer re-shuffle of its Communist leadership.

Budapest radio announced that the national assembly will decide today on formation of a new cabinet.

Though Hungarian developments of this week come on top of reports of unrest in some Iron Curtain countries, the Communist radio broadcast gave no indication of crises in satellite states.

Order Search Of Files For Spy List

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy said today Attorney-General Herbert Brownell has ordered a search of justice department files to determine whether former president Truman ever handed it a list of about 150 Americans suspected of spying for Russia.

The results of that search, McCarthy said, will decide whether he will ask the Senate investigations sub-committee he heads for permission to call Truman as a witness.

McCarthy announced Monday he was asking Brownell for a report on whether Truman obtained a list of 150 suspected spies from the late prime minister King of Canada in 1945. If this was so, McCarthy said, he wanted to know "why these United States citizens were not prosecuted."

Today McCarthy made public a reply from Brownell which read:

"I have no knowledge as to whether Canadian officials in 1945 turned over the names of roughly 150 American citizens who were alleged to have been part of an international Communist espionage ring, but I will endeavor to find out whether there is any information in the files of the department of justice or knowledge on the part of anyone presently in the department of justice bearing on this matter.

WILL GO FURTHER

"Such inquiry will include a check as to whether president Truman ever turned such a list over to the justice department."

McCarthy says the list was reported to have been compiled from statements made by Igor Gouzenko, a code clerk in the Soviet embassy in Canada who broke with communism and handed the Canadian government a big batch of documentary evidence about atomic spying. Gouzenko was a star witness in Canada's atomic spy trials.

The fact that such list was delivered to the U. S. by Canada early in 1946 — not 1945 as McCarthy said—was generally known more than three years ago.

Canadian government officials were inclined to shrug off McCarthy's statement that King handed such a list to Truman. Such a list, they said, would more likely have gone through intelligence branches of the two governments.

MADE FACTS PUBLIC

External Affairs Minister Pearson made public the facts of the list in May, 1950.

A notebook found on a Canadian suspect arrested Feb. 15, 1946 contained the names of 150 Canadians, 160 Americans and five Britons, plus 118 miscellaneous entries.

The names of the 163 Americans were immediately given to the U. S. government. The names of the five Britons were given to Britain. Among this latter list was Dr. Klaus Fuchs, later convicted of atomic spying for Russia and sentenced to 14 years in prison.

Couple Honored On Anniversary

SPRINGVILLE (ENS)—Springville United Church and community planned a surprise party for Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McIntosh on Tuesday, their 25th wedding anniversary.

More than 125 people of the community and also some relatives gathered in the Sunday school auditorium for the occasion.

A lovely three-storey anniversary cake, the gift of their daughter Janet (Mrs. Harvey Hewitt of Orillia) centred the table at the foot of the room.

Mr. Melville Johnston, superintendent of Springville Sunday School, presided for a program of music and readings.

Allan Bennett of Peterborough was guest entertainer for the evening and delighted the audience with his humorous readings.

Joy Seymour recited "The Wedding Fee" and Fred Crowe also gave a selection.

Accordion and violin music was provided by Mr. and Mrs. J. Duncan Seymour of Cobourg. Henry Batten sang several solos and the Northey Trio (son and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Northey) gave several guitar and violin selections.

Misses Doreen and Betty Stevens contributed violin and piano duets.

While Mrs. Bernard Preston read an address of congratulations little Marilyn and Ronnie Hewitt presented them with corsages. Springville Church and community presented a lovely cabinet of silver and a sandwich tray, the presentations being made by Mrs. Clifford Johnston and Carman Seymour.

Their family, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hewitt and Miss Hazel McIntosh, gave them a set of china. Other relatives gave them an electric tea kettle, which Ross Whittington presented, and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne White (formerly Dorothy Cathcart) gave them a silver butter plate.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh expressed their appreciation of the lovely gifts and spoke not only of their 25 years of happy married life but also of the pleasure of living in the congenial community of Springville Church.

Speeches of good wishes and congratulations were also made by A. B. Preston, Frank Stevens and Bruce Sargent.

The same evening, June 30, marks the 19th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Rae Wood and the 33rd wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Murray, also of Springville Church.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames Lloyd Whittington, Elwood Johnston, James Cook, Carman Seymour, Harold Rowan, Bruce Sargent.

Sterling Reserves Up

LONDON (Reuters)—The Sterling area's gold and dollar reserves increased by $46,000,000 during June, the treasury announced Thursday. This increase brought the reserves to $2,367,000,000 on June 30, their highest level since early in 1952 but still far below the mid-1951 peak of $3,867,000,000.

Mackenzie King Not Good Statesman Colleague Senator Crerar Declares

By CLYDE BLACKBURN

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. T. A. Crerar, 77-year-old senator and for 10 years a cabinet colleague of the late Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, claims his former leader was not the "statesman" he appears to be in Bruce Hutchison's book, "The Incredible Canadian."

The Manitoba senator, whom Mackenzie King appointed to the Upper Chamber in 1945, has written a review of parts of the Hutchison book for the International Journal, quarterly publication of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

Senator Crerar suggests that Mackenzie King, who died three years ago, was not a statesman in the sense that Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Sir Robert Borden and Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen were statesmen.

SKILFUL MANAGER

The record-breaking Liberal leader was "an extraordinarily skilful political manager," but "even here the goddess of luck smiled upon him," Senator Crerar writes.

From his long political association with Mackenzie King Senator Crerar writes that he believes his former leader had "a sense of Mission" that developed his inner confidence and drove him to the success he achieved.

"For what purpose?" Senator Crerar asks. "Was the basic governing principle the public good? That is indeed doubtful. Rather it seems to me to have been the determination to restore and bring to a pinnacle the prestige of the family name."

Senator Crerar describes Mackenzie King as "utterly ruthless, and this ruthlessness by no means had always to do with public policy." In this he is in agreement with the Hutchison book.

But he describes as "inadequate" the Hutchison handling of the episode in 1926 when the then governor general, Lord Byng, refused to grant Mackenzie King dissolution of Parliament and called on Meighen to form a government when the Liberals were in trouble over revelations of scandals in the customs department.

Mackenzie King should have been granted dissolution, Senator Crerar writes, but nevertheless Byng was constitutionally right in not granting it.

Mr. Meighen formed a short-lived government and the subsequent election was fought on the constitutional issue raised by Byng's refusal to accept the advice of the prime minister. The customs scandals were forgotten.

"If the election of 1926 had been fought on the customs scandal there is little doubt in my mind that his (Mackenzie King's) leadership would have terminated within 12 or 18 months.

WOULD HAVE DISAPPEARED

"He would in all probability have disappeared from our political picture and 'The Incredible Canadian' would never have been written."

Senator Crerar said the Hutchison book was "not a biography in any real meaning of that term; Mr. Hutchison had no access to any official papers."

But, he said, the author had attempted to fit Mackenzie King "into a frame where he did not belong and this appears to be the basis for Mr. Hutchison's claim that King was a greater statesman than either Macdonald or Laurier."

Senator Crerar defines statesmanship:

"The real test of statesmanship in those entrusted with high authority lies in the good or bad consequences that flow on down through the years from their actions and decisions when they occupy seats of power."

He says the book gave "too heavy emphasis" to the part Mackenzie King played in obtaining the declaration of 1926 and the statute of Westminster in 1931 which made it statutory—proclaiming Canada an equal and independent member of the Commonwealth of nations.

"True, he is entitled to a share of the credit. But the right fork in the road had been taken many years earlier." It began in the days of Macdonald and the goal would have been reached ultimately whether or not Mackenzie King was prime minister.

NOT STATESMANSHIP

Senator Crerar writes that Mackenzie King, fearing complication in a war, "virtually took Canada out of the League of Nations and at a time when Canada's voice should have been strong for the whole concept of collective security."

Yet, "Europe slithered into war which led to consequences for the world of which no man today can see the end. This was not statesmanship."

Opportunism, he writes, is a common characteristic of political parties, and, "in this field Mr. King was a skillful performer." He could pull rabbits out of hats to win an election.

He refers to the incident in 1944 when the late Hon. J. L. Ralston, then defence minister, left the King cabinet over differences with his leader on the conscription issue.

"His treatment of Ralston, and also of others who he thought stood in his way, one finds difficult to forgive. . . .

"He liked praise . . . yet he did not always distinguish between honest praise and fulsome flattery."

Will Consider Power Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority leader Charles Halleck (Rep Ind.) announced Thursday tentative plans for the House of Representatives to consider next week a bill to authorize private enterprise to build new power plants at Niagara Falls.

The bill is sponsored by representatives William Miller (Rep. N. Y.) and George Dondero (Rep. Mich.).

Five big New York state private utilities have declared their willingness to build the estimated $400,000,000 project which would virtually triple the present power output at the famed Falls.

The House public works committee, approving the Dondero-Miller bill, rejected other measures proposing that the federal government or New York state be authorized to undertake the development.

If congress approves the private enterprise bill, the five utilities still will be required to obtain the necessary construction licence from the federal power commission.

GETS LUCK CHARM — On arrival in Vancouver on his coast-to-coast federal election campaign, George Drew, national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, was given a luck charm by a soldier in Victoria, B.C. The soldier had carried it with him all through the Second World War.

No Signal Given Says Magistrate, Case Dismissed

A charge of careless driving against James Mitchell of RR 3, Peterborough, was dismissed in Magistrate's Court, Thursday, by Magistrate W. R. Philp. The charge stemmed from an accident June 5, investgiated by Police Constable Arthur Beardsmore.

The constable testified he arrived at the scene, the entrance to CGE's parking lot on Monaghan Rd. to find both vehicles involved Mitchell's and one belonging to William McKinley of 727 Romaine stopped on the ramp leading into the lot.

A 133-foot skid mark led north from Monaghan Rr. partly along the gravel shoulder, to the rear wheels of Mitchell's truck.

McKinley said he had been driving north about 25 miles per hour, intending to turn left into the lot when he looked in his rear mirror to see the Mitchell truck some distanec back.

He drew up to the entrance, flashed his brake lights and turned left. McKinley was just off the road when his car was struck by the Mitchell truck.

SPEEDED UP

Mitchell said he saw the McKinley car ahead in the right hand lane and so speeded up to "about 40" to pass it when it suddenly made a left turn. He claimed there was no indication from the car that a turn was to be made.

Giving a judgment, Magistrate Philp said there was "no doubt the accused was driving in excess of the city speed limit, yet at the same time there was no signal or indication by McKinley for a left turn sufficient to comply with the Highway Traffic Act.

"Mitchell was entitled to believe McKinley intended to proceed further up the road and certainly in my opinion all or nearly all the blame cannot be pinned on the accused."

Two Lawyers To Argue Case

Evidence in the case of Thompson vs. Fair in which W. J. A. Fair, QC, fights his parking ticket, was heard Thursday morning in Magistrate's Court. The case will resume Monday when Mr. Fair and City Solicitor W. F. Huycke will present their arguments.

The prosecution presented its case in about an hour with the evidence of two witnesses, Murray Thomas, deputy city clerk, and Harry Gabbutt, market square parking lot attendant.

The barrister was charged with parking overtime on the parking lot, yet at the time the alleged offence was committed, was parked in a non-metered area in the service lane behind George Street buildings, backing on the lot.

In the area signs indicate, according to Gabbutt, "No Parking —Loading Zone." He said that about 9.25 the night of May 22 he saw a car parked there and tagged it. He testified seeing no one loading or unloading.

The lot was described by the two witnesses, and maps and photographs of the area submitted as exhibits. Additionally, bylaws governing parking were also submitted.

Mr. Fair told the court he would not give testimony. He was prepared to hand in his argument in writing to Magistrate W. R. Philp but the case was adjourned until Monday when both the prosecution and defence will submit their arguments.

Fear 1,000 Japanese Stricken With Dysentry

TOKYO (Reuters)—More than 1,000 Japanese are feared to have been stricken with dysentery in an epidemic which has already taken 53 lives in southern Japan after recent heavy floods, the Japanese Red Cross said today.

Flooded reservoirs and burst dikes have infected most drinking water supplies in the area.

Police said today that they believe the death toll in the floods themselves totalled 1,203 but so far only 657 bodies have been recovered.

Clothing and other assistance poured in today from United Nations camps and from foreign countries.

Guard Against Odors In Summer

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Teen-agers, personal odors have an unpleasant way of destroying our daintiness in summer if we aren't careful.

Your daily bath or shower is something you always take for comfort. But do you use enough soap and do you scrub off the dead cuticle with a brush.

You use your antiperspirant every morning, but are you sure it's working for you? In summer, you may need a stronger one than you've been using. Better check up to make sure it's doing its job.

Your daintiness calls for frequent defuzzings by your preferred method. Don't wait until stubble is visible through your nylons before doing this job.

Your undies get laundered nightly so that you'll have a change every day and, if you're going out, again in the evening.

Your bath powder can help keep you fresh, as it will absorb some of the perspiration in the worst spots. It will help slide you into your clothes, too.

Hair odor, when you need a shampoo, can be very unpleasant. Never let it develop. In summer, you may need to double the number of shampoos you regularly have.

Foot odor in summer may trouble you more than it does during the rest of the year. A good foot powder, deodorizing and soothing, will keep your feet comfortable and odor-free.

GIRLS HAVE A MUCH MORE SENSIBLE ATTITUDE toward their wedding gowns than they once had. Instead of leaving them packed away in their closets for years, they remodel and dye them to make new evening gowns for themselves. This bride of a year has re-designed her gown by shortening hem and removing sleeves and set-in section of bodice. The remodelling and the dye job in her washing machine (left) produced waltz-length gown (right). Notice that she mixed dye solution in a quart pitcher before pouring it into machine, already filled with scalding hot water and the unfolded dress. She dyes her white satin bridal shoes with dye solution and sponge (centre). This is a tricky job, requiring quick, even, long strokes and a light touch.

Your Wedding Gown Dyed Makes Nice Evening Frock

By ALICE HART

If you're celebrating your first wedding anniversary soon, no doubt you can distinguish by this time between a sentimental attitude and a practical one toward your wedding dress. Some of you may reach that point well before your first anniversary, especially if you'd like to have a new evening gown.

You can have a new evening gown by remodeling and dyeing your wedding gown. In some cases, very little will need to be done with the gown.

If yours has a train, eliminate it this way: first, measure the front of the dress from the waistline down to the floor or to the ankle, depending on the desired lengths. Now, measure equal lenkths all around and mark them lightly on the fabric. Follow the marks with your sewing shears to remove excess material. Finish with a new hem.

Long sleeves can be removed simply by opening the seams and making new hems. If the neckline consists of set-in tulle or net, you can have a lower neckline simply by removing this piece. If the dress becomes too low-cut when the tulle is removed, and embroidery, beading or a ruffle.

You'll feel you have a brand-new dress if you dye it. It must be dry-cleaned or washed as a preliminary step. If the gown is in nylon, acetate, rayon bemberg, orlon or any other synthetic fibre, you can dye it with an all-fabric dye which works as well on these materials as on natural-fiber fabrics.

Remove buttons and trimmings so that the dye will penetrate evenly.

If you're in doubt about the depth of color, first dye a piece of the material that you've eliminated so that you'll know exactly how to proceed. You won't know the shade until this sample is dry. Add more dye when you do the dress if this test shows a need for greater depth of color.

If you use a washing machine to dye— and it will be more convenient for you than a vessel on the stove— be sure to pre-heat it first by running through some scalding hot water. When this has drained out, unfold your gown, and put it in the machine.

Refill with scalding hot water. (If the gown's fabric can't stand very hot water, of course you can't dye it.) At this point, dissolve your dye in a quart jar of extremely hot water. Pour the solution into the machine as soon as it's filled.

If it's an automatic machine, let it run through the washing cycle. If it's not automatic, you'll have to stop the washing at frequent intervals and lift out the material (with a wooden spoon) to examine the color. Remember that the color is darker when wet.

Proceed from the wash to the final rinse period instead of letting it go through several rinses. If the material is very delicate or likely to become permanently creased, eliminate spin-drying and squeeze the article by hand. (Wear gloves in this case or you'll get your hands colored.) Don't let it go through the wringer of a non-automatic washing machine.

Be sure to run sudsy water through your machine to remove traces of dye when you've finished.

Hang your gown in the shade to dry.

COTTONS FOR FALL have taken on a new look which makes them more versatile. At a preview of fall fashions the fabric sometimes had the rough texture of tweed for daytime wear; at other times it had a metallic or lustrous sheen that made it adaptable for cocktail and evening wear. The remarkable feature of all of the new cottons, whether they look like tweed or silk, is that they are washable, and that washing actually improves their appearance. The black dress, left, with full skirt and plunging neckline, is of cotton with a silken finish. Centre is an after-sunset dress of black poplin sashed in pink and twinkling with rhinestones. At right is the ever-popular coat dress in a fine striped cotton material. Huge patch pockets, a belted back and graceful skirt are the important fashion features.

DOROTHY DIX:

Abandoned By Husband Young Wife Seeks New Mate

DEAR MISS DIX: I am one of those unfortunate girls who made a big mistake in life, then tried to rectify it with a hasty marriage. Ernie married me much against his will, left me soon after, and hasn't been heard from since. Our baby is now three months old, and has brought a geat deal of happiness to my family. Now I have met a boy named Alfred, who is very thoughtful, knows the truth about the baby, and has been taking me out. My mother says I'm wrong to go with him. Am I? I am only 17, and very lonely. Of course I have applied for a divorce, but it won't be granted for another year. The people in my town think my husband is in the Army, since I don't want to tell them the whole truth. Naturally, they are talking because I see Alfred, but how can I tell them how things really are?

C. S.

LOOKING FOR MORE TROUBLE

ANSWER: You are about as determined to ruin your life as any young lady I've ever encountered. True, you're very young, but surely even at 17 one bitter lesson should be enough to knock some sense into you. Can't you see that a continuation of your friendship with Alfred will lead to a repetition of your whole story? This time, however, a quick marriage won't solve the problem since you already have one husband lurking in the background.

Fate has dealt kindly with you in (1) getting Ernie to marry you, even though he did it reluctantly, and (2) having a family that is sticking by you so valiantly. At the rate you're going you'll try the patience of Fate, as well as that of our family. Loneliness was undoubtedly the excuse you used in yielding to Ernie, and apparently you intend it to serve for all future troubles.

Would you like to know what's in the immediate future for you? Continue going out with Alfred, get the neighbors gossiping enough, and you'll soon be branded as an unfit mother, with your child taken from you. Since you do seem genuinely fond of your daughter, better be willing to stand a little loneliness until you're old enough to be trusted. And maybe it's just as well to have the neighbors believe your husband is coming back to you; keeping up the fiction may force a little descretion in your conduct.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What do you think of a man who has never bought his wife's clothing, or paid for her doctor bills, and who is expecting pay for anything he does for her? He thinks he has high principles.

B. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: His principle is all in the bank! I certainly don't think much of the man, and neither would anyone else, but the woman is a fool to accept the situation. A husband is legally and morally bound to support his wife, which includes caring for her in sickness and keeping her clothed. Naturally, if a woman shows that she's willing to accept this sort of treatment, she'll continue to get it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What is your opinion of the parking problem? Would you consider it acceptable to park with someone you really liked? Lots of teen-agers are confronted with this problem, so I hope you can answer it.

G. J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Let's examine the progression of parking, and see whether it's "acceptable" or not. Certainly two young people don't park for the sake of discussing the weather, or anything else, for that matter. The object is love-making, and the essence of the situation is how far does it go. You know the answer to that. You may begin with handholding, then kissing, which leads into necking and petting. It's very difficult to draw a definite limit when you're alone with a boy in a car on an isolated road. At best the situation can become dangerous, at worst it can be tragic. Teen-agers have enough difficulty controlling their rapidly rising emotions without putting them to so demanding a test. So my advice is —no parking!

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Shorts For Office Wear Grow Popular In New York

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Every year about this time comes the question: "Why don't Canadian men wear shorts to the office during the summer?"

A Toronto tailor, Ed Provan, says the matter has been discussed each torrid season for the last 25 years.

In his opinion "most legs just aren't good enough to wear shorts to the office."

Mr. Provan feels that perhaps Australians and New Zealanders, who frequently wear Bermuda-length khaki shorts, are more the "outdoorsy" types and have tanned legs. A tan, Mr. Provan explained, helps the situation a great deal.

"City slickers with pale legs look awful in shorts," he said.

MUCH COOLER

Mr. Provan denounced the habit of wearing thick grey flannels in hot weather and said he thinks there's nothing cooler than tropical trousers and short socks.

In New York, shorts are growing in popularity for office wear Bermuda-length shorts are evidently favored by the New Yorkers and navy blue predominates.

Quite a few of the younger Canadian men we talked to thought it would be nice to wear shorts to the office, but all wanted somebody else to start the trend.

Most women we talked to favored the idea and half of them referred to "how nice" army and navy officers look in shorts.

An attractive switchboard operator likes shorts for men in the summer but not in the office.

"I think there are many occasions in the evening, such as a bridge game, when a man would look very nice in smart shorts," she said.

A librarian favored Bermuda-length shorts for office wear, but only if the men wearing them keep up "army standards of neatness—including polished shoes."

In deference to our men friends we stopped this investigation when one housewife answered:

"I think it would be a scream."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Fruit Syrups Made Ahead Provide Refreshing Drinks

QUESTION: ... have you any recipes for syrups which can be used with nothing but water addeed to make cold drinks for summer? Not milk or chocolate please. My husband works hard and in the dog days he insists on a cold drink for supper. I do not care for—or the prepared syrups you buy from door-to-door salesmen ... Did you ever bake rhubarb in a slow oven with the addition of nothing but sugar? It is superior to stewed rhubarb ... thank you for your trouble and your delightful column.

MRS. HARRY A.

ANSWER: The following recipe appeared here last week but it is worth repeating. Thank you for the baked rhubarb idea.

LEMON SYRUP

Use this for lemonade, mixed fruit drinks or iced tea. Wash 6 lemons, roll them to soften them, grate off the yellow part of the rind. Cut them in halves and squeeze out the juice. To the rind add 2 cups sugar and 2 cups water and boil, covered for 10 minutes. Cool. Add strained lemon juice. Store in covered jar. Use 1 part of this syrup to 3 or 4 parts water and ice for lemonade. Use 3 tablespoons to sweeten and flavor each tall glass of iced tea.

ORANGE SYRUP

Make the same as lemon syrup but use 3 oranges and 3 lemons instead of 6 lemons, and add 1 teaspoon citric acid (to be obtained in powder form at drug stores).

SPICED GRAPEADE

Two cups grapejuice, juice 4 lemons, 2 cups sugar, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon mixed ground clove, cinnamon, ginger and allspice. Bring sugar, water and spices to a boil. Cool and add other ingredients. Serve this syrup diluted with ice water or ginger ale.

QUESTION: We always have to read Mary Moore's column, it is so interesting. Would you have a recipe made entirely of Rye flour? —for one who is allergic to wheat? We can make nice muffins or pie but the bread did not turn out good at all

MARION R.

ANSWER: I'll give you the 100 per cent rye bread formula—but it is very hard to make for the first few times. Would you send me your muffin and pie recipes?

100 PER CENT RYE BREAD

One lb. 10 oz. rye flour, 6 oz. rye sour (you must beg this from a rye bread manufacturer for your first batch, then save 6 oz. from your first batch for your next batch and so on), 3 oz. oatmeal, 2 oz. salt, 1 pint water, 4 oz. yeast. Mix oatmeal and warm water together; when cool add yeast and stir. Then add rye flour, rye sour and salt and the mix well. This should be mixed by hand. Leave rest for 20 minutes then form into loaves of bread about 1¼ lbs. each. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 1 hour.

This recipe was kindly given to me by a rye baker who makes it for patients who are allergic to wheat.

LETTER: ... I thought you might like to have these recipes

RAISIN CAKE

(Contributed by V. N.)

Take 1 cup raisins and put them through mincer. Add to them 1 teaspoon soda and a cup of hot water. Stir and let get cool. When cool take 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, pinch salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups flour, ½ cup butter or margarine and beat well and bake in moderate oven for ½ hour at 350 deg.

MAYFLOWER CHOCOLATE CAKKE

(Contributed by V. N.)

One egg, ½ cup milk ½ cup white sugar, 2-3 cup sweet chocolate of cocoa. Boil together until consistency of gravy. Allow to cool. One-half cup butter, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup milk, 2 cups flour, 1 heaping teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon baking soda dissolved in 2 tablespoons hot water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 eggs. Method: Cream together butter and brown sugar. Break 2 eggs into this without beating them, then beat mixture well. Add custard, vanilla, and soda dissolved in hot water. Bake in 3 layers at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 or 25 minutes.

MOCHA ICING FOR CAKE

One cup icing sugar, 4 tablespoons sweet chocolate. Put together in bowl and add hot coffee and beat till creamy and smooth. Spread between layers and on top of cake.

NOTE FROM EMEM: V. N. does not say whether flour is sifted or not—I think it should be. In the icing add only 1 tablespoon strong coffee until you see if it beats to a spreading consistency.

Thank you V. N. for giving us these recipes.

IN 19TH CENTURY

Trafalgar Square in London, site of the Nelson Monument, was laid out early in the 19th century.

Prices Fade Slowly In Light Trading

TORONTO (CP)—Prices faded slowly in light afternoon trading today.

Industrials were the exception and gained steadily from the opening bell. Golds and base metals found little support while western oils moved a fairly wide list of issues for aminor drop.

Strength and interest in industrials centred in the utilities section as Shawinigan Preferred gained a half but Gatineau Preferred gave up $1.00. By sections, sections, steels, agriculture, refining oils and constructions advanced while manufacturing companies traded lower.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals steadied after a weak open with Anacon, Chimo and New Highridge gaining Gunnar, Brilund and Goldfields lost.

In western oils Canada Southern, Home Oil, Gridoil and Anglo-Canadian were down.

Base metals drifted lower within a narrow price range. Western Tungsten, Steep Rock, Normetal and Smelters led the decline. Labrador and Sheritt-Gordon gained pennies.

Golds eased in all sections. Giant Yellowknife and Campbell broke sharply into lower ground. Aunor showed a 5 cent gain—the best in the group.

Conservatives Win Second By-Election

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuters)—The Conservative party retained its hold in the Edgbaston seat in this industrial city in a by-election Thursday to elect a member of Parliament to succeed Sir Peter Bennett, elevated to the peerage in the Queen's Coronation honors list.

Edith M. Pitt, the Conservative candidate, polled 20,142 votes against 9,635 for Frederick B. Watson, the Labor candidate in a straight two-party fight.

The Conservative majority of 10,507 did not match the majority of 13,104 polled by Bennett in the 1951 elections when the Conservatives downed Labor with 29,477 votes to 16,373.

Quaker Workers

the Quaker Oats plant in Saskatoon. A resolution was then passed unanimously pledging Local 293 to remain on strike until a satisfactory agreement has been reached between the company and Local 418 in Saskatoon.

Clarence Lyons, UPWA Saskatchewan representative, said that Local 418 were solidly behind their fellow strikers here in Peterborough.

"We'll remain on strike in Saskatoon until this battle is won," said Mr. Lyons. "And I'm happy to see the real solidarity and unity that you have here."

WORKERS' DEMANDS

Principal demands of Local 293 are a reduction of the work week from 44 to 40 hours; a five-day week with no swing shifts; and a base rate of $1.39½, similar to the Port Colborne rates.

The swing shift is more or less of a local issue but the union proposal for wages and hours is being strongly pressed by the international union. When he was in Peterborough a few weeks ago, Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the UPWA, said that any retreat from the $1.39½ rate or the 40-hour week would be "selling out our union."

Earlier this week, during talks in Toronto, the company made a compromise offer. Here are the main points:

A modification of their stand on swing shifts (only 50 or 60 people would be affected now, the company said); 40-hour week; immediate wage increase of 15 per cent, bringing the base rate up to $1.36½; and on July 1, 1954, a further 2½ per cent increase on present wage rates, bringing the base rate up to the union's goal of $1.39½ a year from now.

Commenting today on the union rejection of this offer, Mr. Faryon said:

"In our offer we went further than could be expected . . . further than we could afford. We offered them the best contract in the milling industry, by far.

"Apparently the union don't want to accept it. That's their prerogative, I suppose . . . But if they don't want to accept this any further negotiations are a waste of time."

Growing City

CALGARY (CP)—The 1953 city directory estimates Calgary's population at 145,000, a jump of 8,281 in one year. It shows 782 Smiths residing here and lists 417 persons whose names start with the letter Z.

Poles Clash With Reds Cut German Supply Line

Soviet Tanks Reported On The Way

News Of Spread Of German Riots Trickles Through

BERLIN (AP) — Rebellious Poles are reported to have clashed with Russian troops and cut a Soviet supply line to East Germany in an apparent spread of the bloody revolt that swept East Germany June 17. Russian tanks are said to be en route from East Berlin to the Polish border.

The reports of disorders in Russia's neighboring satellite were published in West Berlin Friday night but could not be confirmed officially. Ever since East Germany erupted in strikes and riots 17 days ago, rumors have trickled through the Iron Curtain of similar uprising in both Poland and Czechoslavakia.

SEVERAL KILLED

The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf said demonstrations have broken out in Poland and that several persons have been killed in clashes with Soviet troops.

The northwest German radio, quoting refugees from the East zone, said 12 Soviet trains carrying war reparations from East Germany to Russia had been halted at the Polish border and told that Polish partisans had cut the rail line to Brest-Litovsk.

The broadcast also said refugees reported riots flared in the Polish section of Frankfurt-on-Oder and in Kuestrin and several other Polish border towns last week-end. There was no word to indicate whether the riots were continuing.

The reports that Russian tanks were en route from East Berlin to the Polish-border was published by the U. S. state department's German-language newspaper Neue Zeitung. It said the tanks were the same ones which put down the June 17 uprising in East Berlin.

Lived Near Minden, Found Wandering In Virginia With $20,920 In Money Belt

An 82-year-old former resident of the Mountain Lake district near Minden in Haliburton county had $20,920 in cash on his person when he was arrested for disorderly conduct by police in Norfolk, Va., Thursday night.

John James Eastman was taken into custody Thursday night after police received calls from Norfolk citizens reporting that the white-haired man was wandering around aimlessly and talking to himself.

Police said that when they finally collared Eastman after a short, sharp struggle, they found the bundle of cash in a home-made money belt around his waist.

They quoted him as saying he was born in Haliburton County, Ont., in 1872, but could get no clear answer on where he obtained the money. A report of his arrest was sent out by The Canadian Press with a request from Norfolk police for more information concerning him.

From residents of Haliburton County today The Examiner learned that until two years ago Eastman had lived in the Mountain Lake district near Minden on Highway 35.

His son is believed to have married a girl from the United States where he went to live.

Two years ago, the older Eastman sold his timber and lakeshore property and nothing had been heard from him since. But he was believed to have gone to live with his son in the United States. His wife has been dead for several years.

624 Candidates Named To Contest 265 Federal Seats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The field of candidates for the Aug. 10 Dominion election reached 624 today, it was shown in an unofficial compilation by The Canadian Press. Indications are that the final total will top the 1949 figure of 848 and may surpass the record of 954 set in 1945. Official nominations close Monday, July 13, in 21 constituencies which cover large, thinly-populated areas. The closing date is July 27 in the other 242. Two of the 263 constituencies—Halifax in Nova Scotia and Queens in Prince Edward Island—each elects two members, bringing to 265 the number of members to be elected. There were 262 seats at stake in 1949 and 245 in 1945, the increase this year being brought about by two successive redistribution acts.

LIBERALS LEAD

Liberal government candidates lead in the nominating race with 229 candidates in 228 seats. In one, Glengarry-Prescott in Ontario, there are two Liberals in the field. Each was chosen by a party nominating convention. There are 169 Progressive Conservative candidates, 116 CCF, 19 Social Credit, two independents, one candidate who calls himself a Christian Liberal and one independent Liberal.

The Communist Labor-Progressive party is fielding the largest number of candidates since it was organized during the Second World War with 87 nominated. Its total may reach 100 by nomination day.

Union Suggests Send Wheat Behind Curtain

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The executive of Canada's largest labor union local Friday asked the federal government to take the lead in sending food to starving people behind the Iron Curtain.

The resolution, proposed by vice-president James Dowell of local 195, United Automobile Workers CIO, and approved by the executive board, said Canada's action "along this line just might spur Washington into similar giving of its surplus wheat, butter, powdered eggs and other foodstuffs."

The resolution was forwarded to Prime Minister St. Laurent and major union locals in Canada.

SHOW FRIENDSHIP

It suggested Canada send some of the "surplus tons of wheat and other abundant food."

"Canada should take advantage of every opening that shows itself to prove we are the friends of the people behind the Iron Curtain—though not of their military-supported Communist governments."

Eyewitness accounts of rioting in Eastern Europe, Mr. Dowell said, have been received by UAW locals in Windsor this week through the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions. These accounts support reports by the world's free press, he said.

Elderly Couple Savagely Mauled By Seven Dogs

NEW YORK (AP)—Seven dogs pounced on an elderly couple at a nursing home Friday night and savagely mauled them. The dogs then bit a man, who had gone to the couple's aid, before 17 armed policemen intervened.

The officers, who sped to the home in eight radio cars and an emergency truck, fired 25 shots in the melee. They killed one of the dogs and captured four others. The dogs were all of the boxer breed.

Most severely injured were Charles Sheridan, 63, and his wife, Ellen, 60. They were taken to hospital, where Mrs. Sheridan's condition today was described as critical and her husband's as poor.

Police said they were not sure what precipitated the attack. They added that it was possible that the Boxers might have been excited by a chance wave of Sheridan's cane.

The couple was out for a stroll when the attack occurred. The Boxers streaked out of a fenced enclosure and jumped on them. Both Sheridan and his wife were knocked to the ground by the big dogs, including three full-grown and four good-sized puppies.

Handyman Frank Titt, 27, heard the Sheridans' screams and rushed to their aid, picking up Sheridan's cane. He received leg bites from the enraged animals.

Meanwhile, a call had been put into police and the patrolmen arrived while the attack still was on. One patrolman fired a warning shot which the dogs ignored. Then he carefully aimed at Dinny, a year-and-a-half-old, 87-pound male Boxer attacking Mrs. Sheridan.

Dinny, hit in the neck, turned from the women and fled. The other dogs followed him. Policemen bounded after them. Dinny was hit twice more but kept on running. A fourth and fifth bullet finally stopped him as officers rounded up the other dogs.

Abbott Says PCs Try To Buy Votes

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott charged Friday night that the Progressive Conservatives are attempting to "buy" the country's votes "with your children's earnings. The Conservative promise to make substantial tax cuts seems to me wholly irresponsible, it is not much better than the old Social Credit promise of $25 a month," said Mr. Abbott as he launched a sharp attack on the financial aspects of the Progressive Conservative 16-point manifesto.

Promises contained in the platform of the Progressive Conservative leader would add expenditures to the national budget of just under $1,000,000,000, said Mr. Abbott in his speech prepared for the CBC's free-time political program.

IMAGINATION

Mr. Drew had promised to reduce taxes, but since his talk of a $300,000,000 surplus with which to make some of the cuts was "just an exercise of the imagination," there appeared to be only two ways in which reductions could be made, said Mr. Abbott, reduce defence spending or go into debt.

"I feel sure that the Conservatives would have to fall back on the second alternative. They would reduce taxes by borrowing money and running up the national debt. This is, in a very real sense, buying your votes with your children's earnings. For quite obviously your children will be paying that extra debt."

Mr. Abbott said he was not "hungry for office," and he did not have to make "extravagant promises" to get votes. He felt his record was sufficient evidence of what he could do if re-elected.

But he had made tax cuts of $513,000,000 during the last wo years and he promised:

"As our national production increases and when international tension decreases, there will be further tax cuts.

"They are the only valid reasons for reducing taxes. It would be dishonest to promise tax cuts before these factors develop."

Meanwhi , Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said at a press conference in Edmonton that a government of his party would "not only continue the (Canadian) wheat board but restore the previous system of guidance by producers."

2,500 Cars Enter W. Ont. Hourly Heading North

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—With ideal holiday weather, approximately 2,500 United States cars are entering southwestern Ontario every hour. By Sunday, border officials estimate that 288,000 Americans will have enjoyed the Fourth of July holiday drive to western Ontario.

In Detroit they are calling it a four day holiday. Bus, frain and auto traffic out of the city has been heavy since Thursday evening. An average of 1,500 cars an hour have been crossing the international bridge to Windsor and the rate of flow through the Detroit-Windsor tunnel is approximately 500 per hour.

Over a three day period that would make a total of 78,000 cars or 234,000 tourists entering Windsor since the bridge is handling about 20,000 cars per day and the tunnel 6,000.

Coming into Canada over Sarnia's Bluewater bridge are another 6,000 cars per day, 18,000 cars or 54,000 tourists approximately for the three days. On the same date last year only 5,200 crossed the bridge from Port Huron.

Six lanes of traffic are crossing the international bridge to Windsor and eight lanes are lined up at the Canadian customs.

Farmer's Fall Fatal

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Wilfred W. Wonnacott, well-known farmer in both Delaware and Belmont communities, died Friday night a few hours after falling from a load of hay. He was 57.

Snow Falls Twice In Gaspe Region

HALIFAX (CP)—Snow in July was reported twice today at Mont Joli, in the Gaspe region of Quebec, weather forecasters here said.

The first snow, mixed with rain fell about 1:30 a.m. with the temperature at 51 degrees. Again at 4:30 a.m. the area reported snow falling with the temperature dropping to 48.

Seldom with the ground temperature so high would snow be able to reach the earth's surface without turning to rain.

Price Too Low?

TURIN, Italy (CP) — A court here heard how an Italian sold his wife to a friend for 600,000 lire ($960) then decided he'd made a bad bargain and charged both wife and friend with adultery. The judge sentenced the woman and the friend to six and nine months in jail respectively.

U.S. Ready To Offer Rhee Plan To End Deadlock

By SAM SUMMERLIN

SEOUL (AP)—The U.S. today (Sunday) was reported ready to offer President Syngman Rhee a two-point face-saving compromise to gain South Korean adherence to an armistice with the Communists. Only a few hours after President Eisenhower's special envoy Walter S. Robertson emerged from his eighth meeting Saturday with the 78-year-old Korean leader, a reliable source said the U.S. would:

1. Agree to join South Korea in walking out of a post-armistice political conference with the Reds if, at the end of 90 days, the conference had made no progress toward peaceful unification of Korea.

2. After such a walkout "discuss" on a diplomatic level resumption of the war against the Communists with the understanding that any such action would have to be ratified by the U.S. Senate.

Robertson conferred for an hour and 25 minutes with Rhee and told newspaper men as he emerged that "I had a discussion which I feel will be helpful in reaching a satisfactory solution."

He declined to elaborate, but said he planned to see the South Korean president again. This was his eighth conference with Rhee.

South Korea's Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai told reporters Rhee has not modified his demand for a 90-day time limit on a post-armistice political conference. If unification of Korea is not achieved in 90 days, Rhee insists, the UN must agree to resume the war.

Robertson has rejected Rhee's demand, a high UN source said, and the resulting stalemate has threatened to wreck the talks.

Robertson, Eisenhower's envoy, talked for a few seconds with newspaper men outside Rhee's hilltop mansion before he drove away. He declined to say whether an agreement was near.

DELAY DEPARTURE

However, his statement stirred immediate speculation that his expected early departure for Washington would be delayed while he explored a possible new solution to the crisis.

Foreign Minister Pyun attended today's session. And while he insisted that Rhee has not softened his demands, he added:

"The very fact that we are still continuing the discussions proves that the talks are not hopeless."

Pyun is Rhee's closest adviser

Queen Mother Sees Progress Of Rhodesia

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Queen Mother Elizabeth and Princess Margaret today paid their second visit to the Rhodes centenary exhibition.

The Queen Mother opened the 50-acre exhibition Friday. It is designed to show the development of Africa over the past 100 years since the birth of empire-builder Cecil Rhodes.

The Royal visitors today toured several government stands, including those of Britain, Belgium, France and East Africa.

Specially-invited guests at the exhibition today were surviving pioneers and the widows of men sent out by Rhodes to open up Southern Rhodesia for British development.

Tonight the Royal guests will attend a gala performance by the British Halle orchestra, flown from England with the Sadler's Wells ballet and Covent Garden Opera Company for a season at the 3,000-seat theatre built at the exhibition.

20,000 Troops Hunt Malaya Terrorists

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) More than two thousand Commonwealth troops were battling through dense jungle country in Pahang state, North Malaya, today, in a bid to trap eight strong bands of Communist terrorists, it was officially announced here.

British, Gurkha and African troops and police are taking part in the operation—the biggest since the search for the murderers of the British high commissioner in Malaya, Sir Henry Gurney, in October, 1951.

In the last eight days the Communist-hunters have killed 13 guerrilas, wrecked 35 camps, destroyed 70 vegetable plots by fire and wiped out four food and ammunition dumps.

Romanians Raid 25 Co-Operatives

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Speakers at a meeting of the Association of Romanian Political Refugees in Yugoslavia Friday reported that Romanian peasants have looted 25 co-operatives of foodstuffs and industrial equipment.

The meeting was told that the situation in Romania has deteriorated since the death of Stalin, owing to an intensified exploitation of Romania's economic resources by Russia. The economy is controlled through 14 Soviet-Romanian companies, it was stated.

There was discontent among all sections of the population, on the verge of poverty and hunger and desertions from the army were on the increase.

One American Killed Five Hurt In Crash

ST. THOMAS (CP)—One man was killed and five persons injured, four of them seriously, today in a two-car collision about five miles east of nearby Aylmer.

Charles Krowec, 51, of Detroit, was fatally injured. In hospital here are David Malton, 15, of the St. Thomas suburb of Lynhurst; Mrs. Josephine Krowec, about 51, wife of Charles; Arthur Lawrence and his wife Barbara, both 24 and their infant son, David, aged six months. All but the baby suffered serious injuries.

500 Arrested In Calcutta Riot

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — Police arrested more than 500 people here today after using tear gas to break up crowds rioting against increased street car fares.

Police said they had fired 80 tear gas shells in different parts of the city.

In one incident six persons were injured, some seriously, when the police charged the crowd with clubs. The demonstrators were obstructing private and public vehicles travelling along the road.

Near Dum Dum bridge, about 10 miles from the city, demonstrators tried to set fire to two railroad cars. Police opened fire to drive them off. No one was injured.

Three members of the West Bengal legislative assembly are among the many arrested. They were charged with disorderly conduct and released on bail.

The British-owned company did not run street car services today.

Social Credit Wins Two Seats

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Credit Friday night added two more seats toward a majority government when trickling returns showed victory for party candidates in Vancouver Centre and Nelson-Creston.

With a total of 23, Premier W. A. C. Bennett's Social Crediters need only two more seats, a virtual certainty, to form a working majority. The party leads in six of the seven seats still in doubt and the CCF leads in one.

The latest standing showed: Social Credit 23, CCF 13, Labor 1, Liberals 3, and Progressive Conservatives 1.

Pacific Typhoon Rips Sea Coast Of China

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — A howling Pacific typhoon swept over the China coast today after ripping across the northern edge of Formosa.

The weather bureau here said the storm, with centre winds of 140 miles an hour, hit the China mainland just north of Foochow, capital of Fukien province.

The typhoon took a heavy toll of crops and property and claimed an unknown number of casualties as it cut a swath across the northern end of this Chinese Nationalist island.

Disrupted communications made it impossible to determine the extent of damage or number of casualties.

Planets Do Affect People's Lives

Canadians Get Their Time From Stars

By ANTHONY DICKASON

OTTAWA (CP)—The old belief that stars affect people's lives is borne out in Canada every day.

The Dominion observatory here is the country's official timekeeper and every watch and clock throughout the country follows the pattern set by selected "clock stars" used for precise determination of time.

Positions are observed on clear nights through the observatory's new photographic zenith telescope and findings are pooled with those from the United Kingdom and the United States for greater accuracy.

But observatory personnel don't squint and peer at the heavens to make these findings. An instrument which looks like a tape recorder sets telescope mechanism working as the clock stars approach the meridian and carries on observations during the night with only minor supervision.

TIME DISTRIBUTION

For the most part, distribution of time is by radio signal. For more populated areas time is heard on ordinary radio sets over the CBC at one p.m. EST in winter and one p.m. EDT in summer.

For surveyors, aerial navigators, ships at sea and in remote areas, short wave broadcasts of time signals are made 24 hours daily. Under favorable conditions broadcasts can be heard across Canada and are frequently picked up overseas.

In addition to radio time signals are transmitted twice daily to Halifax for broadcast to ships at sea. The two main railway and telegraph companies and the Bell Telephone Company also receive signals for transmission over their own networks. Numerous government buildings in Ottawa, including the Parliament Buildings, have clocks synchronized by wire from the observatory.

CHECK LATITUDE

Apart from time checks at the observatory the zenith telescope also determines latitude variations. Latitude varies slightly year by year. Results are forwarded to the international latitude service at Torino, Italy, for combination with similar reports from other parts of the world. Similarly, readings are sent the bureau of longitude in Paris, furnished with times of reception of foreign time signals. By checking the difference in time at which a star crosses the meridians of two widely separated places the difference in longitude can be calculated.

PHOTOGRAPH METEORS

Under the imposing name of "stellar physics," other interesting factors are explored. As an example, two astronomical cameras, 50 times as fast as any previous equipment, are being used to photograph meteors at recently established centres at Meanook and Newbrook, Alta.

The study is to find density and resistance of air 25 to 75 miles above the earth's surface. Findings help determine reactions of high-speed military projectiles.

Meteors are said to be ideal for this purpose as they come into the atmosphere at speeds from 30 to 70 miles a second and become luminous by friction with the air. Trajectories can thus be easily seen.

Last year brilliant fireballs were observed and photographs taken marked an advance over anything previously available on the study of light sources. They disclosed the chemical composition of meteors—ironized iron and hydrogen—not previously recognized, together with temperatures attained resulting from air friction.

OTHER STUDIES

The "terrestrial magnetism" division of the Dominion observatory makes maps—magnetic ones showing compass variations from true north, plus the vertical and horizontal strength of the earth's magnetic field. Maps go to such departments as the surveys and mapping branch, the geological survey of Canada, the defence department and other agencies.

Gravity measurements are also taken to investigate the nature of the earth's outer crust. Results are of commercial value to firms who use geophysical methods to locate oil and other minerals.

When it comes to earthquakes, the observatory is well-informed, maintaining a network of seismograph stations across Canada. These are located at Halifax; Seven Falls and Shawinigan Falls, Que.; Ottawa; Kirkland Lake, Ont.; Saskatoon; Victoria, Horseshoe Bay and Alberni, B.C., and Resolute Bay, N.W.T. Daily readings are taken at key stations.

Unemployment Drops 36 Per Cent From May

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 71,476 unemployment insurance claims were registered across Canada in May, a 39 per cent decline from 117,171 claims in April, the Dominion bureau of statistics reported today. Claims in May, 1952, totalled 83,806.

All provinces showed a decrease in the number of claims, Quebec leading with 19,000 and Ontario next with a drop of 10,000.

Personal Service

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—A Fort William man wheeled his car in front of the centre fire station early today, squirmed uncomfortably from behind the wheel and then bent over while firemen extinguished a blaze in the seat of his pants. Firemen said the man—who declined to give his name—dropped a lighted cigarette on the car seat.

Fat Old Ewes Give U.K. Blues Red-Faced Butchers Strike

LONDON (AP)—Indignant butchers of the United Kingdom went on strike today:

Against the sale of fat old ewes
Which give Britons the blues
By melting into glues
When cooked up for stews.

The defiant meat men said:
No matter how much money they lose
Or whose feelings they bruise
They do not choose
To use such ewes
As part of the weekly meat ration.

The National Federation of Meat Trade Associations—35,000 strong—made known its views on ewes in a firm notice to the national food ministry, which controls the distribution of meat.

And the strike got under way this morning with such unofficial mottoes as "No Queues for Old Ewes," "Old Ewes Taste Like Old Shoes," and "Old Ewes Should be in Zoos."

PRESS SUPPORT

The stoppage received gleeful support from much of the British press.

The trouble began brewing a couple of weeks ago when the food ministry found itself overstocked on fat ewes, mostly imported from Australia. The matronly sheep were raised for their wool, rather than their meat, and they are undeniably tallowy. To get rid of them, the ministry decreed that butchers would have to start taking five per cent of their wholesale allowance in this type of meat. The butchers protested they could not sell the stuff to their customers and many refused to accept it.

The food ministry struck back with a threat to cut off all supplies to tradesmen who rejected the fat mutton.

The federation then announced its decision to refuse "to assist the ministry to foist unsatisfactory meat on the public."

No big pinch in the retail meat supply is expected until perhaps next week-end. The ministry said butchers who filed their formal rejection of the fat mutton not later than Wednesday of this week would receive their normal supplies of other kinds of meat for the coming week.

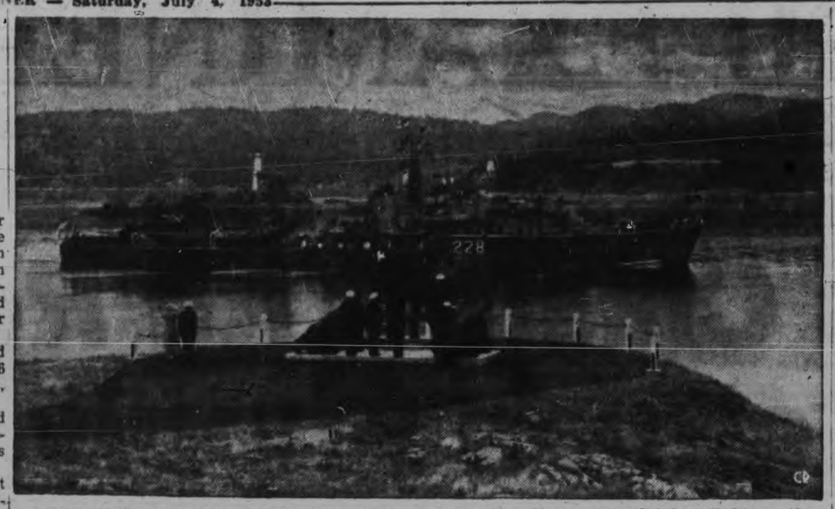
No Sabre Jets Shot Down During Week

SEOUL (AP) — The U. S. Air force reported today that not one U. S. Sabre jet was shot down this week in aerial combat which cost the Reds 23 MiG jets destroyed, one probably destroyed and two damaged in the air over Korea.

Six Allied aircraft were downed by Red groundfire and one B-26 bomber was lost to other causes, probably engine failure.

Beginning at midnight, Allied shells ripped into Communist positions and continued at intervals all through the day.

South Korean troops who lost Lookout mountain on the east central front Friday made no new attempts to retake the hill. The 3rd RoK division has been fighting for a week to drive Chinese Reds off the mountain.



PLANES GROUNDED

Rain and heavy clouds grounded most warplanes, but eight B-29 bombers dropped loads on Red artillery positions south of Pyongyang on the central front and near Kumsong.

At Sniper ridge on the central front, the Chinese suffered about 100 casualties in a five-hour probing attack against Allied positions. UN defenders threw back the assault with machine guns and grenades, the 8th army said.

A Communist battalion hit briefly on the east side of Finger ridge, then withdrew. An Allied patrol west of Finger ridge fell back after briefly engaging an enemy company.

The Finger ridge actions followed the loss of Lookout mountain by South Koreans to the southeast. The RoKs gave up the embattled mountain to 450 attacking Chinese just 12 hours after storming its crest.

TOP TRAINBUSTER BACK—The Canadian destroyer Crusader, train-busting champion of the United Nations navies, returns to Esquimalt, B.C., after service in Korea. Her record is 4½ trains wrecked, three of them completely. Taking the salute as the ship enters Esquimalt harbor are Rear-Admiral J. C. Hibbard, flag officer, Pacific command; Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace and representatives of the British Columbia government.

Jars Of Grease Ease Boy Out Of Barrel

BOSTON (AP)—Eight-year-old Bobby Fay was in a barrel of trouble Thursday but he got out of it—thanks to several jars of grease.

Bobby, with youthful curiosity, popped into the metal barrel head first to see how hot it was inside.

He found it was plenty hot and also that he was too big to come out.

His mother called police and the police called the fire department. But before firemen arrived an enterprising storekeeper came to the rescue with several jars of petroleum jelly. A well-greased Bobby slid out easily from a well-greased barrel.

Navy Fireworks Shakes Korean Reds

ABOARD ATHABASKAN (CP) —This Canadian destroyer put on a Dominion Day fireworks display which shook the North Korean Communists.

When the smoke had cleared away, the Reds were short a train of 24 boxcars loaded with war supplies for the front. One of their main supply routes was also shattered.

It was the second train kill for the Athabaskan in four days.

Scientists To Learn Distinguish Good Fungus

By BOB JOYCE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Seventeen Canadian scientists are back in school today to learn to distinguish good fungi from bad. The 17, graduates in medicine, bacteriology and veterinary science from universities and research laboratories across Canada, are members of the first Canadian university course in medical mycology.

Mycology is the study of fungi or plant growths that feed on living tissues. Medical mycology is concerned with fungi that cause disease.

For three weeks the scientists will study at McGill University under Dr. Fritz Blank, Swiss-born mycologist, the good and bad points of the minute plants.

Less than 1-5,000th of an inch long, some forms cause diseased growths in man and animals, while others are used to manufacture food and drugs. Hence the paradox, one fungi specimen, yeast, helps produce beer and bread; another is responsible for athlete's foot.

IMPORTANT TO KNOW

"It's very important to be able to distinguish the different types," said Dr. Blank in an interview.

"Some of the common forms are well-known, of course, but there are literally thousands of types. Fortunately there are only a small number that cause disease in human beings. But these are often very difficult to identify.

"What we're trying to do in this course is to teach the students techniques they can apply in case of mycotic infection in animals or human beings, and to show them the different types of fungi at various stages of growth."

To enable them to see the organisms under the microscope, Dr. Blank uses small glass containers that can fit under the magnifying glass.

British Tea Industry Apologizes For Party

LONDON (Reuters)—The British tea industry apologized to the United States today—Independence Day—for the events leading to the famed Boston tea party in 1773.

A chest of tea, together with an inscribed copy of a new Anglo-American handbook called "Meet the British," was put on a plane at the London airport for the mayor of Boston, John B. Hynes.

"A small gesture of penitence for the British behavior that led to the tea party in 1773 and in the hope that relations between our two countries will continue to be close and amicable," said a letter.

In 1773 Bostonians boarded three British ships in the harbor and dumped tea chests into the water in protest against a monopoly granted to the East India Company and the continuation of a heavy tea tax.

Flying Forbidden May Have To Paddle

ELY, Minn. (AP)—Vacationers in the heavily-wooded wilderness area near this northern Minnesota village were faced today with having no other way out of their resorts except by canoe.

Backing a presidential ban on commercial flying over the area issued in 1949, federal officials Friday seized three planes and served criminal contempt citations on two pilots accused of bringing in vacationers.

For the tourists, estimated by the Ely Chamber of Commerce at about 200, the action meant canoe trips of a day or more would provide the sole means of departure. The area has no roads and no railways.

Inch And Half Of Rain Fall In Winnipeg Storm

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two violent thunderstorms swept across the Red river valley Friday night dumping almost 1½ inches of rain on Winnipeg, flooding roads and subways and halting sports events.

The first storm drenched the city with one and one-quarter inches of rain in 40 minutes. Gusts of wind reached 87 miles an hour near Portage la Prairie, Man.

Shortly after midnight, a second Winnipeg storm brought more rain.

Other thunderstorms dropped hail on many areas of southern Saskatchewan. There were no immediate reports on damage.

Strapped Child, Jailed

GUELPH (CP)—Harold Sunter, 48, of nearby Eveston was sentenced Friday to 15 days in jail for strapping his eight-year-old daughter. He was charged with assault. The father told the court he used his belt to strap his daughter "four or five times," but could not explain bruises on her arm and chest three days after the strapping.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most prices moved narrowly in dull trade Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Some commercial demand was reported in oats and barley. In oats, some shipping demand and light U.S. purchases were reported. Flax was seasier in early trade but firmed later with odd sales to exporters and processors. Rye trade was mostly local. Prices of top grade of Class 2, IWA and domestic wheat were down ⅛ cent.

Driver Charged After Fatal Accident

MOUNT FOREST (CP)—Charges of reckless and dangerous driving were laid today against George W. Graham of New Toronto after a car-truck crash here Friday night in which one man was killed and three others injured.

Harvey Hutchinson, 30, of West Luther township died in the head-on accident between Graham's coupe and a refrigerator truck.

Graham suffered minor injuries while a passenger in his car, Mervin Patterson, was critically hurt. Charles Weatherby of Guelph, driver of the truck, suffered shock and bruises.

Police said the collision occurred at Parker's Corners, where no. 58 and 56 county roads join about seven miles east of Drayton.

U.S. Death Count Beginning With 32

CHICAGO (AP)—The count of deaths in accidents in the United States rose slowly today while millions of Americans celebrated Independence Day.

A tabulation of fatalities in the holiday period that began at 6 p.m. (local time) Friday showed a total of 32. These include 26 in traffic, three drownings and three deaths from miscellaneous causes.

The National Safety Council estimated 40,000,000 automobiles will be on the roads during the two-day holiday. The council figured that motor vehicle accidents may result in the loss of 290 lives before the holiday period ends at midnight Sunday.

Bullet Found In Victim's Neck

OWEN SOUND (CP)—A post-mortem performed Friday on the body of Fred York of Kitchener disclosed death was from a .22-calibre bullet lodged in his back.

York was struck by the bullet Wednesday while standing talking to his wife outside their ne whome at Sauble Falls, 25 miles north of here. He died Friday in hospital here.

Inspector Ralph Taylor of the Ontario provincial police said today he hasn't found any indication of foul play. Two youths seen in the vicinity of the 60-year-old man's new home are still sought for questioning.

Crown attorney L. Freeborn of Walkerton said he has nothing to prove the shooting was anything but accidental.

Inspector Taylor appealed to any marksmen doing target shooting or hunting in the area 25 miles north of here to report to police.

Longshore Leaders To Begin Jail Terms

HONOLULU (AP) — Longshore leader Jack W. Hall and six co-defendants in the Hawaii Communist conspiracy case will begin serving prison terms July 24 unless the U.S. Court of Appeals intervenes.

Hall and five defendants Friday were sentenced by federal Judge Jon Wiig to serve maximum terms of five years each. They were fined $5,000 each—half the maximum provided by the Smith Act.

The seventh defendant, Mrs. Eileen Fujimoto, was sentenced to three years and fined $2,000.

They were convicted June 19 after a seven - month trial on charges of conspiring to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the U.S. government.

Hall and the other defendants each denied any guilt.

Fire Breaks Out On Danish Ship

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A Danish ship carrying 3,000 tons of strategic cryolite ore caught fire while unloading at her bertn here Friday night.

Federal bureau of investigation agents immediately launched an investigation into possible sabotage. No one was injured and there was no immediate estimate of damage.

The ship, the 2,500-ton freighter Ellen Nielsen of Copenhagen, arrived Friday afternoon from Greenland with a load of ore used in making aluminum and other vital defence materials.

Business Educators Elect Hamilton Man President

Ross Clemens, of Hamilton, was today elected president of the Business Educators' Association of Canada. The election of officers was one of the last items of business at the three-day convention held in Gil-Mar Lodge.

Thirty-five delegates were present, most of them from the larger Canadian cities. Among the delegates were business educators from Regina, Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Montreal and the larger Ontario centres.

Miss Margaret Battersby, principal of the Peterborough Business College, was the official delegate from Peterborough. One of the guests was the former principal, John A. McKone.

It was the 57th convention of the Business Educators' Association who meet once a year to discuss business trends and how to adapt teaching curricula to meet these changes.

Friday night the business educators held a joint meeting with the International Association of Master Penmen and Teachers of Handwriting who were also having a convention at Gil-Mar Lodge. Seventy-five attended the joint session which continued till midnight.

Officers for 1953-54 include Ross Clemens, president; John Jose, of Orillia, immediate past president; Frank Park, of Hamilton, vice-president; and Floyd Marshall, of London, secretary-treasurer.

Congress Will Block Offering Surpluses–Taft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert Taft (Rep. Ohio) said today he expects Congress to reject President Eisenhower's request for blanket authority to send government-held farm surpluses to friendly foreign nations.

"I don't think there will be any such general authority given," the Senate Republican leader said in an interview. "The agricultural people are against it. They have their own ideas on handling these surpluses. There are many proposals."

And Taft hinted the White House request may have been an effort to separate the farm suplus problem from the $5,318,000,000 foreign aid bill passed by the Senate last Wednesday.

Eisenhower asked broad authority to use government-held farm products for famine or other emergency relief to foreign nations during the next two years.

He asked the right to fix terms—gift or sale—with the treasury paying the costs, including deliviate from the long range military and economic assistance program of the mutual security administration.

Republican chairmen of the Senate and House agriculture committees promised to hold early hearings on the White House request, but tentative plans to adjourn Congress July 31 and powerful opposition to the proposal indicate slight chance for its approval.

BLANK CHEQUE

Democrats blasted the Eisenhower request as a "blank check" and "give away" of more than $3,000,000,000 worth of farm commodities now held by the government under its price-support program.

Senator William Knowland (Rep. Calif.), who has been acting as floor leader while Taft is recovering from a hip ailment, defended the president's request but opposed adding it to the foreign aid bill.

Knowland said Eisenhower expected congress to write in "proper limitations" and would use the requested authority only for emergencies.

Over opposition of the Republican leadership, the Senate attached to the foreign aid bill a farm surplus rider which allows use of mutual security dollars for purchase of U.S. farm surpluses, including meat and livestock. The foreign nations would pay for these surplus farm products with their currencies. These foreign currencies then would be used by the U.S. to purchase military equipment and services abroad.

This plan was termed "not a give-away, it is aid by trade."

Under it transactions would be handled by private trade channels, rather than through the government.

BEGUN BY PCs

He said he is surprised at the Liberal party's suggestion that it brought the board into being and that the board's existence would be endangered by a Progressive Conservative government. The board was brought into existence by the Conservative government of the late R. B Bennett. Subsequent Liberal governments dropped the advisory board, made up with a majority of producers, which guided the wheat board.

Mr. Drew's recent remarks that Communists have infiltrated into key industries and that the government knows it received some attention from Justice Minister Garson in Winnipeg.

Mr. Garson released a prepared statement which said that no Communists, known to the government, are employed in a government agency or vital industry with access to defence or secret information.

If Mr. Drew knew of any, it was his duty to give the information to the police. Up to June 30, no such information was received by police or the justice department from Mr. Drew.

STOP KOWTOWING

Meanwhile, Tim Buck, leader of the Labor-Progressive (Communist) party, spoke at a party meeting in Windsor. He said that if Canada stopped "kowtowing to the demand of United States big business that Canada should be a raw materials source and not an independent manufacturing centre . . .then a new future would open before us."

He charged that the U.S. is holding up completion of the St. Lawrence seaway. Its completion would make Windsor a seaport which could ship machinery to Russia, China, Poland, Bulgaria, Romania and other countries, "a growing socialist market willing and ready to take our manufactured products."

External Affairs Minister Pearson touched on international affairs in a campaign speech at Killarney, Ont., in his home riding of Algoma. He said united action for peace requires avoiding anything that could be called appeasement of Communist imperialism and steps that might be rash and provocative.

"Our policy in attempting to strengthen and preserve peace is not a policy of weakness but one of strength, physical and moral. To keep the peace, extremes must be avoided. We can only keep the peace if we are strong. We can only be strong in a free world if we are united."

WON ROUND 1

At Montreal, Donald Fleming, Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament for Toronto-Eglinton, said in election-meeting speeches that "round one of the general election has gone to the PCs."

The Liberals confined themselves to criticizing the Progressive Conservative platform "and have offered nothing by way of a program for the next five years."

Gordon Graydon, foreign affairs expert for the Progressive Conservatives in the last Parliament, said at a nominating meeting at Lindsay, Ont., that the Liberal government is "over-balanced, top-heavy and has become a political family monopoly."

He said the Progressive Conservatives should win the Aug. 10 election.

In the Maritimes, Prime Minister St. Laurent ended his eastern campaign. He leaves for the West from Ottawa next Tuesday.

Doldrums Or Consolidating Stock Market Slows Down

By GORDON MacKINNON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Activity at the stock exchanges this week often slowed to a crawl, although the principal trading centres closed in rare disagreement on the direction of price levels.

New York and Montreal enjoyed a moderate rally during the latter half of the week but Toronto tended narrowly lower.

There seems to be two main points of view from which observers have interpreted the week's activity.

One group of Toronto market analysts announced the arrival of the traditional "summer doldrums." To substantiate this opinion they cite this week's small daily volumes, narrow ranges of price fluctuation and waning interest in speculative stocks.

Further support for this view comes from New York where A. J. Corteses, of A. F. Kidder and Co. commented Thursday: "Unless the news changes, the writer is willing to assume that the rally is near its end."

Another school of opinion calls this a week of consolidation following last week's general advance.

Toronto subscribers to his view say that our market, which ran ahead of New York all last week, now is coming more into line with Wall street, the recognized pace setter. The latter is said to be still feeling the beneficial effects of the federal reserve board's decision to ease reserve requirements by $1.5 billion.

These same observers see business in an awkward interim period, encouraged by high levels of activity during the first two quarters but wary in the face of oft-repeated recession predictions.

REFLECT VIEWS

It is quite natural, they say, that stock markets will mirror this state of affairs.

Regarding the recent lack of interest in speculative issues, the "consolidation school" says the late spring break-up in northern Saskatchewan has held back exploration of and reports from the promising Beaverlodge uranium area.

Taking a shorter-range look at the week's activity, New York enjoyed a moderate rally beginning Tuesday and continuing through Friday's quiet but steady pre-fourth session.

In Toronto, groupings kept within a price range of little more than a point as the market turned alternately mixed and slightly lower.

The four-day week witnessed a gently rising market in Montreal broken only by Tuesday's mild reversal.

The Toronto stock exchange's week index figures showed industrials up .46 at 304.46, golds down .46 at 76.97, base metals down 1.50 at 157.43 and western oils down .19 at 103.37.

Montreal averages had banks up .08 at 33.92, utilities down .5 at 95, industrials up .1 at 185.9, combined up .5 at 155.6, papers up 7.18 at 682.89 and golds up .03 at 56.99.

The Associated Press average of 60 New York stocks advanced $1.10 at 108.30.

New Hungarian Govt. Kicks Out Red Premier

BUDAPEST (AP) — A newly-elected Parliament today dropped Hungary's No. 1 Communist, Matyas Rakosi, from the premiership and replaced him with one of his former deputies.

The surprise moved followed swiftly a drastic shakeup in the ruling party's Politburo earlier this week. With Rakosi looking on placidly, the lawmakers quickly approved the Hungarian Praesidium's new nominee for premier, 57-year-old Imre Nagy, Russian-trained old-time Communist revolutionary and one of the five vice-premiers in Rakosi's former cabinet.

Rakosi, 61, resigned last Thursday in what was considered at the time to be a routine procedure following parliamentary elections. Hungarians fully expected the man who has headed the ruling party for most of the post-war years to be reappointed.

Rakosi still ranks as a member of the new streamlined party secretariat and is in the newly paredown Politburo. But his resignation as premier and the sudden replacement of many well-known Communist leaders by relative unknowns in the Politburo has led to wide speculation among diplomats both in Budapest and elsewhere that a new political trend is shaping up in Hungary.

RAISE STANDARDS

Nagy gave immediate confirmation in his speech to Parliament. He said industralization had previously been Hungary's first interest.

"Now living standards must be raised and the needs of the masses must be covered by food production and agriculture."

He announced that the collectivization program would be slowed, that small land holders would be permitted to leave collective farms "and will be supported by the government so that they may start anew independently." He promised the abolition of internment camps for wrongdoers and said an amnesty bill would be introduced to get these persons back to work. He cancelled 600,000,000 forints (more than 50 million dollars) in fines levied against peasants for failure to make required deliveries of produce.

PARE CABINET

An amendment to the constitution was submitted which deputies said cuts down the cabinet in line with the Soviet pattern established after the Russian Communist party's big conference last year.

The new cabinet now consists of 17 ministers including a premier and two vice-premiers. The party leadership has also been reshaped after the Russian pattern, reducing the politburo from 17 to nine members and abolishing the post of secretary-general, held by Rakosi. Rakosi, however, was put at the head of a list of three party secretaries.

Western diplomats in Vienna, listening post for affairs behind the nearby Iron Curtain, believe Rakosi has been eliminated as Hungarian dictator - premier because he was a friend of the late premier Stalin.

Even though he still holds a prominent place in the party hierarchy, it is believed he has lost much of his powers as a one-man boss.

This appears to be part of the new Kremlin policy, both in Moscow and in the satellites: Wiping out the one-man dictator traditions of Stalin and replacing the old hero cult with government by committee.

SURVIVED PURGE

During the last days of Stalin's reign, Rakosi was one of the few high-placed Jews in the Communist world to retain his post after the anti-Semitic wave that stemmed from Moscow's attempts to stamp out any Jewish sympathies for zionism or the state of Israel.

Rakosi has had a long, brilliant and often violent career in the Communist international. He was a secretary of the Comintern executive in Moscow at the age of 28. He returned to Hungary to carry on illegal Red activities and served a couple of long prison terms on charges of murder and inciting to murder.

He, too, came back to Hungary with the advancing Soviet armies in 1944 and began immediately applying the "salami tactics" for which he became notorious.

He described these tactics as:

"Demanding a little more each day, like cutting up a salami, thin slice after thin slice."

Hail Storm Batters Regina Area

REGINA (CP) A violent hail storm swept across southern Saskatchewan Friday night, leaving in its wake battered grain fields, shredded gardens and shattered windows.

Accompanied by a crackling electrical storm, heavy winds and torrential rains, the hail struck first in the Swift Current area.

Driving eastward, part of the storm doused southern Manitoba. Winnipeg was soaked with more than an inch of rain in 40 minutes.

Gusts of wind reached 87 miles an hour near Portage la Prairie, Man.

It was feared the storm took a heavy toll of grain crops, already delayed by late seeding and cool wet weather.

Hail stones half an inch in diameter covered the ground to a depth of two inches at Waldeck, east of Swift Current.

At Moose Jaw, pounding hail forced many motorists to halt their cars. Windows, greenhouses, gardens and trees suffered heavy damage in the half-hour storm.

At Parkbeg, northwest of Moose Jaw, a small twister struck the farm of George Bath, scooped up good-sized trees and scattered a straw stack.

In Winnipeg, roads and subways were flooded and sports events rained out.

Road, Railways In North Fine Investment Says Drew

EDMONTON (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives favor road and railway building in the north as "one of the most satisfactory forms of capital investment," George Drew, Conservative leader, says. The area along the Yellowhead Pass route through the Rockies needs highways for freight transport, Mr. Drew told a press conference here Friday night. Northern defence also was an aspect of "vital importance," and he said he favored a second trans-Canada highway route through the Yellowhead Pass. Mr. Drew said also that a Progressive Conservative government, if elected Aug. 10, would restore guidance by producers to the board of grain commissioners.

"A Progressive Conservative government would not only continue the board, but restore the previous system of guidance by producers," he said after expressing surprise that the Liberal party was suggesting the wheat board would be in danger under the Conservatives.

The Conservative leader said extension of roads and railways into new areas with great possibilities of development was the "best possible capital investment."

"You can't wait until the development is there to build your roads and railways. If you do, the development will never come."

NEEDS STUDY

He said the question of whether Alberta's northland should be served by railways or highways would be decided after expert examination that studied all the facts.

Mr. Drew said he was "surprised" the government was suggesting that the Liberal party had brought the wheat board into existence. The wheat board came into existence under the Conservative government of the late R. B. Bennett, he said.

He said that government provided for an advisory board, with a majority of producers, to guide the wheat board's decisions.

"The present government did away with that and made the board strictly a government agency."

At a public meeting, Mr. Drew said there is no basis for suggestions from Liberal government leaders that there is little evidence of Communist danger in Canada.

He said there should be a law against activities designed to destroy Canada's democratic system. The RCMP had urged citizens to combat communism and the government should "do the same."

Mr. Drew travelled here by train from Calgary, and before leaving by train for Saskatoon he visited the veterans' hospital and spoke briefly at the national convention of the Congress of Ukranian Catholic Organizations in Canada.

Immigrants: When Needed Harris Policy

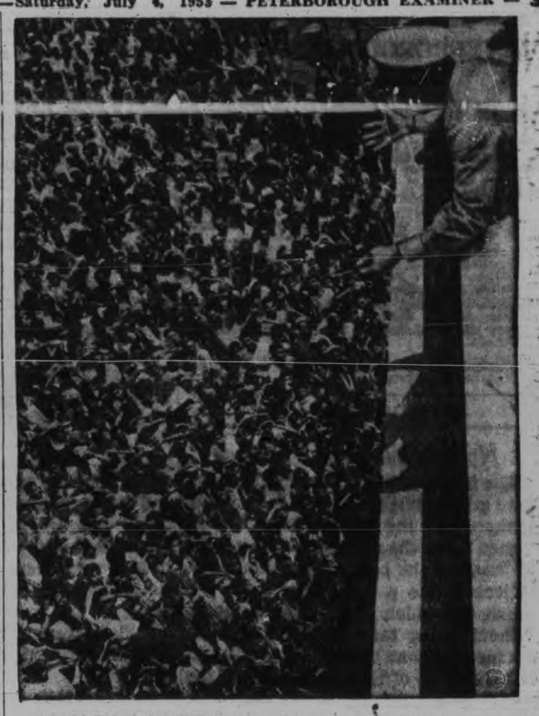
TORONTO (CP) — Immigration Minister Harris said Friday night the immigration policy of the Liberal government is to bring immigrants into Canada at the time they are needed and in the numbers in which they are needed.

Speaking at a York-Humber riding election campaign meeting, he said the flow of immigrants depends on economic climate of the day. If times were good and capital investment was heavy, immigrants could be brought into the country. If there was no heavy investment of capital, the time wasn't opportune for the entry of immigrants.

That is the policy the Liberal government has been trying to follow, he said.

Due to the relative prosperity of Canada and the flow of capital into the country, there was no longer as much migration of Canadians to the United States as in the past.

He said this situation was only possible because of the stability the Liberal government has given during the last seven years and because of the safe features surrounding investment in Canada.



Prime Minister Completes Tour Of Maritimes

CAMPBELLTON, N.B. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent Friday night wound up his first Maritime eleetion tour with station-stop speeches at Bathurst and Campbellton, N.B.

The Ocean Limited was running 30 minutes late when it picked up the prime minister's car and the speeches had to be short.

There was a big crowd at Bathurst and Mr St. Laurent was just about mobbed by it when he stepped off. The train pulled up past the station and he made a few remarks in English. His French remarks had just started when the train began to move.

Mr. St. Laurent told the Bathurst crowd he was sure mineral discoveries in New Brunswick would add much to the economic life of Canada as well as to the well-being of the province.

MAN TO LOOK UP TO—The eyes of Egypt are upon Mohammed Naguib, Egypt's strong man, even as are the eyes of this throng, which listens as Egypt's first Premier and President addresses the people from a balcony of the Republican Palace in Cairo. The palace was formerly known as Abdin Palace, until Naguib abolished the monarchy, and sent one-time King Farouk into exile.

No Known Communist Employed In Government, Justice Minister Garson

WINNIPEG (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said today in a prepared statement that no Communist, known to the federal government, is employed in a government agency or vital industry with access to defence or other secret information.

The statement commented on a charge by Progressive Conservative leader George Drew at Victoria Monday that known Communists are employed in vital Canadian industries and in some agencies of government.

PROTECT RIGHTS

Mr. Garson said the government excludes from access to secret material any person whose reliability it doubts. Individual rights were protected as far as possible but individuals could not be given the benefit of the doubt.

Mr. Garson said that if Mr. Drew knows of any individual in such a position it is his duty to give the information to the police. Up to June 30, neither the police nor Mr. Garson's office had received information about a single case from Mr. Drew.

The justice minister denied Mr. Drew's statement that the name of one Communist employed in a government agency was given in a return tabled in Commons at the last session.

"So far as I am aware, no such return has ever been made," said Mr. Garson.

ACTION OVERDUE

At Victoria, Mr. Drew was quoted as saying at a press conference: "The extent to which Communist organizers have established themselves in plants taking any part in the production of uranium or other atomic products suggests that the time for action in this country is long overdue."

Mr. Garson said the government "does not know of any Communist employed in any way whatever in connection with the production of atomic products."

Mr. Drew also was quoted as saying there were trained saboteurs in many power generating plants. Mr. Garson said generation of power was under provincial jurisdiction. Eighty-three per cent of power was generated in Ontario and Quebec which have provincial hydro commissions.

The federal government knew of no trained saboteur in any power plant in Canada and "it would be interesting to know whether the provincial authorities in Ontario or Quebec know of any such in any of their plants."

Small Boy Hurt Crossing Street

A seven-year-old boy was the only injury Friday in accidents on Peterborough streets. He was Roger Fowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fowler of 251 Reid St. who sustained brush burns and cuts when struck by a car on Aylmer St., just south of Sherbrooke St. He is in satisfactory condition at Civic Hospital.

Driver of the car, Clark Staples, 54, of 111 Rubidge St. was driving south on Aylmer St. when the accident occurred. The boy ran out in front of his car. He was taken to hospital by Walter McLaren of 283 Park St.

The accident happened at 6:10 p.m.

A car belonging to Edgar Woodcock, 28, of 57 Aylmer St., was damaged to the extent of $25 when struck by a hit-and-run driver while parked on Aylmer St. The Woodcock vehicle was sideswiped by the second car. A witness, Walter Hewitt, saw the accident but failed to note the other vehicle's licence number.

A driver of two weeks' experience, Mrs. Linda Burville of 509 Chamberlain St., slid into a turning bus at the corner of Lansdowne and George Sts., Friday, causing damage estimated at $45 to the two vehicles.

The bus, driven by Victor Fairburn, 37, of RR 1, Peterborough, was turning north onto George St. from Lansdowne St. when the southbound Burville car slid into it while attempting to stop.

Cars heading in the opposite direction and passing parked cars on Reid St. Friday night hit each other in passing, causing damage of $75 to that of Robert Kirkpatrick, 29, of Hamilton, and slight damage to that of Bernard Hotts, 47, of 675 Donegal.

Offer Baby Sitters On Election Day

LINDSAY—Vacationers in the Beaverton area on Lake Simcoe are soon to be subjected to a subtle type of poll. If they are, or claim to be, Progressive Conservatives, they get free baby sitters on election day.

Mrs. Cameron McKenzie, of Beaverton, outlined the novel plan Friday at a party campaign rally here.

"We're renting four or five cottages for election day," she said. "Our organization has arranged for several baby sitters. Progressive Conservatives in our area for the summer will be able to leave their children in the cottages, under proper supervision, and drive down to the city to vote."

Ex-Warden W. Worsley, of Victoria County, claimed that 2,000 summer residents of Fenelon township would probably not vote in the election because they will be away from their home ridings.

German-Built Ship First Visit To Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—The motor vessel Colonia, 2,500-ton freighter built by a German company to move coffee and other goods to Canada in summer and Mediterranean fruit to Germany in winter, Friday paid her first visit to Toronto. Gas Pipe Line In West To East Not Feasible

CALGARY (CP)—A pipe line to central Canada is not immediately economically feasible, Russell Ritchie of New York, vice-president of Stone and Webster Service Corporation said today.

Speaking before the Alberta petroleum and natural was conservation board, Mr. Russell said he would not recommend any pipe line be built from Winnipeg east in view of the limited market in Ontario and Quebec.

The gas hearing, dealing with applications for permits to export Alberta's natural gas both east and west, was adjourned until July 13.

PCs Renominate Hodgson In Victoria-Haliburton

LINDSAY (ENS)—The present government in Ottawa is overbalanced, top heavy, and has become almost a political family monopoly, like almost to the family compact of former years, said Gordon Graydon, MP for Peel, at a Progressive Conservative nomination meeting here Friday when Clayton Hodgson, MP, received his third nomination for the Victoria-Haliburton seat.

The recent by-elections, said Mr. Graydon, showed a change in public opinion. The eight victories given the Progressive Conservative party in those seats, he claimed, showed the people siwnging away from the Liberal government which, he said, had been too long in power and had become over-impressed with its own power. The tide of this swing away from the government, he said, should reach its peak during the election, and bring a new government to Ottawa.

ONE-PARTY SENATE

The Senate, said the speaker, was in a worse position than the House, and would, if the Liberals should return to power, become almost a one-party institution.

The continuation of a party too long in power, he said, brings about the carelessness and indifference and throwing of its weight around that characterized the Liberal government during the past year. He then went into the issue of waste and extravagance which the party is attacking during the campaign, citing several examples in detail.

"There comes a time in the life of government," he concluded, "when it is best for that government, the party and the country for its control to end." The two outstanding issues, he said, of government waste and overtaxation had brought about the time for the defeat of Liberal government at Ottawa.

The Progressive-Conservatives are ready to take over, he said. "Our leaders have seriously prepared for our return to power. Our men in parliament have specialized in various departments during the past years. We will be able to form a government that will be a credit to the country, the party and the Commonwealth when we are elected next August."

PREMIER SPEAKS

Other speakers on the program were the Hon. L. M. Frost, Premier of the province; the Hon. Arthur Welsh, provincial secretary; Mayor Charles Lamb, who provided a surprise when, as a formerly strong Liberal, he came out in active support of the PC candidate; also Mrs. Cameron McKenzie, first vice-president of the provincial association; Wilbur Worseley, who warned the party workers of a hard fight in the forthcoming campaign, but promised at the same time the "most strenuous campaign ever conducted in this riding."

The meeting was attended by some 700 members and supporters of the party.

Entertainment was provided by the family of Robert Bradt, Bobcaygeon, who introduced a new campaign song, along the lines of a western ballad, which gained the applause of the assembly.

Nobody Wins In A Strike

The people of Peterborough in general were greatly surprised when the striking workers at the Quaker Oats factory turned down the offer which was made to them by the company on Thursday. It looked like a good offer, and one which the union could have accepted without losing face. Unions habitually ask for more than they expect to get, and the company offer was a marked increase over anything which had been discussed before. In the matter of wages it raised the basic scale from $1.18½ an hour to $1.36½; it was proposed to meet the union demand of $1.39½ a year from now. Unions have accepted far less striking victories than this before now, and have congratulated themselves upon the success of their negotiations. But the workers at Quaker Oats have decided to stay on strike.

* * *

We are not concerned with the details of the dispute at Quaker Oats, but we are strongly concerned about the welfare and advancement of this city. Strikes happen in every industrial city. But strikes in which a union shows itself unwilling to negotiate—where it demands a victory so complete that it involves a degree of humiliation for the management side of the dispute—are uncommon, and industries looking for a Canadian city in which to set up a new factory understandably avoid cities in which labour takes that attitude. The strikers at Quaker Oats may force the management there to shut up some departments of the plant, permanently. But they may do greater harm to the city of which they are citizens than that. They may give it the sort of bad name—as a city in which labour cracks the whip without mercy and without common sense—which stifles any future industrial growth.

* * *

This is a matter in which not only the strikers are concerned. It is important to the merchants of Peterborough, as well, for every citizen shares in a city's prosperity just as surely as he shares in its lean times. The strikers at Quaker Oats are citizens of Peterborough and we are quite sure that they do not want to do harm to their home town. But if they cannot find any spirit of compromise in a labour dispute, that is precisely what they will do.

* * *

May we offer some advice to the leaders of the strike? It is only in pitched battles in time of war that complete victories and unconditional surrenders are possible or desirable. In peaceful disputes something must be yielded on both sides, for such disputes continue, in one form or another, for decades. The company has yielded a great deal. By refusing to yield anything the leadership of the strike arouses the suspicion that it is working either for personal glory or personal spite. In a peaceful dispute nothing can be gained, and much may be lost, by the gratification of either of these desires. Peace with honour should be the desire of both sides.

* * *

No settlement, whenever or whatever it may be, will begin to compensate the workers or the management for what this strike has now cost them. There is no real victory in such fights. And let it not be forgotten that the chief loser is the city of Peterborough. Whoever wins the fight, the city as a whole pays most of the cost.

Its First Amazing Four Years

On April 1st, 1949, Newfoundland became a Province of Canada. On April 29th of this year the Hon. Gregory J. Power, Newfoundland's Minister of Finance, delivered the annual budget speech. His figures showed the astonishing economic progress Newfoundland has made in the four years since the federation. It is a remarkable accounting, even by the money-bags standards of Ontario. Even this one item will excite Ontario readers—Newfoundland's surplus for the past year was more than the combined surpluses of Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. This in a region which formerly could hardly make ends meet and indeed for a decade was bankrupt. A revolution has taken place in Newfoundland.

The results of the Newfoundland revolution are told in the figures of wages and provincial income. The causes of it are a revolution in the industrial and social life of the people, stemming from the political revolution consummated four years ago.

Here is the financial story today, as reported in the Budget Speech. The surplus for the financial year was $6,544,100. Government revenue was $34,845,200. Income of the people of the Province for the year was $210,768,000, four times the net value of Newfoundland's production prior to Federation.

The union with Canada and a vigorous Government under Premier Joseph Smallwood have given a great industrial stimulus to Newfoundland, and made for a marked improvement in the general standard of living. In his Budget Address the Minister of Finance cited these figures. Frozen fish fillets exported from Newfoundland last year were 36,000,000 pounds, an increase of 300 per cent. over the 12,000,000 pounds shipped in 1947. Their dollar value of $7,457,000 was an increase of 248 per cent. The industry paid $3,500,000 in wages and shares to draggers, fishermen and workers, as compared with $800,000 in 1947. Salaries and wages paid out of the motor vehicle trade (garages and gas tanks) were three times as great last year as in 1947. In 1945 there were only 4,000 registered motor cars; there were nearly four times as many last year. In 1948 one Newfoundland family in sixteen owned a car. Last year one family in five had a car.

Between 1949 and 1952 the domestic use of electricity has doubled; so has its commercial and industrial use. In 1949 Newfoundland had 27,000 families with electric light; now it has 42,000. The number of telephones has increased from 17,000 to 23,000. These are all indications of the swelling wealth of the people.

Private industry has been encouraged by the Government and is finding Newfoundland a good field for development. In the last several years 33 major industrial and commercial firms have begun to take an active interest in the Province's natural resources.

Mr. Power explained the revolution thus:

"Perhaps it was the delayed-action result of the two world wars, together with the dramatic fact of union with Canada, that caused it, but the fact of the matter is that our people have lost most of their old-time complacence and contentment with what they had. Their wants have expanded enormously. A deep-seated desire for progress and improvement, sleeping through the decades, seems suddenly to have come to life.

"In short, our people no longer feel that Newfoundland is or must always be a mere backwash of North America. They feel and are expressing in unmistakeable terms a great determination to form part of the wide, deep current of modern North American living."

Let it not be thought that all this would have happened without Confederation. The dollar story tells the tale. No less than 73.4 per cent of the Newfoundland Government's estimated revenue for the financial year 1952-53 was made up of payments to Newfoundland by the Dominion Government, in statutory subsidies, tax rental payment, transitional grant and the like. Newfoundland's chief source of income used to be the fisheries. In the present financial year 1953-54 Family Allowances (paid by Ottawa) will amount to a million dollars more than will the fisheries as a source of income to the people. Indeed, old age pensions (paid by Ottawa) and old age assistance to those between 65 and 70 (partly paid by Ottawa) will amount to more than the fisheries. (Frozen fish industry is not included in fisheries).

The people of Newfoundland have indeed a right to feel confident of the future, and, we suggest, to thank their stars for the union with Canada effected four years ago.

Grand Band Concert

One swallow maketh not summer, but a good band concert does. Summer is being made in Peterborough tomorrow by the biggest band concert in town since the cow jumped over a June moon. Three bands of the Central Command military area (southern Ontario) are coming together in Fanfares, Fantasias and Grand Marches at The Oval Sunday evening. The massed bands are the R.C.R. regimental band, the 1st Canadian Infantry Battalion band, and the R.C. Signals band. The program is popular, including "Light Cavalry", "The Holy City", Cole Porter and other tuneful earfuls. The cornet solo from Samson and Delilah, the Percy Bliss fanfare "For a Dignified Occasion" and Sir William Walton's Coronation March "Crown Imperial" will be very pleasurable to hear.

Arms and bands have consorted together for centuries, military bands being an essential feature of all modern armies. It is good to be able to hear amidst all the noise of A-bombs, jet warplanes, Red furores and military alliances, the clear, bright clean music of military bands, survivals of past ways of warfare and chivalrous days of peace. We are glad that in its vast appropriations for defence, Canadian military headquarters are finding pence for bands. For a time during and after the late war military bands seemed destined to disappear in the windstream of jet planes and detonated atomic bombs, but the recollection of times past and their hearty strains in war theatres saved them to this day.

The Active Army now maintains more bandsmen in peacetime than ever before, filling band ranks where necessary with Dutchmen brought over for the purpose. Even the R.C.M.P. cannot flourish without bands and we note its recent advertisement for single men aged between 18 and 30 who can play the alto saxophone, French horn, bassoon, clarinet, flute and oboe.

Midsummer Madness

By IVOR BROWN

THE LUCK of lawn-tennis champions is fairly constant in a London year. "Wimbledon Weather" has become proverbial for sun-shine. As the Wimbledon weeks are usually, the last one in June and the first in July, this means that in England summer has really begun. But according to the Calendar, the summer has passed its midmost stage and "the long winter evenings" as they say, "are beginning to draw in."

Obviously the British citizen can do nothing about the climatic paradox which ordains that his real summer shall only begin to scorch him after mid-summer and his real winter only begin to freeze his fingers and his waterpipes after mid-winter. But what is so odd is that he does so little to adapt his working schedule to the impact of the weather.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE STATISTICS prove July to be the hottest month on average and in any big town the traffic-crammed, petrol-fuming streets make even the shortest urban journey an affliction whether you walk past the stationary buses and cars or prefer to sit and roast in them. Yet the month in London, which ought in logic to be a month of escape, remains the busiest of the year. Parliament still sits and its members squabble and pour out personal abuse with more than usual acrimony and childishness. The school terms continue: important examinations are held, thus throwing upon children the maximum strain in the maximum heat.

Important functions of all kinds abound; committees are heavily engaged. Banqueting flourishes; perspiring waiters toil on aching feet round the tables of public lunches and dinners. Most of the societies to which I belong have their Annual General Meetings in mid-July and expect me to sit in stuffy halls to attend them. The end of the educational year does not arrive until the end of the month and then all want to make their holiday travel simultaneously with the result that the papers inevitably carry their annual August Bank Holiday pictures of half-mile queues outside the railway stations and of luggage-laden families struggling to wedge themselves into the already packed and sweltering carriages.

✧ ✧ ✧

PLAINTIVE ADVICE to "take your holiday early" is as futile as it is sensible. People with juvenile families must wait for the end of school term while busy folk are better off. They find that their business and social engagements are as numerous as ever. Until English schools are related to the calendar and the weather, as they are in nearly all other countries, this folly will continue. Unfortunately the one thing that seems as little capable of motion as a mountain is the educational time-table of England. So, when happy Americans and European children have "broken up" and scattered to the hills or the sea, Young England goes on carrying its satchel and scribbling exam-papers in stifling rooms. Meanwhile Older England is congealed as thick as ever in the rush-hour trains.

✧ ✧ ✧

ONE REASON why our social round was thus absurdly determined was the old belief that no true English Gentleman would go to the country unless there was some animal or bird ready for the gun. The first on the shooting list are the grouse, whom it is permissible to shoot on and after August 12th; later come stags, partridges, pheasants and foxes in that order. So in the days when the House of Commons was mainly composed of old families and new rich, Parliament always sat until the beginning of August and did not recover its statesmen-sportsmen until after Christmas. Now the pressure of work compels them to have Autumn Sessions, but the Summer Session still runs into August as of old. The number of members, or of the gentry in general, who are craving for the moors and the coverts and can afford these diversions is not very much smaller, but the tradition that no month is a holiday month unless it is a blood-sport month is apparently too strong to break.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOTHING is done in the capital to alter this, apart from a few completely useless efforts to space out the vacations, which, as I have said, cannot be done until both educational and business organisation is radically reformed. The staggered "wakes" in the North of England are valuable, but London is immovable on this point. The Scots, more sensibly, have long ended their school-terms earlier and their industrial arrangements are more flexible. Glasgow takes its great civic holiday in July. But the South of England still insists that July is a good working month.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN I take an early holiday in Scandinavia I see that the people there are really using, instead of missing, their days in the sun. Practising mid-summer sanity, they go in June to the sea-side or fiord-side villas and live on the water while the English are still sending their children to the sun-baked schoolrooms and are themselves jostling into the over-crowded transport that carries them to and from their factories or offices. If the members of the Labour Party want something new to denounce and alter, I wish they would develop a holiday policy. They should insist that the better use of the Summer months be what is now called a "priority target." I have no hope that they will. Apparently, like the Conservatives, they prefer to sit and bicker through the Dog Days while tempers rise with the thermometer. Midsummer madness indeed!

THE POWER AND THE GLORY

Letters To The Editor

INJURED MAN SATISFIED

To Whom It May Concern:

I, Bruce Lywood, was very satisfied with the service of Nisbett's ambulance, that they kept my leg straight while on the chair and did not cause me any further damage or pain and saw that it was the only fit way to remove me from the roof in a chair.

I would also like to thank them for calling a doctor for me which no one else did.

(Signed) BRUCE LYWOOD.

Witness: E. Lillico.

CONCERNING AMBULANCE SERVICE

To Whom It May Concern:

I, John Ross, had my leg hurt in an accident on Wescott Street and Nisbett's ambulance arrived within 3 to 5 minutes of the time they were called. I was quite satisfied with their service.

I, too, would also like to thank them for contacting a doctor for me.

(Signed) JOHN ROSS.

C.A.A. IN PETERBOROUGH

Sir: The editorial on The Ivory Tower was interesting and thought-provoking, but I doubt if it would have taken this particular form if the writer had been present himself and had heard Dr. Adrien Plouffe's address. The French Canadians who attended the Canadian Authors Association's Convention were bilingual, indeed their fluency in English would put the French of most Canadians of Anglo-Saxon extraction to shame. Dr. Plouffe has been writing and working in the field of preventive medicine and health education. He was trying to make the point that instead of talking in long medical terms, parents are more likely to listen to information about health given in ordinary language. Is it fair to judge a man's whole message from one or two sentences picked out by a reporter? Adrian Plouffe's attitude is not one of condescension but he has a sincere desire to be helpful in his campaign for public health.

Dr. Plouffe is secretary of La Societe des Ecrivains, and he and Madame Germaine Guevremont, the novelist, and Yves Theriault, the radio and TV writer, all made a fine contribution to the C.A.A. Convention.

Here in our city we have at least four fine groups of amateur artists, and several drama groups. Has anyone ever started a writer's group? Can Mazo de la Roche's question, in her welcome on the first evening of the convention, "What writer would ever be willing to reveal any secrets of his trade to another writer?" have some foundation. Surely a branch of the Canadian Authors Association in Peterborough might have real value, especially to beginning writers. The delegates to a C.A.A. convention could judge the various speakers on their own merits . . . and it is quite possible that they would find comparatively few "Ivory Tower" individuals among the writers from other Canadian centres!

Sincerely,
CITIZEN.

RACE TALK IS NONSENSE

Sir: It is with great glee that I have watched the "battle" between the Scotch and the Welsh rage its way through your editorial pages, these last few days: children crying from the depths of the wilderness, (their own); little boys bragging about the accomplishments of their fathers; ghosts that are as dead as their own emotions.

To me, sir, the fact that any man boasts of the culture of his "race" or the intelligence of his "race", is utter damnable nonsense and the supreme abomination to the face of the earth.

People (races) as far as I know, do not think; do not possess culture, do not play musical instruments—not as races. The acquisition of culture or of any degree of intelligence is a proposition that is germane to the individual and not a collective arrangement.

The people who boast so strongly of the superiority of their respective races are those who suffer from astigmatism of the soul and myopia of the intellect. These are not "they who come out of great tribulation", but those who are totally unconscious of the dual nature of every man—our schizoid personalities, and thoroughly unaware that their pride is only a terrible inversion of hypocrisy—mostly sheer perversion.

Haggis and salami? Roast beef or baled hay? What difference does it make? All animals, including man, eat, digest and excrete food in very much the same manner.

Bagpipes! A shepherd's pipe with laryngitis, (a severe case) surrounded by three fixed notes, the monotony of which is the beat of jungle drums . . . a primitive primordial savage instrument of torture: simple—so simple that if the ignoramus who wanted "The Maple Leaf" played on them, can find a piper who can do it I will give him five dollars.

To the bombastic Scots, I would like to point out that it was Shakespeare, and not the country that is known as England, who gave his plays to the world.

To the pride-ridden Welshman I say that the poems of Robby Burns were the sole property of the product of his brain and pen—Scotland did not write them nor did the Scotch. Perhaps "sometimes" the "Scotch" helped.

It was not the Italian race or the culture of Italy that wrote the music of Verdi. The best and the most beautiful of it flowed from his pen only after he learned what grief was; and it was living and not Italy that taught him to understand grief. Lest any man should ask who wants grief, let me remind him that it is through living and doing that men acquire experience. They live to learn. They do not learn to live. We are not born British or German or Welsh by our own choice. We are thrown into the world and life just as we are thrown into most other things—by a set of circumstances completely beyond our control.

Most of us are the products of our worst instincts—mass hysteria and mob psychology—creatures of compulsion and spiritual barrenness. Victims of the herd—the desire to stand as nations and act as mobs, because most of us do not possess the "guts" to stand on our own merits and judge by our individual standards. Could it be that we as individuals (most of us) have neither merits nor standards of our own.

In conclusion, sir, I leave a verse from Kipling;

Whatsoever for any cause seeketh to take or give Power above or beyond The Law, suffer it not to live—
Holy State or Holy King or Holy People's Will.
Have no truck with the senseless thing. Order the guns and kill!

Sincerely yours,
W. J. WATT.

ED. NOTE: With this letter the correspondence between Scots and Welsh must be terminated.

Bible Message

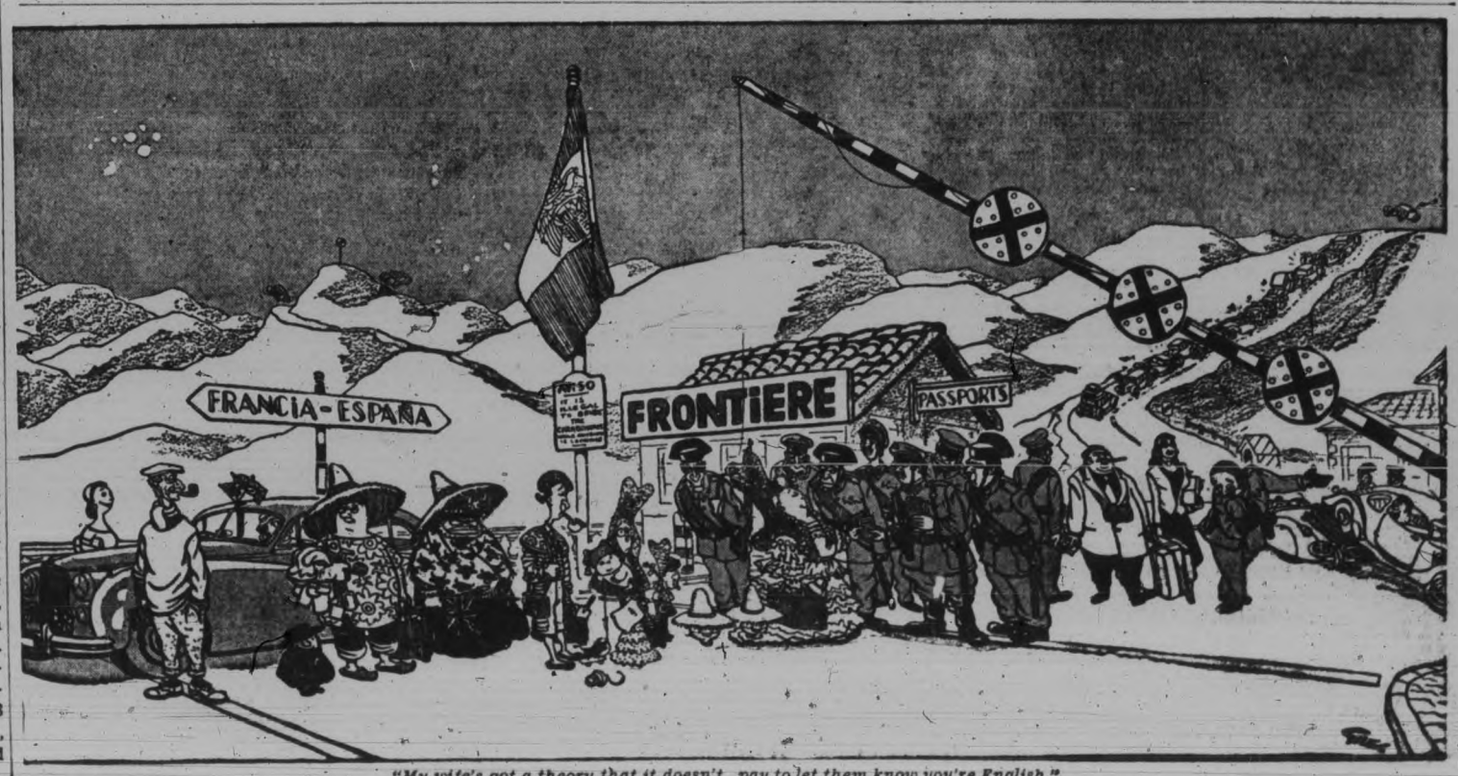
(From the Authorized Version)

And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worshipped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul. And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house, and abide there. And she constrained us.

And it came to pass, as we went to prayer, a certain damsel possessed with a spirit of divination met us, which brought her masters much gain by soothsaying: the same followed Paul and us, and cried, saying, These men are the servants of the most high God, which shew unto us the way of salvation. And this did she many days. But Paul, being grieved, turned and said to the spirit, I command thee in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her. And he came out the same hour. (Acts 16: 14-18.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God. And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight. And this is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment. And he that keepth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us. (I John 3: 21-24.)



✧ ✧ ✧

Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled . . .

Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God. (Matt. 5: 6, 8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Those that be planted in the house of the Lord shall flourish in the courts of our God. (Ps. 92:13.)

Reclaim Otonabee, Lake, Creek For Beauty and Leisure

By a Member of the Study Group on Civic Affairs

Almost six years have elapsed since Dr. Faludi and his Town Planning consultants presented to our City a Master Plan to guide the growth and development in the next thirty years. Several aspects of the Plan have been given recognition and the suggestions implemented, but in the matter of parks and recreation and the general beautification of the City, very little has been done. Dr. Faludi stated, "Peterborough is fortunate in possessing natural assets such as Jackson Creek and the Otonabee River with Little Lake."

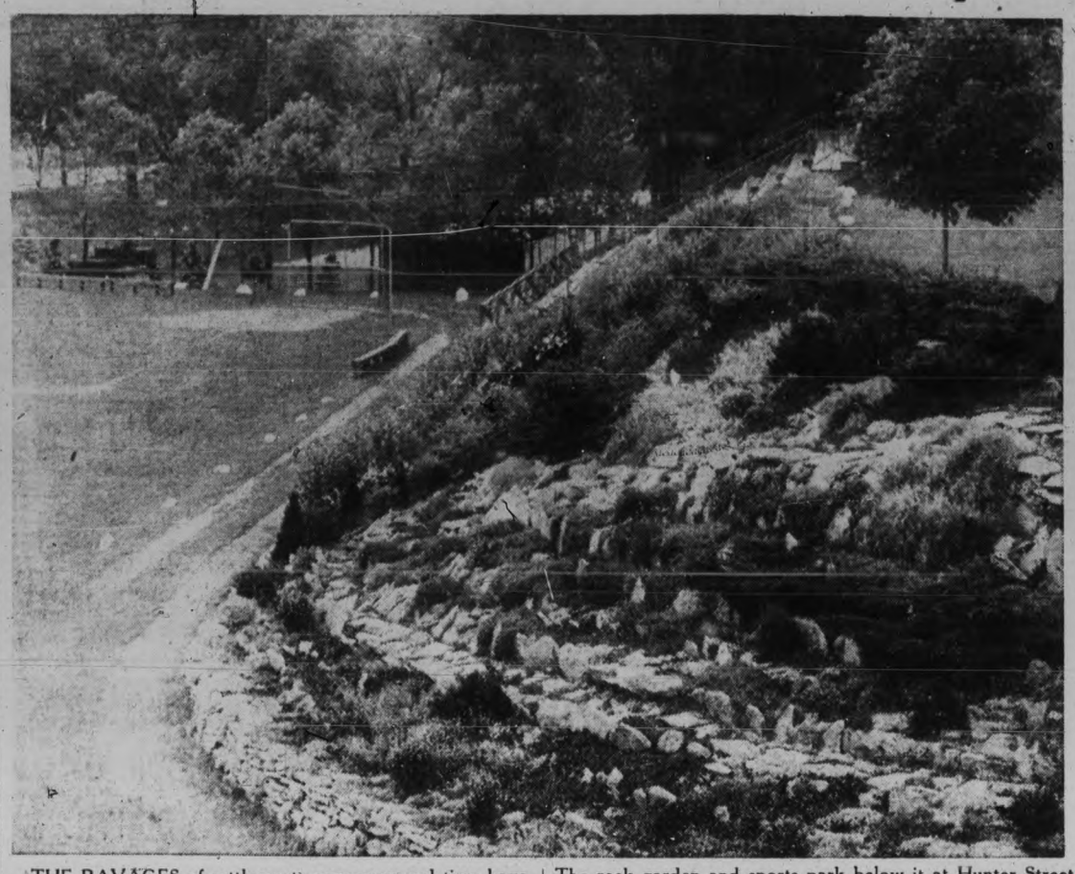
Just last week an article with pictures showed how these spots have been ignored with the growth of the City until their beauty is no longer visible in many places. "To restore the natural beauty and greatly increase the attractiveness of Peterborough, land in the vicinity of the river and creek should be reclaimed for park purposes". It would be a pity to allow a further length of time to elapse before we consciously guide our City into the proper channels—any plan of this kind takes considerable time and foresight to develop and the value of land in the City is increasing rapidly along with its growth.

CHANGED CHARACTER

During the past fifty years, Peterborough has changed greatly in character. Formerly a rural town which used the river and Little Lake for lumbering purposes and Water Street as a promenade, and whose sports included tobogganing and bob-sledding in winter and canoeing, sailing and fishing in Little Lake in summer, we have become "an industrial city, turning to organized recreational activities rather than natural sports within the City.

"This need has increased with the decreased length of the working day and subsequent added leisure at the disposal of the working population. The growth of Peterborough as an industrial city has produced a problem of recreation which is becoming increasingly evident and which can be solved only by a positive policy on the part of municipal authorities".

Many of the older residents will recall the activities of the late Alderman Stocker during his 18-year term on the Parks Committee. Thanks to him we now have the colourful flower beds on Water St. bordering the Goose Pond, at King Edward Park and opposite the Children's Home; the boulevard plantings of spirea on George and Edinburgh Sts. and throughout the west end; as well as the triangles at Park and Charlotte Sts. and Park Hill Rd. and Denistoun. He was most active in developing the park at Point St. Charles after the work was undertaken by the Government and City as a relief project during depression days. His vision and industry have provided a lasting memorial to him and we are most fortunate that our present Parks Superintendent Mr. Armar Butcher, has the same foresight and is anxious to implement many of the Faludi suggestions.



AMPHITHEATRE

One often hears references to the plans of the late Mayor Denne for developing the river front areas, but it has been impossible, to date, to discover just what these were. If any reader can supply details they would be most welcome. It is most likely, however, that Dr. Faludi's overall plan incorporates previous suggestions and the one with reference to Nicholls Park seems most topical at a time when Stratford is investing $75,000 in an outdoor amphitheatre for their Festival:

"In the western portion of the park is a natural amphitheatre. A permanent stage should be built here to be used for church services, band concerts, festival programs and other forms of entertainment. A temporary stage was erected by the Canadian General Electric Company and has been used advantageously . . . . If a stage is erected, proper grading of the amphitheatre for the provision of seats will be necessary and also the closing of the park's western roadway which would run between the stage and the spectators. The other roads in the park should be left open".

Much has already been done to make Riverside Park a true beauty spot, but the plan to use the arches of Hunter St. bridge for further enjoyment seems a good one:

"The walls of the two arches now in use should be continued to the top of the arches, windows should be put in and a furnace installed for winter use. The arch nearest the river should be developed into an aquarium for fish.

THE RAVAGES of settlement, commerce and time have marred Peterborough's unique Otonabee River inheritance. The rock garden and sports park below it at Hunter Street are an example of reclamation.

JACKSON PARK CREEK has been largely disregarded, too, but the play pool at James Hamilton Park shows what improvements can be made.
—(Examiner Staff Photo).

"Aquarium would serve as an excellent tourist attraction. Finally, a refreshment booth should be provided in the park so that children will not have to leave the premises to buy refreshments".

OTHER PARKS

We understand the Parks Committee has already filled in and levelled the land along the Otonabee near Rye's pavilion, as suggested. This park could easily provide recreation for all citizens:

"A small boat livery should be provided, a fire-place built for corn and weiner roasts and playground equipment should be installed. The bank of the river should be graded and trimmed to provide an attractive setting on the east side of the park as a restful spot for those who do not enter into sports".

In Ashburnham Memorial Park the Parks Committee, with their limited budget, have followed the Plan to some degree. The stone protective wall has been built, provision for access to the Park from McFarlane and Armour Rd. as envisaged—but there still remains the suggestion for terraces and illuminated fountain at the top and the northern slopes developed for tobagganing and skiing.

To supplement the parks at Inverlea, Point St. Charles and Riverside along the Otonabee River and Little Lake it was suggested in the Plan that strips of land along the west river front between Dalhousie and Hunter Sts. and on the east river front from Riverside Park to the C.N.R. branch line, could be acquired and developed by municipal or private enterprise for passive recreational uses, with an allowance for a scenic drive. One section of this area (near Hunter St. bridge) has been developed by the Quaker Oats Co. who have made it open to the use of the general public.

"Scenic drives should be established wherever possible along the river front, e.g. on the west side from Concession Road to Lock St. and one from London St. to Inverlea Park".

SCENIC DRIVE

If this were possible it would make a continuous scenic drive of unsurpassed beauty from Little Lake Cemetery to Nassau. Then, when an opportunity arises, such as the Coronation, think how effective the fireworks would be if set off from barges in Little Lake. It would be possible for many more people to enjoy them; without any obstruction to the view by trees or buildings.

We are fortunate in having the wading pools and Lions Club Pool, but in spite of Peterborough being almost surrounded by water, there are few facilities for outdoor swimming, except at Inverlea. With the new sewage plant and the improved conditions, Little Lake may return to its rightful role as a sporting centre. But, in addition, there is the Faludi suggestion:

"The natural sand bar in the Otonabee at Nicholls Park would be ideal for wading and swimming. Arrangements should be made with the C.N.R. for the building of three arches under the tracks just south of Park Hill Rd. to allow access to the water. Dressing rooms and restroom facilities could then be provided under the stage of the amphitheatre, previously mentioned".

With regard to the Jackson Park Creek, Dr. Faludi said "it is only in Jackson Park [and now James Hamilton Park] that the beauty of the creek shows to full advantage. To provide additional scenic spots along the creek, every possible piece of property, with the exception of expensive industrial and commercial sites, should be acquired. This property should be developed as park land making use of the natural setting of the creek."

THE CREEK

There are numerous small strips of land which might easily be developed by the means used by Alderman Stocker. One is at Brock and Aylmer Sts. where there are two small triangles. Another is near King St., which, alas, is fast disappearing thanks to the fill from the new Federal Bldg. which was pointed out in an editorial only last week. If some arrangement could be made with the Bus Company, a small area bordering the west bank of the creek might be set aside as a small park. If willows were replanted (which have only been cut within the last week or so) and a few benches set among them, it would provide an oasis not only for transient visitors but our own citizens, just one short block from the main shopping centre.

HELPFUL SOCIETIES

A suggestion has been made that the Horticultural Society, which has already done so much to interest citizess in improving their gardens, might offer a prize open particularly to those whose property abuts the Creek, Otonabee River or Little Lake, and who capitalize to the greatest extent on this natural asset.

In the past many organizations and private citizens have contributed towards the recreational and park facilities in this City—to name a few: the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic League, Kiwanis and Lions Clubs with their wading pools, the Junior Chamber of Commerce with their effort to clean up the creek. Our Parks Department is producing amazing results on a very limited budget, and it is to be hoped that by next year the tax rate may allow an increase in the grant to the Parks Committee, so that they may further implement the plans which they already have in hand. But it behooves us, as citizens of Peterborough, to be on the watch for unthinking moves on the part of business, to further encroach on our natural assets, and to consider how we may each assist in completing the Faludi plan—which would certainly bring further beauty to our otherwise fair and bustling city.

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

To all and sundry I must confess that I did NOT go fishing on opening day.

Instead, with family and friends we followed the good old Dominion Day practice of water touring on the upper lakes. No need here to go into all the frustrating details of preparation, the last-minute delays or the forecasting of the sullen weather. Herewith are some entries from the ship's log of THE EXPEDITION TO DOE ISLAND.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

LAKE KATCHEWANOOKA—Acre for acre the lake on our very doorstep had more fishermen's boats floating on it than any other popular fishing spot except on the west end of Rice Lake, off Bewdley.

Flagged to a standstill by an American youngster—we could tell he was from the Great Republic by his flaming sport shirt—who waved a nice pickerel on a chain. He wanted to know what type of fish it was and being assured it was not an under-sized 'lunge, he thanked us and got on with the serious business of casting.

The young fry counted the boatloads of fishermen and totalled 67 of them as we roared up to the lock. Since the sports all wore very glum expressions we judged (correctly) that their luck was poor although the largest 'lunge reported throughout the Kawarthas was taken in this lake, an 18-pounder.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

YOUNG'S POINT—Being our sixth trip up the lakes this season, we still had the lower gate shut against us. The nimble crew helped lockmaster Elmer Johnston with gate and valve capstans and we went through in jigg time. Captain Pat Young waved to us from his cool shady verandah and said we would probably get wet; (how right the master mariner was).

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

CLEAR LAKE—Most cottages appeared to be open on both the east and west shores although there was little if any activity. A female driver crossed our bows in a boat loaded down with aluminum garden furniture, heading for Big Island. We arrived at Hell's Gate channel and stopped to argue how we should go to McCracken's Landing. By Juniper? Through the islands? The young skipper had planned on the longest way 'round, anyway. Went the longest way.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

LOWER STONY LAKE—The object of the call at McCracken's was to take on soft drinks. Replenished young tummies to the tune of $1.29 and headed north-east with Eagle Mount off the port bow. Everyone, that is everyone, knew the tricky channel past East's Island and the pilot was confused by waving hand signals on all sides. Low water exposed the treacherous rocks. We ran the passage while blood pressures went down several pounds and made our tortuous way through the maze of islands at Boschink Narrows with the original shear pin still intact.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

UPPER STONY LAKE—Arrived at Crowe's Landing where the jolly crew again spliced the mainbrace, (84 cents). The adults talked to an American cottager friend for some time. We swapped experiences of the past ten months, expressed hopes of the future and took our leave still wracking our brains to recall the man's name.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

DOE ISLAND DEADFALL—Great activity to unload the boat and get the shore dinner cracking. Up grub box, cushions and groundsheets. The fire is snapping, the beans are warming and a friend, who had too much salt herring salad the night before, demanded gallons of tea.

Oh, yes, the tea. An inventory of food stores revealed that the tea had been left at home. The young speed demons roared away to the store and came back with some just as the water came to a boil. The suffering one was saved.

Some loafed, some swam, everyone watched the black clouds creeping up the lake. We broke camp and shoved off hoping to meet the dirty weather half way.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

We made the same ports of call on the homeward trip (to collect rebates on empty pop bottles and use the credit for fresh supplies). The rain caught up with us at Shota Channel and continued as far as Young's Point. Warped into our own wharf half an hour later and enjoyed the luxury and comfort of a good home-cooked meal.

And so ended our celebration of our fair Dominion's 86th birthday.

♠ ♠ ♠ ♠

American visitors at Kawartha resorts are grumbling, and rightly so, about misinformation in their home town newspapers on the opening dates on fishing seasons in this part of the province.

Many of them were lead too believe that bass and 'lunge fishing opened prior to July 1 and they planned their holidays accordingly. They arrived here to find this was not so and were obliged to sweat out three days of their precious time of waiting for the starting gun.

This is a sorry situation for them, for short-season resort operators and for future publicity for the Kawarthas. If American newspapers were misinformed, or the news garbled by them when they received it, it would seem that departmental machinery had better be examined to prevent a re-occurrence of the situation. There is something wrong somewhere which should be investigated at once. We can't re-sweeten soured international tourist relations at this late date but it mustn't happen again.

Your Garden:

Insects And Their Control

BY HENRY PREA (NEA)

Few folks realize the damage caused by insects. Strangely enough, few gardeners do anything about them until after the damage has been done.

Most troubles can be prevented by the use of some insecticide.

The secret of control is timeliness, thoroughness and the use of the proper material. In general, insects may be divided into three groups.

Leaf-Eating Insects have strong jaws, which bite off bits of food just as do the higher animals. This class includes all caterpillars, beetles, slugs, worms and saw-flies.

With but few exceptions, the chewing insect has four distinct stages in its life cycle: Egg, caterpillar (grub or larvae), pupa (resting stage), adult (egg-laying stage). It is in the second stage that the chewing insect has such an enormous appetite.

The leaf-eating insect is principally controlled by a stomach poison such as DDT and Chlordane. It is sprayed or dusted on the foliage as a stable chemical that remains inert until eaten by the insect.

Crawling insects, like cutworms, ants, sowbugs, grass-hoppers earwings, also slugs and snails, migrating from place to place, can be controlled by the use of poison baits, or sticky barriers to prevent their reaching the foliage.

Sucking insects inserting their beaks into the tisues of a plant and sucking out the sap are aphid, stink bugs, psylla, chinch bugs, squash bugs, mealy bugs, white fly, scale insects, leap hoppers, and all plant bugs belong to this class.

Sucking insects are not affected by poison sprays as they pierce into the plant under the protective coating. Therefore, the only method of destroying them is by application of a contact poison, like Black Leaf 40 and Lindane which will suffocate them or corrode the tissue of their bodies.

In order to be effective in spraying with a contact insecticide, the spray must hit the insect itself or its eggs.

In the recommended use of any sray material or fungicide, the following rules should be stressed and observed for safety:

WEAK SOLUTIONS are ineffective; uses the doses recommended by the manufacturer.

STRONG SOLUTIONS are wasteful and may be injurious.

MEASURE OR WEIGH each ingredient carefully; likewise, the amount of water used.

CHOOSE the right material for the right pest.

NICOTINE SULPHATE is safe to mix with most insecticides or fungcides.

REMEMBER that some materials are specific remedies for certain pests. It is cheaper to spray twice than to make a mixture which will kill the plants.

Gardening Questions

Q—Would like to know how to get rid of mint that was planted in the garden some time ago, and is now spreading all over the yard.

A—It can be eradicated by frequent hand-pulling where it is among other plants and by spraying with ammate where it is by itself. When using ammate be sure to spray only on the mint.

Q—Can oaks or maples, 20 to 30 feet tall, be moved with any assurance of success?

FABULOUS FINDINGS

Pandora

According to mythology, the first woman was named Pandora. It is said that she was made in heaven, with every god contributing something toward this creature. Venus gave her beauty, Apollo music, Mercury persuasion, and so forth.

She then was conveyed to earth and presented to Epimetheus, who ignored the warning of his brother, Prometheus, woh ignored then and his gifts.

One story has it that Pandora was over-curious of a jar in the house of Epimetheus and one day slipped off the cover to see what it contained. Immediately there escaped many plagues such as gout, colic, envy, spite and others to afflict mankind. She hastily replaced the lid too late, everything escaping but Hope. That we always have, despite our many troubles.

Perhaps a more reasonable version is that Pandora was sent by Jupiter to bless man, and she was furnished with a box containing many marriage presents from the gods. Curiosity (a failing she had, in either case) overcame Pandora and she opened the box, letting the blessings escape. Only Hope remained.

Be that as it may, the world thus being inhabited by humans, the first period of time is described as the Golden Age. It seems that truth and right prevailed, there was peace and happiness, the earth brought forth food without requiring toil, and no law was needed.

Perpetual springtime reigned, as flowers sprang up without seed, rivers flowed with milk and wine, while honey was distilled from the oaks.

The pagan picture of the Garden of Eden, was it not?

Tom Thumb Wedding Party

Ninety years ago—in 1863—the famous American dwarf, Tom Thumb, married another dwarf, Lavinia Warren. He was then 25 years old. Here is an old photograph of the wedding party, taken from an album put together by the late Mrs. Edward Honey, grandmother of Mrs. Stanton Lawrence, Warkworth.

It is possible that the photograph was taken during one of Tom Thumb and his wife's tours throughout Ontario, when the wedding group was re-formed for the benefit of audiences. At any rate the sepia photograph, printed on a small card, bears the printed legend on the reverse side: "Mrs. Amy James, Belleville, C. W. The "C.W." stands for Canada West, and Ontario ceased to be called "Canada West" in 1867, upon Confederation.

Tom Thumb's real name was Charles Sherwood Stratton. At the age of 14 he was 28 inches tall and weighted a little more than 15 pounds. He increased a little in size later, particularly in his weight, for he lived to become quite portly. P. T. Barnum, great showman, made him the wonder of the age, and he was taken on tour all over the world. In England he was presented to Queen Victoria. He died in 1883.

There are many local mementos of the famous dwarf, such as commercial photographs in old albums.

To round off the picture, here is another photograph from old Mrs. Honey's album. It is of another Barnum wonder: "Madame Sherwood, Giant Lady". Madame Sherwood, the card photograph informs, was five feet eight inches high; measured seven feet around the waist, and 24 inches around the arm.

The lady with arms two feet thick weighed a total of 675 pounds.

The "Giant Lady." Her arms were two feet thick.

Petes Blitz St. Catharines 17-7 In Senior Lacrosse To Hurdle Yorks 2nd Place

Sharply snapping St. Catharines Athletics' 10-game senior OLA winning streak here last night, the Petes plastered them with a 17-7 reverse before about 3,000 enthusiastic lacrosse fans. The win moved the Thorpe team into sole possession of second place with 22 points, Yorks having 20, but still back of the leading A's, who boast 30 points in top spot. The same squads clash tonight in the Garden City. The visitors were 15 minutes late arriving but fielded a full team, except for Max Woolley, and made it close enough for three quarters. The Petes, who were minus Harry Wipper, and dressed but 13 men, led 3-2 in the first frame, had a 3-2 margin in the second, outscored St. Kitts 3-1 in the third and then romped to an 8-2 edge in the windup chapter.

LED LOCAL SNIPERS—Roger Smith, left, and Curly Mason led the Petes' scorers here last night as they humiliated St. Catharines A's 17-7 before a big senior lacrosse crowd. Young Roger clicked for four goals and three assists in a brilliant showing, while Curly banged in three beauties and aided on another. The leading Saints and Petes tangle again tonight in the Garden City.

ENDED IN WALTZ

It was real good lacrosse most of the way, being a fast fox-trot with Peterborough doing the leading in close quarters for three heats. A touch of a two-step showed in the second stanza when Don Ashbee earned a 10-minute misconduct on top of a minor for imitating Referee Joe Murphy in waving the culprit off with a little wing-ding. But it wound up in a waltz in the last quarter as the Trailermen finished strong and the young A's lagged under the pressure.

Play was fairly clean throughout, despite 18 penalties, 10 of them going to the visitors. All were for minor offences as the boys stuck to lacrosse on a cool night before a big turnout of fans.

Roger Smith was a standout for the winners as he scored four goals and assisted on three more in a flashy showing. He scored several beauties, especially one in the fourth when he raced down the field to wrest the loose ball from two defenders and then ghost his way out of the corner and blast the ball by the amazed goalie. He drew a big hand for his hustle.

CURLY GOOD

Curly Mason was clicking, too, on all cylinders as he rapped in three neat tallies and helped on another. Two markers each went to Russ Slater (plus two assists), Dootch Vitarelli, who also aided on one, Ross Powless—who helped on two more—and Ike Hildebrand. Lou Nickle and Red Robinson got a goal each. Nip O'Hearn, Jerry Fitzgerald and Bob Thorpe had two assists apiece, and Don Ashbee one. Moon Wooton showed his goaltending superiority over Doug Favelle again.

For the losers, Ted Howe and Al Frick each lit the lamp twice, as Don Frick, Derry Davies and Jim McMahon got the other goals. Doug Smith stood out with four assists, Al Frick, Favelle, Howe and big Ham Nelson each clicking for an assist. Teams:

Athletics: Goal, Flavelle; defence, Nelson and D. Smith; centre, McMahon; wings, A. Frick and Moore, rover, Howe; alternates, Uhrynuk, D. Frick, Corcoran, Davies, J. Bradshaw, Teal and Dewar.

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, Fitzgerald and O'Hearn, centre, Mason; wings, Slater and Smith; rover, Powless; alternates, Nickle, Thorpe, Vitarelli, Hildebrand, Ashbee and B. Robinson.

SANTEE BEATEN BY FINN

TURKU, Finland (AP)—Wes Santee, Kansas' miracle miler, was beaten in a 1,500-metre race Friday by Dennis Johansson of Finland. Johansson's time was 3:49.4, not too fast by international standards Santee was clocked in 3:50.6.

ALS KEEP ACE END

MONTREAL (CP)—John (Red) O'Quinn, one of the best pass-catching ends in Canadian football last season, will play for another year with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four League, it was learned Friday. The six-foot-four O'Quinn, formerly of Chicago Bears and Wake Forest College, made the Big Four all-star team last year.

CITS INTO OHA JR A?

GUELPH (CP) — Quebec Citadelles, orphan team of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association, may be admitted to the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A loop next season.

Phil Watson, coach of the Citadelles, made this prophesy Friday after conferring with operators of Ontario Junior A clubs. He said response from the clubs was favorable.

Officials of Guelph Biltmores, Galt Blackhawks, Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts and St. Catharines Teepees said they were agreeable.

KOTOWSKI SIGNS—Tony Kotowski is signing up again to coach the Peterborough Orfuns in ORFU ranks this year. The big American piloted the team to Canadian grid finals last season, and has agreed to handle the club for the 1953 season. He is married to a local girl and plans to live in Peterborough.

LAWN BOWLING

Tonight we have the Family Hour mixed rink tournament at 7:30 o'clock. And let us hope for nice weather.

The invitation night did not pan out as well as was expected. Maybe it was the weather. However, those who did come out seemed to be having a good time. At the conclusion of the games, light refreshments were served in the club house.

July 15 Deadline For OBA Certificates

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Baseball Association said Friday that July 15 is the deadline for filing players' certificates and declaration of classification for OBA competition.

President Archie Sterling asked clubs and leagues to forward such material to the OBA secretary-registrar, Tommy Rowden, 1 Geneva St., St. Catharines.

The president also announced an OBA executive meeting will be held in Hamilton July 25 to pass on player certificates and rule on the playoff classification of teams and leagues. Playoff draws and zones will also be arranged.

Sports Postponed Will Cut Expected Records

By JIM SHERBANIUK

WINNIPEG (CP) — An augmented schedule of today's events may weaken the performances of athletes competing in the Canadian junior track and field championships at Winnipeg's Sargent Park.

Heavy rains and hurricane winds Friday night made it necessary to postpone almost all of the evening's program until today, and contestants now will be competing in twice the number of events originally planned for one day.

Lloyd Percival, coach of the Toronto Track Club, had predicted that at least 12 records would be broken this year. But in view of the stepped-up agenda, he now says the "record-breaking potential will be cut in half."

An emergency meeting of all coaches and officials late Friday night reshuffled the events and plans for reconditioning the track.

The system of running separate heats and deciding finals will be abandoned in favor of a regrouping plan whereby the contestants will be running against the clock for first-place honors. Today's program will mean some participants will have to run major distances in quick succession.

WILL DRY TRACK

The newly-finished track was a sea of mud and cinders following the storm. The track will be dried off by burning gasoline over the whole course.

Although only 16 of the 33 scheduled events were run off Friday night, it was evident that Toronto athletes are out for top place in the team standings. The Toronto Track Club with 48 points had a 40-point lead over the Vancouver team with eight. Winnipeg was third with six?

Two Canadian records were established in the first night's events. In the midget 100-yard dash, Larry Yakamovitch of Vernon, B. C. did the course in 10.3 bettering the former record of 10.5 set by Red Resnick of Agincourt Club in Toronto last year. The midget final will be run off today.

The other record was set in the junior 880-yard final when Murray Cockburn of the Toronto Track Club bettered by 7-10 seconds his own former record of 1:56.9 set at Toronto last year. Murray's win Friday shattered the Manitoba men's senior record of 1:58 set by Jim Daly of Winnipeg in 1950.

George Dinsdale of Brandon gave Manitoba its only victory when he won the midget eight-pound shot put title. The 15-year-old heaved the shot 45 feet 10¾ inches in his first major track meet.

Four Toronto athletes captured the only other final events completed. Chuck Tobias of the TTC won the junior two-mile in 10:24.3. Clubmate Tom Skimming jumped five feet 10 inches to take the junior running high jump. Eric Zmenak, unattached, captured the midget 40-yard event in 56.1.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Tony Kotowski has agreed to coach the Orfuns again in ORFU intermediate competition this coming season. An amicable agreement on salary was reached the other day by Tony as coach and club prexy Dr. Don Aitken and his executive. They compromised and split the difference, so everyone is satisfied. Tony prefers to remain here, as he recently married a local lass, though he had the offer of a tryout with the pro Philadelphia Eagles. Executive is content, too, as Tony took the team into Canadian finals last fall. The players like working under the big American, and fans in general will feel that it is but fair to have Kotowski back at the helm after such a successful season in 1952.

* * * * * *

The actual signing will take place Monday when the contract drawn up by lawyer and club executive member Don Bark will be ready. Tony said he'd pen his name then and be prepared to start grid drills on Aug. 3. Orfuns have an exhibition game lined up for Aug. 22 in Ottawa against the Rough Riders' farm team, Ottawa Seconds. They may get another exhibition a week later, and should be in fine fettle when the football schedule opens in September. They're grouped this year with Toronto Marauders, Oshawa Raiders and Cobourg Ghosts. Booster tickets are being put on sale and the decks cleared for the campaign ahead and their defence of ORFU and Eastern Canada titles.

Pats Prime for Saints

Lou Vitarelli has the OLA junior Pats here primed for that four-point lacrosse fray with St. Catharines tonight in Miller Bowl. A game postponed for rain a short time ago. The Pats are potential Minto Cup material, but are in a real stiff grouping, with Brampton (champs last year) being especially tough. But the locals can do themselves a lot of good with a four-point Saturday win at home. Then they have Toronto Green Gaels, operating out of Oakville, up this way on Monday after supper in OLA play. The acquisition of four good Indian players, along with local talent, makes the Pats a colorful young squad, and they're worth seeing in action.

* * * * * *

Senior OLA clubs had a huddle the other night and the outcome of it appears to be that Brampton and Mimico have amalgamated, or it might be that Mimico has absorbed most of the Brampton players. In any case there'll be but one club representing those two teams the rest of the route and some of the schedule will have to be revised. Players not on this combined team from the two towns go to bolster Hamilton. Mimico made it plain that they wanted to be sure that Don Holden of Toronto relinquish his interest in Brampton before they'd consider amalgamation, as they blame Holden for ruining the senior setup around there. OLA vice-prexy Ken Kingston from here also assures us that Toronto West Yorks is the correct name for that team, not Orillia Terriers, as some claim. Ken and Holden nearly came to blows over it at the fiery meeting. Why is Holden interested if he sold his interests to Orillia?

* * * * * *

Two Top Contenders, Eh?

Speaking of the two games between Athletics and Petes this weekend, the St. Kitts' columnist said yesterday: "The fact remains that Petes and A's are rated as the two top contenders for the championship this year and if they don't meet in finals there will be many surprised lacrosse followers. They are exactly even so far as Petes won 13-12 at home and Saints won by 13-12 here in overtime. Another feature this weekend will be possibly the last viewing of seven-man senior lacrosse, as the inauguration of the six-man game is next week. Compare the two brands and let the management know your reaction." Yes, quite possibly it is the passing or the seven-player phase in the senior gutted-stick game.

* * * * * *

While Fergus were taking Hamilton 19-9 last eve, the Petes snipped St. Kitts' 10-game winning streak as they played fine lacrosse to humble the leading A's 17-7 before 3,000 fans. Rog Smith sparked their attack with seven points, with Curly Mason, Ross Powless, Russ Slater, Dootch Vitarelli, Ike Hildebrand, Nip O'Hearn, Bob Thorpe and Jerry Fitzgerald all prominent on the attack. Whole crew clicked in fine fashion to waltz away from St. Catharines in the late stages. Don Ashbee two-stepped his way to a wall-flower role in the second by imitating Ref Joe Murphy's fanciful wave-off on a penalty! Cleveland's AHL Jim Hendy was on hand and made the CGE vets' draw for two ducats to Bermuda, winner being Mrs. V. Simmons of Dalhousie St. The Petes go to St. Kitts tonight and have Hamilton here next Wednesday.

Winnipeg Races To Complete New Stadium

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Eighty-odd workers are racing against time and the weather in an effort to have Winnipeg's new $500,000 stadium ready for the official opening Aug. 14.

"Give us a break in the weather and we'll have her ready," said Dick Purdey, boss of the construction gang, who looks almost big enough to line up with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, major tenants of the new park.

Despite heavy spring rains which have set back the work, the new stadium, long a dream of Winnipeg sportdom, is fast taking shape.

COVERS 4 BLOCKS

Covering four blocks in the city's west end, the Winnipeg Stadium—as it will be called unless they find a better name—is designed to accommodate about 15,000 football fans. Everything is being built, however, with the idea of future expansion.

Two permanent concrete stands on either side of the field, which runs north and south, will seat 5,000 persons each. Movable bleachers at the ends will take care of an additional 5,000. None of the stands is covered.

A press and radio box will be constructed over the west-side permanent stands, which also houses the players' and officials' dressing have washrooms and concessions. sions. The east-side stand also will have washrooms and concesions. Floodlighting available will be provided on 85-foot towers.

Two Newcomers Expected On Tennis Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Indications today are that two veteran Davis Cup players and two newcomers will be chosen to represent Canada in the Davis Cup tie against Mexico here July 17-19.

Lorne Main of Toronto and Vancouver seems almost certain to make the team on the strength of his showing in the provincial senior tennis championships while Henri Rochon, Montreal, and Paul Willey, Vancouver, also seem logical choices.

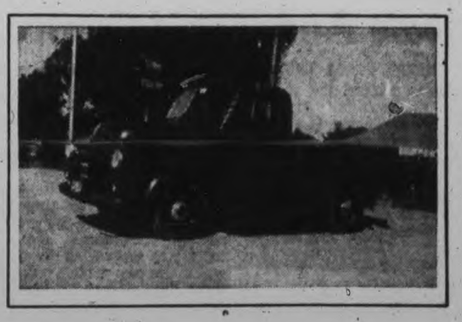
Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, although defeated soundly by Main in the semi-final round of the singles competition Friday re-established himself as a contender with a brilliant showing in the doubles.

DECIDE MONDAY

Dr. Georges Leclerc, non-playing captain of the Canadian Davis Cup team and chairman of the selection committee, and the committee will decide Monday who will earn a berth.

Main Friday brushed aside Bedard 6-2, 6-0, 6-0 in a one-sided match that saw the powerful Sherbrooke lad double-fault nine times.

Rochon had trouble quelling Jack Spencer, Montreal, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2, 7-5. Despite Spencer's good showing against Rochon, he has stated firmly that he will not be available for Davis Cup play because of business commitments.



Civic Softball Loop

Foresters defeated Post Office 11-7 in Civic Softball League play last evening in the Bowl, as Fairviews edged Sunshine Dairy (formerly the Busmen) by 10-9. In the first fray, Paul Maloney was the winning pitcher, allowing but five hits and three walks as he fanned 10. Jim Murray led the winners at bat with three hits. IOF leads the loop with six wins and three losses.

In the other tilt, Fairviews got a run each in the first and seventh innings, and two each in the second, third, fourth and fifth. The losers tallied one in the second, three apiece in the fourth and sixth heats, with two in the fifth. It was a real tight scrap all the way through.

If July 4 Predicts Finish Detroit, Pirates Due For Sad Season

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

The old baseball legend says the major league teams out in front after today's games will win the pennants, but what's in store for the last-place clubs? The record books don't hold much hope at all for the cellar-dwelling Detroit Tigers. Things are only slightly brighter for the lowly Pittsburgh Pirates. Five times in the seven full seasons since the end of the Second World War the American League team in last place on July 4 was still there when it was all over in the fall. The two exceptions were St. Louis Browns of 1949 and 1950 who scrambled up to seventh.

In the National League the record shows three out of seven stayed in the basement; the Pirates of 1947 tied for last after being last all by themselves on the Fourth, and three teams escaped.

The most sensational rise, of course, was that of the 1914 Braves, last to first between July 4 and the season's end.

The Braves of today, who now call Miwaukee home, may be in a position this time to test the "first on the fourth, first at the end" legend. They walloped Cincinnati 11-1 Friday and climbed within a single game of the idle Brooklyn Dodgers. The Dodgers meet the Pirates twice today while Milwaukee entertains the Redlegs for two more.

The third-place St. Louis Cards were swamped by Chicago Cubs 10-3 and fourth-place Philadelphia thumped New York Giants, 5-1.

YANKS WIN

New York Yankees won their second straight, 4-0, over Philadelphia A's and Cleveland stayed six games behind by whipping Detroit Tigers 8-1. Washington defeated Boston 9-4 with each side guilty of four errors.

Everybody but Eddie Mathews got a hit as the Braves snapped an eight-game home losing streak. Jim Wilson stopped the distance-hitting Redlegs on four hits, but one was Ted Kluszewski's 24th home run of the season, giving him the league lead.

Bases on balls killed the Cards' chances at Chicago. Four walks interspersed with an error and four singles produced seven runs for the Cubs in the eighth. Randy Jackson hit two home runs with the bases empty and a single with the bags full.

Whitey Ford had one of his better days for the Yankees. The young southpaw, who has an excellent 3-2 record despite some mediocre performances, gave up just two singles to the A's, who hit only seven balls past the infielders. He struck out three and walked four.

WINS SEVENTH

Frank Shea won his seventh game against one defeat as the Senators won a ragged contest at Boston. The Red Sox committed three errors on the first four plays of the game.

Al Rosen hit his fourth home run in four games for Cleveland as the Indians turned on the Tigers who had beaten them two in a row. The consecutive-game, home-run hitting record is six. One man was aboard when Rosen connected. Early Wynn scattered six hits in posting his eighth victory against five losses.

Pitches 2-Hitter For Syracuse To Dump Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Righthander Lynn Lovenguth's two-hit performance for Syracuse highlighted International League play Friday night.

Lovenguth beat the sixth-place Ottawa Athletics 8-2, allowing only a scratch hit until two were out in the ninth inning, when an error prolonged the game and Fred Gerken hit a two-run homer to rob him of a shutout. The victory was Lovenguth's fourth in nine decisions.

The league-leading Montreal Royals dropped an 8-6 decision to Rochester Red Wings. This was the fourth straight win for the third place Birds and left them 3½ games behind the Royals.

PINCH-HIT HOMER

A pinch-hit grand slam homer by rookie outfielder Tom Burgess in the seventh inning spelled Montreal's downfall. The victory went to George Condrick, who worked only the seventh.

Buffalo Bisons failed to take advantage of Montreal's defeat, losing 11-2 to the fourth-place Toronto Maple Leafs to remain 1½ games back of the leaders.

The Leafs belted five Bison pitchers for 17 hits. Former Bison Billy Demars and Lou Morton accounted for eight of the safe blows. Ed Stevens and Hal Keller each got a homer.

Scoring heavily in the late innings, Baltimore Orioles defeated the tail-end Springfield Cubs 8-6. Bob Greenwood, Baltimore starter, hit a homer in his first time at bat. He eventually gave way to a pinchhitter, but was credited with the victory.

Outsiders Oust Veterans In PGA Play

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP)—Defending champion Jim Turnesa, heavily favored Sam Snead and a host of golf's brightest names were buried Friday in an avalanche of upsets marking the darkest "black Friday" in United States PGA tournament history.

Other victims at the Birmingham Country Club were the low medalist, Johnny Palmer; four other former champions in addition to Snead and the red-hot tournament co-favorite, Dr. Cary Middlecoff.

Shuttled to the sidelines were old Gene Sarazen, big Vic Ghezzi, Jim Ferrier and Chandler Harper, all ex-titlists. They were joined by Dick Harbert, twice a runner-up; Ed (Porky) Oliver and George Fazio.

Dave Douglas, string-bean son of a Scot professional, eliminated former Open champion Lew Worsham and Snead. The 35-year-old Douglas from Newark, Del., first put out Worsham, 1947 U.S. Open king, on the 20th hole of the morning round.

OVERTOOK SNEAD

Then he staged a spectacular rally to collar Snead on the 16th hole and whip the strong favorite by sinking a six-foot birdie putt on the 19th hole.

Turnesa, after playing brilliant sub-par golf to win a 6 and 4 victory over Max Evans in the first round, bowed in the afternoon to little Felice Torza of St. Charles, Ill., 4 and 3.

Middlecoff, the Memphis dentist who is one of the game's top money winners, took a shellacking in the second round from Jimmy Clark from Laguna Beach, Calif., 5 and 4. Clark beat giant Vic Ghezzi, 1941 champion and first-round qualifying leader, 2 and 1.

Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N.Y., was eight under par over the 6,465-yard course for his brace of victories over Ted Kroll, 4 and 2, and Jack Grout, by the same margin.

It was Grout, a rangy Texan, who ousted the medalist, 1952 Canadian Open champion Johnny Palmer of Badin, N.C., in a morning round, 2 and 1.

Suzanne Lenglen, one of the greatest women tennis stars in history, died 15 years ago today of pernicious anaemia in Paris. She was Olympic tennis champion in 1921 and held the Wimbledon title from 1919 to 1923, with another win in 1925, turning professional in 1927. She retired the following year, 10 years before her death.

Toronto Men Advance Into N. Ontario Finals

BIGWIN INN (CP)—Jack Little and Pete Stewart, both of Toronto, showed championship form Friday as they won semi-final matches of the Northern Ontario tennis championships.

Miss J. McLeod of Toronto and Mrs. J. Gorske of Oberlin, O., won semi-final rounds of the women's singles.

Little dropped Ray Summers of Toronto 6-2, 6-4 while Stewart came through 6-2, 7-5 over Dick Ring of Toronto. Miss McLeod trounced Miss Harris of Toronto 6-1, 6-1. Mrs. Gorske beat Miss K. George of Toronto 6-4, 4-6, 6-1.

Catcher, Pitcher To Help Bisons

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo Bisons of the International League announced Friday they have acquired pitcher Earl Harrist and catcher Danny Ryan to bolster their pennant campaign.

General manager Joe Ziegler said Harrist, a veteran right-hander, who has played with St. Louis Browns and Chicago White Sox, will be on option from Detroit Tigers.

Ryan's contract was purchased from Little Rock of the Southern Association.

However, in Cleveland Harrist declined the assignment. Disposition of the case was turned over to the Tigers' front office.

THE REV. DR. N. D. PATTERSON, new minister of the Mark Street United Church, was inducted into his new charge on Friday night by the Peterborough Presbytery. Taking part in the induction service (left to right) were the Rev. H. B. Herrington, of Keene, secretary of Peterborough Presbytery; the Rev. A. A. Mathews, of Peterborough, chairman of the Presbytery; the Rev. Dr. Patterson and the Rev. H. L. Yarr, of Bailieboro.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Mark Street Congregation Welcomes Its New Minister

The Mark St. United Church was crowded Friday evening for the induction of the new minister, the Rev. Dr. N. D. Patterson. He succeeds the Rev. B. S. Morwood.

The Rev. Arnold Mathews opened the proceedings by welcoming Dr. Patterson and "thanking God for all the gifts He had bestowed upon man and especially in sending us His own Son as our Saviour and Redeemer."

The guest preacher was the Rev. Herbert Yarr, of Bailieboro.

Mr. Yarr's sermon was entitled, "The Great Doctrines of Christ." Mr. Yarr advised that the first thing to do when beginning a ministry was to try and instruct the congegation in the great doctrines taught by Christ to the Apostles.

"We must not only think of those who are without the brotherhood of Christ, but also of those who are within."

Mr. Yarr gave what he termed a short Spritual autobiography, in which he explained how difficult it was to set out before the people a clear and concise explanation of the great doctrines, especially when inexperienced.

"We must guard against heresy by confirming one another in a sound doctrine, one that we know to be true, and that we will not discard no matter what the pressure exhorted. We know that Jesus is the Messiah, the Saviour and the Foundation of the world, and without Him we would not be.

"There are two kinds of humanism," went on Mr. Yarr. "One is of a Christian type and the other is a negative thing. This type has hit the climax of its negative procedure — it has invaded the minds of contemporary man and must be dispelled.

"Science of the modern variety has made it easy to believe that man is the measure of all things, but we know that this is not true.

"Complete freedom is the eternal quest of man, and is only acquired when we make our wills subject to Him who is all-powerful and all good." Mr. Yarr concluded by saying, "Communism is the outcome of negative humanism

Rome Gave Ideas To Paul

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Rome in the time of Jesus and St. Paul was more than a city, though it is said to have had two million inhabitants. It was the powerful center of a vast empire that included southern Europe, all of Asia Minor, Syria, Egypt and North Africa.

Rome occupied much the same position as London does today in the British Empire, ruling in various parts through native princes and its appointed representatives. But Rome had no rival and its dominance of its world was complete.

This dominance of Rome, and the fact that under its stern discipline the world of the empire was virtually at peace, had distinct bearing upon the opportunity for the spread of the Gospel. As far as Rome was concerned, except for the persecuting zeal of his enemies, the Christian missionary, like Paul, could travel throughout the empire.

It was not by chance that Paul laid the foundations of Christian churches on the great lines of travel and trade, such as cities like Corinth and Ephesus. Probably this was occasioned by the fact that many Jews, drawn by commerce, were already at these various centers. Rome itself had a population of many races, including Jews, drawn from all parts of the empire.

It should be added that a great part of the population were slaves, giving distinction to the fact that Paul, though born at Tarsus, in a Roman province, was a free-born citizen.

Paul seems to have lost something of this pride in Rome, when he eventually went to the great city, seeking the justice which he had failed to receive in Palestine (Acts 25:11). There, for two years, he lived in comparative freedom, guarded, but in his own house (Acts 28:30-31).

Whether justice was just long delayed, as is often the case in our present-day courts, or whether Paul, in two years, just failed to get vindication, the Epistles that he wrote while a prisoner sound very different from those he wrote in Romans 13:1, that "the powers that be are ordained of God." He now wrote (Ephesians 1:21) of something "far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion."

However, no matter how much Paul may have changed in his idea of imperial Rome, there was no lessening of his imperialism. Paul was an imperialist with world-wide vision. His purpose was to master that world for Christ.

Against that vast, powerful, all-dominating imperialism of Rome, he set his conception of a world conquered with the Gospel.

I stood in Rome years ago and, as I looked upon the ruins of Roman splendor and saw the tablet set in the ruins of the Colosseum in memory of the Christian martyrs who had died in the arena, the words of Paul came to my mind with a sense of his supreme vindication.

Supreme? Not quite. For the world still awaits the full realization of the imperial dream of Paul, with Christ as Lord of all.

$276 In Cash Stolen From Gas Station

Money Kept In Bag To Cash Cheques Taken From Desk

A bag containing $267 in cash was stolen in broad daylight on Friday afternoon from the Regent service station on Chemong Road at Wolsley Street. The money was kept on hand to cash cheques.

According to the operator, James Munro, the money was kept in a desk drawer in the station's office. It was last seen about 2:30, and when Munro went to cash a cheque at five o'clock, the money was gone.

The operator believes someone came into the office to use the telephone, which is located on the desk, saw the money, and walked off with it.

Inspector of Detectives Bud Clarke and Detective Dennis Traynor are investigating.

Citizens Band Busy Keeping Engagements

Four recent engagements in one week suggest district appreciation of Peterborough Citizens' Band.

They played to a crowd of about 3,000 last Sunday night from the stage of the shell in the Cobourg lakeside park; were the feature of the Centreville strawberry party on Wednesday, June 24; assisted in the Lakefield Decoration Day ceremony on Sunday, June 21 and played their usual concert that night at Nicholls Oval.

Director of the band is Wallace H. Parnell of the city assessment department.

THE ONLY MULEY-TYPE SAWMILL in Canada, research experts say, is situated three miles north-west of Madoc, ABOVE, on a small stream that runs through a property owned by descendants of the O'Hara family of that district. Though in sad state of disrepair, the vertically upright saw blade and wooden log carriage are still in place, UPPER LEFT. On the ground level, LOWER LEFT, remains of the waterwheel shaft and main drive shaft are shown in penstock arch. The newly-formed Moira Watershed Conservation Authority hopes to purchase the mill and restore it. —(Examiner Staff Photos)

Crumbling O'Hara Mill To Be Preserved As Museum

MADOC—(Staff)—About three miles north-west of this bustling Hastings County village there is a rambling Colonial-style one-storey house, several log buildings in a sorry state of repair and beyond this grouping on a small brook, an ancient sawmill. It is known locally as the "O'Hara Place" and is still owned by family descendants.

As the name indicates the O'Haras are from the Ould Sod. Mrs. Blanche Alexander, great-great-granddaughter of the original Patrick lives in the village and has the family history at her fingertips.

Patrick O'Hara and his seven sons were British Army and Navy veterans. They came to Thirteen Colonies before the Revolution and settled chiefly in New York and New Jersey States.

ONE OF LOYALISTS

One of the sons, "Squire" James, came to Upper Canada with the Loyalist movement and settled in the Madoc district in the early 1800's and his son, James Jr., built a sawmill about 1846-47.

It was operated by himself and his descendants for more than 50 years and Mrs. Alexander recalls as a child when the yards on the home property were stacked with lumber.

Old sawmills are not uncommon but the O'Hara mill is unique. Experts who have examined the workings claim that it is the only one of its kind in Canada. It is known as the "Muley", or upright type, and when it was in operation could be best described as a mechanical whip-sawing pit. The great historical artist, the late C. W. Jeffries, illustrates the muley-type sawmill in his "Picture Guide of Canadian History," Volume 2.

The mill building is of frame construction and rests with one side on a steep bank and, on the stream side, on a thick dry masonry wall. Water flow from the stream was directed underneath to turn a waterwheel that powered an upright saw on the main floor. The long handmade saw blade that travelled vertically looks like a very large swordfish bill.

HOPE TO RENOVATE

An exact description of how the complicated machinery operated could only be described by an engineer. The gear has fallen to ruin long since but it is the hope of officials of the Moira River Watershed Conservation Authority to purchase the site, refurbish the machinery and building and eventually purchase the old homestead as a complete museum piece of early pioneering days.

Col. R. Vanderwater of Foxboro, a relative of the O'Hara family by marriage, is a moving force in this piece of future planning. He has already prepared a very comprehensive brief on the project, complete with maps, scale drawings and photographs.

The O'Hara mill will never produce lumber again but may be preserved for the enjoyment of visitors who would like to study one of the few intact pioneering projects that predates the birthday of the Dominion by 20 years.

Strawberries Up 10c As Season Ends Here

Local strawberries jumped 10 cents, from 30 to 40 cents, in price this week at the open market, as the strawberry season ended in the Peterborough area.

Some farmers expect there might be a few berries on the market next Saturday but jobbers will probably be asking 45 and 50 cents a basket.

Eggs were down in price this week. They were selling for: grade A oversize, 70 cents, large 68 cents and small 65 cents.

Bunches of radishes, pepper grass, onions and rhubarb were selling for five cents. Hundred-pound bags of new potatoes were selling for $4 and old potatoes $1.75 for 75 pounds.

Year-old chickens were selling for 40 cents a pound. There were three collie pups on sale for $5 each.

Campaign Plans Of 3 Parties Get Under Way

As August 10, date of the federal election, draws closer, plans for extensive campaigning by Peterborough riding's three candidates are beginning to formulate.

Although his plans have not yet been released, Gordon K. Fraser said he is planning a series of daily radio broadcasts during which he and other Progressive-Conservatives in the riding will speak.

LADY SPEAKER

At least one meeting is planned in the near future for Peterborough audiences by the PC candidate. Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, former alderman and controller in Hamilton, and member in last parliament for Hamilton-West will be guest speaker on Monday, July 13, at a meeting in the Legion hall.

Liberal candidate Max Swanston will open his campaign Tuesday night when he is scheduled to start a series of radio broadcasts. Campaign manager Arthur Lewis said only tentative plans have been made insofar as speaking tours are concerned.

These include, however, guest speakers from other ridings who will appear on behalf of the candidate.

Latest arrival on the scene, 11th hour CCF candidate Maurice Ketcheson is going over plans with his recently appointed campaign manager Donald Rosenburgh in their headquarters at the Labor Centre in the Bank of Commerce building at Water and Hunter Sts.

HEADQUARTERS BUSY

Liberal and PC headquarters, meanwhile, are a hive of activity as phones ring and volunteer workers, drawn from the parties and youth movements, scurry about with loads of pamphlets and posters.

Committees of both organizations are in full swing as chairmen attend to the minute details under the surface of intensive campaigns.

In charge of various phases in the Liberal plans are Arthur Lewis, campaign manager and Robert Carley, publicity manager. Edward Fanjoy will act as Mr. Swanston's official agent.

Behind the scenes in Mr. Fraser's headquarters are Frank Foster, publicity chairman and Gordon Farquharson, transportation chairman. John Currelly is the Conservative's official agent while Mr. Fraser is managing his own campaign.

Douro Section Honors Teacher

The pupils, parents and friends of S.S. No. 7 gathered at the school Friday to say farewell to teacher John G. Armstrong and present him with gifts. A short program was enjoyed after which Veronica Dwyer read an address and Anne Hefferman presented the gifts.

Mr. Armstrong replied and lunch was served the pupils.

Department Gives Approval To Paving Buckhorn Road

Highways Minister George Doucett has approved his department's share of the cost of laying an asphalt-mulch top on the 12½-mile Buckhorn Road. Estimated cost of the paving is $70,000. Now that the department have approved the project work should get underway by the end by July. Jack Kean, county engineer and road superintendent said today that the paving should be completed by the end of August.

LITTLE USE THIS SUMMER

"This means that it won't be of much use to motorists this summer," said Mr. Kean. "But now we can definitely go ahead and get the job done."

Paving of the Buckhorn Road should settle one of the most controversial matters facing the Suburban Area Roads Commission and the roads committee of the Peterborough County Council. Last summer tourists and local residents lodged strong complaints against the condition of the road. They said that clouds of dust cut down visibility considerably and caused a driving hazard. They also complained of pot holes and rough spots.

The Buckhorn Road is looked after by the Suburban Area Roads Commission—a joint city-county commission — who have charge of main traffic arteries leading to the city. Construction began on it in 1948 after it was temporarily taken over by the department under the development roads scheme.

Since then the Buckhorn Road has cost the department $215,000. The existing road had to be widened, straightened out in some places, and partially re-routed. A short stretch at the Buckhorn end was completed by the commission at a cost of $17,000; buying the new right-of-way and putting up new fencing cost the commission $25,000; and at least another $25,000 has been spent on oil and calcium chloride.

Last year, in particular, there were many complaints about the dust and pot holes, so county council asked for help from both the city and the department. Here is the way the paving is to be financed:

The commission contribute $15,000 which they had earmarked in any case to pave 3½ miles of the road. The city and the county each contribute $14,000, and this is matched by a $28,000 grant from the department.

ANNOUNCED BY SCOTT

The Hon. Harold R. Scott, minister without portfolio, announced that the project had been "cleared" by Mr. Doucett.

"So you see Peterborough County isn't faring too badly," said Mr. Scott. "True, there have been cuts in road appropriations, but when you consider the amount of money the department is spending on the Buckhorn Road and the Gannon's Narrows causeway, which is also going ahead, you can see Peterborough isn't faring too badly at all."

Mr. Kean said the preliminary work on the Buckhorn Road is going ahead. Soft spots and holes are being filled with pit-run gravel to build up the strength of the road. Next there will be a light cover of oil and the asphalt mulch should be laid about the end of the month.

Ask For Prices On PCVS Job

Eavestroughing is urgently needed on PCVS and the property committee of the Board of Education are calling for tenders so the job can be done. It was one of several property matters dealt with Friday night by the committee.

Brickwork pointing at PCVS is being done by Fred Tuggey at an estimated cost of not more than $500.

As part of the committee's maintenance program sections of the grounds at Confederation and Queen Mary Schools are being paved.

Blackboard lights are being installed in Room 2 of Prince of Wales School at a cost of $73.

The yard behind Prince of Wales is being cleaned up. Work includes levelling the old basement, filling in the open part of an old well, cutting grass and clearing out old trees and shrubbery.

At Queen Alexandra and Central Schools toilet doors are being installed in the girls' washrooms.

To accommodate Home and School Associations sinks and cabinets are being put in rooms at King George and Queen Alexandra Schools that are being used by the associations.

Also at Queen Alexandra: couch and chair in teachers' room being re-covered; four new chairs purchased; electric outlet installed, and cupboard installed.

The maintenance staff is putting in new chalkboards in one room at both Queen Alexandra and Park Hill Schools.

Melville Burns, PCVS caretaker, is being transferred to Prince of Wales as an assistant to Edmund Morrison. Frank Hitchins is being transferred to Armour Heights.

During the summer seven flag poles are to be placed at city schools.

June's Building Valued At $694,542 Boosts Total Ahead Of Year Ago

$284,000 Woolworth Store Biggest Item
Apartments, Service Station Duplex, Alterations Add To Sum

A $284,000 building permit for the Woolworth store at George and Charlotte Streets stood out gratefully in the total of new property values authorized in June through City Engineer Chalmer's office. June's permits amounted to $694,542, moving the five months' total to $2,057,685. Corresponding figures for last year were: June permits $445,100 and total from Jan. 1 to June 30 was $1,700,532. In the comparison for the two years Peterborough so far has managed to keep in front of the 1952 total of new construction.

DETAILS

Details for last month were: 15 garages, $4,725; 33 dwellings, $328,700; 83 miscellaneous permits, $361,117. Total for the month, $654,542.

And in June last year: 17 garages, $4,850; 21 houses, $178,100; 89 miscellaneous works, $262,150. Total for the month, $445,100.

The margin of gain over last year, for the six months period, is $357,153.

Some of the larger items in the list, apart from the Woolworth store, are a 4-apartment building at Reid and Edinburgh Sts. for which the $30,000 permit was taken out by Paul L. Minicola; a $23,000 permit for the new McColl-Frontenac service station at the north-west corner of Charlotte and Stewart Sts.; and $25,000 for a double-duplex at Downie and Simcoe Sts., issued to Sam Moldaver. The alterations at the Empress Hotel are estimated at $15,000 in that permit.

Alfred H. Mowry Retired, 40 Years At CGE

Alfred H. (Fred) Mowry, of 612 Charlotte St., has now retired from the CGE after 47 years of service. He was supervisor of the blueprint department and was fifth in seniority among the 14,500 employees in the CGE chain.

Friday was his last working day at the company. He is now retiring in good health on pension and will be able to indulge in his hobbies of lawn bowling, fishing, gardening and curling.

Mr. Mowry began work at the CGE in September, 1906, and has worked in several departments. In 1929 he was appointed supervisor of blueprint. During his association with the company he has seen it expand from a small industrial plant employing 250 to the giant works that today employ more than 4,000.

Eight members of the Mowry family are still working at CGE. At one time there were 12.

Lodges Filled As Big Rush Tourists Start

Late Friday and early today American tourists rushed into the Kawartha lake area for the first big holiday weekend of 1953. Resorts reported "full to capacity" all rooms gone and cabins and house-keeping cottages engaged.

The influx of holidaying people mostly from the northern states started at 11.00 p.m. Friday, keeping Peterborough lunch bars and restaurants busy until the wee hours of today.

WAIT FOR BREAKFAST

Normally at 6 a.m. George St. in the downtown section is fairly quiet, but today it was busy as the influx started again. The six lunch bars and restaurants which have early opening hours were kept busy until 8.30 a.m. as overnight travellers stopped for breakfast, prior to moving on to lodges and cottages.

Throughout the district at Pigeon Buckhorn, Stony, Clear, Rice and Chemong lakes, the resorts were practically all filled to capacity by noon. Although a number of tourists arrived for the opening of bass and muskie fishing Wednesday, these lodges didn't feel the tourist rush until today.

Resorts, especially on Pigeon lake, are booked solid until September.

Rice lake is typical of those in the district. Arthur Elmhirst of Keene, said today he had difficulty finding a place for one American party which arrived without reservations. He finally found them a place near Hastings. He found most lodges and furnished cottages full.

PICKEREL FISHING GOOD

At the same time he said, "I have never seen in 20 years such good pickerel fishing. It has been exceptional. Almost every party went home with its limit."

Camp Cleveland on Pigeon lake, Buckhorn lodge, the Park Hotel at Burleigh Falls and the Viamede Hotel all reported the same results for fishing, quotas of pickerel, a few bass and some muskies.

Many tourists are from Ohio and Pennsylvania. There are also a few from New York, Miehigan, Illinois and Kansas.

Even as the resorts enjoy the American July 4 holiday with the season's largest tourist rush, they look forward to even larger weekends throughout the summer.

Two Friends Meet After 44 Years

MARMORA (ENS)—W. J. Cottrell had a brief reunion on Thursday afternoon with the Rev. N. Franchetti, rector of Edmundston, N.B., after a lapse of 44 years.

The New Brunswick clergyman is vacationing with the Rev. and Mrs. L. E. Hawkes at Tweed, who made the reunion possible in Marmora. At the time they last met, Mr. Franchetti was lay reader in the parish of Holy Trinity, Swansea, South Wales, which church was also attended by Mr. Cottrel. The parish had a mission in its slum section known as the Strand Mission and the two friends reminisced on their experiences there, including the open-air services which were a feature of the Rev. George F. Packer's vicariate. Mr. Franchetti has spent 40 years as a clergyman in the Anglican diocese of Fredericton whereas Mr. Cottrell came to Madoc in 1912 to be lay reader to the late Rev. C. J. Young. The former has two college friends in Ontario in the persons of the Rev. Cecil Winters of Cataraqui and the Rev. A. C. Fenwick recently appointed to Wolfe Island and before his return to the east, is hoping to visit them.

District Should Be Checked Before Buying Property

Before buying that lot, check this list against the neighbourhood: while you can't expect it to rate 100% on all points listed here, you do want as many of these important neighbourhood features as possible.

1. In choosing a neighborhood, one of the most important things to look for is a high percentage of owner-occupied homes. Pride of ownership, resulting in greater care for building and grounds, is an undisputed safeguard against depreciated property values. However, small areas of rented homes may not detract from a community if they are well-maintained, but generally speaking, those owner-occupied will show greater care and proper maintenance.

2. The character of a neighborhood is determined by the people who live in it . . . a community of low-cost homes can be just as livable as one which is limited to higher price properties. You'll want to consider the people who are living there to determine whether or not you have interests in common. You can do this by visiting neighborhood schools, churches and community centres.

3. In locating a neighborhood you should consider both the natural and man-made features which exist in the community. Bodies of water, such as rivers or lakes, may be desirable but you should avoid swamp-like land which might flood or rivers which might overlow. You should also avoid the use of rocky or rubbish-filled land which is likely to add to the cost of building and make it difficult to grow a lawn or garden.

4. Transportation must be kept in mind when choosing a neighborhood. Facilities should be modern and convenient, with frequent service. It will be better still if shops, schools, churches, libraries and parks, as well as work, are within walking distance of the home.

5. Nearby heavy industry to windward will be an objectionable source of noise, smoke, dirt and odours . . . both from the factories themselves and from the railroads serving them. Light industry, on the other hand, may be an asset to the community providing work close to home in pleasant surroundings. This will be especially true if the small factories are operated by electricity.

How are the streets laid out? . . . in a properly designed neighborhood, they should be safe, convenient and well-surfaced. They should be free from through traffic, but accessible to main arteries. The street layout should be attractively landscaped and should take advantage of all natural features such as hill and valleys, wooded areas, and waterways. Streets fitted to an irregular terrain can provide easier curves, thereby saving on construction costs. Curves and grades must be designed so as to offer desirable lot sizes and shapes.

7. Houses in a livable neighborhood should be similar in general size and character, but should vary in exterior appearance. A simple appropriate and "honest" design is necessary to all sound architecture. Houses should be gauged by people's habits of living and fitted to the topography or ground on which they are constructed. They should be adapted to the regional climate. A "Spanish" type stucco house might be all right for Florida in a setting of palm trees, but it would be very much out of place in the snow drifts of our own climate.

Too many different materials should not be used in one small home without good reason; that is, to reduce apparent height or to add interest. In choosing a permanent neighborhood, you should look for houses which are similar in general size and cost, substantially constructed with materials which assure long life and low maintenance.

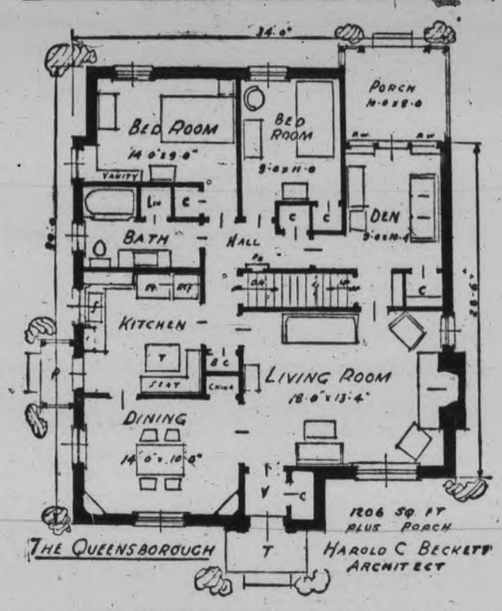
8. Unless a neighborhood has an adequate and approved water supply, there will have to be individual wells and pumping systems for each home. If sanitary sewer lines are not provided, private septic tanks or individual sewage disposal arrangements will be needed. For lots of average size, this would be undesirable because of high cost and poor sanitation. There should be a system for collecting and discharging surface drainage. Look for street lights and accessible fire hydrants. Telephone and electric service should be readily available in the neighborhood which you select.

9. Local zoning ordinances are designed to regulate the use of all lands within a community for the protection of the home owner. If properly written and carefully enforced, they limit the uses to which building can be put, keeping commercial or non-residential elements out of the home neighborhood. By limiting building heights and land coverage, they can insure open space between the houses, thus allowing for ample light and air. Similar and added protection is often provided by local deed restrictions, building codes, and health and sanitary ordinances and laws.

And Finally . . Neighborhood Facilities.

10. Good neighborhoods include schools, churches, parks and other recreation areas. A neighborhood centre and a shopping centre should be near by. All of these facilities should be within walking distance of your home.

The school is the natural centre of a neighborhood. It should be well designed and modern, with adequate facilities for play. The school should provide facilities for adult education and neighborhood activities, as well as for the child's curriculum.



LOOK FOR PARK AREAS

Landscaped park areas should offer what individual homes lack in space for games and recreation. Some of these areas, at least should be associated with the school.

The neighborhood centre may be established in a separate building, or it may be connected with the church or school. In any event, it should include a library and a meeting place for the teen-age groups. The teen-age meeting place provides an opportunity for games and parties and the development of leadership responsibilities.

The shopping centre should be located between two corners rathers than at a street intersection. The general character of this centre should be such as to safeguard the values of property and not spread to destroy these values. It should be housed in buildings especially designed to fit the surroundings, with adequate parking space.

THE QUEENSBOROUGH is a dignified Early American Colonial bungalow with low sweeping lines. The plan provides a pleasant den leading off the living room, and giving access to the garden from a porch. If required, this den could be used as a guest room and there are two other bedrooms, an excellent kitchn with ample dining facilities. The dining room connects with the living room with built-in corner cupboards. The roof lines are low but space is provided on the second floor for storage. Little Storage Space Result Of Poor Design

By MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

A most common complaint of home owners in these days of basementless and atticless houses is the lack of adequate storage areas. But this fault is, more often than not, one of poor design, rather than of too-little actual space for storage.

In other words, it isn't so much the size of the storage place that counts, it's the way stored articles are arranged in the space. If the enclosure is of awkward dimensions, then the articles can't be stored practically or conveniently.

This is not to say that size (or volume) of storage space is unimportant. On the contrary, it is vital. But size alone isn't the measure of efficient storage.

Most homes have coat and linen closets, clothes closets for each bedroom and cabinets for kitchen and bathroom supplies. But some of this space is often wasted because it cannot be used to best advantage.

These are the homes in which the vacuum cleaner and other cleaning supplies have to be stored at the back of coat closets, where the housewife must burrow for them. There's likely to be a card table there, too, and a tennis racquet propped in a corner. Other odds and ends are stored in chests.

Something can be done about the whole unhappy situation, even in existing homes, by installing built-in storage units. Built-in units save space by reducing the number of pieces of storage-type furniture to a minimum, the University of Illinois Small Homes Council points out.

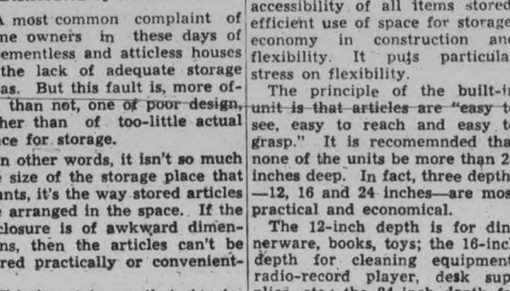
Occupying the same or less floor space than chests, dressers and wardrobes, built-ins may extend to the ceiling, offering that much more storage area.

The University of Illinois found that such units offer maximum accessibility of all items stored, efficient use of space for storage, economy in construction and flexibility. It puts particular stress on flexibility.

The principle of the built-in unit is that articles are "easy to see, easy to reach and easy to grasp." It is recomemnded that none of the units be more than 24 inches deep. In fact, three depths —12, 16 and 24 inches—are most practical and economical.

The 12-inch depth is for dinnerware, books, toys; the 16-inch depth for cleaning equipment, radio-record player, desk supplies, etc.; the 24-inch depth for clothing, linens, card tables, etc.

The width of the built-in may be determined by the width of the largest article to be stored in it, or by the number of article it will have to hold. Height is variable. Units may be adapted to window or door levels, may be free-standing or of ceiling height. None should be higher than 72 inches.



To provide flexibility, adjustable shelves are recommended for built-in units. The shelves should not be evenly spaced, but adjusted as far apart as the tallest article placed on each shelf, or slightly farther.

Full-front opening is most efficient. Sliding, folding or hinged doors may be used.

Drawers should be as shallow as possible for he type of article to be stored.

The simplest storage units are little more than boxes and are flexible in that they may be combined in many ways. In combination they may form partitions between rooms.

There is a variety of plans and specifications available today for building storage units. Your lumber dealer can help you. He may even have such units precut and ready for assembly.

FLOOR-TO-CEILING built-in storage units provide maximum convenient space for storage and occupy little floor area.

TO VISIT CANADA—When Lady Patricia Ramsay, now 67, was 28 years old, she was Princess Patricia, the daughter of the Duke of Connaught, Canada's governor-general, and Queen Victoria's youngest son. As Princess Patricia, she lived in Rideau Hall, in Ottawa, from 1911 to 1916. This fall she will visit Canada and her Calgary-based regiment—the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry—for the first time in years.

Princess Pats In 39 Years Become One Of Canada's Famous Infantry Regiments

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A princess who had the sort of shy beauty princesses have in storybooks gave her name to a regiment 39 years ago in Ottawa and launched one of the brightest chapters in the Canadian military story.

The princess was Patricia of Connaught, a tall, blue-eyed granddaughter of Queen Victoria; a young woman who liked to ski and skate, paint and dance, who turned many a young Canadian blade's head but had eyes only for a British sailor.

Later she gave up the rank of princess to marry the sailor, Hon. Alexander R. M. Ramsay, who was the third son of the Earl of Dalhousie and now is an admiral and a knight.

As Princess Patricia, she lived in Government House here from 1911 to 1916, the daughter of the governor-general, the Duke of Connaught.

FAMOUS REGIMENT

Her regiment, the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, nearly fought itself into oblivion in the first months of the First World War, but went on to long life that now has reached its greatest growth with a record three battalions—roughly 2,500 men—bearing the regimental name.

This fall Lady Patricia Ramsay, now 67, will visit Canada and her regiment for the first time in years. She will see again the color (flag) she worked at Government House in 1914. Three times enemy fire nearly finished it, twice it was buried but it survived to inspire the 5,000 men who were Patricias between 1914 and 1918, and their heirs.

She was surprised, the princess once exclaimed, to hear how near the front her color had gone. She had reason to be. The PPCLI was the only unit in the British armies to take one into battle.

It was in August, 1914, that then Capt. (now Brig.) Hamilton Gault of Montreal put up $100,000 to raise a unit to place at Britain's disposal. Lt.-Col. Francis Farquhar, DSO, the governor-general's military secretary, at once was fascinated with the idea and became commanding officer — and was killed within a year.

FLOCKED TO COLORS

They asked the 28-year-old princess if they could use her name and she consented the same day. Within 10 days the unit was flooded with men, mostly former British soldiers who had migrated to Canada.

The fighting decimated the unit in its first year and its future hung in the balance because it was outside the normal scope of the army. But the army decided to keep it going, reinforcements flooded in and it eventually joined the Canadian Army in France and after the war became a permanent force regiment.

That war also markedly changed the princess' way of life. In her first three years here, she led a graceful life with lots of teas, skating and skiing parties, dances and balls. Her mother was ailing and she was a great help to her father. She painted a lot, and well. She played golf, travelling to the links on a private tram-car. Her face appeared on a $2 bill.

The princess, by general recollection, had a quiet, dignified beauty. It "quelled" her female friends, as one recently put it, and it made males bashful in her presence. She was seen fairly often in groups with Alexander Ramsay who was an aide to her father.

BUSY IN WAR WORK

Then war came. Ramsay went away and won the DSO at Gallipoli and she missed him. Social life was far less buoyant. She did all sorts of war work.

In 1916, the Connaughts returned to England. In 1919, she married Ramsay in a wedding such as London hadn't seen in years.

At the wedding there was an honor guard from her regiment of Canadians. As the wedding party left the abbey, the huge crowds surged forward and in front of the soldiers.

Patricia later wrote the regiment her regrets because, she said, this prevented the King, her cousin, from inspecting her men "as he had intended to do."

"It is indeed," she wrote with a touch of pride and humor, "the only occasion in its history on which the regiment has lost its ground."

Alexander, the Ramsays' only child, is an officer in the Grenadier Guards.

Police Cruiser Catches Fire, Cycle Damaged

Police Department vehicles came out second best twice in the past 24 hours as a cruiser caught fire and a motorcycle ran into a truck. Only casualty in the mishaps was J. Miller, 29, of 250 McKellar St., who suffered burns to his hands in extinguishing the cruiser fire.

The prowl car was returning to the station early this morning when, as it stopped at the corner of George and Simcoe Sts., smoke started from under the hood.

PC's Arthur Beardsmore and Robert Menzies, in the vehicle, lifted the hood in time to see flames burning around the carburetor.

At this point, Miller, riding in the cruiser, got out and threw his coat around the mechanism, extinguishing the fire, but receiving minor burns on his hands.

The car is the same one that was rammed some weeks ago by an American tourist.

The fire department was called but by the time firemen arrived, the flames were out.

Accelerating after warning a doubled-parked car to move, PC Harold Andrew tried to dodge his motorcycle as a truck which had just passed stopped suddenly. He succeeded—almost, but caught the bike's windshield and blinker light on the right rear corner of the truck.

The accident occured on Charlotte St., just west of Louis St. Damage to the motorcycle was not extensive while the truck escaped with an estimated $5 damage.

Robert Anderson, 22, of 546 Gilchrist, was driver of the truck.

Pickerel On The Line Stork On The Wing

One American tourist is returning to the United States with his hands full. After a fishing trip to the Kawarthas he's going back with his quota of pickerel and two babies, one more than he arrived with.

Lloyd Culp, of Willoughby, Ohio, a visitor at Camp Cleveland on Pigeon Lake, was presented by his wife with an 8-pound 3-ounce baby girl this week at St. Joseph's Hospital.

The Willoughbys arrived at the camp two weeks ago with their first baby, never thinking that the stork would come again so soon. But it did, right in the middle of their fishing holiday.

Dad had time to do some fishing prior to the event, thank goodness, for he didn't have much time after.

This same Mr. Willoughby received considerable publicity last fall during the American League baseball pennant race between the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees. He vowed not to shave until the Tribe won the pennant, and he had a lengthy growth when the Yankees finally won out. His picture with the beard was carried in most newspapers in Canada and the United States.

Farm 100 Years Old Anniversary Held

ST. GEORGE, Ont. (CP)—Harry C. Nixon, dean of the Ontario Legislature and former Liberal premier of the province, took time off from his harvesting Friday to welcome to his farm the members of the Brant Historical Society who held a picnic to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Nixon family residence in a house that Charles Nixon built in 1853.

The gathering on the farm near Brantford included most of Mr. Nixon's neighbors, as well as officials of the city of Brantford, Brant county and South Dumfries township.

Nixons have lived elsewhere in Ontario for 170 years. The first one, Allan Nixon, was a United Empire Loyalist who came into Canada from Pennsylvania in 1783 and settled in Grimsby. He was a captain in the militia during the 1837 rebellion.

Albert Clements

STIRLING (ENS)—The funeral was held from his late residence Wednesday afternoon of Albert Clements, of Ivanhoe, who died at his home following a brief illness in his 76th year. Burial was in White Lake cemetery.

Born at Ivanhoe, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clements. He spent all his life in this community and was a member of Beulah United Church.

Surviving besides his wife, the former Annie Kennedy, are two daughters, Mrs. Sidmer Reid (Leta) of Ivanhoe and Mrs. John Courtney (Mary) of Harold.

U.K. Conservative Leaders Laid Low By Illness Bring Wide Criticism

By DON SCHWIND

LONDON (AP)—Years, feet and gall bladders are more a worry to Britain's Conservative government these days than attacks by the Labor opposition.

The ravages of old age and illness have given ries to demands for a shake-up of the government team surrounding 78 - year - old Prime Minister Churchill.

Such demands from the Labor side of the House of Commons were expectable. But the party leadership got a shock when they rose from influential wings of the Conservative party itself, as well as from the Liberals who usually back Churchill in House votes.

To date the government's casualty list looks like this:

Churchill himself — ordered by his doctors to take a complete rest from official duties for at least a month. He is sunning himself in his Kent country home, Chartwell.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden —Recuperating in the United States from his third operation for a gall-bladder ailment.

Housing Minister Harold MacMillan—Scheduled to undergo surgery Monday for a gall-bladder ailment.

Supply Minister Duncan Sandys —Requires hospital treatment for an abdominal condition. Sandys is Churchill's son-in-law.

Churchil met the problem of foreign secretary's job himself In his own absence Churchill designated Lord Salisbury, Conservative leader in the House of Lords, to be acting foreign secretary.

BUTLER PROMOTED

Government policy in the Commons, he decided, would be voiced in his absence by the chancellor of the exchequer, R. A. Butler, and Harry Crookshank, lord privy seal and leader of the House.

The move was a long step upward for Butler, widely considered to be the leading candidate for the premiership. It made Butler in effect acting prime minister. He will preside at cabinet meetings.

Eden's supporters in the party fear his continuing absence from public life is slowly pushing him out of the political limelight.

Churchil's retirement to Chartwell brought from the mass-circulation, and usually pro - Labor, Daily Mirror this comment:

"How long can Britain's position in the cabinet of nations be sustained by an old man's spurts of energy, an old man's flashes of brilliance, an old man's moments of wisdom, and an old man's bursts of activity?"

Of Eden, the paper said: "As Churchill's successor, he is certainly out of the running."

The Liberal mouthpiece, News Chronicle, snapped: "The time has surely come for a thorough reconstruction."

In the House, Labor leader Clement Attlee said the foreign office alone needed "the close attention of a senior minister all the time." He attacked "indirect and divided control at the foreign office."

On the Conservative side, Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express observed: "It is apparent that the present stop - gap arrangements cannot be continued long."

Most important from the point of view of the party leadership was the fact that grumbling, while getting little outlet in Conservative newspapers or public speeches was getting plenty in local party meetings and among Conservative back-benchers in the Commons.

HELPED LITTLE.

The naming of Lord Salisbury did little to silence complaints, mostly from the extreme right wing of the party, that Britain needs a full-time foreign secretary with a "tough" policy. This wing has long accused eden of being weak, especially in Britain's dealings with Egyptian President Naguib, both on the Sudan problem and the ticklish question of British evacuation from the vital Suez canal zone.

"Young Tory" Conservatives complain that Churchill fills his top government seats with old cronies and Churchill family members. They are also cool to Salisbury. Butler is their man.

Present indications in Conservative party circles are that Eden will be back in the late autumn with a cabinet reshuffle probable shortly thereafter.

Best Conservative bets so far are that Eden will drop the foreign secretaryship and become full-time deputy prime minister with his foreign office post going to one of three candidates: Salisbury; MacMillan, or Sir Walter Monckton, Labor minister.

Monckton is not believed to be anxious for the job. Also, the strong criticism levelled at a foreign minister bottled up in the House of Lords is thought to be a factor against selection of Salisbury.

Butler, it is believed, would also be a strong candidate but his deep economic and financial knowledge would tend to keep him in the exchequer job.

Price Of Bread Up

TORONTO (CP)—One of Toronto's largest bakeries today announced an increase of a cent a loaf in its bread prices, effective Monday.

This brings prices for each 24-ounce loaf to 18 cents, unsliced and 19 cents sliced. The company, in a newspaper advertisement, blamed higher costs.

May Ship Food To East Germany

NEW YORK (CP)—The New York Times in a dispatch from Bonn says today that United States government agencies in Washington and Bonn are considering a plan to ship huge quantities of surplus foodstuffs to East Germany.

The government-owned surplus includes butter, wheat, meat, dried beans and other foodstuffs.

Through such shipments, the plan authors would try to capitalize on the situation created in East Germany by the workers' uprising June 17, the Times says.

At the same time they would seek to improve Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's chance of winning the forthcoming West German elections by associating him directly or indirectly with the move to alleviate the critical food shortage in East Germany.

The authors hope that the plan would not only embarrass the Soviet authorities but also would contribute further to undermining their control.

The foodstuffs would be distributed through religious organizations in East Germany but it was not yet clear whether these organizations had been approached and their consent obtained.

Whether the plan sponsors were convinced that Russian authorities would permit the U.S. to ship food for purposes of psychological warfare against Soviet control and domination also was not clear.

Backers of the plan pointed out that if the Russians refused to permit the shipments, they would stand accused of wilfully starving the East Germans for political reasons.

British Sculler Defeats Belgian

HENLEY - ON - THAMES (CP) Britain's Tony Fox today won the Diamond Challenge Sculls Trophy at the Royal Henley regatta by defeating Robert George, 22-year-old Belgian.

Fox finished four lengths ahead of George in eight minutes, 12 seconds.

The time was short of the course record of eight minutes flat set by George Friday.

For Fox, today's victory was revenge for the defeat he suffered at George's hands over a shorter course at Liege three weeks ago.

Earlier, an RAF eight defeated Princeton University's 150-pound crew in a morning semi-final and then went on to win the Thames Challenge Cup by beating Imperial College Boat Club of London by half a length. The winning time was six minutes, 59 seconds for the mile-and-550-yard course.

The RAF victory brought the challenge cup back to Britain from the U. S. It was won last year by the University of Pennsylvania.

In today's semi-final the RAF eliminated the last U. S. crew, winning by a third of a length in 7:05. The race was a thrilling one.

Manslaughter Charge Laid Against Father

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A formal charge of manslaughter has been filed against Russell Tongay, 36, in the death last May 5 of his daughter, Kathy, 5.

The formal charge, filed Friday had been expected since June 19 when a hearing was held before peace justice Edwin L. Mason, who recommended the charge be filed.

Kathy was seized with convulsions and died shortly after being taken to a hospital. An autopsy showed a ruptured intestine and body bruises. Tongay claimed his daughter suffered the injuries when she made an imperfect dive from a 33-foot tower.

Kathy and her brother, Bubba, 8, formed the Aquatots team and staged many exhibitions in the U.S. They went to Europe for a proposed try at the English channel but British and French authorities intervened.

Eagles In Burleigh? Fishermen Think So

North Monaghan township clerk Bruce Johnston, together with Denton Johnston and Doug Patterson, came home from a fishing trip recently in the Apsley area with a strange tale.

Starting by canoe from their base camp at Louck's Lake very early in the morning, they paddled through to Compass Lake and portaged over a hill to Stop Log Lake. In a dense grove of poplar they surprised 15 or 20 large birds roosting in the trees and were able to get within about 200 yards of them.

The Examiner asked Mr. Johnston if they were ospreys but he was quite definite that they were not. Having observed the former at Rice Lake for many years he said they were not the same but thought they were a species of eagle.

The fishermen returned over the lake chain route early in the evening and noted that the big birds had disappeared from their early-morning roosting place. They observed them flying over the high wooded hill country surrounding the lakes, not over the water.

This terrain where the birds appeared to be hunting made Mr. Johnston more definite than ever that they were large land birds and not ospreys. The latter hunt for fish over open water.

Earl Walls KOs Rex Layne, Now Contender

EDMONTON (CP) — Canadian heavyweight champion Earl Walls set himself up as a contender for the world boxing title Friday night, knocking out pudgy Rex Layne of Salt Lake City at 1:03 of the first round in their schedule 10-round outdoor bout.

The tall, rangy Negro smashed one tremendous right hand from a flurry of infighting square to the jaw. Layne fell like a wet log and and didn't twitch as referee Bill Behr of Chicago tolled the count.

The front rows of a crowd of nearly 10,000 surged over collapsing press tables as Wall's hand was raised in victory.

For Walls it was the start of the big time. His promise to bring Edmonton a world title could place the city in line with Toronto and Montreal as a boxing centre.

Walls, 25, stepped into pro ranks from his hometown of Windsor, Ont., and has been fighting cut of Edmonton for the last year. Weighing 192, he gave away 14 pounds to Layne, a 6-5 favorite.

His title of Pacific Northwest champion was at stake when he fired his big blow.

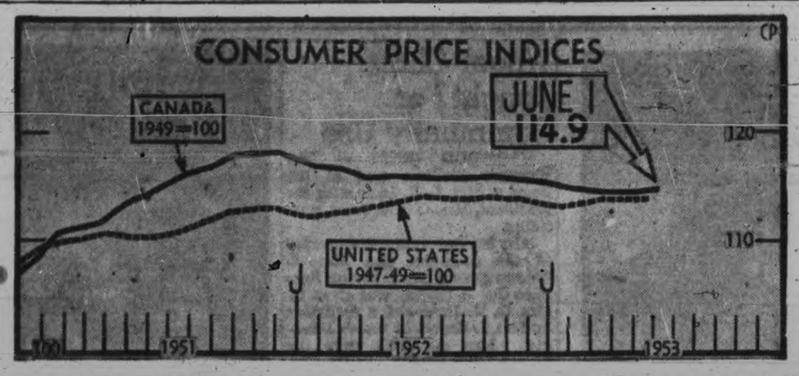
"I won that one for Canada," he said in his dressing room. "I hit him with a left hook and a straight right hand."

The blow could be heard clearly over the rioting crowd. It came as Layne, coming out of a crouch, stepped toward Walls, his gloves high.

DIDN'T SEE IT

Layne never saw the glove as it moved, landing on the right cheek to topple him over on his back.

The Mormon Bully Boy, who holds victories over former champions Jersey Joe Walcott and Ezzard Charles, said afterward he expected the loss to move him out of ratings as a ranking contender for the world heavyweight crown.



Layne currently is rated as eighth contender. He picked up 30 per cent of the gate or $10,000, whichever was greater, and a promise of a rematch within 60 days at Salt Lake City.

Walls picked up 20 per cent. The take was not announced.

Only a half-dozen blows were landed. Walls came out fighting at the bell, moving in close to score with long left jabs.

Layne stunned Walls with a looping right and smashed a series of short jabs to the Canadian fighter's midsection, his only solid blows.

Walls won the Canadian title from Vern Escoe in 1952. Most of his wins have come by either first or second round knockouts. He was stopped three times in bouts in the United States.

LIVING COSTS RISE—Living costs rose during May—after a steady half-year of decline — with the consumer price index increasing by one-half an index point to 114.9 from 114.4, the Bureau of Statistics reports. The change in the index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, was caused mostly by higher prices of foodstuffs. The peak of 118.2 was reached in December, 1951. The dotted line shows the United States consumer price index which advanced between mid-April and mid-May to 114.0 of the 1947-49 average. Living costs there now are near the peak set last November when the index was 114.3. These indices measure percentage changes in prices in each country but should not be used to compare actual levels of prices between the two countries.

Approach Shots Key To Success In British Open

CARNOUSTIE (AP) — Competitors in the British open golf title today digested one important fact about Carnoustie, the approach shot hit a bit too hard could spell disaster.

The two favored Americans, Ben Hogan and Lloyd Mangrum, discovered this quickly in practice rounds this last week over Carnoustie's gloomy dunes. So did defending champion Bobby Locke of South Africa.

There are no mounds behind many of the greens on this links. The players say they expert many cups will be placed near the sloping back edges when the first qualifying round begins Monday.

Hogan, holder of the U.S. open and Masters titles, paid particular attention to this feature of the golf course as he prepared for the title. This is Hogan's first crack at the British open and he wants to make it a successful one.

Judged by North American standards, Carnoustie has this par:

Out	444 445 434-36
In	444 354 345-36—72

Yardage out is 3,613, and in 3,587, a total of 7,200.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The longest yacht race in the world, an event first launched in 1906, gets under way today when 32 boats shove off for a 2,225-mile sail across the Pacific to Honolulu.

Once at sea, it will be anywhere from 10 days to two weeks before the skippers and their crews see land, and then when they sail through the Straits of Molokai and sight Honolulu's Diamond Head.

RAF Rowers Defeat Princeton Crew

HENLEY - ON - THAMES (AP) Britain's Royal Air Force rowing eight today defeated Princeton University by a third of a length in the semi-finals of the Thames Challenge Cup.

The RAF crew thus knocked the last American entry out of the big event of the Henley royal regatta. America's other hope in the event, Kent school of Connecticut, was eliminated Friday.

The Princeton-RCAF race was a thrilling struggle over dead calm water.

Thousands lined the river bank to cheer the sturdy young British crew and to welcome the Thames Challenge Cup back to Britain. It was won last year by the University of Pennsylvania.

SCORED 82

At Windsor's Beach Grove course Mike Safran paced the class A qualifiers with an 82.

Stan Baluik of Port Arthur, playing in the A group at Sarnia, was top golfer there with a 72.

Best at Hamilton's Glendale course was Jack Lowry, 17, of St. David's, who fired a one-under-par 3 on the front nine and carded a 73.

45 Professionals Tee Off To Hunt Title

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—A field of 45 professional golfers, their game hopefully sharpened by stiff pro-amateur competition, set out today in the first 18-hole round of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship.

Despite the presence of defending champion Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon and four-time champion Stan Leonard of Vancouver, there was a feeling that Jules and Rodolphe Huot, star performers of a golfing family, will take a lot of beating before the 54-hole title event ends Sunday.

Jules, the Montreal Laval veteran who has won the title three times, led the medal score in Friday's pro-amateur show with a three-under-par 69. It was a feat against wild winds blowing over the Royal Quebec course.

The only other golfer to beat both par and wind was brother Rodolphe who finished with 71.

Leonard had to settle for par 72, a creditable performance under the conditions. Bracketed at par with him were Henry Martell, the one-time cop from Edmonton, and Al Balding, the up-and-coming pro from Toronto Oakdale.

Leonard teamed with Jean Roy, Royal Quebec amateur, to win the pro-amateur competition with low ball score of 63, amateur hole-by-hole handicap included.

Fletcher, who had to rally on the back nine to finish with 76, had a team score for second place at 64 with Clermont Vezina of Quebec. Both Balding and Martell had to crack par on the back nine to finish in 72s. Leonard shot a pair of 36s against Royal Quebec's 35-37.

Jules Huot breezed along the back nine almost as fast as the wind. He took 37 going out but birdied five holes coming home without slipping over par once. Rodolphe, 1947 CPGA winner, shot 35-36.

Two former champions, Gordie Brydson of Toronto Mississauga, and Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield, shot 74s. So did Ernie Wakeham, the tireless veteran from Royal Ottawa who promptly became a favorite to win the senior pros' title.

Dick Borthwick of Hamilton Ancaster, winner in 1949, shot a 74 along with Damien Gauthier of Montreal Municipal, Ray Marshall of Arnprior, Ont., and Bobby Cunningham, Jr., of Toronto St. George's.

Man Killed As Car, Truck Hit Near Guelph

DRAYTON (CP)—Harvey Hutchinson, 35, of Arthur, was killed Friday night and two other men were injured when a trurk and an automobile collided at Parker's Corners, seven miles east of here.

Injured and admitted to Guelph General Hospital were Mervin Patterson, of Arthur, and George Graham, of Toronto.

Police said the driver of the truck was Charles Weatherstone, of Drayton. The truck overturned but Weatherstone was unhurt.

SHOT IN KENYA—John S. Richards, 48, of Winnipeg and Toronto, was shot and killed in Nairobi, Kenya, by an African policeman who apparently suffered a mental blackout and mistook Richards for a criminal. The shooting of the executive of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, four hours after he arrived in Nairobi on a business trip, at first was attributed to a Mau Mau terrorist. Richards, managing director of the Ford Motor Company of South Africa, was standing in front of a store when he was shot. The policeman later committed suicide.

Only 5 Per Cent Of Chinese Said Communists

NORWOOD (ENS)—The United Church Women's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. W. G. Barrie with Mrs. J. Starke presiding and an attendance of 44 adults and 26 children. The Mission Band were entertained at this meeting.

The opening hymn was followed by prayer by Mrs. H. K. Wright.

During August the envelope system will be in use as there will be no meetings in that month. At the next meeting, in September, in the basement of the Presbyterian Church the envelopes will be handed in.

Mrs. M. A. Carter read a letter from Dr. Mooney regarding recent bales sent. Miss Margaret Wright sang a solo. The 95th Psalm was read by Mrs. Max Brown after which Miss Carley Brown gave a piano solo. Miss Armstrong and Miss Margaret Clark supervised the children while they played games on the lawn.

MISSIONARY

Mrs. Barrie introduced the guest speaker, Miss Greta Clark, a returned missionary from China who is no stranger to Norwood. She based her remarks on Acts 17 and part of the 6th verse, "These that have turned the world upside down have come hither also." Speaking of Communism, she said that 95 per cent of the Chinese people did not want Communism but the remaining five per cent had the authority and were controlled from Moscow. This group took over the land and finances and continued to work incessantly day and night to spread Communist propaganda.

She told of a Communist paper being printed in Toronto every morning. She told of the pleasure she had in addressing a group of Toronto Chinese university students. She emphasized the great need of earnest prayers for the Christians behind the Iron Curtain and the pressing need of sending money not particularly for buildings but for all missionaries there.

Mrs. J. Starke expressed thanks to Miss Clark, after which the meeting was closed with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

Mrs. Clare Telford on behalf of the Mission Band expressed thanks to Mrs. Barrie for opening her home for the meeting.

Following lunch Miss Clark gave a talk to the children and showed them some Chinese pictures.

London To Vote On Railway

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London ratepayers probably this year will decide on the fate of the city-owned London and Port Stanley Railway passenger service.

Mayor Allan Rush said Friday a tentative agreement under discussion by Eastern Canadian Greyhound Bus Lines and the London railway commission—municipal operators of the LPS—will go to the people for their decision.

The commission met with Greyhound officials Friday to continue discussion on suggested changes in a proposed agreement.

City solicitors and Greyhound officials will resume talks at a later date.

The commission and Greyhound, under terms of the still-unsigned agreement, now "share" business, with the bus company paying certain commissions to the LPS for the use of railway stations at St. Thomas and Port Stanley.

UP TO VOTERS

The proposal to abandon LPS passenger service will be decided by the ratepayers, mayor Rush said. If Londoners approve cancellation of passenger service, the city would then apply to the board of transport commissioners for end of passenger travel over the LPS.

Indian Democracy Faces Important Crisis In 1953

By ADRIENNE FARRELL

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — For India, 1953 is the most critical year since Britain granted her independence six years ago.

During the first two years of a five-year plan begun in March, 1951, the seeds were sown of an immense democratic revolution designed to upset the order of centuries for 360,000,000 persons.

Progress so far has been slow, with the planning running not far ahead of the work itself. In this third year, India must give sufficient momentum to the plan to carry it through to its targets by the spring of 1956.

If the plan succeeds, Prime Minister Nehru will have gone a long way toward his ambition of leading his people by democratic means from the era of the bullock cart to the atomic age in the span of one decade.

MOB VIOLENCE

If it fails, now that the population has been made keenly aware of its rights to social justice and higher living standards, then the democratic revolution of the planners may give way to violent action of the mob.

Against this background, there is a growing sense of urgency in India's capital, a realization that time is the enemy and apathy is its ally.

Politically, the issue is a clear cut one: Communism against Nehru's Congress party. Latter, an amorphous mass in the political centre, combines diverse political views ranging from the extreme conservatiyism of industrialists to the doctrinaire socialism of the left.

But as long as Nehru's strong personality is sufficient to keep heading in one direction, it controls 42 per cent of the popular vote and 74 per cent of the parliamentary seats.

Nehru is prime minister, minister for external affairs, defence minister and president of his party. His influence is so powerful that, were he not deeply attached to democratic traditions, he could have assumed dictatorial powers with ease.

In his cabinet he has surrounded himself with a group mainly of nonentities. Exceptions to this are the capable and astute finance minister, C. D. Deshmukh; T. T. Krishnamachari, a former business man who as commerce and industries minister is striving to build a sound economic future for Indian industry; and Rafi Ahmed Kidwai, the Moslem food minister who has gone a long way toward making the country self-sufficient in food.

EFFICIENT SYSTEM

The Nehru cabinet rules India through the most efficient government machinery in Asia—a civil service and local government system developed on the joint basis of the Hindu mogul and long British rule.

Opposing the Congress party are three main groups—the Jan Sangh, the Praja Socialists and the Communists. Of these, only the Communists are sufficiently vocal and active to provide a real opposition, with 23 of the 499 legislative seats.

Against this background, the five-year plan is slowly taking shape. It has four main aspects: 1. Construction of gigantic irrigation and power projects; 2. Introduction of land reforms; 3. Raising living standards in the villages by community projects; 4. Industrialization.

The accent is primarily on bettering the life of the villagers, who form 90 per cent of India's population. Hand in hand with this, nine major irrigation and hydro-electric projects are under construction.

As the plan gathers pace, it increasingly faces two disquieting economic trends: 1. A gradual increase in the cost of living, due largely to expensive food imports, and 2. An increase in unemployment, partly due to the slackening demand for raw materials such as jute.

To Straighten Part Of County Road

CAVAN (ENS)—At the county council at Cobourg on Tuesday the road commission of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland procured permission to have the county road between Millbrook and Cavan straightened, commencing at the top of H. C. Argue's hill and running parallel to his farm to the intersection of the spur of the new highway which is under construction between Highways 28 and 35.

This will be on the site of the old road which was used when Caavn township was first surveyed.

About 70 years ago this road was abandoned owing to the very steep hill with a bog at the bottom. A road was made around the hill cutting off a field from Mr. L. J. Hutchinson's farm. A number of minor accidents have occurred from time to time where the road curves around the hill.

The road commission has taken over htis portion of the road and are letting the contract to the McFarland Construction Co. of Picton, provided the fill is suitable to use.

Says He'll Run

QUEBEC (CP)—Pat Walsh, a Quebec labor organizer who resigned from a number of Communist-front groups five months ago, said Friday night he will be an independent "anti-Communist" candidate in Quebec East in the Aug. 10 federal election. Walsh, who resigned from the Canadian Woodworkers Union (Ind.) said he decided to run after announcement that Gerard Fortin, president of the union, will be the Labor Progressive party candidate in the constituency now held by Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Bisley Team Confident Of Good Showing

By ARCHIE MacKENZIE

BISLEY, England (CP) — The Canadian Bisley rifle team, by far the most consistent overseas contestant in the annual two-week Commonwealth shooting event, takes on marksmen from Britain, Australia, New Zealand and the British West Indies starting Monday.

Members expressed confidence Friday that they will do all right in the score or more of army rifle events they have entered. Some of the individual shooting competitions, like the main event, the Queen's Prize, will be contested by 1,000 or more entrants.

Won two years ago by Lieut. Gil Boa of Toronto, the Queen's Prize will be sought this year by the 18 shooting members of the Canadian team, including the ace deadeye, Lt-Col. Desmond T. Burke, Toronto doctor who won it in 1924 and nearly repeated in 1929.

IN GOOD SHAPE

With almost two weeks of daily practice on the wide Bisley ranges, the Canadian team is in good condition and spirits, from Commandant Maj. A. B. Coulter of Ottawa to armorer Sgt. G. W. Winegarden, of London, Ont.

Like the adjutant, Maj. C. A. Vickery of Toronto, neither is a shooting member of the team.

Canada will be defending the Mackinnon Challenge Trophy, major team event she won last year. The other big team event is the Rajah of Kolapore Imperial Challenge Cup.

Royalty's Fashions Matched At Same Social Event

By MARJORIE EARL

LONDON (Reuters) — Two women have set fashionable tongues here wagging furiously. Society is wondering how they managed to appear at swanky functions in clothes which duplicated the "exclusive" models of the Royal Family.

One, who has been unidentified, appeared as Ascot, the race meeting of the year, in a hat just like the Queen's. The other, Mrs. Rodman Wannamaker of New York, attended the wedding of the year in a dress just like Princess Margaret's.

To Ascot the Queen and Mrs. X, as the gossip columnists have dubbed her, wore rough, light-colored straw bonnets with black velvet trimming. To the wedding of Lady Rosemary Spencer-Churchill, daughter of the Duke of Marlborough, Princess Margaret and Mrs. Wannamaker wore sleeveless floral print dresses with full skirts and wide Bertha collars.

Shocked London fashion circles blame Paris. "It couldn't happen here," say royal designers Norman Hartnell and Hardy Amies. "The hat and dress must have originated on the other side of the channel."

The Queen bought her hat from Madame St. Cyr, a Parisian designer with a London showroom. Madame St. Cyr displays her models first in Paris, where they are bought by private customers and wholesalers, then in London. When the Queen made her choice the model was removed from circulation but it had already been sold in France. Mrs. X apparently shops on the rue Faubourg St. Honore.

Princess Margaret's dress is believed to have been supplied by French couturier Jean Desses. It probably found its way into Mrs. Wannamaker's closet the same way as the Queen's hat got onto the head of Mrs. X.

When the Queen and Princess Margaret buy their clothes from English couturiers, they are specially designed for them and are certainly exclusive. But not for long. In a matter of hours, half the women in England may have them.

The Queen has said more than once that she does not wish to be a leader of fashion. But whether she wants it or not, she is.

SHORT AND CHIC—For summer, two casual hair styles easily accomplished with a home or professional permanent: (left) large, soft waves swirl up from the sides, from the back, and turn into a flattering half curl on the brow; (right) a hair style that moves outward from centre back of the head, dips into a deep wave, and curls upward.

Wheel Chair Bought For Community Use

HARWOOD (ENS) — The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. L. R. Isaac with the president, Mrs. Garnet Isaac, presiding.

Miss Ina Dennison was convener of the program, and Mrs. J. Robson gave a paper on the Bata Shoe Co. A reading was given by Mrs. G. U. Isaac and a recitation by Mrs. I. Harris, of Gore's Landing. Mrs. A. Crick gave the convention report.

Plans were made to cater to the pure food dinner on July 18 in the community hall and for the World's Plowing Match banquet. The committee appointed included the president, Mrs. Garnet Isaac, Mrs. R. E. Drope and Mrs. G. U. Isaac.

Plans were made to attend the Associated Country Women of the World meeting in Toronto on August 21. Seven will attend from the Harwood branch, including the president, Mrs. Garnet Isaac.

A dollar was voted towards the Home and Country magazine. Mrs. Frank Stephens, secretary, read a friendship letter from England, which described the Coronation celebrations.

It was decided to purchase a second-hand wheel chair, which is available. It will be the property of the Institute and placed in a home where it is now needed. Anyone in the community may have the wheel chair free of charge by making application to the Institute. When not in use it will be left in the community hall.

Mrs. G. U. Isaac won the prize for the contest, a box of strawberries. It was left in the hands of Mrs. F. Stephens and Miss Lottie E. Drope to forward antique costumes for the ACWW meeting. Mrs. L. R. Isaac and committee served refreshments.

Peterborough Man Wed In Cobourg

The Rev. J. P. Collins performed the ceremony and the Rev. R. Hart said the nuptial mass. Music was by the junior choir and Miss Valentina Weisniska was the soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked lovely in an aisle-wide skirt of bridal white satin with cathedral train topped by a sheer nylon yoke with a chantilly lace bertha collar. Her full length veil of nylon net was caught by a tiara of rhinestones and pearls, and she carried a cascade of red roses and baby's breath.

Her attendants wore identical gowns styled with lace bodice, bouffant net skirts over taffeta with matching lace boleros, caps and mittens. Miss Teresa Behan, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was in yellow and carried a colonial bouquet of green carnations. Miss Pauline O'Brien, cousin of the bride, wore green and carried yellow carnations. Miss John Behan, cousin of the bride, wore lavender and carried tinted white carnations.

Mr. Francis Behan, brother of the bride, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Robert Watkins, brother of the groom, and Hubert Cavanaugh, cousin of the bride.

The reception was held at the residence of the bride's uncle, Mr. James Behan. The bride's aunt received in a navy sheer gown with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the groom's aunt in a navy sheer gown, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Later, the bride and groom left for a trip to Montreal and the Eastern United States. For travelling, the bride chose a red and white candy stripe nylon dress, white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Watkins will live at 127 Park St., Oshawa.

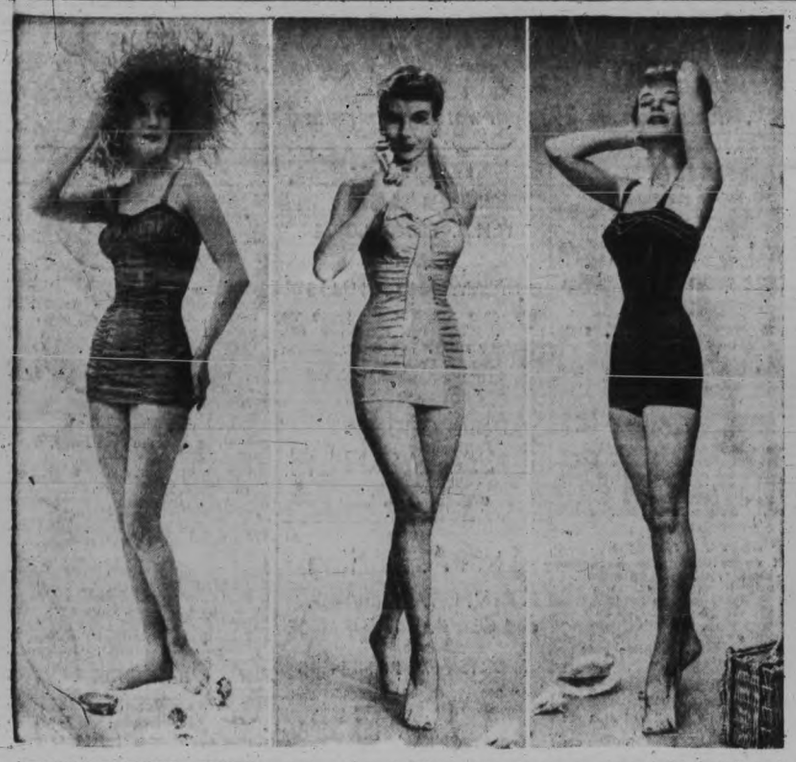
Taught 25 Years In City Miss F. D. Walker Dies

A Peterborough teacher for 25 years, Miss Florence Daisy Walker died recently in the Hamilton General Hospital after a sudden illness.

Although her home was in Cayuga, she was probably better known here than anywhere else, being active in the teaching field for a quarter of a century. She taught first at King Edward School and later transferred to Queen Alexandra.

In 1929, she was elected executive vice-president of the Ontario Educational Association and shortly after she became president of the public school section of the OEA. She was elected to executive of Women's Canadian Club in 1924, and also represented teachers in the Pension Committee of the Public School Women Teachers' Federation.



Miss Walker was a member of Trinity United Church and was acting president of that Women's Auxiliary for the two years preceding her departure in 1950.

She was the daughter of Charles and Rachael Walker, of Cayuga, and is survived by one sister, Mrs. L. Douglas, Cayuga, and a number of nieces.

The funeral was from the Cayuga United Church and burial was in Providence cemetery.

Apron-String Wife Irks Husband By Tittle-Tattle

DEAR MISS DIX: A year ago I married a girl who was an only child, and since then our only quarrels have concerned her folks. We live next door to her family, so naturally we see the folks often. We're frequently there for meals, and though I try to get over to my dad's (my mother is dead) for dinner occasionally, it's like pulling teeth to get my wife from her mother. I am supposed to spend a few evenings a week with my in-laws watching TV, when I'd rather be home doing something constructive. I finally managed, after much argument, to cut these visits down to one a week. The biggest bone of contention, however, is that everything I tell my wife is repeated to her mother. I feel that some matters, such as those pertaining to business or strictly personal things between us, should remain on our side of the fence. My wife maitnains that since she has always told her mother everything, she much continue the habit. I love my wife, and respect her folks, but do feel we should live our own marriage, and settle our own problems.

RONNIE D.

A LESSON THEY OUGHT TO LEARN

ANSWER: Everyone concerned in your problem is at fault to some extent, and, though it's difficult to tell just where reform should begin, let's commence with you. Though most of your contentions seem justified, there are definite overtones in your long letter — which I have shortened somewhat — of resentment towards a situation you haven't even tried to understand or to correct properly. In one year, you cannot expect a girl to become entirely free of apron strings to which she has been tied all her life. Your wife and her mother have been unusually close — a fact you should have realized before marriage, and you'll be lucky if the ties are ever relaxed. Of course they should be. Both mother and daughter ought to appreciate that as a wife the girl cannot and should not be primarily concerned with her part in the mother-daughter relationship. She can still be a devoted daughter, but her filial obligations take second place to her marital ones. However, the drastic change cannot be effected overnight, and you need patience to cope with the transition period, while continuing your efforts to bring your wife to emotional maturity.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I've dated a boy four times, and like him very much. At first he liked me, but now he seems to avoid me. How can I make him interested again?

HILDA J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Since there is no explanation as to why one person likes another, it's impossible to figure why the boy lost interest, oh how you can arouse it again. After all, he's probably dating different girls to find out what type he likes, and you just don't happen to fit into his scheme. Rather than longing for the impossible, concentrate on other young men until you find just one you like. You'll be surprised to find out that it will be someone quite different from your lost love.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: After twenty-two years of marriage my husband has fallen in love with a girl of 21. They have been going together for a year, and my husband says he wants a divorce. I spoke to the girls, but she says her only happiness is with him, and she won't give him up. We have six children. My husband says he'll always take care of us, but he doesn't make enough to keep two homes. I love him, and think he still cares for me.

MRS. I. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your husband is the victim of a crazy infatuation that only time can cure. I think you should continue to refuse the divorce; if he wants to leave you for the other woman, of course you can't stop him, but you can make sure you and your children continue to be his legal family, entitled to his full support. His promise to support you if he marries the girl is meaningless. Apparently she can twist him around her finger, and once she acquires the status of "wife," you'll get nothing. Prayer and patience will win this battle for you, though it will be a heart-breaking one.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Last week my girl friend, Mona, and I went for a walk in the park. We met some very nice boys, and talked to them so long we were late arriving home. We were both told we couldn't go out after supper again, except to baby-sit or attend a club meeting. Do you think this is fair?

We are high-school freshmen.

LOLLY O.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Sometimes the orders of parents may not seem fair but they are wise. You and Mona violated your privileges by coming home late and probably by talking to strange boys in the park—not a very sensible thing to do. Prove by future actions that you've learned your lesson, and your very understanding parents will restore what you consider your "rights."

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

LETTER: Several days ago I read in your column about someone enquiring for a recipe to can pineapple. Here is one I highly recommend. I have used it for a good many years and my mother before me. It's the open kettle method and I think pineapple one of the easiest fruits to can.

CANNED PINEAPPLE

(Contrbuited by Mrs. E. A. B.)

Cut 4 pineapples up fine (I cube mine). Cover with 4 cups sugar, let stand overnight. In the morning make a syrup of 3 pints water and 4 cups more sugar and bring to boil. Pour over fruit. Let boil just 4 minutes after it starts to boil again. This has a lovely fresh flavor and not a bit sharp. I hope it is not too late for this season.

MRS. A. E. B.

ANSWER: I have printed this recipe at the first opportunity after it arrived. Thank you for it Mrs. A. E. B. I was still able to find some pineapples and try it. Pineapple should be sealed in sterile jars.

QUESTION: First I must tell you how much I enjoy your cooking chats and wonderful recipes for you see I am a cook too... I am a widow with a small daughter.. I have a chance to go out to a small summer camp where I can have my little girl too. I will be cooking for from 50 to 60 for 5 weeks, ages 8 years to young adults... could you give me some menus using cheaper cuts of meat and some quantity recipes for luncheon and supper meals? ...I will be okay in a few days after I get a routine outlined and get the "feel" of the place. It will be so different from cooking in a private home that I expect I may have a few bad days at the start...any advice will be appreciated...

MRS. EDITH S.

ANSWER: You do have a lot of courage and I wish you the best of luck. I know how happy you must be to be able to work at a job you know and have your small daughter with you too.

I will give you several menus. They could be used for suppers or dinners, or items from thehm could be selected for either type of meal.

No. 4 Escalloped Salmon, Potato Salad, Chocolate Cake, Milk, Tea.

No. 5 Barbecued Corned Beef, Escalloped Corn, Fruit Moulded in packaged Jelly Dessert, Ginger Snaps, Milk, Tea.

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

Summer Season Is Time To Encourage Nature Lore

BY NANCY CLEAVER

"Summer is a comin' in!" so goes the old song—and the holiday season is a wonderful time to encourage a child's interest in nature lore. What mother has not listened to questions like these:

"See the big white clouds like giant cream puffs. What kind are they? . . ."Listen to that bird whistling two long notes and then several short notes. Do you know his name?"

The important thing in a Nature Lore hobby of any kind is for a parent to stop and share a young child's enthusiasm in the discovery of a flower, a butterfly, a frog, or whatever arouses his interest, at the time he comes running to tell of his new "find". A boy or a girl who is "put off" with no response on a parent's part, or with a promise of help at some future time, is disappointed and discouraged.

IGNORANCE NO HINDERANCE

To a child, there is no time like the present! Ignorance need be no hinderance. Parent and child can seek the information they wish together in a good guide or reliable handbook. There are many different types of Nature Lore projects but the following are popular with boys and girls because they are linked with a child's love of activity. Most of them are carried out in the open air, but some of them, such as drawing an animated map, can be fitted into the bed-time hour or into a long rainy day.

A tadpole acquarium is an excellent venture. Use a large glass bowl, a big glass fruit jar or even a wash tub, and build up a miniature acquarium with sand, stones, and green water plants. Collect some frog's eggs and catch a few tiny tadpoles. Put them into their new home, change the water once a week, feed the tadpoles (but don't stuff them). They like oatmeal or cornflakes — and just watch their legs grow and their tails disappear!

ANIMATED CALENDAR

Make an animated calendar for either July or August. Get a large sheet of white cardboard. Rule it off like a page of a calendar placing the name of the month, and the names of the days on the top and small figures of the numbers of the days in the upper right hand corner of each square. Have someone in the family assigned for each day in turn, who will fill in the square for that day with a small drawing, colored with crayon. This should picture some fascinating Nature Lore discovery which has just been made—a magnificient clump of ostrich fern beside the trail, a pitcher plant near a swamp, a loon's nest on an island. Have the animated Calendar placed back on the wall with its new drawing at bed time each night. A little praise for the picture drawn by that day's artist keeps up the enthusiasm.

Make a special study of the types of clouds and of the weather. Practice forecasting the weather and work out the meaning of such weather signs, as a ring around the moon, the sun "drawing water," a mackerel sky, or the wind shifting to the East.

WATCH A RAINBOW

"My heart leaps up when I behold a rainbow in the sky." Who has not echoed Wordsworth's lines? A rainbow is something not to miss! Next time the sun comes out, when it has been raining, turn your back to the sun and look for a rainbow. See if you can distinguish all seven of its colors. Explain to a child how the sun's rays falling on the drops of rain are bent and reflected different degrees and thus produces a rainbow.

An interest in Nature Lore can begin very early and last all through life. Share this happy leisure time activity with your child!

A SMALL BOY can get more fun out of feeding a tiny bird which has fallen out of a nest than in robbing nests for eggs.

OTTAWA ARCHBISHOP—Most Rev. Maurice J. Lemieux, Bishop of Gravelbourg, Sask., has been named Archbishop of Ottawa diocese. He succeeds Archbishop Alexandre Vachon who died March 30. Archbishop Lemieux was born at Quebec May 10, 1902, and joined the Dominican order in 1923. In 1943 he was appointed apolostic administrator of the Gravelbourg diocese, and was made bishop a year later.

Strict Procedure Governs Presentation Of Debutante

By MARJORIE EARL

LONDON (Reuters) — In this man's country, a debutante comes out in the summer. London's social season, more glittering this year than ever, starts in April and ends in July.

Its boundaries are two ancient and manly sports, fox hunting and grouse shooting. When fox hunting ends, the English social butterly emerges from her cocoon, enjoys a brief, if strenuous, flight in the summer sun, then under she goes again when the grouse shooting starts.

Grouse shooting begins in August after the Queen retires to Balmoral castle in Scotland. If the deb has played her cards right, by this time she is out stalking the moors with one of the eligible young men who squired her to the scores of parties she attended. And if she looks as good in tweeds as she did in a strapless evening gown, she'll announce her engagement in October, just before fox hunting starts.

Eight events highlight this critical four months. They are Queen Charlotte's birthday ball, the big kick-off on May 12, attended by all debutantes with proceeds to charity; the Berkeley dress show, where the cream of the crop model expensive clothes in aid of the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children; the Royal Ascot race meeting and the Goodwood races, the latter at the estate of the Duke of Richmond; Henley regatta and the cricket matches at Lords. The other two, and the most important, are the deb's own coming-out party and her presentation at court.

MUST MEET QUEEN

Presentation is a must. No girl can hope to make even the smallest chink in the iron curtain of British society unless she is one of the thousand-odd invited to meet the Queen.

So far this year the Queen has held two presentation parties. At each one some 300 girls ranging in age from 17 to 19 and wearing simple afternoon dresses made two low and carefully-rehearsed curtsies, one to Her Majesty and one to the Duke of Edinburgh.

Applications for presentation at court are received by the Lord Chamberlain every autumn. Each girl must be sponsored by a woman who has herself been presented.

The coming-out party of a British debutante is likely to cost her dad anything from $1,500 to $15,000, depending on whether she makes a modest bow to 100 guests or has a grade "A" clambake with 1,000 present.

Years Of Fear Paralyzed Many Austrians

By DORIAN FALK

VIENNA (AP)—Soviet gestures toward Austria have brought happiness to the Austrians, but have failed so far to reduce the distrust and the fear which most Austrians have of everybody and everything connected with the Russians.

The Soviets recently relaxed traffic controls in their zone, dropped Austrian Communist police chiefs who have been disloyal to their government, and granted other minor concessions. There were festivals, in some places dancing in the streets, and many tore up their four-language identification cards.

But the Austrians, most of whom are anti-Communist Socialists or Catholic Conservatives, still feel the pressure of eight years of Soviet rule in East Austria. They continue to avoid Soviet soldiers and are paralyzed by fear and defenceless as ever in front of Red army personnel or Soviet civilian agents.

The atmosphere is such that even a man posing as a Russian can atrike fear into Austrian hearts. In the small village of Purgstall in the Soviet zone a young civilian entered the inn one recent evening and demanded to be led to the next telephone so he might ring up the Soviet Kommandantura in nearby Scheibbs.

Speaking in broke German, he identified himself as an agent of the Russian secret police and ordered two husky Austrians to show him the way to the next village as there was no telephone in Purgstall. After they had left the in he told them they were his prisoners. Obeying his order without protest, the two men stood back to back so he could tie them together with a rope.

Then he ordered them to march, swearing, kicking and beating them as they stumbled along the dark and deserted road. But when he untied them after several miles and told them they were free, they thanked him and offered to show him how to proceed.

Soon they came upon a farm house. Suddenly he changed his mind, told the two Austrians they were again arrested and tied them again. Then he entered the house, told the farmer he had just arrested two dangerous "snipers" in the neighborhood. The terrorized farmer willingly served him liquor and his family helped set out the dishes.

Then the "commissar" arrested the farmer's son-in-law, despite the protests of his wife, and took his three prisoners on the road again to Scheibbs. En route he suddenly let the young farmer go, unfettered the other two but ordered them to follow him to a small village nearby.

There he entered an inn, declared everybody under arrest and demanded food and drink for himself and his two earlier captives. For several hours nobody dared leave the inn.

Then a passing night patrol of Austrian police came through the village and were led to the inn. They quickly recognized the man, who had a long police record for violence, and arrested him. To the relief of all concerned, the mysterious agent who had kept two villages in cold fear turned out to be an Austrian butcher in Scheibbs, who had no connections with the Russians.

Sailors Picket Oil Co. Docks On Great Lakes

CHICAGO (AP)—Members of the CIO National Maritime Union Friday began picketing docks of major oil companies at Detroit, Mich., and Whiting and East Chicago, Ind.

Union men refused to operate 34 great lakes tankers and freighters since expiration of their wage contracts with the companies June 15. About 600 sailors are affected.

John Daley, Great Lakes agent for the NMU, said picketing began at the Nicholson and Ford docks at Detroit, those of the Sinclair Refining Co., Cities Service Oil Co., Texas Co., Phillips Petroleum Corp. and Shell Oil Co. at East Chicago, and that of Standard OIL Co. (Ind.) at Whiting.

Daley said the NMU is "trying to bring the pay of Great Lakes seamen into line with that of coast crews on the seaboards."

$100 DIFFERENCE

Daley estimated that the average pay for a tanker crew member on the Great Lakes is $350 monthly, including overtime. He said members of coastal tanker crews average about $450 monthly.

Union sources have indicated that a raise of about 10 per cent would bring the Great Lakes crews into line with the seaboard scale.

There have been no negotiations since the union rejected a settleday. The companies have estimated that the increases asked by the union would boost their lake shipping costs 25 per cent.

The strike has seriously impaired the normal movement of fuel oil and gasoline to storage tanks at ports throughout the Great Lakes area.

Agricultural Society Plans Carnival

MARMORA (ENS)—Directors of Marmora Agricultural Society met at the home of Charles Lajoie, Marmora township, Thursday evening.

The president, Carl Heath, occupied the chair. Attention was drawn to the improvements recently made on the grounds of the recreational centre.

In connection with the carnival at the centre August 5, Irwin McCoy was appointed to head the gate committee and William Lavender the booth committee. Mayor Percy Gray will be asked to take charge of games.

It was decided to hold the August meeting at the summer home of the secretary-treasurer, Thomas J. Bateman, at Crowe Lake. The ladies served refreshments.

New Rector Addresses Orange Service

BAILIEBORO (ENS). — The Bailieboro LOL, in conjunction with the Cavan District LOL, held their annual church service Sunday evening at Christ Church, which was filled with members and their friends.

It was the first Orange service for the new rector, the Rev. L. R. Pocock, BA, who took for his text Rev. 3: 20: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock." The lessons were read by Wor. Bro. R. Carruthers, Garden Hill, and Wor. Bro. P. Hamilton, Millbrook. Mrs. W. Wood directed the choir and presided at the organ.

The County Lodge of East Durham was represented by county officers. There were representatives present from JOL, Port Hope, JOL, Fallis Line, JOL, Millbrook, LTB, Port Hope, LOBA Bethany, LOBA, Millbrook, and Cobourg, Port Hope, Garden Hill, Carmel, Millbrook, Fallis Line, Fraserville, and Pontypool lodges. The Fallis Line flute band led the parade from the Orange Hall to the church.

Bailieboro LOL will commemorate the 263rd anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, at Cobourg on July 11.

Bus Drivers Clamp Strike On Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—AFL bus drivers Friday night began a strike at the Niagara Frontier Transit Corp. in a wage dispute. Driver left their jobs as they completed their shifts.

But the strike, which left an area of nearly 1,000,000 population without public transit, will not have its full effect until Monday, when business returns to normal after the holiday weekend.

The union voted to reject a company offer of a 20-cent hourly pay increase to be effective by instalments during the next 12 months.

Philip Nussbaum, secretary-treasurer of division 1342, Amalgamated Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees, said settlement was unlikely before Monday.

The strike will leave Buffalo, Niagara Falls and several suburbs without any public bus transportation.

Agenda Open

WASHINGTON (AP)—There will be no restrictions on the subjects discussed when the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain and France meet here next Friday. President Eisenhower has said a principal purpose of the quickly arranged meeting is to increase understanding generally. The agenda was left open for any problem facing the free world.

Hit By Car, Child Dies In Ambulance

TORONTO (CP) — Wendy McCutcheon, 14 months, died Friday night in an ambulance after she was run over by an automobile on the driveway of her home in suburban Etobicoke township. Police said the driver of the backing car had been visiting the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCutcheon.

Tossed 100 Feet

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Jack Potter, 16, of Port Stanley, was tossed 100 feet Friday night when a oneton truck he was driving was hit by the locomotive of a passenger train. He suffered only a fractured left shoulder. John Tripp, 16, of London, riding with him, was unhurt. The truck was wrecked.

Film Business Losing Chance For Comeback

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Is the movie business muffing its chance for a comeback?

This spring brought a burst of optimism to Hollywood. For the first time in three years, the movie industry moved into a position of advantage over its ace competitor, television. The public's excitement over 3D and other tricks of film presentation buoyed up hopes as well as box office receipts.

But the craze shows signs of wearing off. Some of the gimmick pictures are still doing good business, although nowhere near the volume enjoyed by earlier efforts. The fact is that film quality has suffered a severe setback in the attempt to make a quick dollar.

A view of the product being shown in the Los Angeles area this week is appalling. It includes: A film about a sea beast that invades New York . . . another about a rampaging robot . . . a quickie concerning space islands . . . a farce actually filmed in five days!

A remake of a comedy hit of the '30s . . . a full-length foreign cartoon of dubious value . . . an old-fashioned costume epic . . . two low-budget westerns that would get no notice except that they are three dimensional.

That doesn't offer much reason for people to tear themselves away from TV, even in these summer months when the screens are filled with panel shows and giveaways. The current film fare offers plenty for the thrill-seekers, but how much of the movie audience do they comprise?

Nearly everyone is curious to see these newfangled 3D flickers. But once their curiosity is satisfied, how many will come back?

Recently a top producer told me: "If a picture is good, it can get by in the present market. But it has to be extra good to reach into that all-important 'lost audience' of people between 30 and 40. If you can get them to come to your picture, you have a big hit.

"But it's hard to get them out. They had the movie habit when they were younger, but lost it. They lived through the era when Hollywood was turning out great pictures like 'Gone With the Wind.' When quality fell off, so did their theatre attendance."

Winter Supplies Moving To North Now

EDMONTON (CP)—Up around the rim of the world, you have to get your grocery orders in early.

Ingredients for Christmas dinners now are starting to move by rail, river boat and truck to the hundreds of soldiers and their families stationed at 18 isolated army posts in the far north.

Ever since February, Lieut. D.S. Buxton of Winnipeg and his five-man staff at the army's supply depot here have been packing more than 137 tons of non-perishable foods for northern shipment. These groceries include such items as canned goods, flour and spices.

Non-perishable supplies are shipped to northern posts annually. Perishable foods are shipped by refrigerated truck and barge about every four months. The 137 tons now on their way will last the soldiers and their dependents for a year.

In the next few weeks, more than half a ton of fresh, frozen turkey will be shipped north. At all stations, the turkey will be saved for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners.

All stations order large quantities of jam, honey and peanut butter but little marmalade. All are big meat eaters.

Sgts. M. J. Dowling, Sudbury, and W. W. Barnscher, Hardisty, Alta., look after the accounting.

1881 Paper Found In Walls Of Home

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Memories of a fond but distant age were recalled with the discovery Friday of an 1881 newspaper between the walls of a local home.

The Daily Bulletin, published in London, Ont., in September of that year, featured various advertisements which include men's suits for $3. Hand tailored suits were $7.

The paper was found by workmen.

The readable parts of the paper contained only advertisements which showed a well-dressed man could outfit himself with suit, hat, topcoat, shoes and gloves for as little as $25. Cloth gloves sold for 13 cents.

WON'T GIVE DIVORCE — Mrs. Ted Woods, of Montreal, mother of five children, says she will never divorce her husband, now planning to marry a 27-year-old girl in Germany. She added, "If I ever see him again I will beat him up." Woods is a civilian instructor with the Canadian army in Germany. Mrs. Woods said she is sorry for the German girl if she did not know Woods was married, "but if she does I'd like to beat her up too."

Desk Officers Sent To Field Training

OTTAWA (CP)—The army isn't allowing its chairborne headquarters types to sit around this summer.

It announced Friday that 850 officers and men from Ottawa headquarters will get a week's training at Petawawa military camp to brush up on fieldcraft, weapon training and the like. At least one night exercise will be thrown in.

Headquarters personnel get weekly training parades the year round but they are restricted to what can be done in a drill hall. This doesn't include crawling on the stomach with full pack through a bog under the blazing sun. The Petawawa training does.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canadian customs and immigration department men opened extra lanes Friday at the Ambassador bridge and the Detroit-Windsor tunnel to handle heavy week-end travel expected during the United States Independence Day holiday. Drew Promises Irrigation Project In Saskatchewan

By ALAN DONNELLY

SASKATOON (CP)—Hon. George Drew, in his last personal bid of the election campaign for Progressive Conservative votes in Western Canada, has pledged construction of the South Saskatchewan river power and irrigation project. In a speech to 500 persons here Saturday night he also criticized the Liberal government as "utterly unrepentant" in "overtaxing" the people and said Prime Minister St. Laurent should state whether he intends to repeal the present farm price support program.

The Progressive Conservative leader, his 10-day tour of the West ended, speaks at Fort William tonight and Sudbury Tuesday night, spends the next four days in eastern Ontario and Quebec and then heads into the Maritimes.

NATIONAL IMPORTANCE

The South Saskatchewan project, a political issue for many years, is of "distinct national importance" and has the "unqualified support" of the entire Progressive Conservative party, Mr. Drew said in Saskatoon.

It would add 120,000 horsepower of cheap hydro-electric power to a province dependent on steam-generated electricity, and irrigate more than 600,000 acres of rich land in southwestern Saskatchewan.

Engineers of the federal Prairie farm rehabilitation administration have estimated its cost at $105,000,000. A recent royal commission set the probable cost at $250,000,000 and reported it would not be economically advisable at this time.

Mr. Drew said the government should have gone ahead on the advice of its engineers who recommended the project, rather than set up a royal commission investigation.

At a press conference, Mr. Drew was asked about Alberta's stand that it would sanction use of the river's water for irrigation only. He replied that he thought Alberta would discuss a solution "on the basis of mutual self-interest."

He defended his argument that $300,000,000 of the $500,000,000 in annual tax savings promised by his party could be found through ending budget surpluses.

E. German Union Refuses Higher Quotas

By DON DOANE

BERLIN (AP)—The East German federation of trade unions served notice today it will not permit even "voluntary" increases of workers' production quotas.

One of the major causes of the June 17 workers' revolt was the quota increase forced upon them by the Communist government. This attempt to squeeze more work out of the people, for the same wages, was abandoned in the government's frantic attempt to placate the workers after their uprising.

The trade union federation (FDGB) charged, that many plant directors are trying to get around the new rule by inducing workers to agree "voluntarily" to boost their output. So the federation's board of directors made its position clear in today's issue of its official newspaper.

The partly-sealed East Berlin border crackled with gunfire again Sunday night. Communist peoples' peoples' police fired at a 25-year-old refugee from East Germany who drove his car through a police barricade in at attempt to escape to West Berlin. Despite the shower of bullets, he succeeded.

ESCAPING

Four Soviet soldiers fired at a West Berlin resident who fled when they halted his car as he approached the interzonal highway checkpoint just outside Berlin. He escaped by hiding in nearby woods until dark, but had to leave his car behind.

Many Communist police continue to desert to the west. Fourteen, including a commissar, applied for political asylum in West Berlin, during the week-end.

There still was no move by the Soviets to lift the martial law they clamped on East German industrial centres 19 days ago when Russian tanks and troops had to be called out to suppress the workers' uprising. Communist offi-

Would Reconvene UN If Rhee Rejects Terms

LONDON (AP)—Britain served notice today she favors recalling the United Nations general assembly if South Korean President Syngman Rhee rejects the terms of a Korean truce.

Richard A. Butler, acting prime minister, told questioners in the House of Commons it would be "premature" to reconvene the assembly while negotiations with Rhee are going on.

But he added at once: "If no progress can be made by direct negotiations that course (of reconvening the assembly) will have to be taken."

Candidate To Replace Eden Has Gall Bladder

LONDON (AP)—Harold Macmillan, mentioned as a possible replacement for ailing Foreign secretary Anthony Eden, will enter a London hospital tonight suffering gall bladder trouble. This also was Eden's complaint.

Macmillan, minister of housing in the Churchill government, goes into St. Thomas's hospital for further observation. Eden, recuperating in the United States from a gall bladder operation, is expected back in public life in the late autumn.

Conservative party circles believe his return will herald a cabinet reshuffle. Best Conservative bets are that Eden will become full time deputy prime minister.

Convert

TOKYO (Reuters)—Elders of one of many religious sects which mushroomed in Japan after the Second World War, were delighted when they made a convert, the owner of a strip-tease theatre.

The theatre owner was "converted" when he learned that the tax on religious enterprises was lower than for commercial activities.

He propos d to the elders that the sect should operate his theatre as a "religious enterprise."

Could Withdraw Troops From Line

SEOUL (Reuters) — Non-Korean United Nations troops could be removed from the front line if the South Koreans should decide to ignore an armistice reached between the UN and the Communists, a spokesman for Gen. Maxwell Taylor, 8th army commander, said today.

The spokesman, Col. George White, the army's chief information officer, added, that Maxwell does not think there will be a break between the UN command and the South Koreans.

"The general stressed emphatically he does not think there will be a break and it will not be necessary to withdraw Allied troops under such circumstances," White said.

He added that Taylor is confident he could move UN troops out of the line "if it had to be done."

White's comment, in reply to reporters' questions, followed a private conference here of Taylor and U. S. advisers to the South Korean army.

SAID ROUTINE

Despite a U. S. 8th army announcement that the session was a routine monthly affair, there was speculation they discussed the problems that would arise if a truce were signed without South Korean guarantee that the 16 RoK divisions would observe it. The Allied force in Korea is made up of 24 divisions, eight of them non-Korean.

President Syngman Rhee and Walter Robertson, President Eisenhower's special envoy, today held their ninth and longest "save the truce" meeting here.

Robertson would not comment on details but said the talks so far have been "friendly and cordial."

The assistant secretary of state is here to try to save the truce by getting the South Korean government to drop its refusal to sign a truce until Korea is unified.

4 Prisoners Caught On Way Out Of Jail

MONTREAL (CP) — Four long-term convicts were subdued Saturday during an attempt escape from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary here. One guard was clubbed in the flurry.

The convicts, including one serving a life sentence, sawed through the bars on their cell door with a hacksaw, believed smuggled from the prison workshop, and then rushed guard Tene Paquette. Prison officials did not identify the convicts:

Paquette, 56, though clubbed on the head with an iron bar, teamed with a younger guard to subdue the men.

CRASHING INTO A MAPLE TREE early Saturday night, Austin Bridgewater, 177 Hazlitt St., was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with severe head injuries. Mr. Bridgewater was travelling north on Rogers St. when his car swerved twice, hitting the maple tree head-on. He was semi-conscious Saturday night and Sunday but hospital authorities said today that he was resting comfortably. A large crowd (above) gathered to see the car which suffered $900 damage. A large V was formed in the car front where it hit the tree. The Fire department was called to wash away the gasoline and oil.

Soaking Rain Grounds Planes Bogs Fighting

SEOUL (AP) — Allied planes stayed on the ground today and battlefront action was limited to brief patrol skirmishes as rainstorms lashed all Korea.

Up to 5½ inches of rain has soaked this war-torn peninsula since early Sunday from storms that swept in from the China Sea. The U. S. 5th air force said the downpour would continue another 24 hours.

For the first time in more than a year, all Allied planes in Korea flights—were grounded.

Along the curving 155-mile front, infantrymen struggled in ankle-deep mud to keep water-logged bunkers from caving in. A number of bunkers already were reported collapsed.

Supply traffic crept slowly toward the battleline over dirt roads turned into a quagmire.

Allied troops who sloshed through the flooded paddy fields of no man's land reported 40 patrol contacts from Sunday to early Monday. All were directed at U. N. positions west of Finger ridge, south of Kumsong, or on hotly-contested Sniper ridge in central Korea. The probes were easily turned back, the 8th army said.

Bee Invades Car 3 Sent To Hospital

GREELY, Ont. (CP)—A blundering bee sent three persons to hospital Sunday.

It invaded an automobile driven by Kenneth E. Nobel of Ottawa. There were two passengers, Louella Quigg and her mother, Mrs. Margaret L. Quigg, both of Ottawa.

The buzzing bee apparently alarmed the occupants. Nobel lost control and the car smashed into a tree and was almost wrecked.

Greely is about 10 miles south of Ottawa.

40 Meet Violent Deaths In Eastern Canada Weekend

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Forty persons were killed in Eastern Canada during the July 4 week-end, 19 of them by drowning. Highways deaths July 4 week-end. A compilation by The Canadian Press also showed three deaths from miscellaneous causes. The toll by provinces: Ontario 17, including 9 traffic and 6 drownings; Quebec 18, with 10 drownings and 7 traffic; Nova Scotia 4 and New Brunswick 1.

There were three double drowning fatalities.

In Ontario, Cameron McGregor, about 45, of Parkhill and Daniel Burns, Jr., 23, of Staffa, were drowned when their small motor boat overturned off Grand Bend.

Russell Baker, 35, Indian superintendent of the Maniwaki area in Quebec, and Arsene Gauthier, 34, of Blue Sea Lake, were drowned when their outboard motor boat tipped over on a lake near Maniwaki.

In Nova Scotia, 33-year-old Francis McDonald, and Robert Smale, 4, both of Waverley, were drowned when their dinghy went to the bottom of Lake William near Halifax.

ONTARIO DEATHS

The Ontario fatalities:

Traffic—Wendy McCutchoon, 14 months, of Etobicoke, struck by a car; Charles Krowec, 51, of Detroit, in a two-car collision east of Aylmer; Harvey Hutchinson, 30, of West Luther township, in a car-truck crash; Mrs. Juliette Gladu of Ottawa, in a two-car collision in Toronto; Robert Ford, 26, of Hamilton, when the truck in which he was riding crashed out of control; William Urban Laforme, 32, of Buffalo, N. Lightning Fires Munition Dump

CHICAGO (AP) — Lightning touched an army ammunition dump on Chicago's northwest side Sunday night rocking a half-mile square area with a tremendous fireworks display.

Some 3,000 residents were evacuated from their homes but police said there were no injuries reported.

Exploding 120 mm. shells set off brilliant orange flashes in the sky backed by the blazing red of a burning anti-aircraft installation building.

The fire was brought under control quickly, preventing a possible explosion in one of two other ammunition stores. Army officials said the explosions followed a bolt of lightning which struck in the area during a thunderstorm.

As the exploding shells burst into the sky and pelted the neighborhood an unidentified man was reported runing down the street, shouting "Air raid, air raid."

Typhoon Kills Seven

TAIPEH, Formosa (Reuters)—A typhoon which hit Formosa during the week-end killed seven persons, injured about 100 others and did an estimated $3,000,000 damage to property.

Thieves Empty House

TORONTO (CP)—Thieves took a truck load of goods from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Warner during the week-end, police said today. The loot, estimated at about $2,000, included two radios and a television set.

50,000 Jailed In Germany Revolt Alive

Romanians Given More Food In Soft Approach

BERLIN (AP) — East Europe's Soviet masters displayed both the iron hand and the velvet glove today in their attempts to quell riots, strikes and outright rebellions by their discontented peoples.

The soft approach was on in Romania where Red leaders, fearful of anti-Communist revolts, ordered additional rations of bread, flour products, potatoes, vegetables, sugar and oil distributed to the public.

The mailed fist still showed in East Germany. Justice Minister Max Fechner announced that 50,000 persons have been arrested for rebelling against the regime. Disclosure of the staggering total—first public admission of the extent of the repressive measures taken in the wake of the June 17 riots—came as the government admitted that the spirit of revolt is still alive.

In an open letter to East zone farmers, Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl conceded that many are still dissatisfied with mere promises.

To appease the angry public, Grotewohl's regime and its Russian masters were reported releasing many of those arrested as rebels.

Reports from the East zone told of new industrial strikes and fresh unrest among farmers.

Despite the flood of reports telling of disorders behind the Iron Curtain—in Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Poland, as well as in East Germany and Romania—Western diplomats in Vienna expressed belief that the Communists still have the 70,000,000 restless East Europeans in the satellite states under control.

CHANGE POLICIES

These diplomats said that although the disturbances are immensely significant, they are merely signs that the Kremlin's past policies in East Europe have been wrong and that the Kremlin is changing them.

The new Soviet leaders apparently believe that if they treat the

Canada Wins Group In Bisley Shoot

LONDON (Reuters) — Canada, scoring a total of 1581 out of a possible 1600, won the oversea team match for the British 400 Club Trophy at the national small-bore rifle meeting at Bisley Saturday.

The event was open to teams of four from each country of the Commonwealth, firing 20 shots each at 50 and 100 yards—individual possible 400.

Canadian scorers were Bdr. S. H. Thompson of Parkhill, Ont., 394; Lt.-Col. S. Johnson of Calgary, 397; Officer Cadet E. L. Warner of Lennoxville, Que., 399; Sgt. W. E. Hicks of Edmonton, 391.

New Zealand, only three points behind, was second.

Rhee Stands Firm On Demand To U.S. To Renew Fighting

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean President Syngman Rhee is standing pat on his demand to renew the Korean fighting if a post-armistice political conference fails to agree in 90 days on unifying Korea, an authoritative South Korean source said today. The source also confirmed reports that the U.S. has offered Rhee a face-saving two-point compromise to win his support of a truce.

But Rhee's demand for a conference limit was the stumbling block of the 11-day talks between Rhee and assistant secretary of state Walter S. Robertson, President Eisenhower's special envoy.

The compromise is reported to provide for the U. S. to:

1. Agree to join South Korea in walking out of the conference if after 90 days it had made no progress toward peaceful unification of Korea.

2. After such a walkout, "discuss" on a diplomatic level resumption of the war, with the understanding that any action is to be ratified by the Senate.

SEES DEMONSTRATION

En route to the presidential mansion, Robertson ran into the first South Korean anti-truce demonstration apparently beamed specifically at him. A line of marchers shouted "Drive north . . . keep our sovereignty . . . unification until death."

Others carried placards reading "Continuous friendship with America."

The U. S. is reported to have firmly opposed Rhee's demand for a guarantee to renew fighting if unification fails.

In Washington, Senator William Knowland (Rep. Calif) praised President Eisenhower for sending Robertson to Korea, but said it should have been done sooner. Knowland said during a television interview, "I don't think this breach would have developed" if Rhee had been consulted more fully during both the Truman and Eisenhower administrations.

Meanwhile, another secret conference was held in Seoul by Gen. Maxwell Taylor, U. S. commander of Allied ground forces in Korea, and his U. S. advisers to the South Korean army.

Despite a U. S. 8th army announcement that the session was a routine monthly affair, there was speculation they discussed military problems that would arise if a truce is signed without Rhee's guarantee that the 16 RoK divisions will observe the cease-fire.

Nehru To Meet Pakistan Premier

NEW DELHI (AP) — Official sources said here today the Indian prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, will fly to Karachi July 25 for a two-day meeting with the Pakistan prime minister, Mohommed Ali.

They will continue discussions begun in London at the recent Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in an attempt to solve the Kashmir dispute and other issues, the sources added. They said Nehru will return to New Delhi on July 27.

In Karachi, Mohammed Ali described as "mischievous and false" a report that he and Nehru had tentatively agreed in London recently to divide Kashmir with a vote of the state's 4,000,000 inhabitants. Both India and Pakistan claim Kashmir and opposing armies which fought for several years for the state are stationed along a cease-fire line running through the territory. The United Nations has tried unsuccessfully for several years to settle the dispute.

Rescues Neighbor Overcome By Fumes

COPETOWN, Ont. (CP)—After rescuing a neighbor from the bottom of a 40-foot, gas-filled well Michael Emick, 30, a district farmer, was overcome by the fumes Sunday, and had to be revived by inhalator treatment.

Robert Patterson, 35-year-old neighbor of Emick's was helping to clean out the well. Patterson was weakened by the fumes and fell back unconscious as he was attempting to climb out. Emick lowered a rope from the top and succeeded in lassoing Patterson's leg and pulled him to safety before he too collapsed. Firemen, called by Emick's wife, revived both men.

Copetown is 11 miles west of Hamilton.

Denies Charges Oil Company Polluting River

DETROIT (CP) — Superintendent Dr. Kenneth A. West of Canadian Oil Co., Ltd., Sunday denied charges that Sarnia, Ont., oil and chemical plants were guilty of "unbelievable violations of the international anti-pollution codes."

"Our plant is abiding by every regulation to curb pollution," Dr. West said. "We have the most modern equipment designed to prevent such contamination."

The superintendent was contacted for comment after Laurence G. Lenhardt, general superintendent of the Detroit water board, Saturday reiterated earlier charges that increased pollution of the St. Clair river was threatening Detroit's water supply.

He cited Canadian Oil as the worst offender.

Dr. West said officials of the international joint commission visited the plant last month and were "completely satisfied with our work and machinery to curb foul discharges into the St. Clair river."

DUMPING PHENOL

Mr. Lenhardt said a recent check showed the plant was dumping 310 parts of foul-tasting phenol into the Talford and St. Clair rivers for every one billion parts of water.

"Restrictions limit phenol at the discharge point of 20 parts for every billion parts of water," he said.

Sarnia is located about 60 miles northeast of here on the St. Clair river. The river empties into Lake St. Clair from which the city gets its water supply.

Transport Hijacked Of $60,000 Whisky

NEW YORK (AP)—A five-ton trailer truck stolen early Sunday with a $60,000 cargo of whiskey was recovered early today—empty.

Police said it was parked under the Brooklyn bridge, stripped clean of 880 cases of whiskey.

The truck and its contents were hijacked from a Newark, N. J., freight lines terminal by a gunman with a soft, purring voice, and two confederates.

The leader, speaking in a low, almost feminine voice, pointed a black .38-calibre revolver at Michael Sorrentino, 50, the night dispatcher, and purred:

"Keep calm or I'll let you have it. Be a nice fellow. If you make a sound, it'll be too bad for you."

New Insects

NEW YORK (AP)—The finding of several hundred insects and spiders new to science was announced today by the American Museum of Natural History. The museum said the newly-discovered insects and spiders were among 50,000 collected by a six-month expedition in the Bahamas. Some 2,700 reptiles, amphibians and mammals also were brought back.

Paid Help

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — R. M. Daniels of Macon, Ky., pulled into a parking lot here. "Put it right over here," a man said. Daniels complied, handed over the keys and walked off.

Several hours later, he came back, but his car was gone. It was then he noticed a sign saying, "This lot will not be operated July 4". Police recovered the vehicle in front of a drive-in restaurant and arrested Vernon Hester, Ocoee, Tenn., on a grand larceny charge.

"I thought he was the attendant," Daniels said. "He even offered to mail some letters for me."

Has Own Brand Of Sparks

Find Way To Identify, Track Tornadoes

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—A U. S. scientist says tornadoes now can be identified and tracked across the skies—the big step in the eventual elimination of mass casualties from the swirling, destructive winds.

A mechanical system of tracking the twisters, developed by Dr. H. L. Jones of Oklahoma College, now can be brought out of the laboratory and used to warn those in the path of the onrushing tornadoes.

For six years, Jones has tirelessly experimental to prove his theory that tornado storms radiate a certain type of electrical charge that makes them different from other storms.

Until now, Dr. Jones has avoided building up hopes that tornadoes could be tagged and pinpointed. But in a progress report made public today, the quiet, hard-working scientist said he is ready to help set up a nationwide system when officials authorize it.

However, he adds, it will be up to the states, federal government or private business to finance tracking stations which could spot the tornadoes as they develop and plot their courses so towns in their paths could be alerted.

$300,000 A STATION

He estimates a station and its equipment would cost about $300,000. Six men would be needed to man each station.

The cost he says, would be minor compared to the lives and property damage such a system could save. In the first six months of 1953, tornadoes have taken more than 250 lives in the U. S.

Dr. Jones has not had time to determine how many stations would be needed to make the warning system effective. However, rough guesses range from 50 to 100. The effective range of a station is decided by one of its instruments, radar, which has a normal radius of 130 miles.

The system devised by Dr. Jones and his staff of the Oklahoma Institute of Technology relies on radar, direction finding apparatus, oscilloscope and other electronic devices.

This is different from the system now being used effectively at Tinker air force base at Oklahoma City for forecasting tornadoes.

His method is based on his proven theory that tornado clouds give out high voltage discharges called sferics and that the discharge, number and duration, are identifiable.

He uses four basic pieces of equipment—radar, direction finding apparatus, wave form analyzer (an oscilloscope which transfers the high voltage discharges into visible lines) and a storm-intensity incident azimuth integrator (called a tornado meter).

LOCATED FIRST

First, radar locates a heavy storm centre. The oscilloscope, which is similar to a television set, is used to determine if a tornadic wave pattern is in evidence, and in conjunction with the direction-finder, to determine the azimuth of the storms of highest intensity.

The tornado meter measures the degree of activity.

Dr. Jones, in checking his findings over the years, has found that 15 lightning strokes a second being discharged in a storm indicates heavy hail is occurring and that the storm is building to a tornado.

Twenty-three strokes a second indicate tornado activity is going on. When 26 strokes are recorded, the tornado has been spawned.

Dr. Jones is quick to point out that the forming of a tornado doesn't mean it will strike the ground. But once it is located, its path can be plotted and it can be followed by radar and directional equipment.

The station operated at Oklahoma College has acurately identified and tracked tornadoes within the 130 miles radius of the station.

During a recent tornado which passed through San Angelo and Waco, Tex., causing more than 100 deaths and millions of dollars worth of damage, Dr. Jones set his equipment in action.

Although far to the north and out of radar range, the station was able to follow the twister. During the actual time of heaviest damage when the tornado was in downtown Waco, the tornado meter recorded 26 strokes a second.

This activity diminished to an average of 23 strokes 10 minutes later but continued at this rate for 2½ hours.

St. Laurent Plans Strategy For Tour West

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberals may map out some new vote-getting strategy today.

Prime Minister St. Laurent is to meet with his cabinet in an afternoon session before heading west into the strongholds of the minority parties.

The cabinet session—first for the prime minister since he dissolved Parliament in mid-June—is billed as a "routine" meeting, but undoubtedly discussion on the election campaign will be prominent.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, expected back from the west, is almost certain to take up the issue of Liberal policy on building of the south Saskatchewan irrigation and power project in his home province.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, has come out in firm support of the project which a royal commission has turned down as uneconomic. The Liberals have said they were willing to review the situation, but they have not made a firm commitment on construction.

BIG ISSUE

The project, which the royal commission said would cost $250,000,000, is a big issue in Saskatchewan, ruled by a CCF provincial government.

M. J. Coldwell, national CCF party leader, gets most of his strength from that province. He gets back into the national election fight today after a temporary halt following the sudden death of his wife.

Another issue likely to be taken up by the cabinet is plans for increasing federal compensation payments to southwestern Ontario farmers whose hogs were slaughtered in the June hog cholera epidemic.

Farmers have been complaining the current payment scale is too low. Payments likely will be increased to "market value"—whatever the cabinet considers that to be.

Mr. St. Laurent plans to head west tonight for a 10-day sweep of the Prairies and British Columbia by plane and train.

Solon Low, national Social Credit leader, will be in Alberta where the national party gathered most of its strength in the last general election.

Mr. Drew completes a 12-day western campaign Wednesday and they will concentrate on eastern Ontario for a few days before heading into Quebec and the Maritimes.

The big issue in the campaign still appears to be the question of tax cuts with Liberals slamming the Progressive Conservative on their promise to reduce taxes by $500,000,000-a-year if elected.

SURPLUS AVERAGE

Annual surpluses since the war had averaged $300,000,000. "It is true that last year the large surplus of the earlier months suddenly disappeared . . . This government has a habit of juggling figures in every pre-election year."

The further saving of $200,000,000 needed to reach the promised tax reduction of $500,000,000 required a cut of less than five per cent of the present budget.

The prime minister's recent criticism of Progressive Conservative farm price proposals "has no meaning unless he intends to do away with his own government's farm price support."

Mr. St. Laurent should tell farmers what he meant.

"We can only assume that he intends to repeal the existing legislation until he makes a statement that it is not his policy to do away with it."

Other points stressed by the PC leader in his press conference were:

INCREASE TRADE

1. A Progressive Conservative government would make a concerted effort to increase and maintain trade with Britain and Commonwealth nations, "the most obvious outlets" for Canadian agricultural produce.

2. The dollar-sterling problem constituted only "an artificial barrier" to increased trade with sterling nations and could be broken by "making money the servant of trade, not the master."

3. "Nothing is more likely to develop McCarthyism in Canada than the federal government's present policy of arbitrarily refusing right to work and the safeguards of the rule of law to persons suspected of subversive activities in government business—activities which the government had refused to define. A Progressive Conservative government would define subversive activities in the Criminal Code and persons charged under that section of the code would be afforded proper trial by jury.

McCarthy's Role Causes Fear, Much Harm

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt declared here today that Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.), has done "a great deal of harm to my country."

But, she added, "I am speaking as a Democrat, of course."

Mrs. Roosevelt held a press conference before leaving by plane for Belgrade on the next leg of a world tour.

Answering foreign and Greek reporters' questions on McCarthy, chairman of the Senate investigations subcommittee, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"You have to feel very free in the United States these days to disagree with him."

She credited him, however, with "perhaps creating something which is essential" — public realization of the danger of communism.

She added: "But he has made the great mass of people blindly afraid . . . He will cast a shadow over anybody . . . People in the United States today are afraid to be different, to disagree with neighbors because of the possible consequences."

Earlier in her tour, in Hong Kong, Mrs. Roosevelt said McCarthy had done more damage to other countries than to the United States.

"Fear makes people do stupid things," she added.

Storm Batters Retaining Wall

CHATHAM (CP)—Fishermen at the Lake Erie port of Erieau, about 17 miles from here, are alarmed at storm damage to a retaining wall between Lake Erie and Rondeau Bay.

They fear a 1,000-foot break in the wall may lead to a merger of the two bodies of water unless action is taken to halt the damge. The break was opened last week by high waves during storms on Lake Erie.

Dexter Goodison of Goodison Fisheries at Erieau, said the retaining wall protects Rondeau Bay from storms, current and high waves in the lake. If it were washed away, he said it would ruin a favorite fishing, boating and swimming mecca.

Young Thieves Rob Recreation Club

HAMILTON (CP)—Two young men held up the manager of the Dofasco Recreation Club shortly before 10 o'clock this morning, forced him to open the safe and escaped with about $1,600 in cash.

Jack Eppiett, 55, told detectives he was in his office on the first floor of the club when the two men walked in on him. One man was brandishing a black automatic.

"This is a hold-up, open the safe and you won't get hurt," the man with the gun ordered.

One man scooped the money from the safe while his companion kept Mr. Eppiett covered.

man in the street with more kindness, they will get more production, one diplomat said, adding:

Reports that spreading riots in Poland had forced declaration of martial law there drew an unusual flat denial Sunday night from the Red Warsaw government. The Polish news agency PAP broadcast a communique that no emergency measures had been taken in Poland.

The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf said Saturday night martial law had been declared in the Silesian industrial area of Poland and in Warsaw and Krakow. This report, never confirmed by Western Allied or German authorities, also declared that Poles had blown up 17 Soviet tanks.

East German newspapers gave prominent display to dispatches from Hungary reporting the governmental changes in which pudgy Matyas Rakosi was replaced as premier.

FORESTALL TROUBLE

Western sources generally viewed the shift as a Red move to kill incipient rebellion. The removal of Rakosi from the premiership is in line with the new Communist policy of eliminating ruthless one-man "hero" dictators.

Rakosi remains in the background as Communist party boss while the new government headed by veteran Communist Imre Nagy has offered appeasement to the restless Hungarians—less police terror, restoration of some private enterprise, and more food and comfort. The same softer policy has been promised in East Germany.

Moscow's Communist party newspaper Pravda charged that the American press is openly calling for a repetition of the bloody June 17 riots, but Red authorities in East Berlin eased somewhat the partial blockade along the divided city's frontier.

Police announced Sunday that four more crossings would be open to Berliners passing from one zone to another, bringing the total to seven. But only Germans with special passes are allowed through. The Red Army's martial law decree of June 17 is still in effect.

Investigation Ordered Into Execution

LONDON (AP)—An investigation was ordered today into the execution of a man who went to the gallows largely on testimony of mass-murderer John Christie.

Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe told the House of Commons he has appointed a special counsel to look into the case of Timothy Evans to see if there "may have been any miscarriage of justice."

Evans was hanged in 1950 for murdering his 14-month-old daughter at 10 Rillington Place where three years later Christie admitted slaying seven women himself. Christie is scheduled to be hanged July 15.

CHIEF WITNESS

Christie was the chief prosecution witness against Evans after Evans' pretty young wife and daughter were found strangled in 1949.

Misgivings that an innocent man might have been hanged were raised in the Commons after Christie admitted strangling Mrs. Evans when brought to trial himself two weeks ago.

Christie denied, however, that he killed the Evans child.

Evans was tried only for murdering his daughter.

Home Secretary Sir David rejected demands for a public inquiry into the Evans case but assured the House all the evidence would be examined in private by a special attorney.

Influx From U.S. Sets New Record

TORONTO (CP)—An estimated 500,000 Americans celebrated their Independence Day week-end in a record-breaking traffic cavalcade across the border into Ontario.

At Windsor, Fort Erie and Niagara Falls, immigration officials reported bumper-to-bumper traffic with some 10,000 cars passing over the boundary every hour at each entrance point.

Eleven lines of traffic were handled at the Ambassador bridge in Windsor where traffic usually operates in three lanes. More than 100,000 entered by this bridge alone.

Another 100,000 autos entered Ontario at Fort Erie and Niagara Falls officials said the influx of United States vehicles smashed all previous records.

Some farmers were said to be deliberately destroying Russian-made tractors and threshers rather than deliver their crops for Russian consumption.

Workers in the Eisleben coal mines, the Zeiss optical works at Jena and a truck factory in Halle have gone on strike demanding release of their comrades arrested June 17, refugees reported. An official admission that 50,000 East Germans were arrested as a result of the revolt was made by Max Fechner, East German minister of justice.

The West Berlin newspaper Der Abend said today a Moscow-ordered shake-up in the organization of the Communist party leadership in East Germany will be made when the party holds its annual congress next October. The politburo will be abolished and replaced by a praesidium of the central committee, according to Der Abend, which claimed this plan was announced at a recent politburo meeting by Pavel F. Yudin, deputy Soviet high commissioner in East Germany.

Pushed Into Bay Saved By Dog

HAMILTON (CP)—A 31-year-old woman was saved from drowning off the Wellington street docks this morning when the barking of a dog attracted the attention of seamen on two tugs tied up nearby.

Miss Tray Manson was pulled from the water by Richard Simpson of Hamilton and Allan Sequin of Toronto. She told police she was "pushed" into the bay by an unknown man.

The woman told police she had visited with some men on another ship on Saturday night. After having a drink with them, she said, she left the ship.

While walking along the dock, she said, some unknown person shoved her into the water.

Climbers Reach 4th Highest Peak

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—An Austrian-German expedition has reached the top of the 26,620-foot Himalayan peak Naga Parbat, the world's fourth highest mountain, it was learned here today.

Leader of the team of victorious climbers was 52-year-old Peter Aschenbrenner, veteran of two previous expeditions to the western Himalyan peak.

Aschenbrenner was one of two European survivors of the 1934 disaster on Naga Parbat, when nine lives were lost after the climbers had reached a height of 25,600 feet.

Concrete Mixers Back In Action

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto's four ready-mix concrete companies operated on a normal, full-time basis today for the first time since June 22 when 500 truck drivers went on strike.

The tie-up, which slowed or halted millions of dollars worth of construction projects and made idle 7,000 building trade workers, ended Friday, following several days conciliation talks.

The new contract provides for 10 cents an hour back pay dating from May 9, 1952, when the old agreement expired, to the day when the strike broke.

May Not Tax CP Railway —Privy Council

LONDON (CP) — The judicial committee of the Privy Council handed down a decision today rejecting a Saskatchewan bid to tax the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The decision dismissed an appeal by the province with costs, thereby upholding a November, 1950 ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada. The Supreme Court had partially reversed a decision by the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal.

The case hinged on the validity of an agreement signed between the federal Parliament and the railway company in 1880. That That agreement provided in part that the railway "shall forever be free from taxation by the Dominion, or by any province hereafter to be established."

SUPPORTED

Saskatchewan, whose appeal was supported by Alberta and Manitoba, had argued that the federal Parliament had no power to limit the tax laws of future provinces. This applied, the province said, to the Saskatchewan Act of 1905, which established the province and maintained the tax exemption for the company.

The Privy Council disagreed.

It also rejected a second argument by the province that the City Act of 1947, passed by the Saskatchewan legislature, by-passed the tax exemption clause.

The City Act provided for local taxation in the form of business tax. Saskatchewan contended it was assessed on persons and companies and not on property, although it used the extent of the business property as an assessment yardstick.

Also intervening in the case against the appeal was the Canadian government.

New German Arrivals Swindled Of Cash

TORONTO (CP)—A four-month investigation into swindles that cost 15 recent arrivals from Germany a total of $3,000 has resulted in the arrest of Hubert Kaul, 31. Police charged him with false pretences and theft. They said a man supposedly representing a German firm met trains and persuaded women to loan him the money.

Paper Supports Princess Picking Friends

LONDON (AP)—Princess Margaret's friendship with a handsome, divorced airman won editorial support Sunday from a British newspaper.

The Princess' rumored interest in Group Capt. Peter Townsend, drew comment as far away as Australia, where a leading Methodist churchman told his Melbourne congregation recent gossip and rumors about Princess Margaret's activities were unfair and completely inhuman.

Following publication of reports about the rumored romance between the 22-year-old Princess and Townsend, a 38-year-old commoner, he was transferred last week from his position as equerry with the Royal household and assigned to Britain's embassy in Brussels as air attache.

Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express accused the Church of England of blocking the marriage.

"High members of the Royal Family were not opposed to the match, but had been advised to break it up," the Express said, asserting that "the church should not harm the life of a Princess, whose welfare the people hold so close to their hearts."

The Express pointed out that Townsend had divorced his wife in 1952, charging her with misconduct, and had been awarded custody of their two sons. "He was not the guilty party," the paper said.

The Sunday Pictorial said that after she is 25, in August, 1955, the Princess can marry without the Queen's consent. Under the Royal Marriage Act, a member of the British Royal Family over 25 can marry without the Sovereign's approval 12 months after giving the privy council notice of intent to wed.

In Melbourne, Dr. Irwin G. Benson, superintendent of the Victoria Central Methodist Mission, described the Princess as a devoted Christian woman and said "she now is being subjected to amounts of speculation, criticism and inference to which no member of a democracy should be subjected, let alone a member of the Royal Family."

"I think that members of our Royal house, to whom we pay so much popular acclaim, receive less than justice and sometimes even less than decency from certain sections of the press. It must be remembered that tradition prevents members of the Royal Family from defending themselves against gossip, rumor and scandal," Dr. Benson said.

Princess Margaret now is touring Rhodesia with the Queen Mother. Townsend was to have made the trip as equerry but was relieved of his assignment just before the tour began.

Plan Color TV Early Next Year

NEW YORK—Color TV will be available "in limited quantities" early next year, Benjamin Abrams, president of Emerson Radio & Phontograph Corp., said recently at a distributors' meeting.

"I believe that releasing color receivers as soon as possible will have a stimulating effect upon the sale of black-and-white receivers," he said, adding that this belief is based on the following factors:

1. The prices of such sets will be approximately three times as high as black-and-white sets, with $750 "a conservative estimate at this time."

2. At the beginning sets will use picture tubes no larger than 16 inches.

3. Limited production during 1954 will make deliveries difficult "even (for) those who may be satisfied with a small picture and are willing to pay a high price."

Dorman D. Irael, executive vice-president of the company, promised that Emerson will be "among the first to have color sets on the market," but warned that where current black-and-white receivers cost the consumer between $1.50 to $1.75 a square inch." Also, he added, where the standard 17-inch receiver has about 150 square inches of viewing surface, a comparable color set would have only 100.

"The cost for a color tube alone in initial production stages will be between $175 and $200," Mr. Israel said.

P.C Speakers In Quebec Critical Of Immigration

ST. RAPHAEL, Que.—The Liberal Government of Louis St. Laurent was on the receiving end of a triple blast from a Sunday afternoon poltical rally held in the churchyard here today.

Attacks on the government were made by Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto-Eglinton), Albert Sylvian, candidate for Iles de la Madeleine, and J. Emile Roy, candidate in Bellechasse.

The hardest blow at the meeting in this village south of the St. Lawrence, about 50 miles southeast of Quebec City, was struck by Mr. Sylvain. He aimed much of his criticism at the immigration policy of the Liberals, although like the other two speakers he also criticized taxation, farm policy and extravagance.

The government, charged Mr. Sylvian, was bringing into the country immigrants that were filled with "revolutionary ideas."

"They are filling our jails," he said. "What good would they be to defend us with the ideas they have?"

The fault, he said, was with the government that permitted such immigrants to enter Canada. He was critical, too, of immigrant workers taking jobs "while our boys are in Korea, or are in that military hospital without arms and without legs."

Mr. Sylvain drew plenty of applause for his remarks. As was the case Saturday at Deschaillons, cars were drawn up in the churchyard and when the audience wanted to express applause there was a chorus of horn-tooting.

STEERED AWAY

Mr. Fleming steered clea rof the immigration question when his turn came to speak, as did Mr. Roy. But bot hwere critical in their turn of the government's attitude toward provincial rights, a point that can get plenty of interest in this province.

The Toronto man, who became fluent in the French language only in recent years, has been holding his audiences well on the tour, and yesterday spoke for nearly an hour in French that was termed "cent cinquante per cent" (150 per cent) by one listener.

His appearance on the platform Sunday, as has been the case since the start of the tour, was the signal for a series of horn toots and cheers.

Mr. Roy, the PC candidate in this riding of Bellechasse, made a series of attacks on the government on the subject of taxation, provincial rights and other points.

But he made a point too, of telling the voters of Bellechasse that he was a native of the county. that he was one of them.

However, he told his audience that voting for a French-Canadian government leader was not a guarantee of the kind of government Quebec wants.

"The last time we may have been influence by sentiment in choosing as Prime Minister one of our own race," he said, "but he has let us down."

Quebec Liberal Leader Charge Regime Terror

ST. RAYMOND, Que. — (CP) — George Laplame, Quebec Liberal Party Leader, said Saturday the Union Nationale Party has set up a "regime of terror" in Quebec.

Speaking at a political rally in this Portneuf County mill town in support of Delphis Marois, Liberal candidate in Thursday's provincial by-election, Mr. Lapalme said national societies and Chambers of Commerce in Quebec Province are afraid to express their opinions. The party in power has a stranglehold on everybody.

Mr. Lapalme, candidate in Montreal Outremont in another by-election Thursday, said two groups have launched an attack against the Union Nationale, labor and the Liberal Party.

Workers have voted for the Liberal Party in last year's provincial election, but farmers had voted for the government.

"I ask farmers if they have less pride than the workers of the cities, who have passed through bloody battle and suffered imprisonment," he said, "Now is the time to hear the voice of freedom if you do not want to become chained . . . "

Mr. Lapalme said every phase of provincial administration "is going into the hands of a political group."

Mr. Lapalme said he will withdraw from politics if he is defeated in his bid for election in Montreal Outremont.

He said that by rejecting the Liberal Party in last summer's Quebec general election, voters had rejected government aid to cripples, maternity allowances, health insurance and free school books for children.

During the last session the government had adopted an election act designed "to steal" elections and" behead" the Liberal Party, he said.

Chief provision of the bill was appointment of a single enumerator "above the law."

The enumerator could add to or cut names from electoral lists at will but no court procedures could be taken against him in civil court.

Liberal lawyers attempting to press charges against enumerators in Montreal criminal courts were being avoided by judges of the court of sessions.

"The time may come when not only elections but even our courts of justice will be unnecessary."

Mr. Lapalme spoke in Portneuf after a tour of Matapedia where a by-election will also be held Thursday.

The Montreal Outremont, Portneuf and Matapedia by-elections were called to fill vacancies in the legislative assembly.

Workers Should Share In Canada's Wealth: CCF

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Stanley Knowles, member of Parliament for Winnipeg North Centre and a leading spokesman for the CCF party, said Sunday his party is anxious to see Canada's workers receive their fair share of the country's wealth.

Addressing some 5,000 persons who attended the annual picnic of local 195, United Automobile Workers (CIO), Mr. Knowles reviewed CCF promises to provide a national health plan and a housing program under which "every worker could own his own home."

He urged the local, largest in Canada, to spearhead the drive for a guaranteed annual wage for all workers.

USE TWO PER CENT

Returning to the proposed health plan, Mr. Knowles said such a scheme would take only about two per cent of the amount of Canada's increased wealth during the last four years.

The idea of a national health plan, he said in a 20-minute speech which was televised by CBC, was not a new one.

"The Liberal party promised such a plan in its 1919 campaign," he said.

The housing plan proposed by the CCF would permit a worker to buy a $10,000 home with a $1,000 down payment. He would pay for the home over a period of 30 years at two per cent interest.

Liberal Cabinet Spot P.C.'s?

OTTAWA — That "old and tried" Liberal government can still spot their Conservative opponents a few years and come out as young as any admistration the Tories could field if they were successful at the polls next Aug. 10.

New Canadians Can Do Lot To Fight Reds

TORONTO. — National gatherings organized by New Canadians have become important to Canada's democratic way of life, Immigration Minister Harris told 2,000 Czechoslovakian immigrants, at Scarboro Sunday. They were celebrating their sixth Czechoslovak Day in Canada.

"Just as people from the British Isles in Canada celebrate their Days for St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick, so New Canadians from Europe are contributing to the fabric of Canada by honoring their heroes and nationality," said Mr. Harris.

Mr. Harris said the Liberal government had agreed that the best method of building Canada's population was to open the door for displaced persons without discrimination, provided they could meet Immigration Department requirements. He said that applications from escapers from Iron Curtain countries were dealt with sympathetically in Ottawa.

"There is no doubt," said Mr. Harris, "that countries now held captive by the Communists were once among the finest examples of democracy in the world. We welcome immigrants from these counties as they can not only uphold the traditions of democracy in Canada. but can also help spread the doctrine of resistance to communism."

The Czechs who gathered at the Czechoslovak Society's summer camp, Masaryktown ,in Scarboro, came from all parts of Ontario, from Montreal and from the United States. Czechoslovak Day is commemorted by Czechs in Canada on the first Sunday after Dominion Day.

Reeve Crockford of Scarboro congratulated Czech community leaders in making a success of the Masaryktown camp. He admitted the project had met with considerable criticism among Scarboro residents. "But by your devotion to your new country, and your strong sense of citizenship you have been an inspiratio nto us all," said Mr. Crockford .

"And by your celebration of Czechoslovak Day every year, you have reminded all of us that it is dangerous to forget the past and those who made the present possible."

A wreath was laid on the monument to Czech patriot Masaryk by two U.S. representatives of Czech organizations, John Tichy of Cleveland and Andrew Valuchek of New York. At the exercise grounds on the Masaryktown property, Czech gymnast teams from Canada and the United States demonstrated calisthenics and Czech national dances.

Health, Housing Stressed By CCF Speaker

WINDSOR — (CP) — Stanley Knowles, MP for Winnipeg North Centre and a leading spokesman for the CCF party, said today his party was anxious to see Canada's workers receive their fair share of the country's wealth.

Addressing 5,000 persons who attended the second annual picnic of Local 195, United Automobile Workers (CIO), Mr. Knowles reviewed CCF promises to provide a national health plan and a housing program under which "every worker could own his own home."

He urged the local, the largest in Canada, to spearhead the drive for a guaranteed annual wage for all workers.

Returning to the proposed health plan, Mr. Knowles said such a scheme would take only about 2 per cent of the amount of Canada's increased wealth during the last four years.

The idea of a health plan, he said in a speech televised by CBC, was not a new one.

Mr. Knowles said he reminded Health Minister Martin in the Commons recently that the Liberal Government had promised a health program 34 years ago.

Mr. Martin replied, Mr. Knowles said, that "just because we have those planks in the platform doesn't mean we have to put them into effect over night."

The housing plan proposed by the CCF would permit a worker to buy a $10,000 home with a $1,000 down payment. He would pay for the home over a period of 30 years at 2 per cent interest.

The Conservative Party had borrowed part of that CCF plank for its own platform, Mr. Knowles said, by suggesting the 10 per cent down payment and the 30-year repayment period.

CCF opponents, Mr. Knowles said, had warned that the party's promises would increase taxes if put into force. This attitude is wrong. The CCF would regrade taxes according to income so that the earners of big wages would pay the greater taxes.

Drew Challenges PM For Policy On Farm Supports

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister St. Laurent and Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, trade territories this week. Mr. St. Laurent heads west from Ottawa while Mr. Drew returns from the West to stump Northern Ontario, parts of Quebec and the Maritimes. Winding up his western tour at Saskatoon during the weekend, Mr. Drew challenged Mr. St. Laurent to say whether the Liberal government, if re-elected Aug. 10, will repeal farm price support legislation.

He said at a press conference that Mr. St. Laurent described price support as "socialism" in an Ontario campaign speech. A Progressive Conservative government would establish a producer-represented agricultural board to determine fair farm prices on the basis of a "scientific day-to-day analysis."

Referring to trade, Mr. Drew said the dollar-sterling problem is an artifical barrier which could be broken by "making money the servant of trade, not the master." A PC government would make a concerted effort to improve trade with Commonwealth countries which were the "obvious outlets" of Canadian farm produce.

In Ottawa, Mr. St. Laurent will meet with his cabinet, probably to set an initial price for wheat for the new crop year opening Aug. 1. Agriculture Minister Gardiner also is expected to bring up Liberal policy on the South Saskatchewan dam project, on which the Liberals have not made a firm commitment and which Mr. Drew said Saturday a Progressive Conservative government will build.

GOING WEST

Mr. St. Laurent moves into Winnipeg July 8, going on to Vancouver and Victoria for subsequent night meetings. He returns via Calgary, Edmonton, Yorkton, Sask., and Regina before mid-July.

After stops at Fort William today and Sudbury Tuesday, Mr. Drew will campaign in his home riding of Carleton, which takes in sections of Ottawa, until July 9. Then he goes on to northeastern Quebec and into the Maritimes.

John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament and a senior member of the party, launches an Ontario tour at Kitchener and St. Thomas today. On the two following days, he visits Southampton, London, Zurich, Exeter, Goderich and Clinton.

Meanwhile, M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, resumes his campaign at Pike Lake, Sask. He called a temporary halt June 26 when his wife died in Ottawa.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, is campaigning in the Peace River district which he represented in the last Parliament.

New CCF Leader Gives Up Teaching

VANCOUVER— (CP)—Arnold Webster, 54, the new CCF leader in British Columbia, is to become a full-time politician.

He told a meeting Friday night that he will give up his post as principal of Magee High School in Vancouver and devote all his time to politics. As a principal he received $7,300 a year; as a politician he will get $5,000.

Mr. Webster won a seat in the legislature in the June 9 election, one of two members representing Vancouver East.

Farm Unions Ask Marketing Board

WINNIPEG—(CP) — Farmers' unions of the prairie provinces are preparing a manifesto outlining a proposed western agricultural policy for submission to all candidates, officials of the Manitoba Farmers' Union announced. One of the main proposals will be the establishment of a producers' marketing board for livestock.

The President And The Tariff

As we have reiterated from time to time during the last year, Canada is extraordinarily sensitive to American tariff, and the Americans seem extraordinarily insensitive to us, in wielding that tariff. The protectionists in the Republican party seem to have the whip hand, and the best that President Eisenhower can hope to achieve is a niggling concession here and there.

* * *

Such, for instance, is his administration's request for a one-year extension of the Reciprocal Trade Act, which expired a month ago. With a Congress in the mood it has now, the President apparently cannot hope for a secure renewal of the Act, let alone any reductions in the trade barriers greater than that Act allows. The Reciprocal Trade Act permits the President to lower tariff rates in return for concessions granted by other countries.

* * *

Canada is the States' best customer, and the States is Canada's best customer. Surely such an intimate and mutually profitable relationship deserves to be fostered? Canada is waiting and willing. The American Congress, pushed by special interest groups (farmers, dairy people, even manufacturers) seems intent on barring Canadian goods, so as to "protect" American agriculture and industry. The new American quotas against imported cheese and butter seriously affect Canadian producers.

* * *

What kind of protection is it which reduces the good will and the good trade between the two countries? And, let the American Congress remember that Canada is the only country and customer in the world which has paid its own way entirely throughout the war and since. It has not had a penny of lend-lease, Marshall Aid or any other American handout. This is the customer and country which the American Congress seems intent on frustrating and ignoring.

* * *

Another example of short-sighted and even dog-in-the-manger American attitude is the protracted delays in authorizing the St. Lawrence Seaway. Even though Canada is prepared to pay the full cost, the United States—that is, special interests militantly opposed to the Seaway and with loud voices in Washington—has still not given its passive assent required for this work on the international waterway.

* * *

A remarkable point in both these issues—the trade between Canada and the U.S. and the Seaway between Canada and the U.S.—is the sincere approval of the President and the recalcitrance of Congress. Obviously President Eisenhower has not the power to implement the policies for which he stood at election time, and on which he won popular support.

* * *

Can Americans be so short-sighted that they discourage trade and prevent the Seaway development merely because these might benefit Canada? Do they not realize that the U.S. stands to gain, too; tangibly in economic results, intangibly in the continued friendship and support of Canada?

* * *

"Protection" should be as dead a political issue as isolation has become. In the long run—as with Britain in the nineteenth century and down to the two exhausting wars of this century—the United States requires, as much as the rest of the world, free trade, free markets. American industry is so much in advance of industry in most other countries that it does not need the support of tariffs.

* * *

As for raw materials and agriculture, the United States is rapidly becoming a "have-not" country. It needs what Canada can supply. A third element in the situation is this: the U.S. needs a big export market. How can it secure and nurture this if it erects tariffs to bar imports—the only way other countries can pay for American goods, unless the U.S. is willing to continue forever its gift and non-returnable loans.

* * *

The trouble with the American Congress may be that it is not, by and large, as enlightened as the President and his advisers, nor as some of the chief industrialists of the U.S. who have spoken in favour of reduced tariffs and freer trade.

Politics From East To West

Many of the old-time phrases about electioneering are disappearing, because electioneering practices are changing. One cannot really say that a candidate is fence-mending, when he is taking to the air by transcontinental plane or by a transcontinental radio broadcast. However, in the local ridings, there are still fences, and fence-menders.

So here and there about the land candidates are visiting small communities and organizing their cells in county towns. But local meetings in small village halls are no longer the roistering attractions they once were. People have radios to hear speeches at home. They have cars to hear speeches in large city auditoriums. And whatever the local popularity of a candidate, they will flock to hear a Cabinet Minister or a leader of the Opposition, in preference to listening to the familiar voice of the district candidates.

Much interest centres of course in the wayfarings and statements of the chief party figures. So people read with interest what Mr. St. Laurent is saying in Charlottetown or St. John's, and what Mr. Drew is doing in British Columbia. Even when the Mr. Drew took, or is reported to have taken, a day off, the item was sufficiently newsy to make our front page.

The fact is that a day off to go with cowboys and Indians to a roundup in the interior of British Columbia is only a bystander's version of a holiday; Mr. Drew was working just as hard at his political campaign when he donned a wide western hat and sports shirt as when he is campaigning from a platform. Perhaps even harder; somehow, we cannot picture Mr. Drew at ease in a sports shirt, among Cariboo cattle, and talking with Chilcotin and Shuswap Indians.

While Mr. Drew has been busy on the west coast, Mr. St. Laurent has been touring the east coast. Mr. St. Laurent is no more at ease than Mr. Drew in playing cowboys and Indians; in fact, "Uncle Louis" does not try the game. He is folksy in a different way. For instance, at Summerside, P.E.I., he sat through a light harness race.

The issues which both have raised have been discussed before in these columns. It is interesting to see, as the campaign develops, the by-paths which they and their supporters take. Broncho paths in the West, trotting tracks in the East.

Martial Law And The U.S. Constitution

An interesting case will shortly come before the United States Court of Appeals and possibly before the Supreme Court of that country. This case began in May, with the arrest of a civilian named Robert W. Toth. Mr. Toth was working in a steel mill at Pittsburgh at the time, and six military police entered the plant, handcuffed him, dressed him by force in the uniform of the U.S.A.F., from which he had been honorably discharged, and flew him to Korea. He was charged with guilt in connection with the murder of a Korean last Autumn, and the air force is determined to try him by court martial. The U.S. Defence Department contends that it has jurisdiction over former members of the armed forces who cannot be tried in U.S. courts when accused of serious crimes.

When testimony in this case was heard before a United States District Court, Judge Alexander Holtzoff granted a writ of habeas corpus, saying that "one of the foundation stones of our Republic is that civil power should at all times be superior to military power." The writ has not been executed, because an appeal has been lodged, and the accused will remain in custody until a verdict or verdicts have been handed down.

The issue is not whether the accused is guilty or whether he should be tried. It is whether the U.S. Defence Department, powerful though it is, is not required to conform with "due process" of the law. It has been pointed out that if the law is not broad enough to enable civil trial of discharged servicemen when charged with committing serious offences when overseas, then the law should be amended to cover such situations. In the meantime, U.S. observers confidently expect that the higher courts will confirm the writ of habeas corpus granted by Judge Holtzoff and thus reaffirm the supremacy of civil power.

NOTES AND COMMENT

As both George Drew and Solon Low are each promising to save us half a billion in taxes, the Ottawa Citizen suggests that they run as a coalition, and save us a billion!

A professor in Florida asserts that married women, as a group, are more beautiful than single women. And the office cynic says that the cat digesting its mouse is more beautiful than the cat on the hunt.

Those who object to hearing the Rosenbergs called "martyrs" should remember that the word means "witness", and includes those who die for any belief or cause. To the Communists, the Rosenbergs are certainly martyrs, and it remains to be seen whether any good purpose has been achieved by elevating them to that dignity.

LONDON LETTER

Striped Ties At Wimbledon

By ROBERT MILLER

A FRIEND of mine who has been in Scotland during the Queen's visit—her first visit there since the Coronation—tells me that the celebrations have all had a most moving simplicity. The Coronation, as he rightly points out, was a majestic pageant that glittered and sparkled despite a cold and miserable day. In Scotland, he says, the Queen's tour has been almost a family affair, even though there has been a great deal to delight the eye.

What effect the visit—it ended last week—will have had on Scottish Nationalism is another matter. Although the Scots have seventy M.P.s in the United Kingdom Parliament, the Nationalists point out that they are outnumbered by nine to one and that the Parties lend a sympathetic ear to Scottish grievances only when they are in opposition. They complain, as some Welshmen complain, that Scottish interests are always subordinated to English ones and that this state of affairs is bound to continue until Scotland has a Parliament of her own.

The strength of this feeling is very difficult to judge. Two million people out of a population of five million signed what is known as the Covenant—the document that asks for a Scottish Parliament, with control over the spending of money raised in Scotland. On the other hand the Scottish Nationalist Party has not up to now had much success. Not one of the candidates it put up at the last General Election was returned.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE WAS a time, not so long ago, when the game of lawn tennis was looked down on as a girls' game. At many of the best British schools, before the war, boys were scarcely permitted to play tennis at all, at least until the really serious things of life, such as cricket, were over. That has changed now. Schoolboys can even obtain grants of money from the Lawn Tennis Association, the national tennis-promoting body, to help them buy equipment.

This new enthusiasm is reflected at Wimbledon. Even the strongest men are no longer ashamed of taking an interest in tennis. Still the annual tournament remains a curiously feminine affair. Schoolgirls in batches circulate excitedly round the courts, striving for glimpses of their heroes. Even grown-up ladies rapidly adopt special favourites, on grounds not strictly athletic. Tennis, with its opponents neatly divided by a net, and its simple basic principles, easily lends itself to impassioned partisanship.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE ELITE among the spectators are the members of the All England Tennis and Croquet Club, whose headquarters Wimbledon is. They wear mauve and green ties. Many of them are aged. The Club is very rich and exculsive. It contains no more than two hundred and fifty male and about fifty female members. Those who wish to join may find that even with influential backing it may be twenty or thirty years before they are successful. The comparable cricket club, the M.C.C. (Marylebone Cricket Club, "the Headquarters of Cricket") long ago capitulated to the changed mood of our times and admitted professionals to membership. The All England Club last year, for the first time, opened its door a crack and let in one professional to honorary membership.

The word "professional" indeed is not popular at Wimbledon. The standard of amateur lawn tennis has dropped quite considerably in recent years; the best amateurs now tend to turn professional, with the result that no one can claim that Wimbledon sees the best players. Should professionals as well as amateurs be admitted to the annual tournament? This is the appalling question that hangs like a thundercloud over the neatly-mown tea-lawns, and troubles the minds of the members of the select All-England club.

✧ ✧ ✧

"THE RISING in Eastern Germany is the most important event that has happened in the world for years." I quote these words from one of the oldest and wisest trade unionist leaders in Britain. For the first time, he felt, the workers had been shown that Russia was not on their side.

Whether he is right about the significance of the Berlin revolt only time will show. More to the point, perhaps, is his view that it will have a profound effect on the trade union movement in Britain. Despite the instinctive loyalty of the workers to the Labour Party—one of the decisive factors about British politics—there are times when they fall for the Communists' appeal. My friend believes that the orthodox leadership now has a weapon that will prove to be increasingly effective.

To judge from the alarms of The Daily Worker, the Communists are well aware of the danger. "More and more," it solemnly assured its readers the other day, "the evidence from Berlin proves that the riots were an organised criminal provocation carried out by Adenauer, West German Chancellor, and the United States Special Service." Only the faithful, I think, and the very gullible are likely to believe so tall a story.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS six years now since Sir Edwin Plowden became the Government's chief economic planning officer. He did not want to accept the position. He was advised by his business friends that he was being given the "Socialist kiss of death." His final session with the late Sir Stafford Cripps, then Labour Chancellor of the Exchequer, is often described as the greatest wrestling match of the century.

Now Sir Edwin is going back to business at the end of October. There is no question of any quarrel with the present Conservative Chancellor, Mr. R. A. Butler. Sir Edwin has a farm quite near Mr. Butler's country home in Essex and the two men often spend the week-end talking to one another. They are, in fact, very good friends.

✧ ✧

SIR EDWIN does not appear to be leaving the Civil Service for any monetary reason. It was agreed when he joined the Treasury that he should be paid the salary he was earning at the time—well over £6,000 a year. At least two of his old directorships are closed to him. As things stand at present he may well lose about two-thirds of his salary.

His going may create a curious position in the House of Commons. Some Conservative M.P.s have always looked on the Treasury's planning staff with suspicion and have let the Chancellor know that they think Sir Edwin's post should not be filled after October. My information is that the Chancellor does not share these views. He has found his planning staff of the greatest help and may well want to replace Sir Edwin with somebody equally valuable.—(Copyright).

An American Opinion: QUOTH THE RAVEN

Nepal P.M. Back To Office

By RAWLE KNOX

On the great grass expanse before the King of Nepal's palace, troops in scarlet jackets, blue breeches and black shakos paraded for the swearing in of M. P. Koirala as Prime Minister—back in office again after more than a year, during which period Nepal has had no Premier. Koirala, handsome, debonair, was escorted by troops of turbaned Lancers. Behind his limousine came another packed with at least a dozen passengers, three of whom could be recognized as future Ministers.

Ever since absolute feudal rule was ended early in 1951 and attempts were made to introduce popular government, Nepal has been bedevilled by the personal rivalries of politicians whose popular backing has frequently existed only in their own imaginations. M. P. Koirala, who with his brother B. P. Koirala, sustained the Nepal Congress Party in exile for so many years until the collapse of the feudal Rana family rule, is regarded by almost all observers as a vital and sincere personality.

When the military escort clattered into his yard to take him to the palace, he was taking to me in a small room in his rambling, haphazard house on the riverside here. "What do you think is the first most important task of your Government?"

"First, law and order must be established" answered Koirala firmly. "Then land reform."

Law and order is indeed becoming a problem for the Administration, which retained some spark of life during the Rana days and has been slowly petering out as a result of the uncertain political situation in Katmandu. In the lowland areas bordering India, the most fertile ricelands in all Nepal, hill-tribesmen have been plundering farmers' crops after every harvest. Doctrinaire Socialist B. P. Koirala, who now maintains a bitter political quarrel with his brother, has been moving among the peasants in the area of Biratnagar in East Nepal, urging them not to pay rent. Without firm control from the centre (and firm control is difficult owing to the almost complete lack of communications in this mountain State) the country will gradually fall apart.

M. P. Koirala knows this, and knows his country's vital position on the edge of the Communist world.

"I shall immediately take firm measures" he says, "against any political movement that is using unconstitutional means."

When he was last Premier, he banned the Communist Party, but he suspects that in the interval several Communist leaders in border districts have come out into the open.

Koirala will form a new Ministry from among his close colleagues, but this will be only a skeleton Cabinet, and he hopes that leaders of other parties, seeing that the King has entrusted the government of the country to him, will be more inclined to cooperate.

King Tribhuwan himself has called this new Government because of his ill-health and his weariness of waiting for the politicians to solve their differences. He is not a man who ever wanted actively to govern Nepal, and now he wishes nothing better than to get out of the country for a long rest. But he has been patriot enough during Nepal's troubles of the past three years and he will not leave unless he believes that his new Premier will try to provide real stability for his seven-and-a-half million people.

Koirala will undoubtedly do what he can—but his instruments are the same archaic civil service and army that are only just in the process of being reorganized by competent Indian advisers. A revival of anti-Indian sentiment—which B. P. Koirala has been feeding—is the worst of several dubious prospects for this unhappy country. (OFNS—Copyright.)

Letter To The Editor

CEMETERY BUS SERVICE

Sir,—I have been wondering if it would not be a good idea for the buses to run around the Crescent Wednesday afternoons at 2:00 o'clock and back at 4 for folks who would like to go to the cemetery and can not walk it very well. I think Wednesday and Sunday are two days when the buses are not too busy and it would fill in the slack.

Say go down George St. around to the cemetery at 2 o'clock in the afternoon; back up George and around at four; I am sure there would be filled buses on both those days. It is very sad to see the elderly folks trying to go back and forth on foot.

I remain sincerely,
A CITIZEN.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them.

And when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the people, and laid hands on him, crying out, Men of Israel, help: This is the man, that teacheth all men every where against the people, and the law, and this place: and further brought Greeks also into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place . . .

And all the city was moved, and the people ran together: and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were shut . . . Then the chief captain came near, and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains; and demanded who he was, and what he had done. (Act. 21: 26-28, 30, 33.)

Fair Share?

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

It is hard to agree with Mr. Nollet that agriculture has no part in the present expansion and progress in Canada. This is what the minister of agriculture told swine breeders here this week and added that farmers are not getting "their fair share of the national income." If they are not getting a fair shade (we will not quibble over terms) they are at least getting a very good share. Mr. Nollet added that if Canadian farmers were guaranteed price stability they would produce to the limit. And, since he was talking to swine breeders, he brought his generalities home by blaming lack of price stability for the decline in Saskatchewan's hog population.

A story that appeared on the same news page as the one about Mr. Nollet quoted Mr. A. H. Dyck of Borden, president of Saskatchewan hog raisers. He said that the swine industry was again one of promise. He thought that the abundance of feed, coupled with the current high prices, would have a tendency to encourage farmers to increase hog production. Mr. Joseph Featherston of Streetsville, Ont., president of the national swine breeders' association, also crossed up Mr. Nollet and blamed "in-and-outers" among swine breeders for fluctuations of production and price. They were the ones who made the hog business uncertain. "What we need is a steady, stabilized swine industry," Mr. Featherston said.

With a few minor exceptions (eggs, for example) farm prices have been fairly stable of late. And judging only by things like cars, new machinery and holiday trips, most farmers appear to be doing well. Many of them in the grain belt parlay two or three months of work into one year's wages — a trick our industrial workers or managers have not mastered. Perhaps that explains why some farmers do not get "their fair share of the national income." Mr. Nollet recognizes that it is unwise to put "all the eggs in one basket" with straight grain farming. He says Saskatchewan could increase her livestock production. That step appears to be partly a matter of willingness—willingness to work all year around to look after livestock. Mr. Featherston was encouraging that willingness when he called for a steady, stabilized hog industry.

Radio Sole Contact For Men In Antarctic Weather Posts

By GRAEME BROOKES

MELBOURNE, (Reuters) — In gale-swept huts peppered by Antarctic snow and sleet, two small bands of bearded hermits cluster round shortwave sets on Friday nights.

The chances are they will be told "your tiny hand is frozen" and "There's nothing like a dame."

They like it.

To slim, 21-year-old blonde Suzanne Brooking-Rickets, sitting in a cozy studio at Melbourne's broadcasting house, they send half a dozen requests a week asking for these and other songs.

For Suzanne ("call me Sue") Rickets runs Radio Australia's weekly 15-minute request program for the Australian National Antartic Research Expeditions to the 15 men on the 57,000 barren acres of Macquarie Island, 800 miles southeast of Tasmania, and the 13 men on the even more remote 27-by-13-mile Heard Island, 2,500 miles from the South Pole.

Even a move in the international chess match, a tradition between the Australians stationed at Heard Island and the South Afrcans at Marion Island, is suspended for Sue's program.

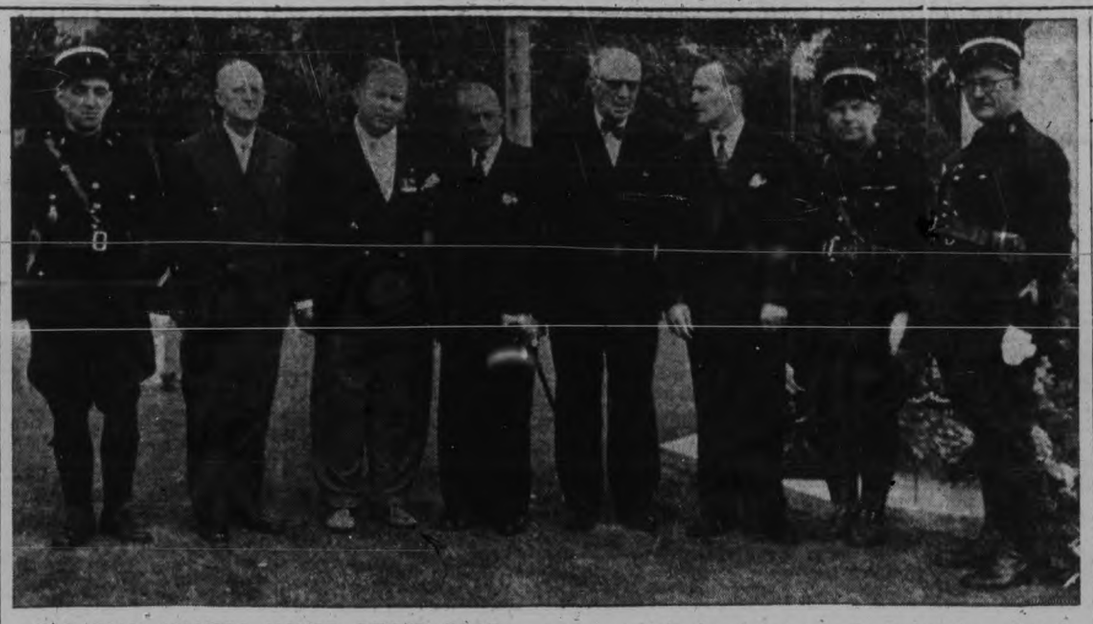
Frequently, Sue has in the studio with her the wives of some of the expedition—wives whom the men have not seen for months and will not see again until early next year. Personnel of the expeditions are changed every 12 months. Daily they send a stream of weather reports from the sub-Antarctic to the Australian Meteorological Service headquarters in Melbourne.

MUCH RESEARCH

Research is also carried out into geology, cosmic rays, biology, geophysics, radio-physics, aurora and other subjects.

The research expeditions were formed in 1947 as part of Australia's long-range plan of exploration and development in her 2,472,000 square miles of Antarctic territory.

The two established observation stations work closely with Marion Island and the French stations at Kerguelen and Amsterdam Islands.



Life is rugged in the Antarctic camps. A year ago, when the medical officer came down with appendicitis, his friends, with the help of instructions beamed from Australia, had to carry out the operation. He was soon on the mend.

LOCAL GRUB

Food brought by the parties for their s. v. is generally supplemented by local fare—seal, penguin meat and eggs from a poultry run of sheathbills. At Heard Island, a few sheep graze on the rocky slopes.

The conquest of Everest by Sir Edmund Hillary and Sherpa Tribesman Tenzing was a popular item with the Antarctic hermits. The men radioed back that they wanted all the news they could get about that.

Halfway from Australia to the Antarctic circle, where sudden storms whip up 120-mile-an-hour gusts and the temperature drops to 20 below zero, the Australians had a fellow feeling for the man who climbed the world's highest mountain.

CANADIAN MAYORS HONOR DIEPPE DEAD — Mayors of Canadian cities who went overseas to take part in the coronation, also took part in a somewhat more sombre ceremony at the Canadian cemetery at Dieppe where they joined the mayor of Dieppe in a memorial service to honor the memory of the Canadian troops who died in the raid on the French town. Pictured here flanked by French Gendarmes are G. Bond, city solicitor of Winnipeg, who represented that city's mayor, Toronto Mayor Allan Lamport, Monsieur Piere Biez, Mayor of Dieppe, Mayor Lloyd Jackson of Hamilton, and Mayor Art Reaume of Windsor.

Silver Town Holds Reunion

COBALT (CP)—Old-timers of the early days of the silver rush here were among the thousands to visit this Northern Ontario town Sunday for the start of its week-long 50th anniversary celebrations.

Mayor Ken Buffam, wearing his chain of office made from slabs of pure silver just as they came out of the ground, welcomed many of the visitors and said: "It's going to be the biggest reuinion ever."

Some of the old-timers, who came from many parts of Canada and the United States, were Modest LaRose, 81, brother of Fred LaRose, who made the initial silver find; Charley McGuire, who prospected here in 1905, and William J. Donaldson, 80, now of Kirkland Lake, who built the first business block in Cobalt.

Two Men Drown As Boat Capsizes

GRAND BEND (CP)—Two men were drowned Sunday night when their small motor boat overturned off this Lake Huron summer resort. Two others were rescued after clinging to the craft for half an hour

Dead are Cameron McGregor, about 45, of Parkhill and Daniel Burns, Jr., 23, of Staffa. Their two companions, Jack Greenley, 21, of Harriston and Alvin F. Munn of London, were rescued by two London men in a rowboat.

Greenley told police the boat capsized without warning.

Dragging operations were started to recover the bodies.

Police Raid 3 Bottle Clubs

GODERICH (CP)—Ontario provincial police raided three "bottle clubs" simultaneously here Saturday night, seizing almost 200 cases of ale and beer from the Park House, the Anchor Club and the Huron Chief Club.

The raids were carried out by provincial police from Huron county who assisted the Goderich detachment.

A lengthy list of charges is pending in the case. Police said those concerned would likely appear in police court here Thursday.

Woman's Body Found Near Niagara

YOUNGSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—The battered body of a woman recovered Wednesday near the mouth of the Niagara river was identified Sunday as that of Mrs. Inez Belle Winslow, 55, of Nelliston, N.Y.

Mrs. Barbara Filmer of Glenville, N.Y., a daughter and Mrs. Edna Essler, a sister, made the identification.

Mrs. Filmer said her mother had been in ill health.

Niagara county coroner James Heary withheld a death certificate pending further investigation. He said she died of shock from pelvis, spine and rib fractures, and was not drowned.

Belleville Piper Welcomed Home

BELLEVILLE—More than 500 persons, including the pipe band of the 9th Anti-Tanke Regiment, were at the station Saturday night to welcome home Jamie Clarke, 84.

Mr. Clarke, former pipe major of the Belleville pipe band, made a six-week visit to his native Scotland which was sponsored by members of local veterans' organizations and service clubs. Two members of the committee, Jim Doig and Art Galbraith, met Mr. Clarke in Montreal and accompanied him home.

During his stay in Scotland he met 144 of his relatives, including a son he thought had died many years ago.

Better Pay

LONDON (CP)—Nurses who quit to become air hostesses are causing shortages in hospitals. A British European Airways official said an air hostess earns almost twice as much as a hospital nurse.

In-Laws Warned To Stay Away

COBOURG—(ENS)—"I am going to bind you over to keep the peace for a period of one year and I am suggesting to your in-laws that they leave you alone," said Magistrate R. B. Baxter in finding Charles Finnie of Port Hope guilty of assaulting Relland Beebe of Oshawa.

The assault took place May 14 in Port Hope hall after a division court action involving Beebe and the accused.

"Charles Finnie is no saint. He is quick tempered but if the in-laws would keep out of things as far as he and his wife are concerned, I think matters would be much smoother," added the magistrate.

Beebe, who is a brother-in-law of the accused, said that Finnie argued with him and his father after a division court case in Port Hope on May 14 and accused them of lying on the witness stand. Beebe said that Finnie struck him on the side of the neck.

Charles Beebe, father of the complainant, corroborated his evidence. Both Finnie and his 15-year-old son testified that Relland Beebe gave Finnie a push and that he retaliated by striking him.

Due to the impossible conditions imposed upon this Company by Local 293 of the United Packinghouse Workers of America, we will be unable to purchase local grain in this district this year.

Petes Drub The A's Again Taking 9-6 Senior Tilt To Whittle St. Kitts' Lead

Peterborough Trailermen, playing a confident, hard-checking game, scored their second victory in as many nights over the league-leading St. Catharines Athletics at Garden City Arena on Saturday. After trailing early in the game, Petes came strongly in the last half to win by a margin of 9-6 and climaxed within four points of the St. Catharines team.

Throughout the rugged sixty minutes, the outstanding player on the floor was the rotund Peterborough goalie, Moon Wootton. The all-star guardian came up with 42 stops, many of them on clear breakaways and proved to be the chief stumbling block in the Athletic bid for victory.

As well as signalling the end of seven-man lacrosse, the game also marked the first defeat for the Athletics this season on their home floor.

AN EARLY LEAD

Early in the first quarter, Athletics appeared ready and able to make up for their 17-7 trouncing the previous evening. They bounced into a 3-0 lead in the first five minutes but Trailermen gradually whittled down that margin.

At the close of the opening quarter it was 4-2 for Athletics and Petes were back on even terms at 5-5 at the half. The Canadian champs scored three unanswered goals in the third, marking the first time this year that Athletics have been held scoreless in a 15-minute span. The Petes added two goals in the last quarter.

Four players shared the scoring honors for Trailermen, Jack Mason, Russ Slater, Ike Hildebrand and Ross Powless all sniping a pair. Norm Corcoran was the only two-goal man for the Athletics.

A crowd of more than 2,000, largest to see a game in St. Catharines this year, was in attendance.

Petes: Goal, Wootton; defence, Fitzgerald and O'Hearn; centre, Mason; wings, R. Smith and Powless; rover, Slater; alternates: Thorpe, Burns, Groves, Hildebrand, Nickle, Ashbee and Vitarelli.

Athletics: Goal, Flavelle; defence, Nelson and D. Smith; centre, B. Bradshaw; wings, A. Frick and Teal; rover, Howe; alternates, D. Frick, Uhrynuk, Davies, J. Bradshaw, Corcoran and Dewar.

Toronto Team Cleans Up

WINNIPEG (CP) — Toronto athletes for the seventh consecutive year, won the team title in the Canadian junior track and field championships here Saturday but uncertainty over wind conditions clouded official jubilation over 15 individual records broke in the two-day meet.

Weather plagued the contestants in west-end Sargent Park Friday and Saturday. Rain Friday night cut short the first day's events and turned the track into a sea of mud. Saturday, stiff winds buffeted the young athletes.

Existing records were shattered in 15 events but whether the new marks will go into the record books wasn't to be decided until the annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada in Montreal Oct. 21-23.

The rules say that if the wind exceeds a velocity of two metres a second, times in certain events cannot be entered officially as records. Saturday, the wind velocity was 38-miles an hour, about 20 metres a second.

The Toronto athletes, coached by Lloyd Percival, chalked up 322 points. The Winnipeg Athletic Association was second with 94.

B.C. THIRD

Third was British Columbia (composite) with 57. Fourth was St. Lambert, Que., with 53, and fifth was Windsor with 51. The points were awarded on the basis of 8-4-3-2-1 for the first five positions.

Tom Skimming of Toronto was awarded the Orange Crush bowl, emblematic of first place individual honors. Skimming won the junior 220-yard hurdle and hop, step and jump events and finished second in the broad competition.

Biggest surprise was 15-year-old George Dinsdale of Brandon, Man., a self-taught athlete in the midget class who won every event he entered. It was his first major meet.

Barr Turner of Fort William ran third in the juvenile 440-yard final, after placing second in his heat. The event was won by L. Sloan of Montreal.

Young Bowler Named To U.K. Test Team

LONDON (AP)—The inclusion of Fred Trueman, Yorkshire's 22-year-old wonder fast bowler, was the big surprise the England selectors produced Sunday in announcing the team to meet Australia in the third cricket test match opening at Manchester next Thursday.

They also recalled W. J. Edrich, after an absence from test cricket of three years, and brought in J. C. Laker and R. T. Simpson.

Double At Thorncliffe For The Herbert Stable

William Herbert's harness stable from London, Ont., was the only double winner as Thorncliffe Raceway's 34-day meeting opened here Saturday before a record opening-day crowd of 7,000.

Bobby Herbert, 4-year-old chestnut horse by Chestnut Hal out of Jean Herbert, won both heats in the first division of the International Pace Preview, taking the fourth race in 2:11 4/5 and the seventh race in 2:11 1/5.

The wins made the London horse an early favorite for the final of the $2,500 International Pace to be run at Thorncliffe on Aug. 1.

Two winners were declared in the twin sections of the second division. Norval G., owned and driven by Lorne Ryan of Toronto, and outsider Patsy C. Lee, owned by Dunc Campbell of Aisla Craig, Ontario.

Favorites monopolized the daily double. Lee Scott Harvester, owned by C. A. Cooney of Prince Albert, Sask., and Supremus, owned by H. Ingles of Brighton, Ont., combined in the first and second races to produce a $32.15 double.

LAWN BOWLING

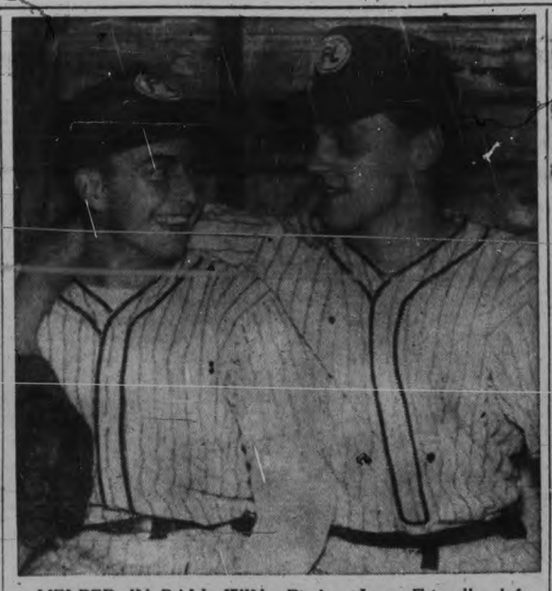
By HERB MARTIN

If the weather man will be kind to us this Wednesday, then the 9th annual tournament of the Lift-Lock gold trophy is bound to be a success.

L. Mitchell, chairman of this tournament, has worked hard and has everything in good order for the grand opening Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

That this tournament is now recognized as one of the outstanding events of its kind in Ontario, there is no doubt. It has come a long way since 1944. No greater tribute could be paid this tournament than this: many of the out-of-town bowlers who are entered for Wednesday have been coming yearly since the tournament was started in 1944 and some have asked that their entry be accepted for 1954.

This beautiful trophy was donated by Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Graham in memory of Mrs. Graham's father, Mr. Wm. Kennedy.



The slogan that has been adopted by chairman Mitchell for this tournament is one that might well be adopted by other clubs: "Leave early, arrive early and drive carefully."

The public are cordially invited to come out to the bowling greens on Wednesday and witness some of the classiest lawn bowlers of the province.

The ladies, on Friday, July 10, at 10 a.m., are holding their annual open doubles tournament for the Lincoln trophy.

The ladies and men continue this evening with regular schedule games.

The winning skips on Saturday night were: J. Adams, C. Turnbull and F. H. Dearborn.

HELPED IN BALL WIN—Pitcher Jerry Frizzelle, left, and first-sacker Stu Lingard smile at each other after aiding their team, the Peterborough Liflocs, down Port Hope 4-2 on Saturday in a lakeshore ball game at Port Hope. Frizzelle was in fine mound form to hold the Hopers in check, and Lingard came through with a mighty homer, as well as fielding his position flawlessly.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A raft of little gaffers from about 10 years up to juvenile age, are playing ball this week, thanks to the efforts of some willing guys who got the PMBA re-organized. Chaps like Jim Carver Joe Gatfield, Bill Bennett, Pat Calladine, Wimp Borland, Jack Billingsley, Ray Clifford and Dr. Ford, along with recreation director Alex Sinclair. And thanks to financial aid from four service clubs and three labor groups. Leafs play northend bantams tonight at Brinton Field, Combines and Braves tangle in a midget-juve joust tomorrow e'en at Riverside, and Braves meet Athletics next night in peewee baseball at Brinton. All 6.30 tilts. Schedules run out till the middle of August.

It's funny how quickly the little squirts learn to question the judgement of umpires, men who have been in ball for maybe 30 years or so. Human nature, one supposes, but even the peewees sometimes wonder if the umps' eyesight is all it should be. Reminds us of the story of Frankie Frisch when he was the scrappy manager of St. Louis Cards. He and Umpire Beans Reardon had many a run-in, as Frisch jockeyed his nibs from the bench on every close play. One insult by the Card pilot was missed by Reardon in a game and he came over to the dugout. "What did you say," he demanded. Frankie replied cheerfully: "You've been guessing all day; now guess what I just said to you." Reardon snapped: "I can't guess, but I can imagine—you're out of the game!"

OLA Games Here Galore

A mess of lacrosse coming up this week here, minors in the daytime in Miller Bowl and OLA teams almost nightly. Green Gaels play the Pats this even in a junior OLA fray, weather permitting, and the Pats are getting tougher every time out. Took St. Kitts 17-9 here on Saturday with a big outburst in the third quarter. Hobart, Allen, Thomas, Curtis, Logan, Farley, O'Reilly and McDougall were all prominent on the attack, while the defence and goalie shone, also. OLA juvenile "A" schedule opens here Tuesday night, Brampton opposing the local Petes, coached by Ira Dundas and managed by Henry Jay. Such local lads aboard as the Sutherland brothers, Bathe, Orde, Wright, Hunt, Hobart, Blodgett, Dundas, Foote, Bloom, Delahaye, Simmonds, etc. Senior game Wednesday has Hamilton at the Bowl, while Friday brings the Toronto Yorks.

Showing utter disregard for the loop-leading St. Kitts' Athletics, Bob Thorpe's local Trailermen thumped 'em again Saturday, this time 9-6 right in the Garden City. After spotting them an early 3-0 lead. It was rather rugged in the last half, and Moon Wootton again had to show why he's the best in the goalie business, as they threw a lot of India rubber at him. But the champs settled away and proved to 2,000 disgruntled customers why they hold the Mann Cup. They can really roll when the chips are down. Curly Mason, Ike Hildebrand, Rusty Slater and hard-working Ross Powless all were two-goal men for the victors in the Saturday scrap. They want to finish the schedule in first place and any other club getting there first will find it a rocky road indeed.

Liflocs Beat The Ports

Local Liflocs pranced into Port Hope on Saturday and proceeded to pull out a 4-2 Lakeshore Baseball League victory. Played hurry-up ball and cashed in on breaks for three runs in the fifth frame. An error, a hit by Larry Foley, an out and and a long homer by Stu Lingard made the difference in a neat number. Jerry Frizzelle hurled steady ball and had good backing by his buddies. The juniors handled by Howie Dalton and Shockey Mein are improving every start and might well upset some of the leading clubs yet. They have Cobourg here at 6.30 Wednesday e'en, and Lindsay at Riverside next Saturday when a booster day is planned.

Couple of rained-out games in the men's City Softball League were caught up at the bowl on Saturday after supper. UEW nosed out the TPT Petes 5-4 in a dandy duel, one which saw Tony Kotowski swinging a mean mace for the victors. Jack White and Bruce Taylor combined for the winning run after some steady twirling by Dalton. Nightcap saw Red Sullivan hammer out his 10th and 11th homers of the season to lead Seabrooke's to a 15-2 decision over Revoy's. Whole Ashburnham club clouted the apple hard while Terry Woods was limiting the losers to four safe blows. Games tomorrow: UEW vs. Seabrooke's, and TPT vs. Revoy's. Schedule winds up in two more weeks.

Little Mo Repeats Wimbledon Title

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Maureen Connolly, California's saucy little queen of tennis, won a battle of baseline sharpshooting Saturday from her traditional foe, Doris Hart, to take her second straight Wimbledon singles championship.

The score was 8-6, 7-5, but the championship didn't come easy. Maureen's Coral Gables, Fla., opponent scrapped for every point and placement and got in some beauties of her own.

Except for the men's doubles title which went to the 18-year-old Australians, Lewis Hoad and Ken Rosewall, Americans swept everything.

Vic Seixas of Philadelphia won the men's singles from Denmark's Kurt Nielsen Friday.

Miss Hart and Shirley Fry, of Akron, O., trounced Miss Connolly and Julie Sampson, of Pasadena, Calif., 6-0, 6-0 in the women's doubles.

Then the willowy Floridian teamed with Seixas to beat Miss Fry and Argentina's Enrique Morea in the mixed doubles, 9-7, 7-5.

Hoad and Rosewall beat their countrymen, Rex Hartwig and Mervyn Rose, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5.

Kingston Golfer Wins Title On Home Course

KINGSTON (CP) — Howard Bennett of the host Cataraqui Golf Club won the eastern Ontario golf championship Saturday with a 36-hole score of 146.

Bennett, member of the Manitoba Willingdon Cup team for the last five years, came within one stroke of the tournament record set by Ernie Bentley and J. C. Boecki of Toronto.

Bentley, last year's champion, was second with 151. G Wagar of Napanee and S. Burton of Watertown, N.Y., tied for third with 152.

Peterborough Pats pulled up into third place in the OLA junior "A" standing here Saturday night by defeating St. Catharines 17-9 in a four-point fixture. They led 3-1 in the first frame but it was deadlocked at 5-all by halftime in even battling. However, Lou Vitarelli's local crew caught fire in the third period for a 9-1 scoring edge to make it 14-6 going into the even fourth chukker. Play was fairly fast throughout and quite clean but for a couple of accidental slashing penalties which drew blood and major sentences, and a brief fist flurry in the fourth between Brioux and Cox, both going off with majors. There was not a penalty in the first half of

Liflocs Take Close One In Port Hope

Peterborough Liflocs yanked out a 4-2 Lakeshore Baseball League triumph over Port Hope on Saturday on the latter's diamond. Jerry Frizzelle scattered seven hits for the Mein-Dalton crew and had fair backing as he fanned five in the seven-inning struggle. He gave but one walk. Holman of the Hopers also allowed seven safe blows, but the visiting juniors bunched them in the fifth, including a long homer by Lingard and a Port's error, for three runs.

Young rapped out a single and double for the winners and Foley clicked for two singles in three tries. Foley also pilfered a base, as Keeler, McDerment and Baxter each stole one sack for the homers. The losers also reeled off a double-play in the neat fray.

Native Dancer Romps Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Native Dancer Alfred Vanderbilt's big grey three-year-old champion, romped off with the $56,200 Dwyer Stakes at Aqueduct Saturday.

The Dancer took the lead at the top of the stretch a quarter of a mile from home in the 1¼-mile event and went on to defeat George Wichfeld's Guardian 2nd, a Frenchbred, was third, another two lengths away.

The judges, however, called for a peek at the moving pictures after jockey Jimmy Nichols aboard Dictar cut in front of Guardian 2nd near the finish. They disqualified Dictor, moving him to last place, and moved Guardian 2nd into second money of $10,000; and gave third money of $5,000 to By Zeus, owned by Jane Greer of the films, wife of Edward Lasker.

Lowly Washington Scores Double Win Over Yanks Brooklyn Plastered 20-6

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

Bob Porterfield and Johnny Schmitz are the new idols of "I Hate the Yankees" clubs from coast to coast. And Jerry Snyder must be at least an honorary vice-president. The trio of ex-Yanks, traded during the regime of manager Casey Stengel, teamed up to help Washington sweep an American League doubleheader from the Yanks Sunday, 4-0 and 5-4. It was the Yanks' first double loss of the year.

Porterfield, shunted to Washington in 1951, shut out New York with five hits and allowed only one man to reach second base in the opener. Schmitz, cut loose this spring, mopped up with a fine relief job in the second game. Snyder, who toiled on the Yankee farms until he was tossed into the Jackie Jensen-Irv Noren swap last spring, came through with three hits, drove in two runs and scored another in the nightcap.

Chicago and Cleveland both gained a full game on the Yanks by splitting two at Cleveland. Southpaw Billy Pierce blanked the Indians 4-0 on five hits to keep the White Sox in second place after Cleveland came from behind to beat reliefer Harry Dorish in the opener 7-6.

EIGHT IN FIRST

Boston scored eight in the first inning to give Mel Parnell a 10-2 romp over Philadelphia and Detroit, for the first time all season, took both ends of a doubleheader from St. Louis Browns, 10-7 and 7-1.

The Yanks now lead Chicago by 5½ and Cleveland by six games.

Brooklyn's National League advantage shrunk to 1½ games when they absorbed a 20-6 drubbing from New York Giants, their worst defeat in many a season. Hank Thompson hit two homers, one with the bases full, and drove in seven runs.

Milwaukee and St. Louis, fighting for second, split. Warren Spahn pitched his 29th major league shutout in the first to win 4-0 with the help of homers by Johnny Logan and Ed Mathews, his 24th. Red Schoendienst's three-run pinch homer gave St. Louis the second 4-1, halted by darkness after eight innings.

10-INNING GAME

The Phillies nipped Pittsburgh 2-0, in 10 innings as Robin Roberts started the winning rally with a double. It was Roberts' 13th victory and 20th complete game in 20 starts this season. The Sunday curfew halted a likely defeat for the Phils in the second game as they trailed 7-0 after six innings when the game was stopped. It will be completed before an Aug. 11 night game.

Chicago and Cincinnati divided a pair of free-hitting games. Hank Sauer hit two doubles and a single to run his string to six straight hits in helping win the first game 8-4, but he was stopped by Clyde King in the second game. Ralph Kiner hit his 17th and 18th homers and Sauer and Bill Serena also homered but they weren't enough to save the second game, won by Cincinnati, 8-6.

Royals Collect Three Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Royals won three out of four International League games during the week-end to put them 2½ games ahead of the second-place Buffalo Bisons.

The Montrealers downed Rochester 2-0 and 6-2 Saturday and split with Syracuse Chiefs Sunday, taking the nightcap 5-1 after losing a 12-9 slugfest opener.

Buffalo split their week-end games, dividing with Toronto Saturday, 5-7 and 9-7 and repeating with the Leafs again Sunday, winning the opener 5-2, only to lose 3-0 against Don Johnson's two-hit pitching in the second.

The third-place Red Wings split with Ottawa Sunday. The Athletics won the opener 3-2 and the Wings the nightcap by the same score. Ottawa won the opener against Syracuse 6-2 Saturday and lost the second game 4-0.

Marv Rackley had a perfect Sunday at bat as he pounded out a homer, a triple and three singles to pace Baltimore Orioles to a 9-3 victory over Springfield Cubs. Baltimore also downed the tail-end Cubs 4-3 and 3-2 Saturday.

In the opener Sunday at Syracuse, the Chiefs staged two five-run splurges, batting Hamp Coleman for 11 of their 14 hits. In the nightcap Gil Mills pitched five-hit ball for the resurgent Royals.

In the first game at Toronto, Buffalo's Paul Foystack held the Leafs to five hits while striking out six and walking two. He also hit a three-run homer in the seventh.

Leafs got to starter Frank Early in the second game when centre-fielder Bob Addis hit a two-run tripie in the first frame.

Ottawa took their first game from Rochester, nipping Cot Deal on a pair of 10th-inning doubles by winner Bob Trice and Skeeter Kell. In the nightcap, the Wings rallied for two runs in the fifth to win for reliefer Bob Tiefenauer.

Asbestos Exports Expected To Face World Competition

OTTAWA (CP)—Nearly 70 per cent of the world's asbestos fibre is produced in Canada and exports in the next few years will hinge largely on the "goodwill" of the industry.

The latest issue of Foreign Trade, published by the government's trade department, says it is a credit to the industry and important for future dealings that Canadian mines have kept prices at "reasonable" levels.

Asbestos fibres have been scarce in recent years. Foreign Trade says Canadian mines could have obtained three or four times the prices charged.

Exports of asbestos fibre in 1951 totalled 342,000 tons valued at more than $80,000,000. In 1939 production was 374,000 tons. But as a consumer, Canada ranks low—less than five per cent of the asbestos produced is used here.

Two factors have boosted foreign demand: Industrial uses have grown and new uses have developed, such as the evolution of asbestos friction materials. Major uses for asbestos are in building materials, moulded automotive parts, papers and cloth.

U.S. SHARE

The United States buys 75 per cent of the asbestos from Canada's seven producing companies, five of which are subsidiaries of American or British firms. Asbestos enters the U. S. duty-free and supplies a large manufacturing group which in 1951 turned out some $450,000,000 worth of asbestos products.

As asbestos deposits are found elsewhere in the world, Canadian producers will likely face increased competition. A continuing market would seem to be assured in the U. S. but sales competition is likely to become keener in Europe. Here transport charges would be significant.

Canada's exports of manufactured asbestos goods had a value of $1,500,000 in 1951 and included brake-linings and packings. Half these exports went to the U. S. Other markets included the British West Indies, South America, Europe and the Middle and Far East.

At the same time, Canada imported $3,400,000 worth of manufactured asbestos products, all from the U. S. Manufacture of asbestos products in Canada is largely limited to Canadian requirements.

Mrs. Charles Shepherd

HAVELOCK — (ENS) — The funeral of Mrs. Charles H. Shepherd, 75, took place on Saturday afternoon. The service in the Curtis Funeral Parlors was conducted by the Rev. William Stevenson of the Pentecostal Church. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery. The pallbearers were: Derwood Scott, Henry Ellis, Luke Thompson, Chris Steenburgh, George Outwater, Joseph Corneil.

Mrs. Shepherd was born at Arden and was formerly Bertha Viola Clarke, daughter of the late Anson Clarke and Charlotte A. Kellar. She was a member of the Free Methodist Church and a resident of Picton before coming to Havelock with her husband seven years ago.

Surviving besides her husband are two sisters, Mrs. Lois A. Osborne of Arden and Mrs. Ruth C. Barker of Watertown, N.Y.

AID 227 TOURISTS

The Junior Chamber of Commerce tourist information booth on Charlotte St. was kept busy over the weekend in giving aid and information to 227 American and Canadian tourists.

THANKED VISITING BAND

Alex Sinclair, director of recreation, expressed to the directors and members of the military band the appreciation of the large audience at Nicholls Oval Sunday night for the splendid concert and entertainment.

ROSS DOBBIN RETURNS

President of the Engineering Institute of Canada Ross Dobbin returned from Great Britain on Saturday. Following attendance in the Abbey of the Coronation, he toured the Midlands, Scotland and Ireland. Many of his calls had to do with Institute matters.

TO PHOTOGRAPH LIFT LOCK

Bates Littlehales, staff photographer of the National Geographic Magazine is back in Peterborough for a second time to photograph the lift lock and other outdoor scenes around Peterborough for an article on Ontario that will appear in the December issue of the magazine.

NINE-POUND PICKEREL

Carl H. Kelly, of Columbus, O., landed a 9-pound walleye today on Lake Katchewanooka and rushed it to the Examiner to have it photographed; the fish was still breathing. Mr. Kelly caught it with a joined plug in a bay on the upper part of the lake. He plans to have it mounted.

INTERESTING INTIMATION

An announcement of exceptional interest to Peterborough is expected at tonight's meeting of the city council. It relates to a business project which was mooted from Toronto several months ago. Delay in publication was requested for the reason that the details were not then completed.

FOUR POSTAL DELEGATES

Four Peterborough men—members of the Federated Association of Letter Carriers (AFL-TLC)—attended the meeting of Ontario postal employees in Hamilton Sunday. They were Robert Healey, Leo McCormick, Frank Adam, and Norman Thomas. Details of their six-point formula may be found elsewhere in this paper.

PARK WELL PATRONIZED

Public play area of Lakefield Park was patronized by more people over this weekend than at any time since its construction. More than 50 cars containing family picnic parties used the two dozen tables. The wading beach was crowded with youngsters during the afternoon. Water skiing, sailing, canoeing and general tripping filled the river and lake with boats.

SEVEN SHAKEN UP

Seven people were shaken up but there were no serious injuries Sunday afternoon when two cars were in head-on collision on the county road a half mile north of Jack Lake. A car driven by Patrick Callan, 37, of 133 Benson Ave., was in the accident with a southbound car driven by Francis Eugene Russell, 22, of 431 Indian Grove, Toronto. Total damage was estimated at $600. OPP Constable Jack McKendry investigated.

Tourist Trade Booming; Fishing Good

Expect To Have Resorts Filled Till Mid-August

Everybody in the Kawartha summer playground is happy these days.

Resorts are bursting with guests—and owners expect this situation to exist till at least mid-August—the guests are having good fishing luck and city merchants are playing a merry tune on their cash registers.

RICE LAKE

'Lunge, pickerel and bass are biting well in this area. Mrs. William Kingzett, of Lyndhurst, O., boated a 47-pound 'lunge on Saturday; she is staying at Art Elmhirst's cabins, east of Keene.

The 100-odd guests at Highland View are just about getting their limits while 100 more at Jack Doherty's camp near Harwood on the south shore are also pleased with their successes.

BUCKHORN-DEER BAY

Fair fishing reports to good come from lodges in the Buckhorn area. Resorts are nearly all filled.

Ed Pearson on Deer Bay has more than 125 guests at present and expects to retain such bookings until the third week of August. A 12½-pound 'lunge was top fish at his place with many small jacks being released. Pickerel are biting fairly well and bass just fair.

LOVESICK-STONY

Both fishing and lodge bookings in the Burleigh section are reported good and the same story applies to all the Stony Lake lodges to the east.

Russ Irwin of Irwin Inn, east of Crowe's Landing, was thrown into a flat spin early today when the early morning electric storm shut off his hydro for four hours. He managed to get breakfast for his lodge full of guests regardless of the breakdown.

Largest 'lunge reported for this season was taken at Chemong Lake south of the Causeway by Norm Booth of Bridgenorth; it weighed 23¾ pounds.

The best weekend fishing story concerns Paul Winkworth, 9, of Roseneath. While fishing on Sunday afternoon between Margaret and Birdsall Islands on Rice Lake, he hooked a 37-inch 'lunge (15 pounds) with a 15-cent line.

Two American fishermen assisted Paul in landing his prize.

AFTER A LONG BATTLE Norman Booth of Bridgenorth Saturday landed a 22-pound 12-ounce muskie south of the causeway at Chemong lake. Using a copper spoon, Booth was fishing with Darryl Dinsdale when he hooked the fish. For 15 minutes the fish kept well hidden. He saw the muskie for the first time after 15 minutes and many times during the next 45 minutes before it was finally boated. The two young fishermen, Booth (at left) and Dinsdale (at right), hold the fish.

Several Small Fires Given Attention

A smouldering cigarette started a fire at the home of W. Caldwell, 332 Rubidge St., Saturday night. A skirt had a hole burned in it and the fire also charred the floor. Some smoke damage was reported.

It was one of several small fires reported during the weekend.

Later Saturday night some sawdust by the CNR railway tracks, Hawley and Little Sts. caught fire and firemen used a handpump to put the blaze out.

An extinguisher was used to prevent a fire spreading from the brake lining to the body of a car owned by Gordon Fee, 584½ Harvey St. The emergency brake was left on as the car drove along the Chemong Road on Saturday night and the lining began to smoke.

Sunday afternoon some sawdust caught fire on the Lawrence Salvage property on Erskine Ave. A booster tank was used to douse the blaze.

ABNER WINDSOR

Abner Windsor 3 Days Younger Than Canada

Abner Windsor's first job in the lumber camps lasted only four months. "The first day I went into work, the foreman gave me an axe, and told me to go out in the woods and trim some balsam poles for my bed."

That was the 86-year-old Peterborough man's first taste of the lumberman's life. Working 10 to 12 hours a day he walked out at the end of the cutting season $60 richer, which, in 1900, was no small amount.

Mr. Windsor, a resident of 594 George St., was born three days after Confederation was enacted. His home was in Pendleton near the far eastern corner of Ontario.

200 MILES BY SLEIGH

Christmas Eve of 1874 was a memorable occasion in his life. That was the night Mr. Windsor, at the age of seven, arrived at his new home in Apsley after a 10-day sleigh ride from his first home. The sleigh average 20 miles a day.

He married and lived in Apsley close to 40 years, during which time he worked as a lumberman, farmer and carpenter. From 1921 to 1930 he lived in Lakefield, working there as a carpenter.

Moving to Brantford, Mr. Windsor lived there until his wife died in 1951. He then came to Peterborough where he now lives with his daughter, Mrs. N. J. Harrison.

The octogenarian now has six great grandchildren, five grandchildren and three children.

Celebrating his birthday Saturday, the man who was born three days after his country's first birthday had a cake to help him celebrate the occasion.

It was only a medium size cake, though and there just wasn't room for all 86 candles!

Orangemen Of 5 Counties Plan Parade In Cobourg

Orangemen from five counties will go to Cobourg Saturday where they will celebrate the 263rd anniversary of the winning of the Battle of the Boyne. Five hundred marchers are expected from Peterborough County. The Peterborough contingent consisting of 16 lodges—nine LOL, five LOBA, and two juvenile—will be headed by County Master Ralph Langley and County Master Jack Brown.

In Peterborough the annual walk will be at 8 p.m., from the CNR station, after the contingent has returned from Cobourg. The parade will follow the usual route: from the CNR station at Charlotte and Bethune Sts., east to George St., north on George to Hunter St., east on Hunter to Water St., north on Water to London St., west on London, and finally south on George to Brock St., where the parade will disperse at the Orange Hall.

As many as 3,000 members of the Orange Order are expected in Cobourg for the annual march. They are from the five counties of Ontario, Victoria, Peterborough, and Durham-Northumberland. Last year local Orangemen celebrate "the glorious 12th" in Port Hope.

The marchers will assemble in the Cobourg park and should move off for a parade through the town at 1.30 p.m.

Lodge members from Peterborough are arranging their own transportation. They are expected to have four or five fife and drum bands, at least.

Color, General Musicianship Highlights Of Army Band

A composite band selected from three Canadian military units delighted an audience of thousands at Nicholls Oval Sunday evening in an auspicious beginning of an extended tour of concerts.

In addition to its Canadian membership, its impressive personnel of 85 musicians included some from British Guards bands and the Royal Artillery, and some five or six Hollanders with a background of Amsterdam and Rotterdam symphonies.

This band possesses rich instrumentation with a numerous clarinet section that invests it with the fluency of symphonic strings, and the additional tone color of further strength of reeds in the saxophones, from baritones to altos, bassoons, two oboes, flutes and piccolo. The same amplitude and range of composition was seen, and heard, in its brass, from the bass horns through euphoniums, French horns, tenor and bass trombones, trumpets and cornets. All that wealth of instrumentation, with a clever percussion group, was a promise of program content, and it was an anticipation splendidly fulfilled.

The band has beauty of ensemble tone, with just about every other element of musicianship that might be sought; delicacy of shading and nuance, striking effects of color, particularly from the reeds and French horns, disciplined virility in its full voice, and sensitive conductorship.

PERFECT EVENING

The people who heard this band will gratefully remember its visit as an unusually pleasurable accompaniment of a perfect summer evening. It was hardly perfect, at that, for gathering clouds in the west advised the omission of three or four numbers, one of them the cornet solo "Softly Wakes My Heart" from Samson and Delilah. And, in that memory should be the sweep of the wood winds particularly in the Slavonic rhapsody by Friedman, and in the Espana Waltz, listed as by Waldteufel, but recognized as the Chabrier rhapsody.

Link with those two minor classics the medley of Cole Porter songs, modern idiom and syncopation for the most part, and there will be a lingering memory also of the band's ability in rhythm. Near top of the program was the familiar Light Cavalry overture, like the other numbers, in professional smoothness. At the end was a descriptive piece entitled "Nightfall In Camp," the cornets playing the "Last Post" against the dissolving accompaniment of the other instruments' "Lead Kindly Light," almost muted. It conveyed a moving effect, as few persons could ever have heard the camp call so poignantly presented against the refinement of melody of the music of "fast falls the eventide."

"The American Patrol," a familiar band number, was played in the arrangement of Glen Miller and to his memory as a famous orchestra leader who lost his life in the Second World War.

Done in masterly detail was the Burl Ives folk song "Jimmy Crack Corn, written as a "fantasia." A trombone solo, "The Joy Wheel," by Sgt. P. Murray, brought out his skill with that bland instrument.

"The Post Horn Gallop" with Staff Sgt. A. Lee as soloist was a concert novelty suggesting association with John Peel, his hounds and his horn and his red-coated fox hunters, and likewise the Muggleston coach with the Pickwick party on the road to Rochester. The post horn has a light golden tone. The Gallop was played in presto speed, its calls repeated by the band with the same gay spirit of the horn. It was a brilliant little surprise for the audience.

The conductors were: Lieut. Bernie J. Lyons, of the Royal Canadian Signals Corps band; Lt. Wm. A. Armstrong, of the Royal Canadian Regiment, and Capt. James Gayfer, of the First Canadian Infantry Battalion. Narrator of the program was Del Crary, former dance band leader of Peterborough and now with the Royal Canadian Signals band.

The last open air band concert to compare with that of Sunday night was played here years ago by the Anglo-Canadian Leather Company's band of Huntsville, conducted by Herbert Clarke, who had previously been solo cornetist with Sousa. They came to Peterborough for an engagement at the Exhibition in the days when the late Roland Denne and R. M. Glover were lads to take a chance on bookings. Charles Shaw's fine band, and it gained a wide reputation throughout the country, up to the time of sudden dispersal, lacked the degree of color and the general musicianship that stood out so impressively in Sunday's concert. It is safe to say there has never been a band heard here with wood-winds and reeds generally to compare with this one. It should highly please audiences of thousands in their tour.

Farmers Find Storage Bins Limited

Rain Delays Haying But Lighter Lands Were Becoming Dry

That was no million dollar rain this morning. The .65 of an inch could have been held up for a few more days to facilitate the haying business for those who were slow in getting started or hampered when they did get things moving barnward.

No one is questioning the timing of Providence, especially in this season's policy of maintaining the greenness of its fields. Some farmers reported that the recent sunshine and winds had dried the surface soil on light land, and for them rain today was quite acceptable.

Wheat is steadily changing color, a slow graduation in the ripening and maturing process.

Peterborough district farmers who stored a lot of grain last summer with the Quaker Oats Company are being informed by advertisement that this accommodation may not be available when the combines start to work in the crop.

Ald. J. A. Dewart said today that Dewart Milling Company has limited space. In that prospect of farm practice of disposing of grain directly from the combined field either by sale or storage, a problem is likely to develop to those farmers who found ample outlet to their fine crop of 1952. However most farmers still have ample granary space.

It will likely be a few weeks yet before the fall wheat is ripe for harvesting.

On the whole the wheat crop is said to be standing up pretty well in spite of the lush growth of stalk and its lack of firmness.

Barley and oats are generally heading out, and from all appearance the oat yield is likely to be heavy. That signifies a big harvesting job approaching.

Corn is in various stages of progress, and could do with a stretch of hot weather. In some phases of the rural work there is a spotiness of advancement in the extent of the haying. Most of the crop is off in some instances, and in other fields there has been persisting delay from the comparative frequency of rain.

Pastures are in excellent condition, although the ground has been almost too damp and soft in some places, and liable to damage from grazing cattle.

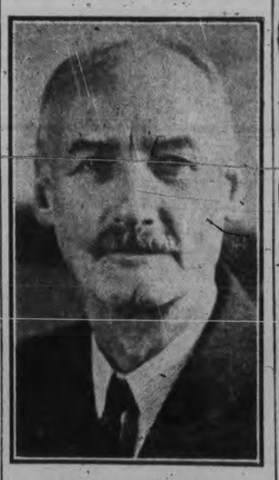
Two Men Hurt Car Hits Pole

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Two men were injured Saturday night when a 1937-model car left the highway on the outskirts of Warkworth and struck a hydro pole, breaking off a five-foot section and moving the pole 14 feet.

The driver. Thomas Gerald Roberts, 23, of 76 James St., Cobourg, lost control and the car left the road. He suffered lacerations of the forehead and abrasions of the right knee.

A passenger in the car, Stanley Bell, of 493 Sackville St., Toronto, suffered mutiple glass cuts in his face and a lacerated lip.

They were attended by Dr. W. W. Baker of Campbellford. Damage to the car was estimated at about $300.



OPP Constable George Rose of Campbellford investigated.

Boy 9 Catches 15-Lb. Muskie

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Paul Winkworth, 9, of Roseneath, while fishing on Sunday afternoon with his uncle, Robert Winkworth in Rice Lake, caught a 37 inch maskinonge weighing 15 pounds with a line which cost 15 cents.

Paul was assisted in landing the fish by two American fishermen, fishing nearby. The place where the fish was caught was between Margaret's Island and Birdsall's.

Paul is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Winkworth of Roseneath and is a pupil of S.S. 3, Alnwick.

JAMES W. RIDPATH

James Ridpath Senior Citizen Lakefield Dies

One of the best-known citizens of Lakefield, James William Ridpath, of Concession St., died suddenly at his home on Saturday. He had been in indifferent health for the past three years. Mr. Ridpath was born in Peterborough 80 years ago, son the late Samuel Ridpath and Jane Isbister, and moved to the village at the age of six years. He resided there ever since except for a short while working at the printing trade in Erin and Chesley.

Mr. Ridpath was owner-editor of the Lakefield News which he published for 50 years, until 1942. The newspaper continued under new managment for another year before ceasing publication. He was chairman of the Public and High School Boards for 25 years. He was a member of the Lakefield Presbyterian Church, serving on its board of management and active in the Sunday School, and a life member of the Lakefield Curling Club.

In Masonic circles he was recipient of the 50-year Past Master's jewel of Clementi Lodge No. 373 and was also a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

Mr. Ridpath leaves his wife, the former Jean Vernon Thompson, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Harold Footitt (Jean), and two sons, Clayton and John, all of Toronto. A third son, Charles, lives at home. There is one sister, Mrs. Isabella Winrow, of Blenheim, and two brothers, Gordon and John, both of Toronto, and nine grandchildren.

A Masonic funeral will be held today at the Hendren funeral home at 8 p.m. Funeral service will be from the same place on Tuesday, at 2 p.m., and the Rev. Horace Kaye will officiate. Burial will be at Lakefield cemetery.

Car Hits Tree Driver Cut On Head

Condition Is Serious Driver Suffers Fracture Of Skull

Austin Bridgewater, 177 Hazlitt St., was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital early Saturday night after his car had crashed into a large maple tree on Rogers St. near Hazlitt St. At first his condition was believed critical but this was changed later to serious and he was suffering from a compound fracture of the skull.

He had been travelling north on Rogers St. when he swerved suddenly to the west side but he managed to cut back on the road, only to swerve a second time to the left. This time he hit the maple tree directly in front of Milton Fisher's home at 633 Rogers St.

Bridegwater was thrown against the windshield, shattering it near the centre bar. He then apparently bounced back, coming forward a second time, this time hitting the windshield, shattering it near the right-hand door.

Cecil Gummer of Warkworth, who was staying at 629 Rogers St. with Mr. Fisher who was inside the house when Bridgewater hit the tree, ran out, took him from the car and placed him on the lawn.

There Bridgewater, bleeding from a gash which extended from an inch above his nose around his head to a point four inches above the back of his neck, was given first aid. Mrs. F. W. DeForge, 130 Hazlitt St., and Miss Henrietta McGeary, a Victorian Order nurse, treated him.

Bridgewater was then rushed to hospital by Nisbett's ambulance, escorted by PC Harold Andrews, the investigating officers.

Attended by Dr. William D. Blastorah, 296 Stewart St., Bridgewater was semi-conscious Saturday night and Sunday. Although he was conscious today, Bridgewater's condition was described as "about the same, no change" and he was "resting comfortably."

Gasoline and oil seeped out of the car and the Peterborough fire department was called to wash this danger away. Firemen Joe Astles, Sherman Irwin and Bill Clark used a small hose to prevent any possible fire.

The cause of the accident is not known. At first police believed a child running across the street had caused Bridgewater to swerve but an eye witness, Lynn Thain, 629 Rogers St., ruled that theory out.

"The car just seemed to sway, then pull out again," said Thain. "Then it headed for the tree. I didn't see any kid there."

Neighbors who rushed to the scene seconds after the accident happened said there were no children nearby when they went out.

The car, which suffered $900 damage, was towed to Russelle's garage on Water St. N.

Thomas Elder Followed Lumber Camps

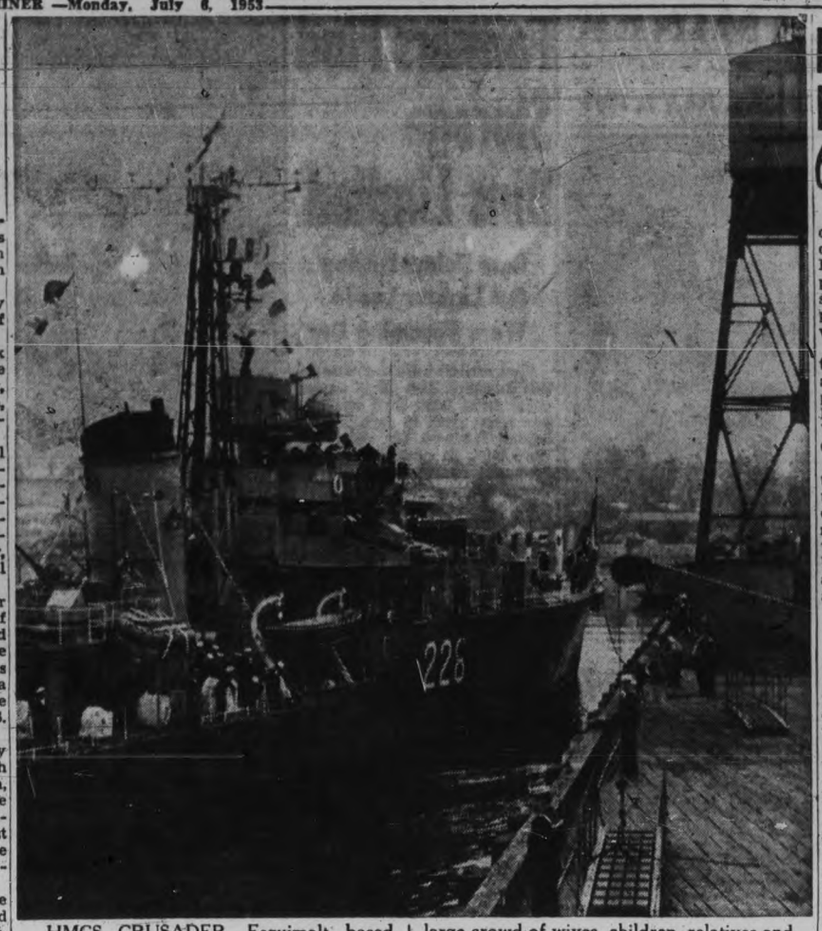
ROSENEATH—(ENS) The funeral service for the late Thomas Elder was held at the McMillan Funeral Home, Roseneath, on Wednesday.

The service was conducted by the Rev. J. R. Wheeler, pastor of Roseneath United Church.

The pallbearers were six nephews: Arnold Elder, George Elder, Roseneath, Slyvie Elder, Percy Elder, Bruce Ferguson, Fenella and Arthur Carew, Baltimore.

Included among the many floral tributes were: A spray from Bowmanton School Section and Fenella United Church. Great-nephews carried the floral tributes: Lorne Elder, Oshawa; Charles, Theodore and Lorne Elder, Roseneath; Keith Elder and Bill McGee, Fenella.

The deceased was born near Baltimore 87 years ago, a son of the late Alexander Elder and Margaret Taylor. Moving to the Bowmanton community (six miles south-west of Roseneath) when a young boy with his parents, he attended Bowmanton School, S.S. 17, Haldimand.



As a young man, about seventy years ago, Mr. Elder along with William H. Taylor of Roseneath, went to the lumber camps in the State of Michigan. As a coincidence, Mr. Taylor was the first person to sign the register at the McMillan Funeral Home following Mr. Elder's death.

Later going to Wisconsin, where he married Delia Ada Gain and then moving to Saskatchewan, nine years ago, he returned to Ontario, again taking up residence in the Bowmanton community.

His death occurred at Sidbrook Hospital, Cobourg, following an illness of eight months.

His wife predeceased him upwards of forty years ago. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Wilfred Ferris (Agnes), Calgary; two sons, Ross of Calgary and David of British Columbia, also five grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. George Harvie and a brother, David Elder, both of Fenella.

Interment was in Bethesda Cemetery near Harwood.

Postal Workers Propose 6-Point Formula

Robert Healey, of the local post office staff, attended a meeting of Ontario postal employees in Hamilton Sunday when a six-point formula for solution of salary and working conditions in post offices throughout Canada was proposed.

Representatives of the Federation Association of Letter Carriers and the Canadian Postal Employees attended from Brockville, Peterborough, Windsor, Toronto, Welland, Galt, London, Guelph, Grimsby, Simcoe and Belleville.

The six-point formula was contained in a resolution put before the meeting by Hamilton postal employees, saying if they did not receive a "satisfactory reply" from the government within 60 days all branches of the FALC and CPE are to meet and consider further action.

SIX POINTS

The six points:

1. Union recognition;
2. Collective bargaining rights;
3. The Rand formula, under which all employees pay union dues whether members of the union or not;
4. A five-day, 40-hour work week with time and a half for overtime and double time for holidays and Sundays;
5. A $500 salary increase across the board;
6. That a postal employee attain maximum salary within three years.

Pre-Operation Ritual Often Needless

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Lots of that medical ritual you're put through in having an operation is needless, a hangover of habit, says Dr. Samuel Harbison of Pittsburgh in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

He says much of the shaving isn't needed. Neither are many enemas, shots of morphine, or bans on drinking water or eating foods you like. He suggests a new analysis to learn what rules may be outmoded.

Many patients are nervous and apprehensive before an operation.

"Then come enemas, shaving, deprivation of fluids, and administration of drugs by hypodermic injections. Must all these procedures be routine for all patients? How can we make the preoperative phase less of an ordeal?"

Dr. Harbison says the need for enemas before all surgery is highly questionable and may be terrifying to a child. They're even ordered in some hospitals, he adds, before a child's tonsils are taken out.

He abolished routine enemas five years ago and reports no complications resulting. They are necessary before some types of surgery, however.

As for shaving, that is often dictated "by outdated nursing procedure books." The area to be operated on must be shaved but he saw no need to shave the lower parts of the body for a chest operation.

At one hospital, routine shaving for chest surgery includes not only the armpits, but "the upper arm, forearm, hand, and fingers on the affected side . . . . The reason . . . was that the anaesthetist could better find and more deftly pierce the veins. "I am quite sure this routine was not dictated by reason."

In some hospitals, everyone is given morphine efore surgery, even though itnauseates 10 to 15 per cent of patients. Morphine, he says, is thought to be especially good in reducing apprehension but he finds barbiturate drugs just as good or better.

The rule banning any fluids after midnight needs study, especially for children, Dr. Harbison writes. Dryness just adds to the discomfort. Except in certain conditions, fluids can be taken safely until three to four hours before surgery.

After surgery, routine orders often forbid giving a patient even sips of water for some time. But Dr. Harbison finds water usually is safe, even after surgery on the esophagus. The sooner a patient starts to drink fluids, the sooner he won't need fluids by vein, and the sooner he can take pills by mouth.

Aircraft Crash Trenton Holiday

TRENTON (CP) — This 100-year-old Air Force town's centennial weekend featured air displays.

Two planes crashed and were totally destroyed. No one was injured, however, because the disaster involved two model aircraft displaying aerobatics in minature.

Over 50 aircraft from the RCAF station here staged an air display Sunday afternoon, climax of which was the dropping of two members of the para-rescue flight into the Bay of Quinte, where they were rescued by the station's service and rescue flight.

During the display, 11 Harvard training planes flew over the town in a formation. Aerobatic demonstrations were given by pilots of a Mustang and a T33 jet trainer.

A drumhead service and military parade in which 50 Legion branches participated ended the celebrations. The salute was taken by Maj.-Gen. Howard Graham, a former Trenton resident.

Americans Return After Weekend

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Customs and immigration officials said Sunday night there was little or no delay in the handling of cars at the Ambassador bridge or the Windsor-Detroit tunnel as thousands of United States residents returned home after spending the July 4 holiday week-end in Canada.

Officials estimated traffic was about as heavy as Saturday when close to 10,000 persons an hour were passing over the international boundary

U.S. residents, many of whom own summer homes on this side of the Detroit river, started the mass invasion Friday night. The traffic into Canada reached its peak Saturday.

Following the service, the congregation went to the cemetery and placed flowers on the graves of loved ones.

U.K. Commercial TV Could Close Papers

LONDON (AP) — Lord Rothermere, one of Britain's leading publishers, said Saturday premature introduction of sponsored television in Britain might force more newspapers to fold up.

In his annual statement to shareholders, the publisher of the Conservative London newspaper Daily Mail and Evening News said any approval of commercial TV now "is bound to have an impact on newspapers and periodicals since the revenue must come from advertising."

"This impact," he added, "will affect the small or weak publications more than the large or strong. It is possible that more publications will go out of existence, which would be a result much to be deplored."

MOUNT BRYDGES (CP)—Scores of people of all ages gathered in Community Hall Park Saturday to honor Kate Thornton of Caradoc upon her retirement after half a century as a public school teacher in this district. A varied program of entertainment was carried out in which many of her former pupils took part. She was recipient of farewell gifts including a substantial purse of money.

Socialized Medicine Has Serious Failings

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP)—It's five years to the day since Britain took on socialized medicine. As of today, the program has overwhelming approval. But there still is an almost universal feeling that the system has serious failings which must be remedied.

To put it simply, the government-run national health service offers everyone medical and dental care, with the treasury paying most of the bills. Up to 95 per cent of its 49,000,000 patients are happy. Most of the gripes involve individual doctors, dentists, nurses, opticians and pharmacists who serve them.

The drawbacks are chiefly these: A minority of patients exploit the blank cheque issued by the government and overburden the facilities. Official red tape has in some cases made the old doctor-patient relationship less intimate and trusting. There are complaints that quality has been sacrificed for treatment in quantity.

HAVE BENEFITED

But even doctors agree that 20,000,000 women and children of workers' families who in pre-service days couldn't afford proper attention have benefited tremendously.

The government pays 90 per cent of the cost out of general taxes and workers' insurance, gets the other 10 per cent from the users. The cost is £400,000,000 ($1,120,000,000) annually, or about £8 ($22.40) for each individual.

Under the plan, the doctor without an assistant is permitted a maximum of 3,500 patients. He's paid on the basis of the number of patients, so he likes to have his list full. If it is; according to Dr. Bruce Cardew, executive secretary of the Medical Practitioners Union, the general practitioner, or family doctor, nets $9,072 annually. He can earn extra money by private practice, from those who can afford to pay outside the service.

The British Dental Association says net earnings of the average dentist were $6,160 in 1949-50. That was during the rush of patients suddenly conscious of the state of their teeth when treatment became free. Now, the association says, the annual net income is down to $3,220.

FIND RED TAPE

Dentists complain of red tape. Such items as dentures, extensive gum treatment, gold fillings, inlays, crowns and the like must first get approval of the nine-member dental estimates board.

On the other hand, doctors and dentists have one major item of expense taken out of their hands: The government collects their bills. They don't have to deal with individual patients at the end of the month.

The concept of a national health plan goes back to Winston Churchill's wartime government, but it was the Labor party which enacted the law in 1946. Under it, the government took over all private hospitals, except a few private institutions largely religious.

Of some 24,000 doctors, about 1,000 still devote most of their time to private practice—treating those who can afford their own payments. About 250 are entirely in private practice.

PRESCRIPTIONS HIGH

The cost of prescriptions is high in relation to the program's total. Last year it ran about 8.5 per cent, and the government announced that 292 doctors had been found over-prescribing expensive drugs—"through lack of discipline and social conscience." One was fined, the rest were warned.

In the upper-income brackets, there are objections to lining up in long queues for service. On the other hand, in hospital visits the writer found patients of all classes mixing with surprising amiability.

Foreigners are given the same sort of treatment that Britons get. So there's the oft-repeated gag about European women who spend the ninth month of pregnancy vacationing in England.

In a different vein, there's the American who dropped his glasses and stepped on them. He took them to a shop and was told he could have them in six weeks.

"And how am I expected to see until then?" he asked, heading for a plane. He flew to France, got a new lens by nightfall.

The Liberals say they can't cut your taxes!

the Main Issue in this election is YOUR MONEY!

WE CAN... WE WILL!

We will budget for Government's legitimate needs... we will stop budgeting for bloated surpluses which—in three years—took from the people's pockets without moral or legal right, the staggering sum of $1,618,000,000 more than the Government needed... In the first month of the present year, the Canadian people have already been overtaxed $79,000,000!

We will without impairing the efficiency of our Armed Forces, correct the appalling inefficiencies in the administration of the Department of National Defence... 'Last year, your Government spent almost as much to maintain a service force of 103,000 men and women as the Government spent during the peak year of World War II when Canada had 1,000,000 men and women in the Services'.

We will end the shocking conditions in our Defence Department which the Government's own investigator, (Col. G. S. Currie) described as: "A general breakdown in the system of administration, supervision and accounting... Accounting records in a chaotic condition and of little use in determining the nature and extent of irregularities... Waste and inefficiency far more costly in loss than that covered by actual dishonesty".

We will provide the nation with an administration whose attitude towards the spending of public monies will be one of prudence and common sense. A new Government in itself will mean substantial savings to the taxpayer—it will replace a Government whose arrogant indifference to economy was best expressed by Mr. Howe's scornful remark, "What's a Million?". Or, "If they need a gold-plated piano it is our duty to buy it".

We will reduce or eliminate countless hidden, indirect taxes which grossly inflate the cost of consumer goods, add to the grievous cost of living, increase the price of homes beyond the capacity of most of our people to pay, discourage saving and initiative and hinder the fullest development of national prosperity.

VOTE — We will reduce federal taxes by at least $500,000,000 a year... without reducing any pensions, family allowances, or other social security payments. — $500,000,000 TAX CUT NOW!

VOTE — We will introduce legislation exempting municipal councils and school boards from Sales Tax and Excise Tax on all purchases of machinery, equipment, instruments and other goods and which will further provide for taxation of all federal government properties in municipalities on the same basis as that of ordinary municipal taxpayers. — A NEW DEAL FOR THE MUNICIPAL RATEPAYERS NOW!

VOTE — We will introduce a contributory health insurance program, in co-operation with the provinces, which will assure to every Canadian proper diagnostic, medical and surgical treatment. — NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE NOW!

VOTE — We will introduce a housing program which will make it possible for people with small incomes to buy new homes by improving the terms and conditions under which houses can be built and purchased. — A LOW COST HOUSING PROGRAM NOW!

Expect Golfers To Thump Par At Scarboro Course

TORONTO (CP) — Some 200 top-flight golfers will battle par at the Toronto Scarboro Golf Club this week and par is shaping up as the underdog.

In practice rounds for the Canadian Open, which opens its four-day run at the 6,436-yard course, Canadian and American shotmakers have turned in scores improving on Scarboro's 71 standard. Comparative unknowns in international competition have clipped three and four strokes off regulation figures.

As if in defiance of Royal Canadian Golf Association officials who predicted that Scarboro would be mighty tough to beat, Pete Fleming, a starter from St. Andrews, Ill., the other day shot a six-under-par 65—a competitive course record.

The same day, Vancouver's Bill Mawhinney, whose style is supposed to break practically every rule of the game, shot a 67. Others given no chance to place high up have carded sub-par practice rounds.

A survey of pros at the course during the week-end showed that a 72-hole score of between 270 and 272—12 to 14 under par—should take the $3,000 first-prize money. The 272 figure is four more strokes than South Africa's Bobby Locke took to win the $15,000 tournament over the same Scarboro layout in 1947.

The big American invasion is expected today following the United States Professional Golfers' Association championship at Birmingham, Mich., and top Canadian pros also are expected from the Canadian PGA tournament which ended Sunday at Quebec.

Names most prominently mentioned to take the Seagram Gold Cup and largest share of the prize money are defending champion Johnny Palmer, of Badin, N.C.; Jim Ferrier, the transplanted Australian from San Francisco, who won in 1950 and 1951, and Jack Burke, Jr., from Kiamesha Lake, N. Y. Palmer shot a record 263 in the Open at Winnipeg last year.

Others expected are Edmonton's Henry Martell, newly-crowned CPGA champion, runner-up Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon who placed third. Leonard has been top Canadian pro in the Open five times, including the last three.

Already here are Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., who tied for second in the 1951 Open and tied for third in 1949; Dick Mayer of St. Petersburg, Fla., second last year; cigar-smoking Ky Laffoon, St. Andrews, Ill., and Skee Riegel of Tulsa, Okla.

With 18 holes each day, the field will be reduced to low 100 and ties at the end of 36 holes Thursday and the low 60 and ties will play the final day.

Henry Martell Captures Canadian Crown

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Henry Martell of Edmonton, wearing the Canadian Professional Golfers Association crown for the first time, moved on to Toronto today for a crack at the Canadian Open.

Along with the 39-year-old ex-traffic cop went a sizable entry of top Canadian pros who were thumbed off to the byways Sunday when Henry came through in a sensational clutch finish.

Trailing for two rounds, Martell shot the last 18 over Royal Quebec in a three-under-par 69 to win the 54-hole tournament with 211, five under par for the distance.

It was a tight one-stroke victory that wasn't decided until the last green when Henry sank a nine-foot putt that gave him a one-stroke edge over Stan Leonard of Vancouver. Pat Fletcher of Saskatoon, defending champion, fell behind on the last nine to finish three strokes away from Martell with 214.

Al Balding of Toronto Oakdale went two over par on the final nine to place fourth with 216. Then came Bill Kerr of Montreal Beaconsfield with 217. Bracketed at 218 were Frank Willey, Martell's fellow-townsman, and Stan Horne of Montreal Islesmere.

Throughout Saturday's 18 holes and Sunday's 36, the lead shifted. Fletcher's 68 Saturday gave him a two-stroke margin over Leonard and Jack Kay of Montreal Mount Bruno, who went to pieces in the last round. Martell had 71. After Sunday's morning round, Leonard and Kerr were tied at 140 followed by Fletcher at 141 and Martell and Balding at 142.

STRUGGLE CONTINUED

The struggle went on until well into the evening. Leonard was in the rough on both sides of the fairway at the par-four seventh before getting down in six. Fletcher shot the front nine in par 35. Martell made it in 34. The three players were tied at 176 when they began the final nine, Martell playing behind Leonard and Fletcher.

At the par-four 12th, Fletcher three-putted for a six. Leonard still had a chance to win his fifth CPGA title, but at the par-five 18th he missed a 3½-foot putt that would have given him a birdie four.

Martell was two under par for the last round when he came to the 550-yard 18th. He pulled his tee shot into the rough and put his second on a roadway adjoining the fairway. Taking an eight iron, he ran a bouncing shot on the green nine feet short of the pin.

Willey walked over and whispered: 'Leonard was five here. Hit it hard for the hole. It's the big one.'

Henry calmly lined up the putt and rapped down his birdie four for the championship.

Martell won $500 first prize plus another $500 from a golf goods manufacturing firm whose product he sells. As CPGA champion, he can have an expenses-paid trip to the Tam O'Shanter tournament in Chicago and can enter the United States Masters tournament without having to play in the qualifying round.

TENNIS, ANYONE?—Championship tennis brings breathlessness and exhaustion to the best conditioned players. Jaroslav Drobny bent his knees and rested his face on his hands in a thoughtful position after 93 games with Budge Patty, which required close to five hours at Wimbledon. Patty sat on his racquet wiping his face. The bend-over stance for quick recovery from fatigue was used by Shirley Frey and Sweden's Steffan Stockenberg.

SET ROWING TRIALS DATE

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen has decided that rowing trials for the 1954 British Empire Games at Vancouver will be held July 3, 1954, on the Canadian Henley regatta course at Port Dalhousie.

The trials, divided into five divisions under British Empire Games regulations, will see competition in eights, coxswain fours, pairs, doubles and singles.

At an executive meeting here Saturday, the CAAO set tentative dates for the 1954 Canadian Henley regatta so it will not clash with the games. The dates, subject to approval by the annual CAAO meeting, are July 21-24.

The executive also decided that each sculler and oarsman participating in this year's Canadian Henley regatta must carry a passport picture of himself to aid course clerks and scale clerks in identification.

The CAAO executive has scheduled another meeting next Saturday at Brockville on the occasion of the Eastern Rowing Association's annual regatta there.

Main Whips Rochon Will Make Team

MONTREAL (CP)—Lorne Main, Canada's top - seeded player, showed the form which almost assures him a berth on the Dominion's Davis Cup team as he whipped Henri Rochon of Montreal 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 Saturday to win the men's singles of the Quebec provincial senior tennis tournament.

It was an off day for Rochon but Main, Toronto, and Vancouver player, was in peak form as he aced Rochon five times and broke the Montrealer's service seven times.

Scots Hoping Hogan To Win

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP)—Dour Scots took Ben Hogan to their hearts and quietly wished him well in the British open golf championship beginning here today.

For tight-lipped, determined Ben is their idea of a golfer—a stern man for a stern old game.

They call him the "wee ice mon" and have begun openly to compare him with an old hero of theirs—Bobby Jones.

But in their usual canny way, most Scots intend to withhold judgment on which of the two Americans is the greatest until they see how Hogan handles the treeless, 7,200-yard Carnoustie links.

The 40-year-old Fort Worth professional—current U.S. Open and Masters champion—needs only to take the British Open to complete the greatest year any golfer ever recorded since 1930. That was when Jones won the open and amateur championships of the United States and Britain.

A field of about 180, including defending champion Bobby Locke of South Africa, is entered.

Besides Locke, five former holders of the title have entered. They are Max Falukner, winner in 1951; Fred Daly, 1947; Dick Burton, 1939; A. H. Padgham, 1936, and Arthur Havers, 1932.

Daly is Irish. The others are English.

Little Bigger Ball League Fills Gap In Training

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP) — No matter how alert a man might be, something is going to sneak up on him now and again, and in this particular case it is a brand new colossus in the kiddie baseball world, the Little Bigger League, which is exactly what it sounds as though it might be.

This latest offshoot of a nation-wide movement to spawn more and better young ball players is in its second year, yet already numbers some 18,000 boys in the 13-15 age group playing in organized leagues in 40 states.

What the Little-Bigger does, we learn from its guiding light, Vincent Williams of this city, is to fill the gap which existed between the time the future bonus boys graduate from the Little League and the day they are big enough to play in the American Legion set-up.

The Little-Bigger movement originated at Trenton, N. J., where civic-minded citizens realized that something needed to be done about the graduates of their Little League. Too many of these are drifting into softball and threatened to become a dead loss so far as any possible future in organized ball was concerned.

"We have made everything as simple as possible," says Williams. "We use regulation diamonds, which enables us better to co-operate with the recreation directors in each city."

The Little-Bigger league wants no help from organized ball.

As a climax to its second "world series" Aug. 16 at Trenton, it is planned to put on a three-inning game between a picked team from the Little-Biggers and a collection of former big league stars, including Lefty Grove, Lefty Gomez and Leo Durocher. That is something we intend to look at.

The Iron Curtain Is Real

It Has Many Forms, But It Grips Every Mile Of Communist-Dominated Frontier

IT'S BARBED WIRE and mines, like this scene, shot on the Austro-Hungarian border. Frontiers are under powerful floodlights at night.

IT'S PILED STONES across a street. This barrier was built in Berlin by Soviet-directed East Germans to bar traffic. Sign carries the standard Red fiction: "Beginning of the Democratic Section of Berlin."

IT'S BROKEN RAILS, like these in Germany. Except for especially agreed-upon lines, railroad tracks do not penetrate the Iron Curtain. Sometimes the Communists rip up only a fragment of track. At other times they abandon great stretches, usually taking the tracks away.

To many people, the Iron Curtain is merely Sir Winston Churchill's apt description of a non-existent wall between Soviet Russia, its satellites and the rest of the world. But the Iron Curtain does actually exist. It is a physical barrier, as well as a spiritual one, screening Communist states from the outside world. It is a myriad of barriers, ditches, human guards, vicious dogs, barbed wire, watch-towers, plowed fields, ripped-up railroad tracks and other things. These pictures, some of which are not perfect quality because they were taken stealthily under adverse conditions, show some of the forms of the Iron Curtain. There are three protective zones along Iron Curtain borders. The actual border zone, where some of these pictures were taken, is about a mile deep. It is a no man's land, cleared of cover and equipped with physical obstacles, inhabited by none except patrols of the Frontier Troop Administration. Behind it is an intermediate area, 10 miles deep, which is being completely depopulated. Behind that is the rear security area.

IT'S A BUOY, marking the end of the American Sector of Berlin. Where small boat sails on the Havel River is the Soviet-controlled sector.

IT'S A WATCHTOWER. This one, on the German-Czechoslovakian border, is about 100 feet high and overlooks a long section of the Curtain.

Gov'ts Take Half Of Estate

TORONTO — The provincial and federal governments will take a $1,625,000 bite out of the estate of a Dutch banking expert who came to Canada to operate a huge farm at Richmond Hill. Application for probate of the will of Willy Redelmeier, who died March 7, leaving an estate of $3,743,040, has been filed by the executors.

Successio nduties have been estimated at $1,625,000, with the Ontario Government taking $821,000 and the Canadian Government $804,000.

Mrs. Redelmeier will receive the income from the estate and the use of the residence during her lifetime. On her death the estate will be divided among the surviving sons or their issue. The will also expresses Mr. Redelmeier's wish that his descendants should be guided by the effort he and Mrs. Redelmeier had made to build up and develop Don Head Farms, not merely as an investment, but as their contribution to the agricultural and rural life of their new country.

After a distinguished banking career, Mr. Redelmeier came to Canada in 1939 and bought his farm.

Bulk of the estate is $2,802,348 in stocks and $800,000 in book debts. The remainder is made up of $31,572 in real estate, $2,548 in miscellaneous assets, $2,460 in cash, $68,038 in bonds, and $35,676 in household goods and personal effects. The stocks include the shares of two personal corporations and the shares of Don Head Farms Ltd.

Food Shortages Form Background Of European Unrest

LONDON (Reuters)—Food shortages in countries normally rich in wheat and cattle provided a common theme of reports of changes and unrest in Communist Eastern Europe which poured in during the week-end.

Many of the reports were not confirmed from the satellite countries themselves, but the salient facts of a drastic shakeup in Hungary were known from Hungarian sources.

Here are the week-end developments:

Hungary—The veteran Communist prime minister, Mathyas Rakosi, was replaced in a government reorganization which went hand in hand with a promise to give priority to food production instead of heavy industry. The new program was announced in a speech by Rakosi's successor as prime minister, Imre Nagy.

Poland—Stockholm sources in touch with Warsaw said anti-government demonstrators had clashed with police in a number of places and that the government had tightened security measures. But, these sources said, though the situation was explosive they believed Berlin press reports on large-scale disturbances were exaggerated.

An Allied source in Berlin said there was little to back the press reports, which had claimed that Russian tanks were rolling eastwards from Berlin to crush Polish rioters.

Romania—The official news agency reported a government decision to increase the supply of bread, vegetables, sugar and edible oil. After July 11 a white flour ration will be distributed and the governmen. will release cereals from stock to provide more bread.

Czechoslovakia — The official paper Rude Pravo admitted that bread was short despite the recent currency reform which was supposed to be accompanied by improved supply. The report said workmen often had to go to work without bread.

Reports from reliable sources said that in Romania, once part of Europe's "bread basket," peasants are going to Bucharest, the capital, to join the bread lines.

First in East Germany and now in Hungary the Communist governments have had to admit that hasty collectivization of farming has cramped production.

The reported unrest in Poland is likely due to the same causes—shortage of food and the simplest consumer goods.

Observers said the great stream of farming products, consumer goods and capital goods shipped to Russia and paid for with supplies of raw materials and manufactured goods was the first cause of shortages.

Farming output, they said, was impaired by enforced collectivization and by the insistence on growing unsuitable crops such as cotton, rice and tea on land which formerly stood under wheat, maize and fodder crops.

Observers said bureaucratic measures such as precise harvesting and sowing schedules had made matters worse. The drive against rich farmers pushed many of the most competent men from the land.

Belmont Pupils Visit Old Fort Henry

Pupils of SS 9, Belmont, with their teacher, Mrs. I. B. Leonard, twelve mothers; Mr. Harold Russell, the trustee representing Blairton school, and Mr. Chard, the driver of the bus, took a trip to old Fort Henry recently.

At Lake Ontario Park, Kingston, sports and races were enjoyed. Prizes were given for the races and for the highest standing in school to Rodney Jones, as well as several health prize.

After lunch, the party were guided through the fort. They saw the drill in the afternoon and were thrilled when the three big guns were fired, making the whole fort resound.

After getting souvenirs at the canteen, the party journeyed homeward. Supper lunch was enjoyed at Oak Lake Park.

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bolton celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary June 27 by entertaining approximately 250 relatives and friends at their home, RR 9, Peterborough. Out-of-town guests attended from Montreal and Toronto. The tea table was covered with a lace cloth and was centred with an anniversary cake. White tapers in silver candelabra and a basket of flowers completed the table decorations. Pouring tea were Mrs. Reg. Bell, Mrs. Lettie Dunsford, Mrs. Ferg Roland, Mrs. Stanley Boyce, Mrs. Rae Kelcey and Mrs. Gerald Northey.

Horosko-Hustwitt

The wedding of Miss Andrey Isobel Hustwitt, formerly of Peterborough, to Mr. John William Horosko of Toronto, took place on Saturday in St. Clement's Anglican Church, Toronto. The Rev. G. B. Snell officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Hustwitt has been director of girls' physical education at the Peterborough Collegiate for the past two years, and previously was swimming director at Peterborough YWCA. She is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Hustwitt of Toronto and was given in marriage by her father.

She chose a strapless wedding gown of petal pink nylon tulle over pink taffeta with ballerina length skirt and wore a fitted lace jacket. A shoulder veil fell from a cloche of pink velvet leaves and she carried a cascade of white roses centred with pink. Her maid of honor was Miss Phyllis Buck who wore a waltz-length gown of toast lace over pink taffeta, the bouffan skirt edged with a wide frill of nylon. Her hat was also of pink velvet leaves and she carried pink roses.

The groom, who is son of Mr. William Horosko of Winnipeg and the late Mrs. Horosko, was attended by Mr. Harvey Newfield. Warren Hustwitt ushered.

To receive, the bride's mother chose blue sheer with a corsage of white and yellow roses. The wedding cake was cut with a knife used by the brides of the family since 1883.

Mr. and Mrs. Horosko will live for the summer holiday season at Niagara Falls and later in Toronto.

4 Young Singers Out To Prove Opera Is Popular

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Four young Quebec singing stars who are planning a two-month fall tour of more than 40 Canadian cities hope to prove their claim that there is popular appeal in opera.

The group will sing and act out on a bare stage some of the most popular scenes of musical drama.

The quartet, acclaimed at two concerts here, is made up of Pierre Boutet, tenor; Gilles Lamontagne, baritone; Patricia Poitras, mezzo-soprano and Simone Rainville, soprano.

Although they have not completed their selection, it is understood that excerpts from "Rigoletto," "Tales of Hoffman," "Carmen," "The Marriage of Figaro," "Madam Butterfly" and "Martha" will be included.

REPERTOIRE IMPORTANCE

Gilles Gregoire, law student and tour director, said "we're trying to choose what people like to hear."

"We want the recitals to have the widest possible popular appeal and reach people who may never have heard or seen opera," said Gregoire, president of Les Compagnons de l'Art, an organization which obtains concert tickets at reduced price for students.

Gregoire is working on stagecraft ideas to make uninitiated listeners at ease.

Boutet, now studying in New York, is a former first tenor of the CBC opera company and of the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto.

Lamontagne, who is also studying in New York, has appeared in leading roles with the Toronto Festival Opera Company.

Miss Poitras, a bachelor of music and director of a choral group here, has given recitals in Canada and the United States.

Miss Rainville has studied two years in Paris where she sang in radio and now is continuing her studies in New York.

OPEN IN QUEBEC

After opening here Oct. 1, the ensemble will sing in Thetford Mines, Victoriaville, Sherbrooke, Shawinigan Falls and Trois-Rivieres before swinging through Ontario and the West.

Ontario cities on the schedule are Ottawa, Kingston, Toronto London, Windsor, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie. In the West, the group will sing in St. Boniface, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

A second circuit in Quebec province will take the group to Montreal, Chicoutimi, Roberval, St. Joseph d'Alma, Dolbeau, Jonquierre, Bagotville, Valleyfield, St. Johns, Joliette, Granby, St. Hyacinthe, Drummondville, Riviere du Loup and Rimouski.

A tour of the Maritimes includes stops at Memramcook, Moncton, Saint John and Fredericton in New Brunswick, and Halifax and Sydney, in Nova Scotia. The tour will end Nov. 28.

Pre-NuptialHonors

Prior to the marriage of Miss Carmel Leahy to Mr. Joseph Brown on Saturday, several entainments were held in honor of each. Mrs. Orm. Wilson was hostess at a miscellaneous shower at her home and Mrs. Austin Morris and Mrs. Fergus O'Connor were joint hostesses at a shower at the latter's home. Also a miscellaneous shower was tendered the bride by the girls with whom she worked at the DeLaval office. The Sodality and choir of St. Joseph's parish, Douro, held a joint shower where Miss Leahy received a statue of the blessed Virgin Mary, a silver tray and several pieces of crystal. The entire office staff of the DeLaval presented her with a woollen blanket. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mancini enteratined a number of friends who presented the bride and groom with a featherweight iron and kitchen clock, and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mortlock the couple wer presented with a beautiful serving tray. The groom's friends entertained at the Kawartha Club and presented him with a smoker, and the Lions Club entertanied and gave Mr. Brown a silver tray set as wedding present.

PLENTY OF STARS

It has been estimated there are about 50 bilion stars in the stellar system.

Carmel Leahy, Jos. Brown Take Vows At Douro Church

A lovely wedding took place at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in Douro on Saturday when the Rev. J. J. McCarthy united in marriage Carmel Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Leahy of Douro, and Mr. James Joseph Brown of Peterborough, son of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Brown of Renfrew.

The church was decorated with hydrangea and tiny roses. Mrs. Victor Kennedy played the wedding music and Mrs. Charles Duffus sung "Mother at Thy sdie we Kneel" and Schubert's "Ave Maria" during the ceremony and "Panis Angelicus" at the signing of the register. Garry Leahy and Terry Keating served the nuptial mass.

The bride wore a waltz-length gown of imported pure silk white organza over yellow rose taffeta. It was fashioned with closely moulded bodice and long fitted sleeves and the very full scalloped skirt was over a stiffened net petticoat. Her veil of fine English tulle was caught to a tiny bonnet of white linen mesh, the edges outlined with yellow rose taffeta and tiny trailing sprays of lily of the valley. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow tea roses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by two sisters, Miss Marie Leahy as bridesmaid and Mrs. Fergus O'Connor as matron of honour.

The attendants' frocks were similar of nylon net over taffeta with a partial over-skirt of dotted net. Miss Leahy's was colonial yellow and she had matching headdress, mittens and slippers, and carried a nosegay of blue carnations and yellow rosebuds. Mrs. O'Connor's ensemble was in enchante green and her nosegay was of pink carnations and deep pink rosebuds.

The groom was attended by his brother-in-law, Mr. Paul Fleming of Strathmore, Quebec. The ushers were Austin Morris, Vincent Leahy and Fergus O'Connor.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents where dinner was served to 70 guests. Mrs. Leahy received in a gown of navy chiffon over printed silk and wore a hat of black linen with matching accessories. Her corsage was pink carnations and rosebuds. The groom's mother was wearing a gown of tan nylon mesh and a hat of natural color straw and matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink carnations and rose buds.

Music played by Mr. and Mrs. Kelvin Leahy was enjoyed during the afternoon.

The bride and groom will honeymoon in Chicago. For travelling, the bride chose a three-piece costume suit of navy and white tweedlin with navy accessories and when going away she had a corsage of yellow tea roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown will live at 493 Hamilton St. on their return.

Boys Learn To Cook In RAF

COSFORD, England (CP) — A school of cookery for boy entrants will be opened at the RAF station in this Staffordshire district in October. The RAF is thus incidentally providing some good husband material for future years.

At the Cosford station, which has the largest youth complement in the RAF, boys aged between 15 and 17½ will get 18 months' training to a high standard. The cooking school, accommodating 120 pupils, will have all the latest equipment and tuition will be given by experienced chefs, including men who have had charge of the kitchens in some of Britain's leading hotels.

After practical work with the RAF the boys can get more advanced instruction which besides being of value to the air force will give the youths a good preparation for the civil examination in cookery of the London Institute. The diploma of this institute is reognized as a passport to highly-paid civilian posts.

Color Ranges Much Darker In New Dress Fabrics

LONDON (CP)—The first of the new 1953-54 fabrics are already in Britain's leading fashion houses ready for the London dress collections that are shown in the last week of July. Color ranges are much darker than those prepared for the summer.

Most prominent seem to be black, and the elegant black-and-brown combination. Not much lighter are dull yellows and fawns, with muted green.

The fabrics themselves are elaborate in design and intricate in manufacture, among the most interesting produced in British mills since before the war.

One notable fabric is a multi-colored boucle tweed which reverses to a grey plush.

Fur promises to be an important accessory. Two of the furs being revived for trims are grey squirrel and black Persian lamb. Fur-lined coats are likely to be important here next season. Such valuable furs as mink, ocelot and ermine are well in the picture but these will be made into full-length coats, with the stole taking second place.

Dress-makers currently are busy on sketches and samples to be submitted to Queen Elizabeth for her wardrobe for the coming royal tour of Australasia. Some experts said the Queen probably would choose a great deal of white, with few pastel shades, and the designers expect fabrics of natural silk will predominate in her travel wardrobe.

Woodland Bought To Protect Rare Butterflies

By GLENNE CURRIE

LONDON (Reuters) — A British government agency has bought 76 acres of woodland to protect a butterfly.

The agency is nature conservancy; the wood is Blean wood, near Canterbury; and the butterfly is the brown-and-white heath fritillary, rarely found elsewhere.

Nature conservancy was incorporated under a royal charter in 1949 and charged with purchasing areas to protect and investigate the country's animal, plant and geological resources. It is empowered to buy up areas which house species threatened with extinction or which are well suited to zoological, botanical and ecological research.

It now controls 11 nature reserves comprising about 22,500 acres in England and Scotland.

The latest batch of purchases, aside from Blean wood, includes 375-acres Monk's wood, a prime example of ash-oak woodland, and smaller additions to other reserves.

The public is admitted to most of the reserves, but they are visited mostly by students and research workers. Nature conservancy's studies range from eagles and yew trees to peat bogs and insects.

DEER COUNTRY

The first and biggest purchase was 10,450 acres of deer country in Ross-shire, Scotland, in 1951. The area includes large tracts of deer and pine forests, and among its inhabitants are the golden eagle, marten, wild cat and other animals.

The other reserves were set up last year and include the smallest of the lot, a few yards of ground round the spot where the pre-historic piltdown skull was discovered. Others:

Moore house: 10,000 acres of moore and fell, valuable principally for its 2,000-acre peat bogs and typical grassy limestone slopes.

Kingley vale: 200 acres of yew and ash woods, known for its nightingales.

Caverham heath: 130 acres bought for its rare flowers and as a nesting ground for the rare stone curlew.

Yarner wood: 325 acres of sessile-oak wood.

Ham street wood: 239 acres, many rare trees and insects;

Holme fen: A square mile of fenland, birch woods and rare plants.

Morton lochs: 47 acres of Scottish lakeland on the migration route of wild ducks and wading birds.

A WOOL PRINT FABRIC weighing mere ounces is used for this summer playtime ensemble. Print combines six tones of green and blue, is used for parasol as well. Wrap-around skirt conceals matching shorts.

Two Young Princes Attend Kent Board chool

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — A daily "third-degree" grilling about their roles in the Coronation has virtually become part of the educational curriculum for Princes William and Richard, high-spirited sons of the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

Back at their Kent boarding school after a brief post-Coronation holiday, the royal youngsters, 11 and 9, have met a barrage of questions from their fellow students. Not that the quizzing by the typical British youngsters at Wellesley House School is new or obnoxious to the victims.

Both Richard and William, young as they are, are pretty used to the blaze of reflected glory. William has faced the same good-natured badgering and questioning over his performance as page at the marriage of the then Princess Elizabeth and Duke of Edinburgh in 1947. Just five, he fell over the bride's train in Westminster Abbey.

This time inside the abbey, with the natural inquisitiveness of a healthy 11-year-old, he got so absorbed in the glittering spectacle that his mother had to hold him in line by the coat tails.

In fact, the petite Duchess spent most of her processional march up the aisle to the royal box holding William back. On the way out, he was at it again, his royal tartan kilt swinging and his head turning. He got so far ahead his mother signalled a liveried "gold stick" officer to bring him back in line. Once more she resorted to the coat tails

"Just William" was the amused comment of a close friend of the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester. William has none of the self-effacing shyness long associated with both his father and mother.

At school William is known as a "good egg" who can be relied on for raising a few good laughs in the common room. On such occasions as end-of-term theatricals, in which he usually takes part, he is likely to add a "just William" touch to the occasion, raising an unexpected laugh.

Like nine-year-old Richard, with his lively personality, William is happiest out of doors, tramping or riding around the family estate, Barnwell Castle in Northamptonshire.

Shaw Society Blossoms Guided By 99% Idiot

TORONTO (CP)—The man who defined the 100-per-cent American as 99-per-cent idiot and claimed never to have said a civil word to the United States now has a fan club in that country.

The Shaw Society of America, Inc., founded in 1950, was instigated by Bill Chase, librarian and book editor of the Flint, Mich., Journal, who attended the recent special librariries convention here.

In an interview Mr. Chase who has his B.A. and M.A. in geography from the University of Michigan, said it all started in 1945 on his wedding anniversary. Mrs. Chase bought him one of Bernard Shaw's books.

Shortly after Mr. Chase had what he calls "the naive idea" of asking Shaw's permission to use his name for a book store. This book store was to be entirely devoted to the Irish dramatist's works.

Shaw replied in red ink: "You are evidently not a born book seller for you cannot operate a book store on the works of one author. Especially one who repels so many readers. Try selling hot dogs."

Mr. Chase dropped the idea but set to work on the Shaw Society. Interested persons included Albert Einstein, Katherine Cornell, Samuel Goldwyn and Thomas Mann.

The next letter from Shaw surprised Mr. Chase. It was modest indeed for the man who once crowned himself "dramatic emperor of Europe."

Shaw gave a modest appraisal of himself but wound up in true style by asking why Chase didn't form say a Stalin, or Nehru Society.

Mr. Chase feels that Shaw has "shown Americans that the British don't really take themselves so seriously. He has also helped Americans to laugh at themselves."

This fall the society, one of about seven of the kind in the world, plans to publish Shaw's will.

"It is an interesting literary as well as legal document," said Mr. Chase.

Mr. Chase has more than 400 volumes in his Shaw library. Photographs of the white-bearded pundit baffle Mr. Chase's children. Anne, 10; and Bob, 6, confuse Shaw with Santa Claus.

DOROTHY DIX:

Father's Curfew Holds Back Girl's Social Development

DEAR MISS DIX: Although I am almost 19, my father has just recently granted me permission to date. He gave in only because I am a freshman in college and some school activities necessitate my being out at night occasionally. However, I must always be in by 12:30. The trouble is, that now I find myself a very maladjusted person socially. I get along with everyone at school—except the young men. I have a few male friends, but have no dates. I would like to get into the fun. Do you think my father has ruined my life completely by his strictness, or do you think there is still a chance for me to have fun in college? M.G.

✧ ✧ ✧

A PRETTY GIRL PLUS

ANSWER: While your father certainly retarded your social development, he hasn't ruined it by any means. It would take more than that to stunt the social growth of an attractive, intelligent, well-educated young lady of 19.

You should get into all the classes, and all the activities possible that are favoured by the male students. If you have an aptitude for science, concentrate on classes in that field; join one or two hobby clubs in such activities as photography or stamp collecting; learn to participate in sports—don't be a spectator all the time.

Your big effort must come in learning to accept men friends as you do girl friends—without self-consciousness, or an obvious effort to please and attract. Help in this field may be found in a psychology course. These suggestions may sound as if I am urging a concentration for a degree in "man-catching." This is only partly true. Naturally the prime consideration of college is to get an education, but any education that neglects the social side of life is not complete. Any knowledge you acquire will be relatively barren if it doesn't include an aptitude for getting along with people—male or female. After all, you don't expect to make a living as a hermit, and unless you leave your Alma Mater with good-fellowship, as well as a degree, your education has failed in its full purpose. Why else do you think schools devote so much time to extracurricular activities?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We have been married for four years, and have a two-year-old baby. I have been working for the past several months in order to help us get a home of our own. However, instead of helping me save, my husband is buying rather expensive sports equipment such as golf clubs and guns. Our arguments on the subject are getting so bitter that I sometimes think it would be better if I didn't work.

ELLEN K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The source of all your trouble lies in your job. You have taken over the responsibility of saving towards a home, and your husband is perfectly willing to shift the burden to your shoulders. Give up the jov and devote all your time to the care of the baby. Let the man of the house realize that he alone is responsible for the financial welfare of his family, and when he sees that there just isn't enough extra money to cover hobbies, he'll forego the heavy spending.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is 28, I am 25, and our marriage has been, at least outwardly, a happy one. We have three children, a pleasant home, nice friends and social activities. About once in two months, my husband goes on a drinking spree that lasts for three or four days. During these periods he is never home for meals, often misses work, and spends considerable money. After each session he vows to reform, but in another two or three months he's off again. What can I do with him?

FRANCES R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You need the help of Alcoholics Anonymous. When your husband is in one of his reasonable moods, get him to contact this wonderful organization, and I'm sure you'll both be thrilled with the sympathetic understanding you will receiye. Your husband's trouble springs from weakness rather than an ingrained love of alcohol, and, apparently, he is as anxious to change his habits as you are to have him do so. I'm sureh e can be helped.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: To begin, I am almost 18, my husband is 20 and we have a seven-month-old baby. We expect another this fall. husband works on the night shift, and though he finishes at 1 a.m. he never comes home until 5 or 6. If I say anything to him, he gets worse. He seems to think if I have a roof over my head and he brings home his pay check I should be satisfied. He isn't mean to me, and doesn't drink to any extent, but he wants to act like a single guy.

ALMA L.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You can't expect a boy of 18 to marry, and immediately assume his responsibilities with the stability of maturity. It just can't be done. As it is, I think your young husband isn't doing too badly. Of course, he took on the job of marriage and should be making every effort to make it successful, but it will take time and patience to achieve even a near-perfect result. His only fault at the moment seems to be his misuse of time. since he has little money of his own to spend, and doesn't drink anyway. The best you can do is stop nagging, and try to make him realize he has obligations. Yours is not an easy job, but the reward of a happy marriage is worth any effort.

CONCRETE BEAUTY — Screen stars Marilyn Monroe, left, and Jane Russell have their handprints preserved for posterity at Grauman's Chinese Theatre, home of Hollywood's Hall of Fame. Traffic police were busy as bystanders fought to see the gals give the cement a beauty treatment.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Cabbage Salad Days Here

We are told that Salad Week is to be celebrated—or chewed on—in a couple of weeks. Okay, that's one week's salads, but what are our poor vitamin-starved constitutions going to do during the other fifty-one weeks of the year? Wait until Salad Week 1954? Not likely!

Every week should be salad week. Indeed every day should be salad day. Many of you know and practice this rule and are enjoying healthier lives and eating more interesting meals because of your good sense.

The girls who take their salads seriously will like my idea for today—different ways to make cabbage glamorous in your salad bowl.

The Germans excel at this and are ingenious in handling this versatile vegetable.

Cabbages are at their best right now—crisp, cool, green, full of vitamins and minerals and chloropnyl.

Let's have His Succulency, the Cabbage, the spotlight.

CREAM SLAW

This is a beauty that will serve eight next time you have a party.

In the top of the double boiler cook 1 can of condensed milk (not evaporated) for 10 minutes, covered. Cool. Put in mixing bowl and add 1½ teaspoons mustard, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce. Beat hard with rotary beater for about 2 minutes then begin to add very gradually ¾ cup cider vinegar. Continue beating for 1 minute after vinegar is added. This may be made in electric beater if desired, at medium speed. Now chill it. When it is cold it is quite thick. Now add 1 medium-sized cabbage shredded as finely as possible with your sharpest knife—shreds should be hair-thin if you want to make it as a German housewife does. Add also 4 shredded carrots, from 1 to 3 shredded green peppers and 1 medium-sized spanish onion, sliced paper-thin. Mix and put in refrigerator to chill for 1½ hours before serving. This is as good or even better if you have some leftover for the next day—but do keep it covered.

GERMAN COLE SLAW

A "soft" slaw for those timid souls averse to chomping.

Shred 1 medium-small cabbage as finely as possible with very sharp knife. Pour over it boiling water and let stand exactly 1 minute, then drain very thoroughly. Some cooks turn it out on double thickness of tea towel and pat to take up all excess moisture. Now add 1 cup thick sour cream, 1 teaspoon salt and ½ cup vinegar. Grate onion sparingly over the top, then mix it in and set away to chill. Variations of this include the addition of 1 teaspoon celery seeds and sprinkling of paprika over top. This is popular with folk from the Old Country.

Now, are you ready to do something daring and different? Here's a salad your husband and his buddies will enjoy. Seems to be especially appropriate for a buffet meal.

RED CABBAGE AND AVOCADO SLAW

Dice or finely slice 1 medium-sized avocado and sprinkle over it 2 tablespoons lemon juice and let stand 15 minutes, then add and toss together 4 cups well-packed finely shredded red cabbage, 1 cup finely diced celery, 4 tablespoons finely chopped onions including some green tops, 2 sliced hard-cooked eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper. Sprinkle over top about ½ to 2-3 cup Roquefort Dressing: Mash ¼ lb. Roquefort cheese, and beat into it 3 tablespoons vinegar (preferably tarragon vinegar of you can purchase is in your community), 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ¼ teaspoon salt, dash of tabasco sauce, ½ cup salad oil The salad oil is slowly added at last after other ingredients are mixed and smooth.

The above Roquefort dressing is one of the most popular with salad fanciers, and of course you know it would be delicious on wedges of crisp lettuce.

That's all for now my rabbit friends.

Man, This Clock Is Really Cuckoo!

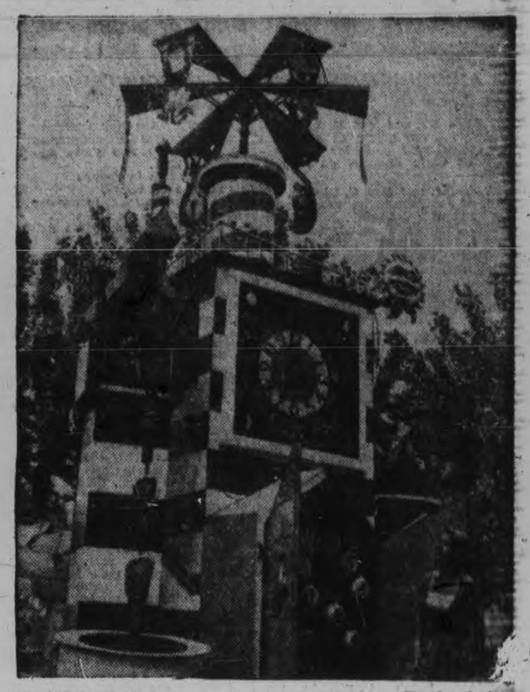
BROOKLYN, N.Y. — Around Coney Island these days, every man, woman and child is a clock watcher. That's because they've got a clock to watch that is a dilly, even for Brooklyn.

This is the Guinness Crazy Clock, or a reasonable fascimile thereof. The original is in England, where it was the hit of the Festival of Britain. A replica was built and dispatched Brooklynward as a good-will gesture, and this is the clock that is startling the mainsprings out of Brooklyn.

The Crazy Clock's craziest feature is its show. Every 15 minuites, it presents a four-minute theatrical performance. All sorts of things happen, including, but not limited to, the following:

An ostrich pops out of a chimney. A zookeeper springs out of a well and, for some reason, starts ringing a bell. The doors open and a bunch of toucans (fruit-eating birds of tropical America, family Ramphastidae) dance around a tree trunk. A fisherman leans out of a house, and proceeds to catch four fish, which swallow each other. Marionettes revolve around the top of the clock. A Swiss music box plays Swiss music.

After four minutes, everything stops—the ostrich goes back; ditto the zookeeper; the toucans cease dancing; the fisherman calls it a quarter-hour; the marionettes stop marionetting; and the music box calms itself.



For 11 minutes, all that happens is that time is kept. Then, off they go again. Dig that crazy clock.

Clock that will tour United States and Canada cost $50,000 to build, and has an electrical engineer on 24-hour call. He's Philip Scherer, who went to London and watched while the replica was built. Scherer knows every mad quirk to the Crazy Clock's makeup.

And there's plenty of complicated insides to the two-ton timekeeper. There are 14 motors, for one thing. These control the operations of the ostrich, toucans, etc., through a series of cams on the main shaft.

The whole business is made out of aluminum and nylon, since it will mostly stand out-of-doors. It's 23 feet high, 14 feet long and six feet deep. A special trailer is being built, to haul it around so non-Brooklynites can have a look.

There's one more thing — it keeps pretty good time.

CRAZY CLOCK, copied from original in England for U.S. tour, performs antics like this every 15 minutes, also tells time.

6—In Memoriam

BARNES—In loving memory of Florence D. Barnes, who passed away July 6, 1952.
A wonderful mother, woman and aid;
One who was better God never made.
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true
One in a million, that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright;
Loved by your friends and all you knew,
A wonderful mother, that, mother, was you.
—Ever remembered by Margaret and Walter.

BARNES—In loving memory of Florence D. Barnes who passed away July 6, 1952.
We mourn for her in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.
—Ever remembered by Hazel and Archie.

BARNES.—In loving memory of Mrs. F. E. Barnes, who passed away July 6th, 1952.
Oft and oft my thoughts do wander
To a grave not far away,
Where I laid my dear wife and mother
Just a year ago today.
—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

6—In Memoriam

COPPAWAY—In loving memory of my brother, George Coppaway, who passed away two years ago today, July 6, 1951.
I think of him in silence
His name I oft recall,
There is nothing left to answer
But his picture on the wall.
—Ever remembered by his sister, Mrs. Percy Nicholls.

COPPAWAY—In loving memory of our dear brother and son, Chief George Coppaway, who was drowned July 6th, two years ago.
No pen can write, no tongue can tell,
Our sad and bitter loss,
But God alone has helped so well
To bear our heavy cross.
He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to none,
His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are past;
And in our aching hearts we know
He has found sweet rest at last.
—Ever remembered by dad, sisters, Clara (Mrs. Beaver of Clarkson), Luella (Mrs. Percy Nicholls of Peterborough), Flora (Mrs. George Sunday, Curve Lake), Esther Mae (Mrs. George H. Taylor, Curve Lake) and brother Ellwood Coppaway, Curve Lake.

COPPAWAY—In loving memory of our dad, George Coppaway, who was drowned July 6, 1951.
Gone dear father, gone forever
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
If we could speak with dad today,
Laugh with him in the same old way,
And hear his voice and see him smile,
Then life indeed would be worthwhile.
A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by his son and daughter-in-law Eldred and Dorothy of Curve Lake.

KELLY—In loving memory of Mrs. George T. Kelly, who passed away July 5, 1945.
We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
—Ever remembered by her husband, George, and family.

LEWIS—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Albert, who passed away July 6, 1950.
—Sadly missed by wife, Pearl, and children Harry, Regetta, John and Roy.

Received, Jailed

CORNWALL (CP) — Emile Beauline, 28, was sentenced today to a month in jail after pleading guilty to charges of theft and receiving goods stolen from the local mills of Canadian Cottons Limited. Nine other men were given a similar term on the same charges last Monday.

3 Youths Guilty Theft Of Tires From Car Lots

Three youths appeared in Magistrate's Court today to plead to multiple charges of theft, laid Sunday, covering the theft of automobile tires and accessories from cars in used car lots.

The trio is Daniel Greenus, 17, of Bewdley, Gary Haggerdoren, 17, of 61 McGill St., Toronto, and Gerald Dew, 18, of 61 McGill St., Toronto. They were remanded until Wednesday for sentencing.

Testifying against the youths, Detective Dennis Traynor outlined how Sgt. Claire McGillen and PC Arthur Beardsmore, on patrol early Sunday morning, apprehended the boys.

Driving down George St. about three a.m., they observed a car which appeared "suspicious" and gave chase through south-end streets, finally stopping it at the corner of George and Ware Sts.

In the back seat were auto mirrors and clocks, valued at less than $25. The driver, Dew, said he was waiting for two other boys and under his direction, the officers picked up Greenus and Haggerdoren at the corner of George and Lake Sts.

After questioning the trio admitted taking part in the thefts. From information received from one, Detective Traynor and Inspector of Detective Bud Clarke proceeded to Haggerdoren's home where two tires were found. A third tire, one of three reported missing earlier from the Duffus car lot, was on Dew's car.

Each of the youths faces three charges of theft; one involving auto accessories stolen from Edward's car lot; and second involving accessories from Williamson's car lot; and the third involving tires from Duffus'.

The Alexander Leslie plies the Great Lakes between Erieau and United States ports, hauling coal for the Lake Erie Coal Company.

Members of the crew joined the SIU early this year. They presented the company with a new contract, but failed to negotiate a signing. Members of the crew say they will stay out on strike until the contract is signed.

Spokesmen for the company and union were scheduled to meet sometime today.

Plan To Extend Fisheries Pact

LONDON. — The Anglo-Soviet fisheries convention giving British trawlers the right to work in the sea up to the three-mile limit from the Russian coast is to be extended the Russian coast is to be extended nunciation of the pact earlier this year.

This was learned this week after Soviet Ambassador Yakov A. Malik had visited the foreign office before returning to Moscow by air. The fisheries convention, which accords Soviet trawlers the right to fish in Great Britain's northern waters, was scheduled to expire at midnight tonight.

Mr. Malik was received at the foreign office by Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd. Discussion by the diplomats of the renewal of the agreement means that Moscow has accepted two of the three British proposals recently put forward for improvement of Anglo-Soviet relations. The other accepted proposal was permisison for a British clerk who had taken refuge in the Embassy at Moscow to leave Russia.

The unanswered British request is for exit permits to enable Russian wives of British subjects to rejoin their husbands in this country.

Churchill's Illness Could Be Diplomatic

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Tough old Winston Churchill is fighting the creeping onslaught of a foe who always wins in the end.

For Britain's storied prime minister, now 78, it is a fight against time.

Mentally fatigued, with shaky hands and waning powers of concentration, Churchill has taken on the task of trying to reconcile the great United States and Russian powerhouses.

The undertaking is vast enough to quell a man half Churchill's age. It demands wisdom, sustained patience, endless energy and many other attributes.

Nor is it an enterprise which Churchill, a long-time foe of Communism, has assumed for any dramatic effect.

Today it is basic British policy to act the role of an honest broker between Washington and Moscow. If Churchill were to go, his successor could be expected to carry on where he left off, in search of a cold war settlement.

But, Churchill, with unique international prestige and sense of history, has dramatized that policy in a way few other men could.

That very reason has given rise to speculation that his illness may be "dipomatic" and designed to make it easier for Russia to come up with a plan to ease world tension.

Two of Britain's outstanding physicians have ordered the prime minister to quit work for at least a month or risk collapse and worse.

HAD TO OBEY

Churchill doesn't believe in being sick. He has always driven himself as hard as he has driven others. But this time he had to obey.

At his country home in Kent, Lady Churchill quietly tends her husband's needs, restraining his impulses to work, read or speak too much or to play too hard with his lively grandchildren.

He simply buckled under the strain of being prime minister, running the foreign office as well during Anthony Eden's illness and acting as host to statesmen from 74 nations who attended last month's Coronation.

In addition to that Churchill tried personally to lift international relations out of the dumps by pushing for face-to-face talks between East-West leaders.

His sudden withdrawal did more than bring about postponement of the Bermuda parley with President Eisenhower and French Premier Joseph Laniel, which Churchill had hoped might pave the way for talks with Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov.

It left the British people sobered by the thought that Churchil was mortal too.

It created a worldwide vacuum at least for a while. The throb and thrust of British initiative for weeks has been stirring leaders in many countries.

DAILY PROD

It kept high British government officers on the edge of their chairs. For Churchill carried over some of his wartime habits into peacetime. As prime minister he has taken on himself most major and many minor decisions. He has demanded information almost daily from his ministers. Departmental chiefs were bombarded with notes marked with the abrupt command: "Pray action this day."

Some officials even now pass important papers to his Chartwell redoubt for approval.

Churchill's withdrawal also seems to have changed the mood of Parliament. The old man used to answer questions or make pronouncements as prime minister with a combination of geniality, acidity and belligerence.

Since his absence, Parliament has gone along with few if any pyrotechnics.

Most higher-ups feel Churchill's partial retirement can transform the political climate at home and abroad.

At home it probably rules out a general election this year and poses the question as to who will succeed him as Conservative party leader when the time comes.

The main candidates are believed to be Eden who, though sick now, is a vigorous, ambitious party theoretician, and Richard A. Butler, 50-year - old chancellor of the exchequer, who is presiding over cabinet meetings in Churchill's absence.

Abroad it gives U.S. leaders more time to sort out their thoughts about Europe and Asia and about Britain's call for a meeting with the Kremlin bosses.

CHANCE TO SETTLE

The lull gives France's new government a chance to dig in after a record-breaking crisis.

It also gives Russia a chance to make a move proving the sincerity of her "peace" campaign.

For Russia, receptive to Churchill's plea for an East-West parley, had growled that the planned Bermuda talk was not the way to prepare for one.

The Kremlin conjured up the spectre of a Western plot to gang up on the Soviet Union. Postponement of the Bermuda parley gives the Russians time to follow up informal British-Russian exchanges with action which might make a four power meeting acceptable to all the western allies.

That very fact has led many diplomats to puzzle aloud about the vague nature of Churchill's illness.

The doctors tersely described his condition as nervous overstrain. Aides said a complete breakdown at his age would lower his resistance to other organic weaknesses, such as pleurisy and hardening of the arteries.

More than one diplomatic mission here has sent reports home speculating that Churchill's retreat to Chartwell may well have been intended to clear the way for a Russian move.

They have linked the idea with Moscow's sudden recall for consultation of the Russian ambassadors at Washington, London and Paris. All this clearly is sheerest speculation.

Rhee's Attitude Threat To Peace–Nehru

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru declared today that the attitude of South Korean government me a continuation of the Korean war, but a possible extension of it elsewhere.

He was speaking in Agra, North India, at the opening of a two-day policy conference of the members of the all-India committee of the governing Congress party.

The attitude of Syngman Rhee, the South Korean president, he said, has imperilled the atmosphere of peace that has been built up in the world.

In the event of a world war, Nehru said, India will keep aloof and try her best to restore peace although, he added, no country could remain unaffected by such a war.

LESS TENSION

Nehru said there has been a lessening of tension in recent months. But attitudes like that of Syngman Rhee had given every peace lover moments of anxiety.

Before addressing the conference, Nehru summoned the 16-member Congress executive committee to put the final touches to resolutions on foreign and domestic affairs that will be submitted to the conference later.

The executive committee, meeting in Delhi Sunday, passed a resolution condemning Syngman Rhee "for making impossible demands for continuation of the war or resumption of it after a stated period."

The resolution added: "a situation has been created which is full of dangerous possibilities, not only for peace, but for the future of the United Nations." It urged a meeting of the UN general assembly at "a very early date" as well as a big-power conference.

During the next three weeks, the boys will make bows and arrows, belts, purses, bird houses and toy boats. These handicraft classes take place in the mornings.

Mountain Building

NAPIER, N.Z. (CP)—Land in the Hawke's Bay district of New Zealand's North Island is showing such changes that experts consider a major mountain building period is in progress. Surveys show rises up to 25 feet and drops to 17 feet over a 60-year period.

Hard-Headed

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP) —Tim Flock went to sleep on the infield of the Piedmont interstate fairgrounds race track, and when he woke up a car had parked on his head.

The veteran Atlanta stock car racer was released from hospital after doctors found no fracture.

Flock had donned his crash helmet before snoozing.

Bystanders yelled when an unidentified driver backed his car on Flock. Puzzled, the driver got out to see what all the fuss was about. Meanwhile, one rear wheel rested on the prostrate Georgian.

Flock tried to twist from beneath the car and received bruises before the car was lifted off his head.

Worked, Planned For Years Conquest Of Mt. Everest

By FRANK R. HODGE

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) —In the Maori tongue the township of Papakura means "flat land glowing red." This flat land is the home of a quiet beekeeper who went forth to climb the world's highest mountain.

For Edmund Hillary the conquest of Mount Everest began many years ago.

"Some day I'm going to climb Everest," he told a friend in 1939. From then on, with a singleness of purpose that comes to few men, everything he did and planned was toward his one goal.

It all started even longer ago, when, as a fourth-former at Auckland grammar school, he went to the château on Mount Ruapehu for a weekend with some friends.

That was young Hillary's first taste of mountaineering and as his mother puts it: "He has been madly keen on climbing ever since."

WEEKEND CLIMBING

Year in and year out he spent nearly every weekend at 9,175-foot Ruapehu or tramping around the Waitakeres, a range of wooded hills near Auckland.

Soon he was spending two seasons a year in the Southern Alps of New Zealand's South Island — in February to perfect his rock-climbing and in September to learn ice work. In time he conquered all the major peaks, sometimes blazing new trails.

About that time he became interested in wrestling, and in his mind was the thought that the balance and judgment it could teach him would help him climb mountains.

He saved so that he could have the best guide to show him how to perfect his technique—for always the accent was on technique—and he developed a mountain sense that kept him out of accidents and gave him a reputation for safety.

Even the war and service in the RNZAF could not keep him away from mountains altogether. Until he was posted as a navigator to a Catalina squadron in the Pacific he spent every weekend leave he could climbing mountains.

SCARRED BY WAR

The war nearly ended all chance of his ever climbing mountains again. Badly burned in an accident, Hillary spent many weeks in hospital; even now he carries scars from his experience. But his determination to climb, friends think, helped his recovery.

In February of 1948, he spent three bitter nights on the snow-swept slopes of Mount La Perouse in the Southern Alps caring for a badly injured girl while his guide brought help.

During the long freezing nights he stripped off his own clothes to keep the girl warm, and he saved her life.

The year 1949 brought a holiday in Switzerland . . . climbing, of course. With three other New Zealanders he added a host of new peaks to his score. All the time he was developing and polishing his technique. Hillary lost 14 pounds that season but he came back well satisfied.

It was the Hima layas in 1951 and Hillary came back to tell friends that he thought New Zealand's Southern Alps the best training ground in the world for Everest.

1951 EXPEDITION

With three other New Zealanders—George Lowe, H. E. Riddiford and E. Cotter—he spent the summer conquering new peaks. Lowe was also on this year's Everest expedition but did not reach the summit.

He and Riddiford joined forces with Eric Shipton's 1951 reconnaissance of Everest, which played an important part in pioneering the route used successfully by the 1953 British expedition.

Last year he and Lowe were there again, this time as members of another expedition led by Eric Shipton, Britain's leading mountaineer.

Sir Edmund Hillary — he was knighted for his conquest of Everest—at 33 is a quiet man. When he is not climbing mountains he looks after his apiary at Papakura and goes for long walks through the heavy bush country to keep fit. He has never ceased training and refuses lifts into town. He prefers to walk.

Most At Work Despite Buffalo Strike

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—If you were a pretty secretary or had a friend driving your way, you didn't have any trouble getting to work today in this busless city.

About 1,800 AFL drivers, mechanics and clerical workers struck against the Niagara Frontier Transit Corporation Friday night in a wage dispute, idling 800 buses. It was the second against the company in three years.

The full effect of the transit tie-up wasn't felt until today by the 1,000,000 residents of this city, Niagara Falls and several suburbs because of the holiday week-end.

In this city of 600,000, the 14th largest in the U. S., downtown streets were crowded with private automobiles at the morning rush hour. Parking lot spaces were at a premium. Taxi companies were an hour behind in their calls.

Motorists generally were looking for somebody to pick up. Few persons were left stranded on street corners, especially pretty secretaries looking for rides to work. And it was a pleasant morning to walk.

A spot check of industries and business offices showed little absenteeism and tardiness.

The striking transit workers were voting on a new company offer to end the strike. The terms were not revealed.

Members of Division 1342, Amalgamated Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees Union, last week rejected a company offer that would have given drivers an increase of 20 cents an hour, mechanics 14 cents and clerical help seven cents.

The drivers' old pay scale was $75.74 for a 44-hour week. Other pay scales varied. The drivers' work week was reduced to 40 hours last week and they sought an increase to make up for their salary loss.

Philip Nussbaum, union secretary-treasurer, said Saturday the primary objection was a proposed two-year contract. He said the union would seek to negotiate a one-year contract.

400 Killed In U.S. Holiday

CHICAGO (CP)—The Fourth of July holiday week-end, garnished generally with good weather, brought violent death to more than 400 persons in the United States.

Automobile drivers apparently were careful enough to beat the U. S. National Safety Council's prediction that 290 persons would die in week-end traffic accidents. But not by much.

At least 260 persons died in accidents on streets and highways. Another 121 were drowned and 49 died in miscellaneous accidents.

There was one fireworks fatality. Edward Nolta, 15, was struck on the jaw by a falling unexploded aerial bomb while watching a supervised fireworks display at Willows, Calif.

The two-day holiday week-end toll, 413 lives, was substantialy smaller than the 643 recorded for the three-day Independence Day week-end of 1952. Last year, traffic accidents claimed 366, drownings 202, fireworks two and miscellaneous 73.

Fire In Sweden

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Fires raged in two small Swedish towns today causing damage estimated at about eight million crowns ($1,600,000). Two blocks were destroyed in the central part of Ljungby, a small town in the southern district of Smaland. The other fire occurred at the west coast town of Lysekil, where eight buildings were destroyed.

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost today announced approval of hospital grants totalling $387,012.

Davis Cup Team For Canada Named

MONTREAL (CP)—Lorne Main of Toronto and Vancouver, Henri Rochon of Montreal, Paul Willey of Vancouver, and Robert Bedard of Sherbrooke today were named to represent Canada in the Davis Cup tie with Mexico here July 17-19.

The announcement was made by Dr. Georges Leclarc, non-playing captain of the team and chairman of the Davis Cup selection committee.

Main's nomination was never in doubt since he was runner-up to Fred Kovaleski of Detroit in the recent Toronto Cricket Club invitation tournament and swept the field in the provincial senior championships here during the week-end. He also teamed with Willey to win the doubles event from Bedard and Vancouver's Laurence Barclay.

National Gift Fund

CANBERRA (Reuters) — An appeal for a national gift fund to commemorate the Coronation of Queen Elizabeth was launched here by acting prime minister Sir Arthur Fadden, who said the Australian government has already contributed $98,000. The Queen has requested that the fund be devoted to the welfare of Australian mothers and children.

U.S. Conducting "Policy Of Force" Soviet Charges

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Pravda, the Soviet Communist party newspaper, today attacked United States foreign policy as "the policy of force" and claimed serious differences are mounting between the Big-Three Western powers.

"Divergencies of opinion between the United States, Britain and France have grown so much they cannot be removed by the help of a routine meeting of government leaders," the paper stated.

Russia's answer to Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill's call for a Big-Four conference—that the Western powers could not dictate preliminary conditions for Soviet participation—was being "ignored" by America, the paper said.

President Eisenhower evidently called the Bermuda conference to work out a common line towards the Soviet Union, it contended.

But it was repeatedly postponed and now, "with the illness of Churchill, many express doubt that the conference will ever be held," Pravda went on.

The Big-Three foreign ministers' conference in Washington was called "to clarify disputed questions among the Western partners," Pravda said.

Under the guise of forming a united front against the Soviet Union, America aimed "to take a hand in the foreign policy of the West European states."

"American diplomats seek to persuade their West European partners that organizing sabotage and diversions are a more effective way of dealing with the Soviet Union than peaceful negotiations."

May Be Able To Regulate Weather Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — In case the weatherman thinks he can do something about it.

Not tomorrow or the next day, mind you, but one of these days.

The idea is a little Buck Rogerish, but the weather people aren't fooling when they start talking about space platforms and changing the content of the atmosphere.

Dr. Harry Wexler, chief of the scientific services division of the U.S. weather bureau, described the idea Sunday.

"The sun, of course, is responsible for the weather," he said. "and many people believe that solar radiation governs temperatures on the earth.

INTERFERENCE

"But, there are many things in our atmosphere that interfere with solar radiation. Dust, for instance, and the amount of carbon dioxide in the air. Not atom bombs, though. They dissipate too quickly . . .

"We could probably regulate the weather right now," he said, "if we had instruments close enough to the sun to measure the variations of solar radiation.

"Then we could compare that with our ground measurements and learn the effect of the atmospheric resistance."

When man perfects the space platform—and Wexler is convinced he will one of these days—"we'll get our instruments up there above the atmosphere and find out all we need to know."

Forced Labor Legal In Bulgaria

VIENNA (AP)—Communist Bulgaria has legalized forced labor, it was learned Sunday.

The Soviet satellite's leaders have enacted a law whereby a Bulgarian worker who leaves his job without permission, and a young apprentice who quits his professional school, face imprisonment and heavy fines.

Two Bulgarian newspapers reaching Vienna say the new law was enacted by the country's top Communist leaders, despite fierce opposition by experts in the Bulgarian Communist Parliament's legal board.

The edict stipulates that a worker in state, co-operative or public enterprises may not leave his job without permission by the manager and that he will be punished with two to four months imprisonment or labor camp if he does so.

Quarry Buildings To Be Replaced

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Walker Bros announced Saturday that the company's quarry buildings, destroyed Friday night by an estimated $35,000 fire, will be rebuilt at once. The plant will be shut down for two weeks.

Company officials praised the Stamford and Thorold firemen for saving valuable stone crusher and screening equipment. The quarry is located in Stamford township.

Trams' Finale

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—Thousands watched Saturday as Birmingham's last streetcar made its final run through a city which at one time had the largest fleet in the world. The ride marked the end of a change-over to buses which has taken 23 years to complete.

Knighthoods Given To Labor Leaders Starts Union Fight

By SIDNEY WEILAND

LONDON (Reuters) — Knighthoods honoring labor leaders for political and public service have started a wrangle between the left-wing and right-wing in Britain's trade union movement.

The left-wingers are also critical of three veteran trade unionists who have agreed to cooperate with the Conservative government in denationalization of the steel industry—a project which has rallied almost united labor opposition.

These differences have revived long-simmering friction between the two wings of the Labor party and the trade unions and are regarded as contributing to eventual crystalization of the problem of whether the Labor party should go "more left" or "more right."

This has been a constant talking point in the movement since the Labor party was ousted from power in the fall of 1951.

FOUGHT GOVERNMENT

The dispute between the "right" and "left" wings of the party reached an angry climax when the Conservatives denationalized the steel industry to sell back to private investors $688,000,000 worth of plant which the last Labor government put under government ownership. The Labor party fought vigorously against de-nationalization and said it would re-nationalize the steel mills if it won power again.

Soon afterwards, three prominent trade union chiefs agreed to accept office on a government board supervising the return of the steel industry to private ownership.

Sir Lincoln Evans, 63-year-old steel workers' leader, was appointed deputy chairman of the government board. With him to the board came Andrew Naesmith, cotton workers' leader, and John Owen of the furnacemen's union, all members of the influential general council of the Trades Union Congress.

A few months earlier, the award of Evans' knighthood opened up a storm of criticism in the left-wing press. Then, within days of the steel board announcement, came news of a knighthood for Naesmith, the only union chief listed in the Queen's Coronation honors list. Such honors are made on the recommendation of the prime minister.

Spearhead of the attack against the right-wingers, particularly against Sir Lincoln Evans, came from the Bevanies, the left-wing group which almost split the Labor party last year with its demand for a cut in rearmament spending.

SHOULD BE END

Tribune, a weekly paper edited by supporters of left-wing leader Aneurin Bevan, said Evans was helping to sell the industry back to private owners against the overwhelming desire of the workers.

"That should be the end of Sir Lincoln Evans as a figure of any significance in the British labor movement," it said.

Evans, the TUC economics expert, was quick to reply by asking whether "public service ceases to be public service when performed under a government other than one of our own choosing?"

The knighthoods and the steel board posts mirror a fundamental cleavage between the left-wing and right-wing in the Labor party and the unions.

The difference came out clearly in prolonged discussions on formulation of the Labor party's new program, with which it hopes to win the next election. The left-wingers wanted more state control, and the right-wing union leaders refused even to sit on committees discussing the plans.

The program, when it was eventually issued, showed some concessions to both sides, but basically it was nearer to the right-wing view than to the left. The difference between the two groups are sure to come up again at the TUC convention in September.

First Aid Saves Victim's Life

ST. THOMAS (CP)—First aid administered by provincial constable Bob Pritchard of St. Thomas early Sunday was credited with keeping an accident victim alive until he got to Memorial Hospital here.

One of four persons injured in a traffic crash in Aylmer Frank Rowles, 36 of St. Thomas, suffered a severe neck cut along with other injuries.

Police said constable Pritchard found the pressure point that controlled the bleeding until the arrival of medical aid. Later the constable rode into St. Thomas in the ambulance, still clutching Rowles' neck. Late Sunday the man's condition was termed critical.

Police said the car failed to negotiate a curve and crashed into a heavy steel standard.

Mr. Rowles is head of the Free Press St. Thomas bureau.

Fruit Industry Neglected—Grower

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—W. C. Nickerson, a member of the Canadian delegation attending the recent Empire fruit growers' conference in England, said Saturday on his return that he felt Agriculture Minister Gardiner had been so busy with wheat and dairy negotiations that he had neglected the Canadian fruit industry.

He said Canadian canned fruit goods were popular in Britain and "they are anxious to see us back on the market." Canadian fruit has not been allowed into the country since 1939.

Canadians Get First Of Issue New-Style Jeeps And Trucks

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (AP)—The Canadians have drawn the first six of the 1,200 new-style jeeps and trucks they are to receive before summer's end.

But armistice possibilities have senior officers wondering whether Canadian soldiers will be in Korea long enough to justify the $3,500,000 outlay involved.

The bulk of the new vehicles are not expected to be available before late August.

Six months' use would be considered justification for carrying out the program. But the feeling here is that if only two or three months' use may be had from the vehicles before they are turned back again to United States Army ordnance depots, then the brigade might as well carry on with its present transport.

The brigade now has two each of the new jeep and the new three-quarter ton and 2½-ton trucks. The trucks have hydromatic drive.

PRE-ISSUE TESTS

The new vehicles have been allotted—one of each—to the 56th general transport company, RCASC, and the 23rd ordnance workshop, RCEME, for pre-issue tests.

Meanwhile senior drivers and mechanics from both units have attended U.S. Army courses on the vehicles and now are teaching instructors who will handle classes for the rest of the brigade's drivers and mechanics.

The transport company's first mechanics to study the new vehicles at a US Army ordnance depot were S. Sgt. Richard Fairchild of Toronto; Cpl. Joseph P. O'Shea of Montreal; L. Cpl. William L. Jimmo of Escuminac, N.B., and Pte. James E. McCafferty of New Albany, N.B.

Its first drivers, who studied at the 1st U.S. marine division's transitional school, were Cpls. Henry I. Heighton of Guysborough, N.S., Ken J. Price of Kingston, Robert A. Sweet of Merigomish, N.S., and Verlin E. Weiland of Calgary.

S. Sgt. Fairchild, who now lectures the mechanics classes, says:

"The trucks have tremendous power for hauling loads. There is no driver fatigue. The driver sits on a single foam-rubber seat in a waterproof cab. There is a double seat beside him for passengers.

"Servicing is easier because the radiator, engine and transmission can be removed as one unit. The instrument panel comes out, too, as a unit, which makes for easy maintenance and servicing.

"They were built for driver comfort and long hauls."

ACTING CHIEF—The Marquess of Salisbury, leader of the British House of Lords, was named acting Foreign Minister by Prime Minister Churchill. He will temporarily replace the ailing Anthony Eden, now recuperating in the U.S. from an operation.

Use TV Camera To Study Rock Under Water

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's only underwater television camera will be used this autumn to study the structure of dangerous Ripple Rock in the Seymour Narrows near Campbell River, B.C.

Capt. H. R. Smyth, in charge of radio and electrical engineering trials for the national research council, will supervise its use during the west coast experiment. Ripple Rock has been a hazard to navigation for years, but previous attempts to remove it were unsuccessful owing to its peculiar underwater structure and the strong tides surrounding it.

The television unit is to arrive in Vancouver about Oct. 1. Developed by the NRC in 1949, it will undergo modifications to achieve the utmost in stability when lowered into the rushing waters. Preliminary trials will be carried out around the 50-foot depth.

USED BEFORE

The camera has already been used on the west coast, at Naniamo for the Pacific biological station there and at Esquimalt for the Pacific naval laboratory and the Royal Canadian Navy.

The camera is enclosed in a watertight steel cylinder weighing about 300 pounds. Images picked up by the sensitive camera tube are transmitted to television screens aboard the surface vessel, by means of a coaxial cable. All the camera's operations are guided by remote control.

OTTAWA (CP)—Owen Douglas Edwards, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Edwards of Sarnia, was drowned Sunday in Blue Sea lake, about 70 miles north of here.

Quebec provincial police reported that the boy apparently fell off a pier near his parents' summer home. His body was recovered in a few feet of water at the end of the pier. Artificial respiration failed to revive him. An inquest likely will be held.

Reds Ask Allied Officers Meet In Surprise Move

TWO BOYS were rescued from railway bridge at Cobourg shown here as a train was approaching Monday afternoon. Walter Whitefield, 17, (upper left) heard the train coming and saw the two youngsters on the bridge. He ran to the bridge, led Ronald Scanlan (lower right) to safety, then returned and carried Paul Gauchier from the bridge.

Youth Saves 2 Youngsters From Train On Bridge

COBOURG (ENS)—Walter Whitefield, 17-year-old Canadian Canners employee of Cobourg, saved at least one and possibly two lives when he dashed on to the CPR overhead bridge just west of his home Monday and rescued five-year-old Paul Gauchier and five-and-a-half-year-old Ronald Scanlan from the path of a CPR freight train.

Whitefield, cutting grass, noticed a group of children playing near the tracks. When he heard the whistle of an oncoming train he glanced up and saw two of the children still on the bridge.

He ran 75 yards to the bridge and grabbed Ronald Scanlan by the hand and led him to safety. However, Paul Gauchier had lost his shoe and was sitting down on the tracks crying about his loss, oblivious to the impending danger.

Whitefield tucked the lad under his arm and beat the train to the edge of the bridge.

"I don't know how close it was but it seemed only a short time before the train roared by after I carried young Gauchier off," said Whitefield.

Parents of the two children were warm in their praise for the prompt action of Whitefield.

"The tracks are quite a way from our place and I had no idea that Ronald was anywhere near the tracks until after the Whitefield boy got him off the bridge before the train came. It was a close call and I can't say too much about Walter Whitefield's fine deed," declared Mrs. M. Scanlan. Young Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Gauchier.

NEW ENVOY TO BRAZIL—Sydney D. Pierce, former newspaperman, has been appointed Canada's new Ambassador to Brazil.

Pierce Named Envoy To Brazil

OTTAWA (CP) — Sydney D. Pierce, one-time Montreal newspaperman who climbed the diplomatic ladder to become Canadian minister in Washington, was appointed Monday Canada's new ambassador to Brazil.

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced the new appointment for the roving diplomat who has held scores of war and post-war posts abroad, including Canadian representative to the Organization for European Economic Co-Operation.

Mr. Pierce, who once worked for the Montreal Gazette and The Associated Press in New York, succeeds Dr E. H. Coleman, who now retires from the diplomatic scene. Dr. Coleman, 63, is a native of Braeside, Ont.

Born at Montreal in 1901, Mr. Pierce attended McGill University and lectured at Dalhousie University later. He joined the external affairs department in 1944.

Bush Worker Robbed, Tossed From Car

SUDBURY (CP) — Four men were remanded for a week today on charges of beating a Blind River bush worker Monday night, taking his money and tossing him from a car.

Charged with robbery with violence were George Young of suburban Minnow Lake, Rene Raymond of Sturgeon Falls, Ernest Buckler of Jamestown and Alex Yroka of Toronto.

The victim, Albert Gignac, 32, of Whitefish, 19 miles west of here, said he met the men in a beverage room and accepted a lift to Sudbury in their car.

Clubs, Hoses Used To Quell Rioting Women

JESSUPS, Md. (AP)—A score of state troopers used clubs and fire hoses this morning to break up a riot of 53 women at the Maryland state reformatory.

The police moved 25 of the women to another cottage and apparently had the others under control after being held at bay for four hours.

The women had barricaded themselves in the cottage and warded off police with pieces of broken furniture, crockery and makeshift knives.

Two women attendants, locked in their room during the outburst at the reformatory 10 miles southwest of Baltimore, were released unharmed by the troopers.

State Police Lieut. Martin M. Puncke was slashed on the arm in an earlier attempt to break into the rioting cottage. Six troopers had forced their way into the cottage previously but had to retreat in the face of the screaming mob of women.

The score of troopers finally made a successful assault. The 20, using only clubs, got in through a ruse. The rioters were talked into releasing an aged employee. When the door was opened, the police rushed in. They grabbed fire hoses to beat back the female mob.

Within half an hour, amidst the sounds of screams and swishing clubs, the police had the cottage under control. The inside was a wreck of smashed furniture, crockery and water.

Miss Alice Blum, superintendent of the reformatory which houses 186 prisoners, said this morning's outbreak was continuation of a disturbance started Monday night.

She said a woman transferred to the reformatory three days ago from the mental hospital at Crownsville had become defiant and barricaded herself in her room. Guards from the nearby house of correction for males which houses 1,800 used tear gas to oust her, Miss Blum said.

Fears Sabotage Of Agreement

MCAULEY, Man. (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Monday night that the Drew-Duplessis axis is out to destroy the Dominion-provincial tax rentals agreement.

He told a political rally in his home constituency of Marquette that when the first post-war tax agreements were under discussion, Mr. Drew, then premier of Ontario, "fought against them at every stage."

Mr. Drew's position since that time has not changed, he said. In a want-of-confidence motion in Parliament last November Mr. Drew urged another conference to "re-allocate finances" between the Dominion, provinces and municipalities.

Mr. Garson said this "flank attack" came at a time when the "ink was scarcely dry" after the signing of the second post-war agreement.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec, on his part, had set up a royal commission to investigate the question, and he undoubtedly hoped the commission would recommend a return to the pre-tax rentals era.

Tornado Damage Policy Will Be Announced

TORONTO (CP) — Government policy on the damage resulting from the Sarnia tornado, will be announced Wednesday by Premier Frost. The premier held a meeting with several members of the legislative assembly from the Sarnia area at Queen's Park Monday.

Following the meeting, he said the cabinet would consider the question Wednesday. The members would not say whether the area would be proclaimed a "disaster area." They said policy decided upon would apply for future distress conditions caused by acts of nature.

Starts For Puerto Rico But Lands In Newfoundland

NEW YORK (AP)—This is the odyssey of Juan Martinez, who started out for Puerto Rico and landed in Newfoundland, who repeated his name three times and got three martinis and who is finally on his way back home.

Martinez, a one-legged man of 64, started his wanderings Sunday when he mistakenly boarded a Pan-American World Airways plane bound for Germany from Idlewild airport.

He had been scheduled to depart at the same hour on a Pan-American flight for San Juan.

The big airliner winged its way east on the four-and-a-half-hour hop to Gander, Newfoundland, as Martinez settled into his seat.

Soon a stewardess came along and asked:

"Manhattan or martini?"

The Puerto Rican, who speaks only Spanish, thought she was checking his name. So he replied: "Martinez."

He was handed a dry martini.

Twice more he was asked the same question, gave the same reply, and received the same refreshment.

When the plane landed at Gander, Martinez promptly noticed that he was in a cooler clime than San Juan.

He made inquiries, and the mistake was uncovered.

Airline officials put him up overnight at Gander, and sent him back to New York on the first available flight. He returned here Monday.

Then just before last midnight he was put aboard a non-stop flight to San Juan.

Social Credit Re-elected In B.C. Vote

Assured Of Holding Majority Of 6 Seats In Next Legislature

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Social Credit government, re-elected to office in the marathon British Columbia election, today is assured of holding at least a six-seat majority in the next legislature.

Social Credit elected three more members Monday, bringing its total strength in the 48-seat House to 27 members. It is also leading in the two seats still to be decided. Twenty-five seats are required to form a majority government.

The CCF, which will again form the official Opposition, elected one more member Monday night to bring its strength in the new legislature to 14.

In the last legislature Social Credit, under Premier W. A. C. Bennett, held 19 seats while the CCF had 18.

BOTH SEATS UNCHANGED

Health Minister Eric Martin and Bert Price were elected for Social Credit in Vancouver-Burrard at the end of the fifth count under B.C.'s alternative voting system. Both seats were unchanged.

In Vancouver-Point Grey Tom Bate was elected, winning the seat from the Progressive Conservatives.

The CCF member elected was Arthur Turner, who held his seat in Vancouver East.

The two seats still in doubt are in Vancouver-Point Grey where Social Credit candidates are leading on the B and C ballots.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner has a substantial lead over Liberal and CCF candidates, and Education Minister Mrs. Tilly Rolston has a slim lead over Liberal leader Art Laing.

The latest standings—Elected: Social Credit 27; CCF 14; Liberal 3; Progressive Conservative 1; Labor 1. Leading: Social Credit 2.

Search Bush For Girl, 5

MINAKI, Ont. (CP)—Search parties were out again early today after darkness and rain Monday night halted the search for a five-year-old Winnipeg girl, who disappeared Sunday morning. Swampy bushland surrounds this northwestern Ontario resort area, 110 miles east of Winnipeg.

The girl, Geraldine Huggan, was last seen playing outside her grandparents' summer home at Wade, six miles west of Minaki, where she was staying with her two sisters and her parents.

The wilderness of forest, rock and swamp is infested with mosquitoes and soaked with recent heavy rainfall.

Searchers threshing the bush since Monday daylight included nine Ontario forestry rangers, 12 railway section hands from Minaki, Constable Ken Wilson of the Ontario provincial police and RCMP, who tracked with a dog.

Residents of the area, campers and Indian guides also joined the search for the child.

Delay Decision On Power Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives rules committee today delayed a decision on whether to send to the House legislation to permit private enterprise to build new power plants at Niagara Falls.

Chairman Leo E. Allen (Rep. Ill.) said the committee will consider the matter more fully "tomorrow or the next day."

Chairman George A. Dondero (Rep. Mich.) of the House public works committee, which last month approved the legislation by a 14-to-7 vote, was given 10 minutes to explain the measure before the rules committee.

Just before the rules committee met, a minority report came out of the public works committee opposing the bill as "unsound." It was signed by 12 of the 29 members.

The minority of the committee said the proposal "disturbs our sense of responsibility for the common good."

New Dollar Problem Facing Europe

Must Find Way To Bridge Gap When U.S. Aid Ends, U.K. Paper Says

LONDON (Reuters) — The London Times, in an editorial commenting on the approaching end of United States dollar aid to Europe, said today the resulting gap in European dollar holdings will have to be "bridged by other means."

It urged a liberalization of the United States import policy, to permit freer entry of non-dollar goods in the U.S. market, and a program of United States investment in the non-dollar world.

The Times, which paid tribute to the United States for "one of the greatest and most sustained constructive programs in all economic history," warned that the Western defence program would inevitably suffer without dollar aid.

"The free countries will not repine at the approaching end of this remarkable program," it said. "If to stand on their own feet is to become a necessity, it is also a virtue in itself.

MUST WATCH DANGER

"They must hope nonetheless that Congress will succeed in finding its own answers to the dangers which aid has so far held in check.

"It is improbable that the defence programs of many countries can be maintained, without aid, at their present standards."

Lord Beaverbrook's Empire-minded Daily Express said the British government should give up United States financial aid immediately.

"This country should not wait for Congress to shut its purse," the paper said. "She should declare that from this day onwards, Britain, with the Empire, will depend on her own resources and not any longer on America's assistance."

SOME COMPENSATION

The Financial Times said that the growing volume of American off-shore procurement orders "does offer a means of compensating for some, at least, of the losses caused by the reduction of economic aid . . ."

"These orders are, indeed, beginning to look like Europe's dollar lifeline," it said.

"It is too much to expect that the new type of dollar earnings for the supply of military goods to NATO countries will make good entirely the loss of the old type of dollar assistance.

"But for some individual countries with special advantages in this field of manufacture, notably the United Kingdom, they should not fall far short."

Taxation Policy Emphasized Again By Drew

FORT WILLIAM (CP). — The Progressive Conservative campaign plank to reduce taxation by $500,000,000 a year if elected in the August 10 Federal election was spelled out again Monday night by party leader George Drew.

Mr. Drew, moving east after a tour through the West, stops at Sudbury tonight after campaigning in Fort William and Port Arthur Monday. In a hard-hitting speech to about 300 persons in the Fort William city hall he returned to what the Progressive Conservatives consider the top issue in the campaign—taxation.

The Liberal government claims a $500,000,000 tax cut can't be made, he said, adding:

"It can't be done and it won't be done by this government. It won't be done by a government which spends $10,000,000 to tell you what good boys they are, $50,000,000 on travelling and $28,000,000 on professional services which could be performed by the civil service."

JUICY PAYMENTS

The party leader referred to the $300,000 paid by the department of veterans affairs some years ago in legal fees to Walter Thomson, former Ontario Liberal leader. There had also been "other juicy payments to some . . . prominent friends of this government."

"Before they tell you there can be no reduction in taxes, ask them what they are doing to end waste, extravagance and inefficiency."

Earlier in the day Mr. Drew held a press conference.

At the Fort William conference, Mr. Drew told reporters that if the federal government used its jurisdiction over export trade and interprovincial and international transport to increase employment in Canada on processing and manufacture of raw materials, the Lakehead would have a steel industry and a pipeline carrying oil from Western Canada.

INDUSTRY FEASIBLE

He made the statement in reply to a question on how the Progressive Conservative election manifesto on development of natural resources would affect northwestern Ontario.

A steel industry at the Lakehead was "feasible" because this area had every advantage possessed by the United States steel-making centres along the Great Lakes.

American companies asking for Canadian ore should be required to build steel mills in Canada. The Ontario government, a Progressive Conservative administration, had brought about construction of Northern Ontario paper mills at Red Rock, Marathon and Terrace Bay—all Northwestern Ontario communities—by insisting on construction of mills before timber licences were granted.

The main policy consideration should be the creation of new employment in Canada. "We are exporting not only raw materials, we export employment."

Believe Bank Suspect May Solve Robberies

MONTREAL (CP)—Police said today a man arrested Monday after holding up Cathcart-St. Catherine street branch of the Bank of Montreal may be able to help them solve four other bank robberies in the city.

Police identified the holdup man as John Brown, 28-year-old automobile salesman. He was trapped at gun-point in Central Station by a traffic policeman a few minutes after fleeing from the bank with $5,764 obtained from a girl teller.

Cabinet Finishes Chores St. Laurent Heads West

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet, cleaning off piled-up chores, took time out from ministerial campaigning Monday to make several appointments and give new consideration to the politically-ticklish South Saskatchewan dam issue. The ministers, meeting as Prime Minister St. Laurent dropped into the capital briefly on his way home from the Maritimes to the West, made these major appointments:

1. A further move in the reorganization of diplomatic representation abroad, shifting S. D. Pierce, 52, minister in Washington, to be ambassador to Brazil.

2. John S. McDiarmid, 70, former mines minister for Manitoba, to be lieutenant-governor of that province.

3. Leslie E. Mutch, 56, parliamentary assistant for veterans' affairs and Liberal member of the Commons for Winnipeg South in the last Parliament, to be deputy chairman of the Canadian pensions commission.

After the cabinet meeting, the prime minister told reporters the ministers dealt with the Saskatchewan dam question at their all-afternoon session but are waiting for further word from Alberta before reaching a final decision.

Chinese Launch New Attacks

SEOUL (AP) — Chinese troops snapped four days of rainy silence on the Korean battlefront today with attacks against American and South Korean hill positions on the muddied western front.

Infantrymen of the U. S. 7th division clung grimly to the top of Pork Chop hill after more than 1,000 Communists seized the flanks of the outpost in savage hand-to-hand fighting.

Five miles to the southwest, another 1,000 Reds smashed against Arrowhead ridge, but the South Koreans held their ground.

Attacking behind a 15,000-round artillery and mortar barrage, the Reds pushed through ankle-deep mud early today and leaped into American trenches on Pork Chop.

Both sides called for reinforcements. After eight hours of heavy fighting, the 7th reported it was holding the outpost's central position.

Holds Provost Men Off For Seven Hours

MONTREAL (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police said today John Patrick O'Brien, 29-year-old soldier, surrendered to them Monday after standing off army provost corps men for seven hours.

The RCMP was called into case after O'Brien, charged with deserting from the Royal Canadian Regiment when he was ordered to Korea, refused to give himself up to two provosts who called at his home in suburban Ville Emard.

They said he sat with a rifle on a sofa while Cpl. R. J. Kimsley and Pte. J. D. Sweeney sought to take him into custody.

His mother, who has had four other sons in the armed services, sat with him. She told newspaper reporters that Patrick had been given a nervous disability pension when he was discharged after the Second World War.

CLAIMS MALTREATMENT

O'Brien claimed he had been maltreated by the army. He said some of his military documents had been falsified and he had lost all his savings because the army had refused him legal aid when he became entangled in a series of court cases.

He also said that provostmen had beaten him when they arrested him on another occasion.

He was ordered to Korea in February but did not report to the army after pre-embarkation leave.

O'Brien finally consented to give up to the RCMP and he was taken for an interview with army legal experts before being turned over to military custody.

"Don't write anything dirty about the army," O'Brien told reporters. "I wouldn't want this to hurt enlistment."

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—It was reported here today that the Niagara bridge commission is buying the Whirlpool Rapids bridge over the Niagara river for more than $3,000,000.

45 Red German Police Executed For Disobeying

BERLIN (AP)—The West Berlin newspaper Telegraf said today that 46 Communist German "peoples' police" have been executed by Russian firing squads for "disobeying orders and resisting the Red army" during the June 17 workers revolt in East Germany.

No source was given for the report, which is considerably higher than any previous estimate of the number of police executions. Refugee reports have confirmed, however, that the Red German police proved in the uprising that the Russians could not rely upon them against their own people. The "Vopos"—volkspolizei — often refused to fire on rioters and sometimes even joined the rebels. Some 500 have fled to West Berlin in the last month.

East Germany yesterday slashed the budget of the disgraced police force by 750,000,000 east marks ($30,00,000) another West Berlin newspaper, Nacht Depesche, reported. It said the money will be ported.

Spurred by serious food shortages, the Communist East German government held out new promises to disgruntled farmers today to lure them into delivering quotas asked from the new grain harvest.

Quotas were reduced and more credit and farm machinery promised, according to the West Berlin Morgenpost.

Demonstrations in front of empty food stores were reported in many sections. The harvest, which began last week, is expected to be slim because so many experienced farmers have fled to the West, and those remaining have been hampered by Communist red tape and lack of equipment.

Dr. James B. Conant, U. S. high commissioner in Germany came to West Berlin today for an on-the-spot study of the situation caused by the Russian martial law barricade dividing the four-power city.

The three Western commandants Monday night made a new demand on the Soviets to lift their armed blockade of the sector border and restore to Berliners "the right to circulate freely throughout their city."

May Receive Truce Reply UN Hopeful

Have No Expectation Of Winning Rhee Over To Armistice

SEOUL (AP) — The Communists late today called for a meeting of liaison officers in Panmunjom Wednesday, touching off speculation they are ready to answer a UN proposal to sign a truce now whether or not South Korea objects.

The officers, who normally arrange meetings of the full armistice delegations, will meet at noon (11 p. m. EDT today).

This new development came as an authoritiative South Korean source said efforts to win President Syngman Rhee over to an armistice will fail unless the U. S. comes up with "a new proposal satisfactory to Rhee."

Armistice negetiations have been in recess since June 20 when Rhee freed some 27,000 anti-Red North Korean war prisoners. The truce agreement was reported ready to sign.

SECOND ANNIVERSARY

The liaison officers will meet on the second anniversary of the first meeting to arrange for the truce talks. On July 8, 1951, three U. S. officers flew to Kaesong to open talks the world hoped would lead to a speedy peace.

Gen. Mark Clark, UN Far East commander, asked the Communists June 29 to sign a truce even if Rhee refuses to go along. So far they have not answered.

President Eisenhower's truce envoy, Walter Robertson, did not meet with Rhee today. Their talks are deadlocked as a result of Rhee's insistence that the U. S. agree to resume fighting if a post-armistice political conference fails to progress toward peaceful unification of Korea within three months.

A well-informed South Korean source said Tuesday that Rhee has rejected U. S. compromise plans so far because they offer him nothing concrete.

SOME CONCESSIONS

Robertson flew here June 25 in an effort to win South Korean cooperation in a truce negotiated—and all but signed—at Panmunjom.

He is reported to have offered Rhee a number of concessions in an attempt to win his support.

Full Payment Government Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government will seek legislation to authorize payment to farmers of the full commercial value of animals slaughtered because of hog cholera, the agriculture department announced today.

The decision, reached by cabinet Monday, applies particularly to the recent outbreak in Southern Ontario, but it is the government's intention to embody the plan in permanent legislation.

Under existing law, maximum compensation is $30 per animal for grades and $50 for pure-breds.

About 2,800 hogs were slaughtered hogs. They are receiving some $75,000 under the current law.

The department said no new cases have been reported since June 19 in Ontario.

Hoping To Save Damaged Freighter

PUSAN (AP)—U. S. Navy small craft removed 47 crew members from the grounded American freighter Cornhusker Mariner today, leaving only the captain and six men aboard the ultra-modern cargo carrier.

The 14,000-ton freighter, completed last year at a cost of $7,000,000, was slammed by heavy seas into Lighthouse Rock off Pusan harbor early today.

Two tugs put lines aboard the high-speed freighter in the morning and were trying to hold her from pounding to pieces on the rocks. The navy said the ship was in "dangerous condition," but there was a chance to save her.

One of the rescued crew members said four of the seven holds and the engine room were flooded.

The freighter is operated by the Seas Shipping Co., of New York for the U. S. government.

Sex Offenders Being Paroled From Reformatory

TORONTO (CP)—Sex offenders are being paroled from provincial reformatories, the Ontario legislature's reforms committee was told Monday. Despite previous assurances by parole board chairman the Rev. George Dix that such was not the case, committee chairman W. J. Stewart (PC—Parkdale) said that it was true. Mr. Stewart told the committee that acting on the advice of a "responsible private citizen he had established it as a fact" that such offenders were paroled.

"This sort of thing has let the department down," said Mr. Stewart, referring to the evidence given earlier by Mr. Dix. The parole board chairman had told the institution committee that drug addicts, arsonists and sex offenders are never considered for parole.

NUISANCE VARIETY

Mr. Dix said later that when he made the statement to the committee concerning sex offenders he was speaking of "dangerous" offenders, not the type who were what he termed "merely a nuisance to society."

The committee is expected to resume its hearings Friday. Meanwhile it will inspect Burwash reformatory, Sudbury jail, and Minnow Lake Training School for boys.

Col. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, answered questions concerning differences in maintenance costs at various institutions.

Mr. Stewart said Cobourg showed a cost of $2.48 a day for each person for maintenance, Bowmanville's cost was $3.61 and Galt's $4.16.

Col. Basher said some of the differences were caused by extra food being issued, such as at Burwash, where men worked outside in exposed weather during winter.

Book Purge Eased By U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department has directed its overseas libraries to put back on the shelves many volumes removed during the recent purge of books written by Communist and controversial authors.

Officials who disclosed this today said the books still banned were named in two master lists, the latest of which was dispatched last week to the approximately 189 libraries in foreign cities. Instructions were to restore volumes not specifically named.

Although the lists have not been made public, informants who may not be named indicated they included more than 50 titles. That would mean the restoration of perhaps 250 titles. Officials have said all copies of 300 or more books by about 18 authors had been removed. Eleven are reported to have been literally burned.

Officials said the latest order was dispatched to end confusion which resulted from 10 earlier directives. The state department has been a target for criticism because of the removal of some books not specifically named in any directives. Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) assailed particularly the removal of "Witness," life story of Whittaker Chambers, avowed reformed Communist.

HEADS FOR WEST

A few hours later, he pushed off by train from here on his Western campaign, which he opens at Winnipeg through the West for about the next 10 days.

The major political issue to come up before the cabinet Monday was that of the Saskatchewan dam, long a matter of interest to the three Prairie provinces. It involves harnessing river waters crossing all three Prairie provinces.

A royal commission recently estimated the cost at $250,000,000 for the whole power-irrigation development and labelled the overall project uneconomic at this time, but the matter has since been reopened in discussions between the federal and Prairie governments.

Following the cabinet session, Mr. St. Laurent said only the concurrence of the Alberta government is required before a final decision is reached by the federal government on the project. Alberta had concurred on the use of its river waters only for irrigation.

HOPES FOR AGREEMENT

He hoped Alberta agreement would be reached on power, so the federal cabinet could decide whether the dam would be of enough benefit to the country generally to warrant federal participation.

On the diplomatic end, the Pierce appointment rounded out a foreign affairs shuffle that has been in process for several weeks.

Mr. Pierce's superior as Washington ambassador Hume Wrong, is being transferred to Ottawa as undersecretary. Arnold Heeney, permanent delegate to NATO in Paris, is being moved to Washington as ambassador. Dana Wilgress, undersecretary, is replacing Mr. Henney at Paris.

Mr. Pierce will succeed E. H. Coleman, retired, as ambassador to Brazil, the appointment taking effect Aug. 1. Mr. St. Laurent said he expects a successor will be appointed for Mr. Pierce during the course of a reorganization of the Washington embassy.

The new Manitoba lieutenant-governor also will take office Aug. 1. He will succeed Hon. R. F. McWilliams, who has retired. Mr. McDiarmid left active politics before the Manitoba provincial election this year.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 13-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Monday's noon rate was 99 11-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.79 5-16, against $2.79½.

Mercy Plane Crashes, 3 Die

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A U. S. Coast Guard rescue plane on a mercy mission crashed near the mouth of the Mississippi river today, killing three of the six crew members.

The PBY-type plane was attempting to land to pick up a fisherman seriously ill aboard a small fishing craft.

The plane went out of control and plunged into the water.

Three crew members went down with the plane, but the other three crewmen managed to stay afloat and were rescued by a nearby coast guard patrol boat.

One highly competent source said last week that Robertson told Rhee the U. S. would stage a joint walkout with South Korea from a political conference if the Communists used the talks to shield military operations.

He cited Red infiltration into South Korea as a truce violation which might warrant such a walkout.

But Rhee snubbed the offer because it failed to meet his demand for a 90-day time limit.

While the talks were in recess, South Korean students and a few elderly folk paraded through the streets of Seoul chanting anti-truce slogans.

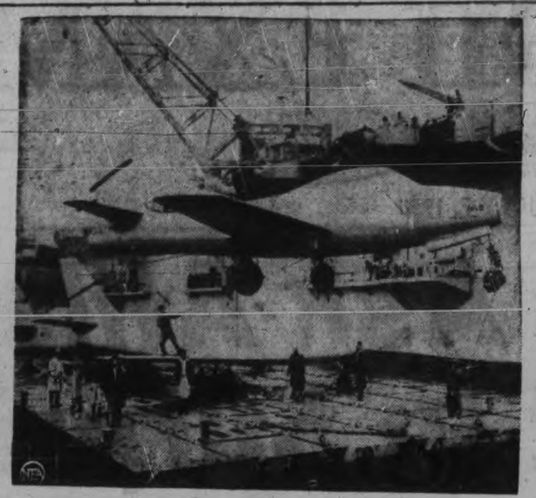
May Recall U.N. Assembly

Expect Move To Be Made Within Week

NEW YORK (Reuters)—A move may be made this week toward recalling the United Nations general assembly to consider the Korean situation in the light of President Syngman Rhee's refusal to agree to a truce.

The statement made in the British House of Commons today by R. A. Butler, acting prime minister, that Britain favors recalling the UN general assembly into session if Rhee rejects terms of a Korean truce, reflected an opinion generally held in the United Nations. Most delegates have been in agreement that the United States' negotiators in Seoul should be given every chance of reaching a settlement with Rhee.



But there is a growing feeling in UN circles that the present position can not be allowed to drift much longer.

Some quarters feel the first step towards bringing the assembly back should have been taken last week. But in view of the energetic efforts being made in Seoul by Walter S. Robertson, President Eisenhower's envoy, to find a common ground with Rhee, there was a disposition to be patient.

That was why delegates did not at once act to back up the suggestion of Prime Minister Nehru of India, made about 12 days ago, that there should be an early meeting of the general assembly.

Unless there is a marked change in the situation in Seoul within the next day or so qualified observers expect the demands for a general assembly meeting to increase.

Prices Shift Lower On Stock Market

TORONTO (CP) — Prices shifted lower in heavy afternoon stock market trading today.

Western oils and base metals tended narrowly lower while Golds mixed. Industrials turned in a majority of gains.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals moved fairly actively. New Larder U, a Bathurst base metal and a favorite in the last session made little headway in active trading. Weaker spots in the list were Conwest, Anacon and Chimo.

Industrials found support in the utilities, steels and refining oils sections but weakened in textiles as Canadian Celanese slipped to a new low of $25, with a $3 loss. Individual stocks to improve included B.C. Electric Preferred, Walkers, Simpsons New and Page-Hersey.

In golds, seniors went well forward, juniors mixed but holding companies showed losses. McIntyre was a favorite in the seniors as it added a point and a half but Frobisher lost extreme 20 cents in holding companies.

Higher-priced base metals led their group to lower ground with losses ranging to a half point. Among the hardest hit were Falconbridge and Noranda while in lower priced issues Western Tungsten dropped 20 cents.

Price changes in western oils kept within a 15 cent range. Fargo, Home Oil and Husky eased but Central Explorations gained.

Find Not All South Koreans Want To Fight

SEOUL (AP)—Not all of the South Korean Army wants to drive north to the Yalu river boundary of Manchuria—alone.

It is not hard to find Republic of Korean soldiers who know such a course would be national suicide. It is not hard to find others who, worn out by the long and bloody war, are willing to settle for any decent terms.

But it is only fair to say that many more are willing to brave everything and either conquer or die with President Syngman Rhee.

The fiery 78-year-old president has threatened to drive north alone if the United Nations signs an armistice with the Communists on terms he considers a "death warrant" to his country.

There are very few indeed—although there are some—in the RoK Army who say they would resist an order from Rhee to disregard an armistice and attack the Communists alone.

CAN'T TAKE POLL

There are 16 divisions and thousands of supply troops in the South Korean Army and it is obviously not possible to take a public opinion poll among them. But a random sampling shows three different reactions:

1. A small but influential number of officers and better-educated men doubt, in varying degrees, the wisdom of Rhee's bitter anti-armistice stand.

2. A much greater number say, with or without mental reservations, that they will follow Rhee to the Yalu or death.

3. Occasional individuals oppose Rhee's policies so strongly they hint a military revolt or coup d'etat might be necessary to save South Korea. Such words are rarely spoken but the thought exists.

Czechoslovakia Eases Policy

Annul Absenteeism Decree Against Workers

VIENNA (AP)—Prague radio announced today that the Czechoslovak government has decided to annul a decree that made it a criminal offence for workers to stay away from their jobs without good reason.

The law had been enacted because of widespread absenteeism following riots and disturbances in the country last month.

The annulment made Czechoslovakia the fifth East European Soviet satellite to modify its policy on the handling of its restless working millions.

East Germany and Hungary have announced a slowdown of agricultural collectivization, less police terror and a return to some degree of private enterprise.

Romania has dipped into food reserves and announced new increases in food rations. Albania late in June wrote off charges against peasants who failed to fill their quotas of grain, eggs, wool and meat in the 1949-52 period.

Only Poland and Bulgaria have yet to take steps to counter the public unrest which has erupted in open rebellion in East Germany and Czechoslovakia, and has produced rumors of similar unrest in the other Red-ruled countries.

The Prague broadcast said the Communist cabinet abolished the law against absentee workers Monday after the central committee of the Czech Trade Union Federation declared the law was "unnecessary" and said it would take over responsibility for ending absenteeism.

WHERE TROUBLE BUBBLES FOR KREMLIN—Newsmap above illustrates the chain reaction against Communist rule, set off by the bloody anti-Red rioting in East Berlin and other German cities. Long-suppressed resentment of tyrannical rule burst to the surface throughout the satellites from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

May Imports Set Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's May import total set an all-time monthly record and further boosted the country's foreign trade deficit this year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

For the first five months of this year, imports exceeded exports by $209,900,000. There was an export surplus of $114,800,000 for the same period in 1952.

Exports for the January-May period this year were valued at $1,603,700,000 compared with $1,740,900,000 for the first five months last year. At the same time, imports rose from $1,626,100,000 to $1,813,600,000.

May imports rose to $422,200,000 compared with $393,100,000 the previous month and $386,000,000 in May, 1952. Previous monthly high was $405,100,000 in May, 1951.

Exports for May stood at $385,000,000 compared with $386,900,000 a year earlier. There was an import surplus of $37,200,000 in May compared with a May, 1952, export surplus of $1,000,000.

Car Crash Fatal

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — James Moody, 27, injured Friday 12 miles east of here when his car went out of control, crashed into a ditch and then landed upside down on the opposite side of the highway, died Monday night. A passenger in the car, Francis Goodfellow, also 27, is recovering from leg injuries, hospital officials said.

A HOPE DEFERRED

The expected announcement of interest to the Peterborough community in the form of an important commercial investment did not materialize at the council meeting last night. As Mayor Waddell remarked to the Examiner: "We just have to wait a little longer, hoping that the assurances w have been hearing about will be announced soon."

Seaway Project Planning Uses Sky-High Figures

TORONTO (CP)—Experts babble in astronomical figures in estimating the power potential of the St. Lawrence seaway project.

Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro commission, says the increased power capacity to Canada from the seaway would be equal to 28,000,000 men working eight hours a day for 300 days a year. Technically speaking, Canadians would have an additional 6,300,000,000 kilowatt hours at a cost of nearly $19,000,000 each year. The United States would receive the same.

Two large dams across the international portion of the river will produce this tremendous amount of electricity. One will incorporate a power-house 3,500 feet long, containing 36 generating units. The units would produce 2,200,000 horsepower.

The dams would raise the level of water 80 feet. The project calls for the moving of at least eight Ontario communities to higher ground. In addition some 30 miles of railway would be re-located and 45 miles of highway rebuilt.

Already about 120 engineers and men are on the banks of the historic river engaged in preliminary planning. Scores of others are busy at the University of Toronto studying miniature models of the seaway, determining currents and testing designs. Ontario hydro engineers and scientists are working together on intricate problems which are swiftly solved by the university's electric "brain."

More than 70,000 tons of reinforcing steel will be needed as well as some 108,000 tons of structural steel, 4,400 tons of copper, more than 7,630,000 barrels of cement and 118,000 board feet of lumber. This is exclusive of requirements for machinery and equipment in powerhouses.

Election Campaign Begins To Warm Up As Parties Fire Broadsides

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

With voting day little more than a month away, the federal election campaign warmed up Monday night. Liberal, Progressive Conservative and CCF speakers, fired mutually-critical broadsides on taxes, world trade, Communists and even the kitchen sink. CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, campaigning in Saskatoon, brought the kitchen sink into election prominence. He said in a national radio broadcast recorded for broadcast from Ottawa, his party will propose, if elected, a host of social benefits, including a "good kitchen sink and a first-class bathroom" in every home.

The CCF, he said, makes no "political promise" such as the $500,000,000 tax- reduction program of the Progressive Conservatives. His party favored shifting the tax burden from the low-income groups to the shoulders of the high-income earner—"to those who are best able to pay."

Meanwhile, Donald Fleming, Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament, aimed a fiery barrage at Prime Minister St. Laurent and Trade Minister Howe in a Galt speech.

He referred to Mr. Howe as "Clarence Dictator Howe," substituting Dictator for Mr. Howe's middle name of Decatur. Of Mr. St. Laurent, he said: "Don't be misled by these pictures of a kindly gentleman going around patting children on the head and kissing babies."

JUICY PAYMENTS

Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said there have been "juicy payments to some . . . prominent friends of this government. Before they tell you there can be no reduction in taxes, ask them what they are doing to end waste, extravagance and inefficiency."

The $500,000,000 tax-reduction program "won't be done by a government which spends $10,000,000 to tell you what good boys they are, $50,000,000 on travelling and $28,000,000 on professional services which could be performed by the civil service."

Mr. Drew came in for some critical attention from Justice Minister Garson in a national radio address in Winnipeg. Mr. Garson questioned whether Mr. Drew could form a government. He said Mr. Drew receives little more than token support in half the provinces. His main strength was in Ontario.

FEEBLE COALITION

"Is not the more likely alternative to Canada's present able and powerful administration some feeble coalition under Mr. Drew of Conservatives, Social Crediters and a few Quebec independents?"

In Kitchener, John Diefenbaker, a Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament, said the federal government collected $1,400,000,000 above the needs of government in the last seven years.

"That amounts to $2,000 a day, every day since the year 1. Yet, the Liberals say Mr. Drew's promise of reducing taxes by $500,000,000 cannot be done."

In a speech at Saskatoon Mr. Coldwell said the Liberal government does not want a dam in the South Saskatchewan river at Outlook, Sask., part of the controversial South Saskatchewan river irrigation and power project.

"In spite of all evidence that has been accumulated over the years pointing to the immense need for this irrigation project, action has been delayed time and again."

"The untold suffering of thousands of Saskatchewan farmers on account of recurrent droughts is perhaps the plainest of all evidence indicating the urgency of its construction."

Coldwell Laying Stress On National Health Plan

By WILFRED CHISLETT

SASKATOON (CP)—M. J. Coldwell, national CCF leader, quoted biblical verse—"bear ye one another's burdens"—Monday night in arguing the need for a national health plan, stoutest plank in his party's federal election platform. The 64-year-old leader, addressing more than 600 persons here in support of Roy Knight, CCF candidate for Saskatoon City riding, said the last wish of his wife was to have him devote part of each campaign address to the health scheme.

Earlier Monday Mr. Coldwell resumed his Saskatchewan tour with a party picnic at Pike Lake, 20 miles south of here. His handshaking campaign in the province was cut short June 26 by the death of his wife at Ottawa.

Today he leaves for Biggar, 60 miles west of here, and his home riding of Rosetown-Biggar where he will spend the rest of the week.

"If there is one thing near my heart at this time, it is a national health program," said Mr. Coldwell.

FINE TREATMENT

Saskatchewan, with its provincial health plan, provides the finest cancer treatment in the world and its mental hospitals are a challenge to all Canada, he said.

But in Ottawa and Montreal, the mentally ill were kept in jail cells while waiting to get into overcrowded hospitals. The responsibility was national and had to be taken over by the federal government, the only agency with the power to do so. Such a plan, based on ability to pay, would be combined with adequate social services under a CCF government.

Saskatchewan has a CCF government because "the Liberals had been found out," Mr. Coldwell said. After the Aug. 10 election, Canada might see a CCF government or a CCF Opposition.

STRATEGIC POSITION

Whatever the outcome, the CCF might be in a strategic position to demand the health plan and building of the South Saskatchewan power and irrigation project.

Mr. Coldwell said the report of the royal commission which investigated the project and termed it uneconomical was "designed to shelve construction." Only one irrigation export had served on the three-man commission and one of the other members was an outspoken opponent of public power.

Besides building the dam, he said, a CCF government would undertake a program of low-rental housing for those who could not afford to buy, something now denied them by Prime Minister St. Laurent who "has never had to understand the need of the common people."

In his Pike Lake address to farmers in their work clothes, Mr. Coldwell repeated accusations that the Liberal government permitted Canada to lose West European markets.

Charles Coyle Named Candidate For PC's

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Charles Coyle was nominated Monday night by the Progressive Conservative party to seek re-election for Elgin in the forthcoming federal election.

Mr. Coyle, member for Elgin since 1945, got the nod over Thomas Currah, St. Thomas mayor.

Tax reforms promised by the Progressive Conservative party would cut by "at least 14 per cent" the cost of essential items such as food and clothing, John G. Diefenbaker, MP for the old Saskatchewan riding of Lake Centre, told the meeting.

Garson Blasts Drew Demand On Trade Policy

WINNIPEG (CP). — Justice Minister Garson, in a CBC broadcast address Monday night, centered his fire on Conservative Leader Drew and his party's demand for trade policy changes.

Referring to the Conservative slogan, "It's time for a change," Mr. Garson said the alternative was a Conservative government. He questioned whether Mr. Drew could form a government.

"His main support has always come from one province — Ontario," said Mr. Garson. "In half the provinces he has had little more than token support.

"Is it not the more likely alternative to Canada's present able and powerful administration some feeble coalition under Mr. Drew, of Conservatives, Social Creditors and a few Quebec Independents."

Mr. Garson attacked the Conservatives for demanding changes in trade policy without detailing their plans.

He outlined the government's achievements in trade and said Trade Minster Howe recently made a successful mission to South America to increase Canada's trade with that continent.

"Even before he began his mission, we had already increased Canada's trade with South America by no less than 18 times, that is, by 1,800 per cent since 1939," he continued.

Mr. Garson said Canadian budget surpluses had not accumulated because Canadians are overtaxed. A comparison of income taxes in Canada, the United States, the United Kingdom, Australia, and New Zealand showed Canada's rates were much lower than those countries on incomes below $5,000 a year. On incomes above $5,800, rates were higher than the United States, but lower than those in the other British countries.

"But our lower Canadian rates, when imposed upon the high Canadian incomes, have produced large revenues," said Mr. Garson, "and that is where the surpluses have come from."

Press Conference Becomes Part Of Drew Tour

By ALLAN DONNELLY

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Regular press conferences have developed in the election campaign of Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader.

In six days last week Mr. Drew held five—in Victoria, Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon—to answer questions on a wide variety of topics. He held one Monday at Fort William.

Such conferences have occurred only intermittently in the course of Canadian election tours.

Mr. Drew said the conferences last week had been arranged by local party organizations, partly to permit local press coverage in advance of his platform appearances which are usually in the evening.

On this basis, there was no indication that conferences will be continued for the rest of the campaign, but Mr. Drew said he thought future conferences were "quite possible."

INFORMAL CONFERENCES

Such meetings to date, with the four newspapermen travelling on the election tour and perhaps a half-dozen local newspaper and radio reporters, have been informal. Mr. Drew replies fully to most questions dealing with general topics. These have included his party's program on tax savings, housing and reallocation of federal-provincial taxing fields, the proposed national agricultural board for farm prices, the party's demand for a law defining and outlawing Communist activities.

He parries some questions, including the usual query on his party's chances of forming a government after the Aug. 10 election.

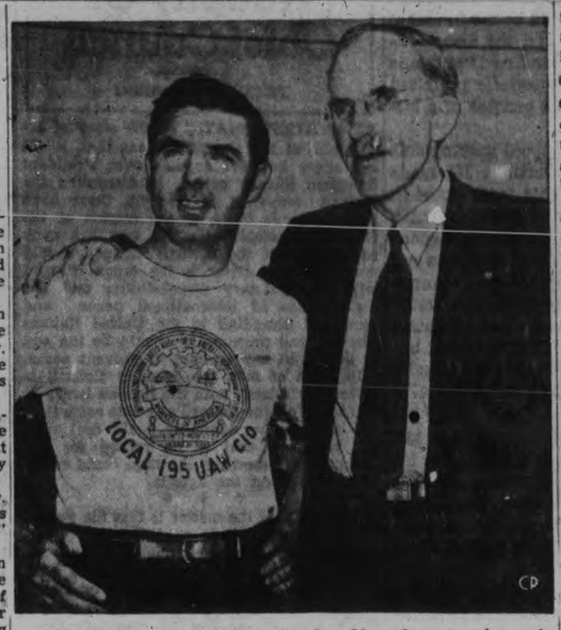
ROME (Reuters)—Four persons, including a 71-year-old woman on a bicycle, were killed by lightning during violent rain and thunderstorms in northern Italy. Heavy rains gravely damaged crops in the northern Appennine mountains, according to reports reaching here

Taxation No. 1 Issue In Election

KITCHENER (CP)—John Diefenbaker, one of the Progressive Conservatives' chief spokesmen in the last Parliament, Monday called taxation the No. 1 issue in the Aug. 10 federal election.

Speaking to a public meeting in this southwestern Ontario centre attended by about 150 persons, Mr. Diefenbaker said the "average working man man labors 10½ days a month to pay federal taxes."



"In the last seven years, $1,400,000,000 has been collected above the needs of government. That amounts to $2,000 a day, every day since the year 1.

"Yet, the Liberals say Mr. Drew's promise of reducing taxes by $500,000,000 cannot be done."

ASKS FLOOR PRICES

Mr. Diefenbaker, a candidate in the Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert, called for the imposition of floor prices, to be announced far enough in advance of the growing season to permit farmers to make decisions.

Referring to what he termed government "arrogance," Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals have the power, given them by the emergency powers act, to take over every farm and industry in the country.

POLITICS AT PICNIC—Stanley Knowles, member of Parliament for Winnipeg North Centre, and a leading spokesman for the CCF party, attends a picnic at Windsor, held by Local 195, United Automobile Workers (CIO). Shown with James Dowell, vice-president of the union local, Mr. Knowles told the 5,000 attending that his party was anxious to see Canada's workers receive their fair share of the country's wealth.

Wheat Surplus Problem Rowe Says

ALLISTON — It took a good-natured crowd less than two minutes to choose the popular Hon. W. Earl Rowe to contest the riding of Dufferin-Simcoe for the Conservatives for the ninth time, at a meeting Monday night.

More than 500 people were seated in the auditorium of the Alliston arena and at least 100 more stood two-deep along the walls. Another 100 voters sat in a downstairs room and heard the speeches via loud speaker.

The burly, 59-year-old Mr. Rowe, suggested by some as a possible minister of agriculture in a Conservative government, has won eight federal elections in the riding, and with the exception of two years when he headed his party in Ontario, he has represented Dufferin-Simcoe in Ottawa since 1925.

He told the predominantly farmer audience that Canada faces the possibility of having more unsold wheat on its hands this fall than in any year since Confederation. "And," he added, "as farmers, we have fewer foreign markets for our surplus products right now than at any time since 1900."

On the subject of recent increases in the standard of living, he said the federal government has managed to spend the country into prosperity by using borrowed money to build weapons of destruction.

"This situation can't last for ever," Mr. Rowe said. "And when it ends, where will we be with the Liberals?"

Because of his long service in the Commons, Mr. Rowe was able to recall that in 1925 the federal budget was less than the $500,000,000 promised by Mr. Drew as a tax saving.

"Federal civil expeditures have increased 10 times since then," Mr. Rowe said, "and Ottawa is 10 times deeper into private business than it was in 1925, and I thought it was in too deep then."

CAN BE CUT

To critics who said the saving couldn't be made, Mr. Rowe replied that there wasn't a person at the meeting who couldn't cut his or her spending by 5 per cent, if he or she had to. "And the same goes for any government," he added.

But, he suggested, cabinet speakers have changed their tune since the early days of the campaign, when they said such a saving was impossible. "They are raising the ante every day," Mr. Rowe said, amid appreciative chuckles from the crowd, "and it wouldn't surprise me if the Liberals come up with a promise to cut taxes by $600,000,000 shortly before the election."

Candidate Files Contract Suit

OTTAWA (CP)—Daniel Nerenberg, Labor-Progressive party candidate for Ottawa West in the forthcoming federal election, launched a breach-of-contract suit Monday against the Ottawa transportation commission.

Mr. Nerenberg is seeking $10,000 damages, claiming the OTC refused to carry out an alleged agreement with him to display 120 posters on streetcars July 4, 6 and 7 announcing an LPP rally.

A writ issued in the Ontario Supreme Court was served on D. N. Gill, OTC general manager.

Liberals Worried By Promise Of Saving—PCs

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The promise of Progressive Conservative leader George Drew to cut taxes by $500,000,000, if he is elected, is causing deep concern in Liberal ranks, Charles Stephenson, PC candidate for Durham, told a Millbrook audience.

Now the Liberals themselves realize that such a saving can be made, said Mr. Stephenson.

"They realize too late that as a government they should have done something to relieve the heavy tax burden instead of piling up huge surpluses. They should have listened more closely to Mr. Abbott in 1949 when he was quoted as saying: 'Let us not try to fool ourselves even if we are trying to fool the public'."

Mr. Stephenson was speaking Friday at a meeting of the Millbrook-Cavan PC Association. Dr. J. W. Wright, president of the association, said plans were being made to hold a rally and a social evening at some central point in the riding, sometime near the end of July.

The PC candidate attacked the taxation policy of the Liberal government and said their attitude is reflected in the remark in Parliament of the Hon. C. D. Howe: "If we want to get away with it, who is going to stop us?"

NINE TIMES AS MUCH

In 1938 the total cost of the Federal Government to the Canadian people was $500,000,000, said Mr. Stephenson. Today it is over nine times that amount. This is appalling, he said, and more than justifies the statement of the Hon. George Drew that a Conservative government will reduce this "burden" by half a billion dollars.

"The Liberals say it cannot be done but this promise of the Conservative leader appears to be causing deep concern in their ranks," said Mr. Stephenson.

Mr. Carruthers, president of the Durham Association, spoke briefly in favor of the PC candidate. He said that the PC party have consistently urged the government to develop this country's traditional market in foodstuffs with the United Kingdom. And on many other occasions they have outlined ways and means of overcoming the dollar shortage so Britain might be able to buy Canadian peacetime goods.

Better Conditions Way To Defeat Reds—Harris

OTTAWA—The only sure way to defeat Communism in Canada is to create conditions which give rise to unity, security and prosperity, Immigration Minister Harris declared Monday night. He said that election of a Conservative government would prove an aid to communism and that Conservative leader Drew would try foolish and dangerous expedients to meet the problem.

"But if you create other conditions, hunger, insecurity, fear and arbitary government, such as we had under the Tories 20 years ago, communism in this country will be given a powerful weapon with which to engage in combat for men's allegiance," Harris said.

"Mr. Drew, if in office, will be bound to try foolish and dangerous expedients to cope with a problem which his other policies will have created."

The minister said in a national radio broadcast that the Liberals believed in opposing all subversive forces in Canada.

"No one has fought communism with greater vigor, or success, than the present Prime Minister," he said, and Canada was "freer of Communist influence than ever before."

Harris said the election issue was the same as in 1949: "We are the party of unity — his (Drew's) program is one of disunity."

"Our Prime Minister has been as a rock standing firm against all that might divide Canadians," he said.

If the Conservatives gained office in the Aug. 10 election, Harris said, there would be no more national radio or television networks "unless they are profitable to Mr. Drew's friends. It will be a case of heads— Mr. Drew's friends win — tails — you and I lose."

Liberals Want Tax Cuts Too

GORE BAY — The Liberals are as interested in tax cuts as the Progressive Conservative Party, but we are concerned with realistic reductions," External Affairs Minister Pearson said here Monday night.

"The Liberals will slash expenditures as soon as the opportunity presents itself. Our quarrel with the Conservatives is that they cannot cut $500,000,000 from taxes without interfering with essential services or going in for deficit financing."

The Liberal Party had a right to be sceptical of the Opposition's promises when it took into account what they had pledged to spend, Mr. Pearson continued. Social Credit Leader Solon Low was was right when he said in Toronto that the Conservatives can cut taxes by $500,000,000.

"But Mr. Low said it could not be done by orthodox methods," Mr. Pearson said. "The Liberal government has shown itself only too anxious to cut taxes when the opportunity presents itself.

"Our record is an earnest indication of our determination to do so in the future."

Mr. Pearson, sporting a fiery sunburn acquired in the past few days, has attended baseball games, eaten turkey dinners, and met hundreds of his constituents in Algoma East since entering his own riding Friday. Yesterday he spent several hours in Espanola with an officer of the Department of External Affairs, catching up on correspondence and development.

The B. F. Goodrich Life-Saver Tubeless Tire seals punctures on running wheels . . . protects against the annoying trouble caused by flat tires.

It will save you money...

The B. F. Goodrich Life-Saver Tubeless Tire provides greater safety than any tire and tube, yet it costs less than the conventional safety tire-tube combination.

Automobile accidents caused by tire blowouts account for the loss of many lives, and an even greater number of serious injuries. Blowouts are caused when the inner tube explodes through weakened or broken tire cords. Because it has NO inner tube, a B.F. Goodrich Life-Saver Tubeless Tire changes a sudden, dangerous blowout to a safe s-o-s-slowout—allowing you time to stop your car safely, with perfect control.

PUNCTURE PROTECTION
A gummy rubber compound under the tread immediately seals around puncturing objects, and permanently seals the hole when the object is removed. Inconvenience and delays are eliminated.

BLOWOUT PROTECTION
Instead of a tube, the Life-Saver has a patented inner lining that's part of the tire. In event of damage there's no sudden blowout, only a small break in the liner, a s-o-s-slowout that lets you stop safely.

SKID PROTECTION
The Life-Saver tread is cross-cut into thousands of tiny grip-blocks. At 30 miles per hour on wet roads, it stops you a car length quicker than regular tires . . . and gives you longer mileage too.

Your B.F. Goodrich dealer now has the Tubeless Tire ...it can be your LIFE-SAVER

Details And The Strike

We publish two Letters to the Editor today which comment upon our editorial regarding the strike at the Quaker Oats factory which we published on July 4. In that editorial we said that we were not concerned with the details of the dispute, and the writers of the letters appear to have mistaken our meaning; we did not mean that we knew nothing of the details of the dispute, but only that we feel that these details are of markedly lesser importance than the well-being of the city of Peterborough, considered as a whole.

* * *

The matter of the swing-shift we understand. It means that if the present company offer were accepted, between fifty and sixty men would have to work on Saturday afternoons when the mill was in top production—that is to say, during the peak season of the milling industry, which is a matter of a few months each year. The day off, which the forty-hour week gives them, would come on some other day of the week. This does not appear to us to be great hardship; there are scores of industries and trades which work in the same way; as the forty-hour week becomes commoner, it will have to be recognized that not everybody can have Saturday as his holiday. The alternative is such an industrial arrangement as that which pertains in Australia, where long weekends have tended to depress not merely the condition of the workers, but the whole economy of the country.

* * *

In referring to this as a detail, we do not mean to slight the fifty-odd workers who would be inconvenienced during a part of the year. We wonder, however, if their desires should be permitted to outweigh the need of the rest of the strikers.

* * *

One of the writers points out that we have sought news from both strikers and management. That is our duty, if we are to present both sides of the question. And we may say that the management has brought up one detail which the strikers consistently ignore—the matter of freight-rates which are unfavourable to Peterborough as a milling town. Surely this is as important to both sides of the dispute as the matter of the swing-shift? If there is really to be a square deal for everyone, should this matter be ignored? We do not, as Mr. Humphrey suggests, believe that a few cents will buy anyone or anything. We do believe, very strongly, that in labour-management disputes, compromise is vital; the two are tied together like husband and wife, and there is no divorce in that sphere. Therefore mutual concessions are necessary. Management absolutism received its death-blow in the nineteenth century. A great many unions discovered years ago that union absolutism will not work any better.

* * *

The writer who says that the fate of Peterborough lies in U.S. hands no doubt means that the management of Quaker Oats lies across the border. Our impression is that the management of the United Packinghouse Workers of America lies there in at least an equal degree. We do not think, however, that the U.S. will feel obliged to do anything for Peterborough if we lose part of an industry. And as we have said already, it is the welfare of this city which is our chief concern.

Funny Money Talk

The businesslike appearance and background of the Hon. George Drew belie the assumption, but his party platform and campaign speeches suggest that he has become a funny-money man. The close connection of Conservatives with Social Credit in the West fortify the impression. Mr. Drew's chief campaign plank is to cut five hundred million dollars off Government spending; that is, to reduce taxes by half a billion. Wishful thinking of this kind is beautiful; every voter has as tax-payer a perfect right to entertain such dreams. But when a responsible party leader publicly champions them, we cannot help but think a measure of irresponsibility has entered into the political scene or that he has a joker up his sleeve—something like the Social Credit voting card of $25 a month free to everybody.

Most of the rest of Mr. Drew's platform points imply more not less spending, more not fewer taxes. And as he goes about the country, more money dribbles out in election promises. For instance, he has promised to irrigate Saskatchewan. Now, that sort of project was fully examined a couple of years ago by experts and the Government decided, on their findings, that the cost would be far in excess of the benefits. How can the Conservatives cut taxes and spending if only one of the additional new projects promised by Mr. Drew will cost a quarter of a billion dollars?

Mr. Drew also talks about making dollars and pounds convertible. He made some statements on this topic down in the Maritimes a year or two ago which were so financially ludicrous that economists and bankers giggled from one end of Canada to the other. Real funny-money talk. Everybody in Canada would be delighted to see the dollar and pound made freely interchangeable again, but this cannot be done solely or principally by Canada—unless Canadians want to impoverish themselves.

We cannot seriously believe that Mr. Drew believes in funny money. His St. James Street and King Street friends should keep him straight on that topic. We consider that he is merely overstating a case to make political capital. Government spending is high, taxes are high. We believe that both can be pared—particularly if the international situation permits some reduction in defence expenditure. But we doubt that there is anybody at all in Canada other than those who take Mr. Drew's words as the unassailable gospel who believe for one minute that he or anybody else can cut half a billion dollars off the national bill, if the welfare and prosperity of the people are to be maintained.

Peterborough Roads Lead Everywhere

For the last half-century Peterborough has been left in the lurch by its railways. The two village-sized stations and the inadequate train services show that the railway companies have little interest in serving or making money out of Peterborough. (Neither station is as good as the Havelock station; Havelock has about 1,200 people; Peterborough's population is 40,000 and its metropolitan area about 65,000.)

In contrast to the railway companies, road service has recognized and kept pace with Peterborough's growing importance. Come into the city by rail and you feel you are entering a backwoods town. Come into it by road and you know you are entering a populous place, one of the first twenty industrial cities in Canada, as well as a centre of good homes and holiday resorts and thriving business.

Peterborough's place is recognized on highway maps. The Trans-Canada will pass through or around the city. Number 28 Highway gives paved access to Lake Ontario and, northwards, to the holiday land for which this area is famous. Number 7 Highway leads west and east. A person can travel to Toronto by one of three—and soon to be four—Provincial highway links.

Peterborough lies between the two greatest industrial areas of Canada, and is on the fringe of the greatest (the Toronto-Hamilton area). The accessibility of Peterborough to both is good—and necessary. Peterborough's road connection with Ottawa and Montreal is rapidly being improved. The shortest way between Toronto and Ottawa is through Peterborough—and number 7 to Perth and thence to Ottawa is a good, free and uncluttered route. Number 7 has been greatly improved in the last two years, and road work is still in progress.

This avenue is so speedy and easy that motorists between Montreal and Toronto are now favouring the Montreal-Ottawa - Peterborough - Toronto route, not Number 2 on the lakeshore. This traffic trend will become more noticeable as the new stretch of the Trans-Canada south of Ottawa on the Ontario side is extended. A great amount of work is being done on this new road, which will eliminate the twisting way of the old route through numerous villages on the south-west side of the river. Already a flat sixteen-mile stretch is open for traffic, and many other miles of new highway are being made ready to connect with it.

Peterborough is assuredly on the highway map of Canada, as it is on the industrial and commercial map. A pity that the bus company does not recognize this and provide the city with an adequate bus depot. The present place—a hutch—is a disgrace both to the bus company and to the city. For the last several years we have heard that plans are being prepared for a new depot, but so far not a stone has been turned.

Only 6 Meetings:

Atrophy Of Chief Council

By PETER STURSBERG

IT IS SYMPTOMATIC of the state of affairs at the United Nations that, in all the anger and the anguish over President Syngman Rhee's action in disrupting the Korean armistice agreement, there have been demands for a special session of the General Assembly, but no one has even suggested that the Security Council should meet. Yet, the latter is the organ charged with the "primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security," according to the United Nations Charter, and presumably should be the one to deal with any attempt to prevent peace.

In point of fact, the Security Council is no longer "seized" with the Korean issue; it was taken off the Council's agenda some time ago so that the Assembly could deal with it. However, that is no reason for the Council's not meeting; the item could easily be put back on the agenda.

* * *

THE FACT of the matter is that the Security Council, as an organ of the United Nations, has become atrophied and is no longer being used. For three months now, it has not met; its last meeting was on March 31 when it recommended the appointment of the new United Nations Secretary General, Mr. Dag Hammerskjoeld of Sweden. The record of the number of meetings which the Security Council has held each year since 1946 shows how it has declined during the last two years or so:

Year	Number of Security Council Meetings
1946	88
1947	137
1948	168
1949	62
1950	73
1951	39
1952	42
1953 (First 6 months)	6

* * *

OF the 42 meetings which the Security Council held in 1952, 14 were devoted to the question of the admittance of new members to the United Nations, 13 to bacteriological warfare and the Geneva protocol banning its use, ten to the Kashmir dispute, three to the Tunisian dispute, and two to the Council's own housekeeping in drawing up its annual report.

At the most, only two of these issues could by any strength of the imagination, be called "threats to peace," they were the Tunisian dispute which the Council refused to hear, and the Kashmir dispute on which it adopted an abortive resolution. The Council spent most of its ten meetings on the Kashmir dispute receiving reports from Dr. Frank P. Graham, the United Nation mediator, and extending his time of service; finally, it did attempt to take matters into its own hand but the Indian government rejected its proposal. Now, it is sitting back waiting a meeting between Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan and Prime Minister Nehru of India.

* * *

THE OTHER 1952 Seurity Council issues might be called "academic" or "propaganda" questions. The Soviet demand that the United States ratify the Geneva protocol banning germ warfare was defeated, while the American proposal for an impartial investigation of Communist bacterilogical warfare charges has not been vetoed by the Russians. The question of the admittance of new members has not been solved yet, and the United Nations remains the same exclusive organization of sixty States.

All the six meetings which the Security Council has had in the first six months of this year were devoted to the selection of a new Secretary General, and all of them were closed meetings. The general public has had no chance to see this primary organ of the United Nations, this High Council of the Nations which the founding fathers envisaged as the guardian of the peace, in action this year.

* * *

DURING the same period of a year and a half, the General Assembly has been dealing with the vital questions of war and peace in Korea, Morocco, Tunisia, and Burma, to mention a few of them.

The decline of the Security Council dates from the adoption of the Acheson Plan (after Mr. Dean Acheson, then American Secretary of State) or "Uniting for Peace" resolution at the end of 1950, during the Fifth General Assembly. Under this plan, any important issue which was vetoed in the Security Council could be taken up by the Assembly almost immediately; its purpose was to get around the veto, and its result has been to by-pass the Security Council.

According to the Charter, the Security Council has to meet every fourteen days unless members agree to waive this rule. What has been happening during the past three months is that every fortnight an official has rung up the members and asked them if they want to meet; and every fortnight, they have said "No."

* * *

DESPITE the fact that it meets so seldom, the Security Council's social life shows no sign of diminishing. It has become the custom for the month's chairman to give a dinner party for the members at one of the better hotels in New York toward the end of his term of office. At the most recent of these dinner parties, given by Mr. Henry Cabot Lodge of the United States, who was the Council chairman for June, Dr. Tingfu Tsyiang, the Chinese Nationalist delegate, remarked that the negotiations in Rangoon for the withdrawal of the Chinese Nationalist troops from Burma appeared to be going well. He was referring to a "threat to the peace" which the Security Council had never considered.

The dealing of the Security Council must be blamed chiefly on the misuse of the veto by the Soviet Union, but this is not only cause. The Council did irreparable harm to itself in Asia by refusing to hear the Tunisian dispute. Furthermore, the Council is no longer a representative body. It has only one member from the whole of Southern and South-East Asia with its hundreds of millions of people, and that member is the Chinese Nationalist delegate whom most of the governments in the area do not recognize. On the other hand, the countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have a preponderance of members on the Council, and, before the last elections, actually had a majority.

Letters To The Editor

EXPLORERS OF THE MISSISSIPPI

Sir: Whether the Examiner is attempting to curb certain heresies taught in our schools, I know not; but immediately following the Collegiate results is found the epochal statement that the Father of Waters was discovered by Marquette and Joliet. Even a book published as early as 1915—"The Beginnings of the American People" by Carl Becker gives the credit to De Soto, whose discovery was made before the Frenchmen were born.

J. M. T.

Ed-NOTE: The Encyclopaedia Britannica says that De Soto discovered the lower course of the Mississipi in 1541. Nothing was done to follow up his work until Marquette and Joliet reached and explored its upper reaches in 1673. The whole river was explored from north to south by La Salle in 1682.

PETERBOROUGH'S FATE IN U. S. HANDS

Sir: In reference to your editorial "'Nobody Wins a Strike" on July 4th; you leave very much in doubt, your right to express the opinion of "the people in general" of the city of Peterborough, since a great proportion of these people belong to organized labour (we might include some who are relations and some who are not in unions) none of whom were surprised at the attitude of the Quaker workers; also these same people sympathise with this attitude.

Further, your statement that you are "not concerned with the details of the dispute" (you had representative reporters at the union meetings and your reports indicate that you had communication with the company) leads to doubt that you had any right to criticise at all.

Your attitude seems to be in line with so many employers, that a few cents can buy anyone or anything.

If you will read the details, with which you are not concerned you will find that the company agrees to a five day week, it also agrees to certain overtime rates —then if you look a little deeper you will find that they want to circumvent these points by introducing what has now got to be known as 'swing shifts.' These swing shifts, as visualized by the company, would neutralise both overtime regulations and the five day week clauses sought by the union. This action is descriptive of the procedure which seems to be becoming standard practice with so many employers; that is to insert in a "Package Deal" a clause that is unacceptable to the workers. Such is the case now — no matter how nice the rest of the proposals look— a five day week was agreed upon and this is what the strikers want.

The overtime regulations are not so much to increase the pay envelope as to induce the employer to adhere to the hours of work agreed upon.

Along with you, we agree that strikes are not of immediate benefit to anyone, but since this is the only means at the disposal of the workers to convince the employer that they are serious in their demands, and that pious platitudes are not enough— strikes are likely to remain with us for a time yet. Certainly, if we are to avoid resorting to such measures, it would seem that employers of labour will have to bring their thinking up to date. Their use of the "Labour Consultant" is reminiscent of the Pinkerton days. Never mind about a contract, beat that union. These consultants I sometimes think, are more interested in securing labour unrest than in resolving differences.

Sometimes you might think over too, is the fact that the fate of Peterborough, about which you are concerned is being decided not in Peterborough, but somewhere in the U.S.A. Speaking of the U. S. A., I am sure that the strike leaders would be glad to show you copies of contracts now in operation in other Quaker plants which grant the conditions which are now being denied the workers in the Peterborough plant. Peace with honour certainly— but first let us away with subterfuge.

Yours truly,
EDMUND S. HUMPHREY.

THE SWING SHIFT

Sir: With regard to the strike being carried on against Quaker Oats by Local 293 UPWA. I am glad to see that the Examiner is concerned about the situation. It is an unpleasant one, and an unhappy one for both management and workers.

But I note that you say you are not concerned with the details of the strike. Perhaps that is why you cannot understand the adamant position of our people.

You, and the public have heard a lot about "swing-shifts" without paying too much attention to what the expression means. The problem confronting both union and management is this.

The Company says to us "Every flour mill in the country is on swing-shifts, and has been for years."

The production workers at Quaker Oats have never worked swing shifts, and they do not wish to start now.

It is true that the company has modified its position with regard to swing shifts, until only a certain proportion of our membership would be affected.

The old union contract was on a forty-four hour basis. We worked Saturday morning, and if we were asked to work Saturday afternoon we received time and one half. The new contract offered to us by the company would do this:

The minority would be asked to give up the Saturday afternoon they used to have, work all day Saturday and take some other day off in the middle of the week. These men are family men and wish to have their days off with their families when the kids are home the same as the rest of us.

Our members, who believe strongly in unity because it has paid dividends to them, have said many many times that they are willing to stick together until everyone gets a square deal.

If you have a solution to this problem Mr. Editor, the strikers including myself would be glad to hear it, and I am sure Quaker Oats would too.

Naturally we are deeply concerned about the future of our city, because we are tax payers too. Our people are not carrying on this strike in order to hurt Peterborough in any way. We hope that the settlement of the dispute is not too far away, and that Peterborough will be a better place to live in after it is over.

Yours truly,
W. TRIGGS.

The Loss Of A Ship

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

The sinking in Lake Superior, with a loss of 15 lives, of the Great Lakes ore carrier Steinbrenner, recalls the old chain of events, in which a battle was lost because a nail came out of a horse's shoe. Because the hatch covers of the Steinbrenner were ripped off the waves of a sudden Lake Superior storm swept in to the hold of the heavily laden ship, and she went to the bottom in a matter of minutes.

The Steinbrenner is a United States ship. Investigation of the sinking and consequent loss of life will be in the hands of U.S. authorities. If the investigation is sufficiently thorough it should be of benefit to both U.S. and Canadian ship owners, operators and lake seamen.

Anyone who has seen the heavy steel plates which are used on Great Lakes freighters for hatch covers will be inclined to doubt accounts that "the high wind ripped off the hatch covers." It may be, however, that the hatch covers, whatever they were made of, or however they were secured, were not bolted down as they should have been. Perhaps the bolts were loose and the "working" of the ship in the gale sheared them off, allowing the hatch covers to slip back with the roll of the ship, exposing the hold to the sweep of the waves.

It is said that on some ships there is extra hatch cover protection which is used in spring and fall, but is discarded when the fine summer weather arrives.

The sinking of a Great Lakes ship now is a rarity. This is the first loss in six years at this particular spot in the lakes. Radar, depth sounding devices, and ship to shore telephone service, make lake navigation much easier and safer.

Navigation on the lakes has always been as perilous as on the ocean. But with all these recent safety aids if the old elementary things, like proper hatch covers, properly secured, are neglected, nothing can prevent the continuing loss of sailors and ships on the Great Lakes.

Assistant Engineer Resigns City Post

The resignation of W. Murray Metcalfe, assistant City Engineer, was accepted with regret in a motion by Alderman Anglesey and Rehill at the council meeting, Monday night He requested that it take effect July 24.

A letter from Hon. H. R. Scott informed the council that he had recently consulted the provincial Department of Health regarding a requested increase in its allowance for hospital care of indigent patients.

A city planning committee recommendation was approved by council granting a permit to P. Latchford to build a greenhouse at the rear of his property, 686 Park St south, providing its heating plant will not produce smoke objectionable to the neighorhood.

C. Gertley, 1198 Monaghan Rd., has been refused a permit to build a tinsmithing shop at the rear of his house because that area is zoned for residential use.

The Veterans' Land Act subdivision for which the Murray Farm on the Peterborough-Port Hope Highway has been purchased was not favourably regarded by the city planning committee "since it is highly undesirable to have lots in a subdivision fronting directly on a highway. There should be a service road with only one or two accessible outlets to and from the highway to that road."

Council passed the report of the committee of the whole including its recommendation fixing the salary of City Clerk Outram at $7,000 for 1953, with an annual increase of $200 to a maximum of $8,000.

Amendment of the traffic bylaw will restrict to one hour, at all times, parking on Stewart Place, south of Perry St. and east of Park Street.

Parking on the south side of Princess St. will be limited to one hour, at all times.

Lock St., from Morrow to King George St. is being designated a through street.

Parking is being prohibited, at any time, on both sides of Park St. from Lansdowne to Brioux; and on both sides of Lansdowne St., from Park St, 200 feet westerly.

Council adopted a fire and light committee recommendation providing that "any employee suffering an injury while gainfully employed outside his employment with the city will not be permitted to use his sick leave credits to receive pay from the city for any absences from employment with the city due to such accident or injury."

This clause is from the board of works report, which was adopted: "That permission be granted T. Lansfield to erect a temporary frame structure on his property on the north side of King St., upon receipt of written assurance from him that this building will either be removed within one year, or replaced with a permanent structure of the type allowed in the fire zone."

Old Landmark Log House Razed By Fire

HAVELOCK—(ENS)—One of the oldest landmarks in Belmont township, a log house a mile west of the village, was destroyed by fire near midnight Saturday. A workshop and a barn on the property were saved.

The log home was known as the Chamberlain property. The first deed was issued in 1873. It was purchased by Shallam Pacey in 1877. Later it passed to William Pacey and then Miss Mabel Pacey. The present owner is Frank Toms.

The logs used in the construction of the house were virgin timber from this district and the lumber throughout was superior in quality to what is available today.

Mr. Toms had started dismantling it with a view to using the material in building a modern house. He had removed the windows and some of the partitions.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

There is no insurance and the cause of the fire is unknown. Mr. Toms said the loss to him in lumber for the new house was considerably more than the building as it stood.

Neighbors worked hard to save the barn and workshop. In the latter was stored the furniture of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dafoe who had lived in the log house for two years.

Mr. Toms was notified about the fire about 11:30 p.m. by A. McIntyre and Ernest and Peter Spinks who were returning from Havelock.

Mr. Toms intends to go on with his new house despite the loss.

New Inter-Racial University Dream Of Far-Sighted Idealists

By STANLEY HAWKINS

SALISBURY (Reuters) — When Queen Mother Elizabeth lays the foundation stone of the new Rhodesia university next Monday the dream of a few far-sighted idealists who for years have advocated an inter-racial university will become a reality.

Africans will be admitted alongside Europeans, the only qualification for entry being educational attainment.

Soon after the Second World War a group started collecting funds to build the university on a site made available by Salisbury city council.

Today classes are in operation for commerce and accountancy and an ambitious program of development is planned for the next five years.

Sponsors and supporters of the university, the first in central Africa, feel that the centenary year of Cecil Rhodes, founder of the two Rhodesias and patron of the Rhodes scholarships to Oxford university, is an especially appropriate time for the placing of the foundation stone.

One of the first objectives is the establishment of classes in liberal arts. Appointments will be made for professors in English, Latin and history as well as geography, French, Afrikaans (the dialect developed by the early Dutch settlers) mathematics, economics, physics, chemistry, botany and zoology.

These appointments with a dean and a secretary-treasurer involve $56,000 annually beyond the university's present income, now barely sufficient for instructors and the 80 part-time students now taking commercial and accountancy courses.

The French government has offered to help found a chair of French. The Greek community have suggested help for a chair of classics.

The university's five-year plan estimates a student population of nearly 300 by 1958.

A-Bomb Threat

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A civil defence expert said government officials believe Russia has enough atomic bombs to drop two on about 67 areas in the United States. Kenneth Edmunds, protection specialist for the civil defence administration in Washington, said "we know now that the Russians have bombers which can strike at any point in the United States and make it back to the Soviet Union, with refuelling in flight."

Dies As Car Upsets

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Ross A. Bennett, of Aylmer, 37-year-old father of four small children, died Monday night on Highway No. 73 five miles north of Aylmer after he was thrown from his car. Bennet, alone in his car, died before medical aid could reach him. Police believe the accident was caused by the front springs of the car breaking and causing the vehicle to turn over.

FROM KOREA TO CANADA—After working with the three battalions of the Royal Canadian Regiment in their regimental aid post in Korea, South Korean Lee Seh Hyong, 24, was given the chance to study medicine at the University of Manitoba. Lee is given a medical examination by Lt.-Col. Ulric Blier, of Montreal, consultant surgeon at the 25th Canadian field dressing station.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Six-man lacrosse makes its debut here tomorrow night, and Petes' president Bob Peirson thinks the bobtail version of boxla is made to order for Peterborough. "Our system of defence fits right into the six-man style," he said the other day, "and then the smaller net is a break for big Moon Wootton. He could lay down in front of the goal and leave very little target for opposing forwards." Down in St. Kitts last Saturday, the Petes were shorthanded two players for eight minutes, yet the only goal scored on 'em in that time was the result of a free throw. Doing away with the rovers means a team can field a goalie, three defence pairs and three forward lines.

Their two convincing victories over the leading A's last weekend indicates that the Mann Cup champs are rolling again after a so-so season up till then. When clicking right, they're the best in the country, though there are several other OLA clubs that can give 'em a battle. Standing at the end of last week showed St. Kitts tops in scoring with 329 goals, Yorks having 260, Fergus 233 and the Petes with just 226. But the Moon keeps shining and he allowed but 152 goals against him, while A's had 180, Fergus 190 and Yorks 208. (Aside to St. Kitts: So you still think Favelle and Johston are as good as Wootton?) Incidentally, July 15 is the OLA senior deadline for signing players.

Top Talent To Tigers

The addition of Chuck Simpson and Jack Bionda, among other former Brampton players, should strengthen Hamilton Tigers a lot. They play the Petes here tomorrow (Wednesday) night, while Toronto Yorks come up this way Friday. Petes want both games as they narrow the gap between the Trailermen and St. Catharines. Since Brampton has dropped out, a new schedule is being drafted which will provide one more home-and-home set of games for Petes with both Yorks and A's. That's good news for the fans as these are the top three teams. It'll mean four more stiff scraps for the locals against such opposition, but the Thorpe team feels it can take any of them pretty regularly from here in, barring injuries.

Ira Dundas coaches the juvenile Petes in the OLA this semester, with Henry Jay, the manager. The team is grouped with Orillia, Parkdale and Brampton, the latter opening the schedule here this eve. An 8.45 touch in Miller Bowl. Locals play their first away game in Orillia next Monday. Here are most of the Peterborough boys on this squad: Simonds, Delahaye, Bloom, Foote, Dundas, Blodgett, Hobart, Jim and Danny Sutherland, Hunt, Orde, Wright, Bathe and maybe one or two we've missed. All products of the paying-off PMLA system, which also feeds the junior club and eventually the senior team. A really worthwhile setup to keep lacrosse healthy here.

"Astute Bench Jockey"

Port Hope scribe remarked the other day: "Manager Howie Dalton of the junior Liflocs is the same fellow who led the Cobourg crew last season. Dalton is a fighting leader, an astute bench jockey and has plenty of baseball brains." Yes, the capable Howie has his hustling young squad playing Cobourg here tomorrow eve at 6.30 in Riverside and might well take them, too, after winning 4-2 last start in Port Hope A booster night is planned for the club Saturday in the loop twilight tilt at Riverside between Lindsay intermediates (boasting a bunch of ex-Petes seniors) and the Liflocs.. Draw prizes include a TV set, bike, lawn boy, etc, with balls., ice-cream bars and balloons given the kids while they last. Fans must attend to win.

Last night's scheduled OLA junior "A" joust here between the Oakville Green Gaels out of Toronto and Peterborough Pats was postponed. Heavy morning rain ruined the ground. Those postponements in various sports keep adding up this season and will mean a rush later on to catch up. Lou Vitarelli has called a practice for the Pats in Miller Bowl tonight a 6.45 sharp with all players urged to be on time as they must be off the field one hour later to make room for the OLA juvenile fixture there. Pats play at Oakville on Friday and have Brampton here next Monday. OLA hasn't yet ruled on the Dundas' default here June 27, a four-point affair.

Schoendienst, Kell Leading Scoring Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Veteran infielder Red Schoendienst of St. Louis Cardinals and George Kell of Boston Red Sox are threatening to run away with the major league batting races.

Schoendienst holds a 23-point advantage over his nearest National League competitors, Frankie Baumholtz of the Cubs and Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers. Kell boasts a 14-point lead over Pete Suder of the A's in the American League.

Schoendienst tops the National loop with a .351 average and Baumholtz and Robinson are tied for second with .328 each. Kell heads the junior circuit with a .342 mark, while Suder is runnerup at .328. Figures include Sunday's games.

In retaining his front-running position Schoendienst gained seven points during the week as he went 13-for-31.

Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee is tied for the National League lead in both home runs and runs batted in. Mathews and Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski share home run honors with 24 apiece and another Redleg, Gus Bell, is deadlocked with the Braves' Youngster in RBIs with 68 each.

Century In Cricket As Local "B" Loses

The local "B" cricketers lost to Grace Church in Toronto in council play as P. Bartlett of the winners proceeded to score a century. The score was 214 to 44. Next local matches are July 18, the "A" team playing Avro in Toronto and the "B" team meeting St. Edmund's at the Oval.

Bartlett batted 103 not out, his score including 10 fours. His best assistants were H. Donbridge 32, B. Brown 19, and with four wickets down the total was 112. Later, Lovell 19 and G. Gamble 26, along with G. Webb 10, helped take it to 214. Local bowlers had a bad time of it, with Frank Dyer getting four wickets for 56, Rollwagon 3 for 57 and W. Freeman two for 18.

The local team batting was disappointing and they were all out at 44 with E. Rollwagon 10 for high. T. Anstey in bowling took seven wickets for 13 runs. The local "A" team earlier defeated Grace Church easily.

Experts Give Home-Breds Chance To Win

TORONTO (CP)—The word is out around the Scarboro clubhouse today to keep an eye on the home-bred pros in the 72-hole Canadian Open golf championship this week. This is the time, some observers believe, that a Canadian has a good chance of leading home the 183-man field.

Canadians have given notice in practice rounds on the par 71 layout that they may be able to hold their own against the big American entry list.

Three Western Canada pros made their initial appearance on the 6,436-yard course Monday and their cards raised a few eyebrows among the clubhouse crowd. All came in with sub-par rounds, led by Saskatoon's Pat Fletcher who scored a sizzling 66, just one stroke off the competitive course record.

Henry Martell of Edmonton, who succeeded Fletcher as the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association champion on Sunday, took a 67, and the long-driving Stan Leonard of Vancouver had a 69. Phil Farley of Toronto, one of the country's leading amateurs, also had a 69.

PAR TO TAKE BEATING

There's no doubt that par will take a beating when play starts in earnest Wednesday for the $3,000 first-place money and the Seagram Gold Cup. The pros and amateurs have been cracking perfect figures the last few days.

Ralph Robinson, professional from Los Angeles who was just another name to spectators, also shot a 66 Monday while better-known golfers made the course look easy in abbreviated rounds.

Dutch Harrison, the Arkansas traveller who won the Open four years ago, was five under after 11 holes before packing up in a morning rain. Bo Inman of Tulsa, Okla., considered a dark horse, was five under for seven holes when he called it a day.

CARDED PAR

Defending champion Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., probably just a little shaky from his off-color showing in the U. S. PGA tournament at Birmingham, Mich., last week carded even par. Palmer holds the Open record with a sensational 263 at Winnipeg last year.

Jim Ferrier from San Francisco, a two-time winner, worked out with a one-over-par 72, but he still is considered a dangerous threat to make it three titles in four years.

The top-heavy field will be reduced Thursday to the low 100 and ties after 36 holes and at the end of 54 holes it will be further reduced to the low 60 and ties.

Locke Sets Course Record In Open Qualifying Round

By STERLING SLAPPEY

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (AP)—Bobby Locke, Scotsman John Panton and Ben Hogan were the big show Monday in the opening qualifying round of the British open golf tournament over two wind-swept Carnoustie courses.

Locke, the defending champion from South Africa, set a course record at Burnside with a 65. Hogan fired a 70—one under the unofficial par—on the same links.

On the tougher championship course, Panton came in with a 35-34—69, best ever recorded in official competition at Carnoustie.

The championship course is 7,200 yards with an unofficial par 72, while Burnside is 6,398 yards with an unofficial par 71.

FIELD CUT

After today's second qualifying round with three players switching courses, the field is cut to the low 100 for the tournament proper starting Wednesday on the championship course. There will be 18 holes Wednesday and Thursday, and the field will be cut to 50, with the 36-hole finale on Friday.

Hogan, U.S. open champion playing in the British Open for the first time, was two under par for the first nine. He didn't fare so well on the incoming nine, taking a 38.

Locke, out in 33, got a red hot 32 coming in. Magnificent putting and fine chipping were the South African's best weapons.

Other low scores on the Burnside course included Max Faulkner of Britain, 34-34—68; Flory van Donck, Belgium, 33-36—69; Harry Bradshaw, Britain, 34-36—70, John Anderson, Britain, 35-33—70, and Dai Rees, Wales, 35-35—70.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

The greatest tennis player of all time, in the estimation of many experts, passed in the death of a man whose late years were unfortunately shadowed. Whether Big Bill Tilden was the greatest, as so many claim, will always be a point of contention, as all superlative ratings must be. But there is no question he was the greatest showman of all the tennis stars.

Tilden was a flamboyant, swaggering figure in sport's Big Six of the Golden Era of sport, the Roaring Twenties. Jack Dempsey, Bobby Jones, Babe Ruth, Red Grange, Walter Hagen and Tilden were figures such as are never likely to grace the sport scene again, certainly not at one time.

And none was a greater showman than Tilden. Even in the most important circumstances he could not overcome an obsession that ruled him, a desire to see if he could give the other fellow a handicap and still beat him.

Perhaps the most conspicuous instance in which this sheer gamble came to the surface was when Tilden was playing a Davis Cup match with the Japanese team member Shimidzu—a fine player, too.

Tilden, apparently through deliberate design, in the opinion of experts who saw the match, allowed "Shimmy" to win the first two sets and to get within match point of the third set before turning on the heat.

Then he began firing in cannonading fashion, and "Shimmy" lost that third set and the next two as well, suffering defeat in a match that had seemed already won. The set scores were 5-7, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, 6-1.

Tilden did the same thing in another Davis Cup match, but this time it was done in a fit of pique. That was in 1923 and the Australian team was the challenging group. The matches were played at Forest Hills.

John B. Hawkes and James O. Anderson were the Australian aces. In a singles match, after winning the first set, Tilden made a splendid play in the second set. His return went close to the base line. The linesman called it "in". This point won him the set.

The crowd booed the linesman's decision. That irked the sensitive Tilden. But his anger took a peculiar twist. Instead of turning in and endeavoring to beat the Australian quickly, he deliberately threw the next set to his opponent, 6-1. It was his way of responding to the crowd's booing. He deliberately handicapped himself in order to show his contempt for the crowd and perhaps for his opponent.

Then he cut loose. He poured in everything he had. He won the fourth set and the match in decisive fashion.

A great showman, a tremendous tennis player, he made America tennis-conscious in the '20's, when the game was far less popular than now. That he could command attention in such an era, when sportdom was populated by giants, speaks highly of his qualities.

Indians Defeat Chicago 6-3, Regain 2nd Spot

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Louis Browns may be losing themselves right out of a new home. At least they're doing a thorough job of losing in their old one. Going into tonight's game with the American League pennant-aspiring Cleveland Indians, the hapless Browns are all even with the major league record for consecutive defeats in their own park. They dropped No. 19 Monday night, an 11-inning 8-7 struggle with Detroit Tigers. Only the Boston Red Sox of 1906 lost that many games in a row at home. The Browns' last victory in St. Louis was June 2 when they beat Washington in the first game of their previous home stand.

Such a distressing record might well chill the enthusiasm of the several minor-league cities which have been seeking the Brownie franchise Owner Bill Veeck tried and failed to move to Baltimore in March. He said Monday night he does not plan to revive the proposal at the American League meeting next Monday.

Before the season opened Veeck said he would need to draw about 750,000 fans to meet expenses. In 40 games only 193,939 have shown up, including the 2,184 who saw Ray Boone hit a home run in the 11th to break up Monday night's contest.

TIGERS HAD LEASE

The Browns now have slipped within four percentage points of the American League cellar on which most folks thought the Tigers had a more or less full-season lease.

The Indians regained second place by defeating Chicago 6-3, but lost half a game in their pursuit of the front-running New York Yankees, who won twice from Philadelphia 10-5 and 5-3. The Tribe trails by 6½ and the White Sox by seven. Boston strengthened its hold on a first division berth, edging Washington 2-1.

In the National League, Brooklyn Dodgers rebounded from their 20-6 licking at the hands of New York Giants to smother the harmless Pittsburgh Pirates 14-2. They gained ground on all of their close rivals since the second-place Milwaukee Braves and third-place St. Louis Cardinals were idle and fourth-place Philadelphia bowed 6-0 to the two-hit major league debut of the Giants' Allan Worthington.

Chicago Cubs came from behind to nip Cincinnati 7-6, despite Ted Kluszewski's 25th home run for the Redlegs.

LEAD MILWAUKEE

Brooklyn leads Milwaukee by two games and the Cardinals by 3½.

Mickey Mantle, sidelined with a bad leg and ordered by doctors to rest at least another week, showed up as a pinch hitter for the Yankees and hit a grand-slam home run in the first game. Allie Reynolds, who went back to the bullpen after another failure Sunday as a starter, came to Vic Raschi's rescue in the second game and received credit for his seventh victory.

Al Rosen and Dale Mitchell led a 13-hit Cleveland attack. Rosen hit his 21st home run and Mitchell collected a double and two singles in running his hitting streak to 16 games.

Ivan Delock, back with the Red Sox after a stretch in the minors, scattered seven Washington hits in his first major league start of the season but it took a pinch hit single in the ninth by Ted Lepcio to beat southpaw Tommy Byrne.

Suggests Name For Stadium

MONTREAL (CP) — Vern DeGeer, sports director of the Gazette, said today in his column "Good Morning" that "Armstrong Memorial Stadium" would be an appropriate name for the new $500,000 sports stadium under construction in Winnipeg.

He said the late Eddie Armstrong, former sports editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, played a major role in organizing the first Grey Cup football final.

A native of Saskatoon, DeGeer said he "hopes Winnipeggers don't come up with something like 'Civic Stadium' when the contributions of a fine disciple of sport like Eddie Armstrong are so well remembered by so many of us." Armstrong died in 1950.

Tigers Wallop Fergus 10-6

HAMILTON (CP)—Hamilton Tigers Monday night defeated Fergus Thistles 10-6 in the first six-man lacrosse game, using the new and smaller goal, to be played in Eastern Canada.

Tigers now are within four games of the fourth-place Thistles in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association.

Hamilton was sparked by three players acquired when Brampton Excelsiors folded last week. Jack Biondi scored three goals and Chuck Simpson and Jack Sibbald two each. Other Hamilton scorers were Chub Brown, Jack Dorney and Bill Rankin.

Fergus goals were notched by Jay Hill, with two, and Bob Dobbi, Stan Abbot, Don Campbell and Ron Landoni.

Trying To Arrange Match With Marciano

EDMONTON (CP)—The Journal said Monday in a Los Angeles dispatch that Henry Armstrong is trying to arrange a match between Rocky Marciano, world heavyweight champion, and Earl Walls, Canadian titleholder, in Los Angeles next November or December.

Walls, from Windsor, Ont., now fighting out of Edmonton, knocked out Rex Layne of Salt City in 63 seconds here last Friday.

Former holder of the world's featherweight, lightweight and welterweight titles, Armstrong has asked Vic Tansey, millionaire sportsman, to include Walls' name among possible opponents for Marciano in Armstrong's "Boy Town Camp" show, the story said.

Bisons Thump Cubs 5-3; Royals Whipped

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rampaging Buffalo Bisons are in hot pursuit of the league-leading Montreal Royals in the International League.

The Bisons thumped the lowly Springfield Cubs 5-3 Monday night while the Royals were turned back 7-4 by Syracuse Chiefs. That moved Buffalo to 1½ games back of the leaders.

The Bisons scored the winning and insurance runs in the seventh and eighth innings to hand the last-place Cubs their 12th straight defeat.

HARRIS WINNER

Joe Harris was the winner. He pitched until the ninth inning allowing only five hits, when he had to call on Don Coppage to help him out of a jam. Jim Brosnan went the route for the Cubs, yielding 11 safe blows.

Syracuse's Johnny Blatnik powered a Chiefs' rally at Syracuse to beat Montreal with a grand-slam homer. Syracuse outhit the Royals 8-6.

Starter Johnny Griffore was credited with his seventh victory against five setbacks.

Two other games, Toronto at Baltimore and Ottawa at Rochester were postponed because of rain and wet grounds respectively.

Sound Hunters Mix Noises In New Hobby

By RICHARD O'REGAN

VIENNA (AP) — Here's a new hobby that is catching on in Europe. It's called "sound hunting."

You collect strange sounds, peculiar voices, queer cadences and chance events, mix them up, juggle them around and produce "sound creations." You exchange your creations with other amateurs and gradually build up a library of them. Something to entertain your friends with on a dull night.

It amounts to imaginative use of a tape recorder, not merely recording for posterity the howls of the baby or the family's Christmas carols.

"The creative use of the tape recorder is an art like the use of the camera and is more fun," claims Fredy Weber, a Swiss from Geneva, who is general secretary of the International Sound-Hunters Federation. "In fact, we believe that sound-hunting will soon be as popular as stamp - collecting or photography."

Everyone who owns a tape recorder (a cheap one costs about $120) is a potential sound-hunter, says Weber.

SEEK VARIATIONS

The sound-hunter looks for unusual variations of customary sounds. These are from basic street noises, the hum of factories, the whispering of forests, the roar of the sea, the chattering of birds. They are skillfully blended to make a documentary, a words-and-music narrative, a lively show or a musical symphony of sounds.

In Europe, says Weber, some amateur sound-hunters are producing programs so good and so unusual that radio stations are clamoring for their tapes.

Chance recordings can produce choice collectors' items. Like that of the amateur who hung a sensitive microphone from his balcony one moonlit night, expecting to hear nothing but the crickets. Next morning, he found on his tape the voice of an unknown young man proposing marriage to his love and her refusal. Apparently they were on a park bench 600 feet away.

Sound-hunters on occasions have helped the police. A Paris amateur was recording the songs of birds in the Bois de Boulogne. When he got home, he heard in a playback the whispers of two men plotting a crime. He turned over the tape to the Paris police, and they were on hand when the criminals arrived to carry out their plan.

WINNING LAKE TROUT—Jim Bell, of Flin Flon, Man., landed this monster 36-pound, two-ounce lake trout, in Athapapuskow Lake, near Flin Flon, to win the Flin Flon trout festival with an automobile (in which he sits) as first prize. Jim used between 400 and 500 feet of monel line with a No. 8 Gibb Stewart lure to bring in the prize-winner. The fish measured 41 inches from tip to tail and 27 inches in girth.

11½-Pound 'Lunge

APSLEY (ENS).—While fishing in Jack Lake recently, Charles Smith had the good luck to land a 'lunge which weighed 11½ lbs.

He was alone in his boat and had difficulty playing it for half an hour before landing it.

Three Petitions On Parking

Three petitions, relating to traffic and parking conditions were referred by the council on Monday night to the special committee dealing with parking questions.

Residents of Ludgate and Welch Streets asked that their intersection be made a four-way stop, especially for the protection of many children in the neighborhood.

A request from Braund Place, a short street off Chamberlain St., applied for one-hour parking restriction on the east side. The new regulation on Chamberlain St. has diverted some of that street parking to the limited space in Braund Place. Heads of families expressed apprehension that children may be injured by the factory parkers heading into the lanes between houses to begin their turns.

Residents of Lafeyette Avenue appealed to the council to limit parking on its west side to one hour between the hours of 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

An Armour Road petition reminded the council of its undertaking some years ago to keep in repair and oiled the macadam surface on either side of the paving strip. Their letter recalled that the pavement was partly for the advantage of the bus route to Auburn. City Engineer Chalmers told the council he had recently arranged to do the work this petition requested.

Petitions for sidewalks on the east side of Snelgrove Road, between Juliet and Swanston Streets, and on the north side of Kingan St. from the east boundary of Lot 6 were reported sufficiently signed. Construction bylaw was authorized.

Graduates Honored

BETHANY (ENS)—On closing day of school for the senior room a picnic was held at Gribble's pond. The three graduating pupils, Peter Coburn, Joan Morton and Muriel Shackleton were presented with leather billfolds by their teacher, Mrs Mary Wright.

Will Face Trial On Charge Trying Blackmail

TORONTO (CP) — Benjamin Wuls, 41-year-old Toronto merchant, was committed for trial here today by a jury on a charge of attempted blackmail.

A Vancouver antique shop operator, who gave her name only as "Joan Friday" because, she said she had her good name to protect, was the complainant.

She said she had "nothing to hide." She testified that Wuls had written her letters demanding some $3,000 as the sequel to a hotel business party here.

NOT INVITED

She said she met Wuls at the party she gave in a hotel here last June and that Wuls was an uninvited guest. On two days following the party Wuls accosted her in the lobby of the hotel. She brushed off his attentions and even asked a house detective to "throw him out of the hotel."

In July a series of romantic letters began, written on hotel stationery and starting: "My dearest darling Brenda . . . my soul is yours forever. . . ."

(Police said Saturday that the Vancouver woman, on her way overseas, dropped into police headquarters and gave them the letters.)

In a later communication, she said, Wuls wrote: "You didn't answer my letters. I now wish a loan of $5,000. If I do not get this money I will send a personal letter to your husband and daughter."

Man Says Was High-Pressured Into $1,450 Contribution

New York Herald Tribune News Service

NEWARK, N.J.—A businessman told the New Jersey law enforcement council this week that he had been high-pressured into contributing $1,450 in 14 months to the County Detectives' Benevolent Association of New Jersey.

Arthur Febo, operator of a cafeteria at Bell[illegible] N.J., said two solicitors for [illegible]sociation collected the money from him—in amounts ranging from $100 to $350—on six occasions between September, 1951, and December, 1952.

Mr. Febo said one of the solicitors, Joseph G. Greenford, approached him for a seventh contribution in February, 1953, but he refused to donate any more money. "I got doubtful about the whole thing," Mr. Febo declared.

DIRECTED BY EMBEZZLER

Earlier, witnesses testified that the association has only 135 members, that it has received $530,669 in cheques from contributors since 1946, that the solicitations were directed by a convicted embezzler who pocketed 60 per cent of the cheques and all of the cash taken in, and that the association used $12,000 a year of the contributions for entertainment of its members.

Louis T. Lombardi, chief of detectives of Union County and president of the association, estimated that the head solicitor, Thomas H. Bloom of Paterson, N.J., had collected about $400 a week in cash during the five-year period of his contract with the association.

In 1950, Mr. Lombardi said, he informed the association that Bloom had served a prison term for embezzling solicited funds from the CIO. The members voted unanimously to retain the ex-convict as their solicitor on the ground that he "had paid his debt to society and was entitled to rehabilitation," the detective testified.

WOMAN DOUBTFUL

Mrs. Katherine Neuberger, a member of the council, shook her head wonderingly. "In other words, you wanted to rehabilitate an embezzler by putting him in charge of hundreds of thousands of dollars," she said.

Mr. Lombardi admitted that the employment of Bloom might have been "an act of indiscretion".

Another witness was Lt. Louis Sklarey of the Essex County police, treasurer of the association, who told the council that the association was virtually bankrupt in 1946 but now, as a result of Bloom's collections, has cash and bond assets totalling $120,000. In addition, the association has been able to raise death benefits to families of members from $150 to $1,000.

Business men who testified said all they received for their contributions were advertisements in an associated year book and police courtesy cards.

IT'S THE GREATEST SINGLE STEP YET TAKEN into tomorrow's world

Electronics has revolutionized the whole art of communications.

Electronics that first gave us radio—and then television—can now flash words and pictures around the world at the speed of light. One application is the micro-wave that gives us the television hookup and allows hundreds of telephone conversations to be carried simultaneously on one carrier beam. It is also the power that allows plane to talk with plane and prospectors in the inaccessible northland to keep constantly in touch as easily as we speak with a neighbour by telephone.

Electronics has made radar possible—and the pilotless aircraft and the guided missile that seeks out its target and tracks it to inevitable doom. It can guide planes in the sky and ships at sea and bring them safely home. Another application is the electronic brain that can compute, in minutes, mathematical complexities that would take skilled mathematicians days or even years to calculate on paper.

ELECTRONICS SPEEDS THE PACE OF INDUSTRY

Canadian General Electric, as you would expect of Canada's largest electrical company, is vitally involved with the science of electronics. It was the first company to build television sets in Canada. It pioneered in two-way radio communication. It installed the country's first synchrotron—popularly called an atom smasher—at a Canadian university. It was the first company to manufacture electronic tubes in Canada, including sub-miniatures and picture tubes. It is already producing an ever-lengthening list of electronic products for industry.

Today a group within the company is engrossed in studying the limitless possibilities of transistors, the tiny electronic devices that can amplify electric signals a hundred thousand times. Not confined to any one industry, new electronic devices and controls are being used by the mining, pulp and paper, and textile industries, in steel mills and manufacturing plants, and new applications are being found every day.

Step by step for more than sixty years Canadian General Electric has gone forward with Canadian industry and has been proud to grow with Canada . . . today it is still in the vanguard as this country moves smoothly into the electronic age.

NORTHERN LIGHTS

Aurora borealis lit the skies Monday night, being especially bright and flashing around 11 p.m. Northern lights are rather uncommon in July, and Monday's display was generous, even lighting the southern sky.

CONDITION BETTER

Condition of Austin Bridgewater of 177 Hazlitt St., injured Saturday night in a motor accident on Rogers St., was cited by St. Joseph's hospital authorities today as "a little better." Bridgewater sustained severe head injuries in the crash.

HUCKLEBERRIES

First huckleberry pickers were busy in the Nepheline Mine area on Stony Lake Sunday. The berries should be on the city market by Saturday and with the excessive moisture, the crop is expected to be abundant this year. One of the best places to get these berries is Huckleberry Plains, north of Havelock.

PRIZE FOR COMPETITION

Following the dinner meeting Monday night of the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers, in conference in Toronto this week, Christopher Gledhill played in the concert hall of the Royal York hotel his prize-winning piano piece. The composition won first prize in a competition sponsored by the Federation for a short piano work suitable for students.

CITY PACKED BY TOURISTS

A survey conducted by the Chamber of Commerce Monday revealed that out of the 149 parking spaces at the city parking lot on the old market square, 108 of them were from other parts of Canada and the other 41 were from the United States, with Ohio and New York having the highest representation. The chamber attributes this to the wet weather, which brought fishermen and tourists into city to shop.

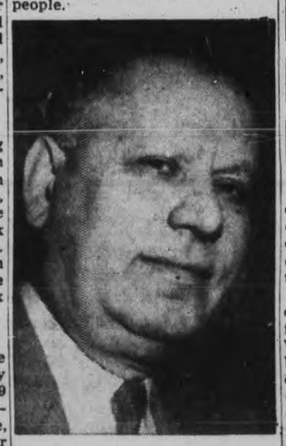
JUST A DUD

A brief clause in Ald. Harold Rehill's report from the fire and light committee at the council session, Monday night quietly dropped into the basket a draft bylaw for the regulation of the sale of fireworks and the discharge of guns in the city of Peterborough. It got into council discussion about last March, slanted off at something of a tangent and was held up for reconsideration.

No Left-Turn Stays

City council accepted Monday night the recommendation of the traffic committee advising the retention of the "no left turn" rule at George and Charlotte Sts. Comment of the committee was: "Removal of this regulation would most seriously affect the movement of traffic at this intersection by impeding it and endangering pedestrian movement. Such action would not be in the best interest of traffic control and safety." The change was proposed in a petition from merchants.

Louis Yeotes Honored By King Paul



Louis Yeotes, a leader in the local Greek community, has been honored by King Paul I of Greece for his work in organizing relief for the people of his war-ravaged homeland. He was one of 15 Canadians and 35 residents in Canada of Greek origin who attended the Greek embassy Sunday for one of the largest investitures ever held in an Ottawa embassy.

All were honored by King Paul for the assistance they had given in relief and other fields during the Second World War.

Mr. Yeotes was presented with the 1941 medal of the Greek Red Cross by Ambassador Raoul Bibica-Rosetti on behalf of King Paul who is honorary president of the Greek Red Cross. A parchment setting forth the citation was presented along with the medal.

DISTRICT CHAIRMAN

Since 1941 Mr. Yeotes has been Peterborough-District chairman of the Greek War Relief organization. With his Canadian friends he helped get money, food and clothing for the hard-pressed Greek people.

LOUIS YEOTES

As a mark of recognition the Greek Embassy held the special investiture—which Greeks from all 10 provinces attended—at the Ottawa embassy. Altogether more than 200 people were present.

Before the investiture a special "nameday" service was conducted at the Greek Orthodox Church by the Rev. Philip Ramphos. Nameday corresponds with the birthday of the sovereign in other kingdoms.

"I feel greatly honored," Mr. Yeotes told the Examiner, "and I'd like to thank all our Canadian friends who helped when relief for the Greek people was so badly needed."

Mutual Fire Aid Plan Approved By Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Items of business ranging from the purchase of trash cans to the approval of a mutual aid program among county fire dpartments occupied the Town Council Monday night.

The mutual aid program supported by Council means that firefighting equipment from Hastings, Warkworth and Campbellford will be available, without charge to any of the three municipalities, in the event of a serious fire. When equipment from one town is away fighting a fire in a neighboring municipality, the third municipality of the group will be alerted to stand by in the event of a fire in the community which is without protection at that time.

Under the new civil defence regulations, this may become law, but until then Campbellford will cooperate with the district deputy fire marshal, K. R. Baird, fire chief of Cobourg, in organizing the mutual aid program throughout the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham.

TO PAY FIREMEN

Campbellford Council also agreed to pay its firemen, six of whom will go with the local pumper if and when the need arises. They will receive $5 for the first hour and $2 for each additional hour, or part of an hour, they are absent from the local fire hall. Fire Chief Alex MacDonald told of attending a meeting in Cobourg at which the program was organized.

The annual grant of $25 to the St. John's Ambulance Association was approved, and the chairmen of the police and fire committees were asked to organize classes to take the course again this year.

County Weed Inspector Percy Gooding, who has been weed inspector for the United Counties for the past seven years, said he had no complaint to make regarding weeds on town property, and complimented the chairman of the road and bridge committee for the excellent job done on weed control in the town.

One or two lots in the town are a disgrace, according to Mr. Gooding. These are both private properties, and the residents have made no attempt to control the weeds. He wants to enforce the Weed Control Act in the town, and Council endorsed his plan. After being notified, if property owners do not control their weeds, Mr. Gooding will lay a charge which brings a fine of from $10 to $50.

PROPOSED BUILDING

Alex Young of the Co-Op store outlined plans for a proposed building attached to their present building on Mill St. The matter was left to the property committee to investigate, and will be presented to Council later.

Councillor Rutherford outlined the need for hard hats for the local firemen. He was authorized to purchase 12, one for each man, at a cost of about $12 each.

Police Chief Lockwood asked Council to prepare a disorderly conduct bylaw. Charges of this nature are laid under the Criminal Code, with the town deriving none of the money obtained through fines.

The police committee report showed 32 occurrances answered last month, with $12 collected in fines under local bylaws and $320 under the Highway Traffic Act and Liquor Control Act. Councillor Ness, chairman of the police committee, asked that a letter of thanks be sent to OPP headquarters in Peterborough for the help they gave the town while Campbellford was without a police force for several weeks.

ORDERS CONTAINERS

Councillor Burgess reported ordering two containers to be placed at appropriate spots in town for collecting refuse. These are being made locally at a cost of about $26.50 each. If they satisfy Council, more may be ordered later.

J. C. Birmingham, tax collector, reported that up to July 1, $64,429.82 had been collected in taxes, an increase of some $200 over the same period last year.

A letter was received from the road and bridge employees, asking for a 15-cent hourly wage increase. The men now receive 70 cents an hour. The matter was left to the road and bridge committee to bring in a report at the next regular or special meeting.

R. F. McWilliams Retires As Lt.-Governor Of Manitoba

A native and one-time mayor of this city Monday announced his retirement from his post as Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba. Roland F. McWilliams who became the 13th lieutenant-general of Manitoba in 1940, brought to the post a notable reputation as a lawyer, student of economic and foreign affairs and social welfare work.

He was born October 10, 1874, in Peterborough, the son of J. B. McWilliams, inspector of Crown timber agencies for the province, and Isabella McWilliams. His early education was acquired in Peterborough and then he entered University of Toronto. He graduated with a BA, political science major, in 1896 and received an LL.B degree the following year. After graduation he entered Osgoode Hall where he studied law, then returned to Peterborough where he practised from 1899 to 1910.

MAYOR IN 1907

Mr. McWilliams was active in municipal affairs here. He served as alderman for many years and became mayor in 1907. He was an unsuccessful Liberal candidate for the Ontario legislature in 1905.

He left here for Winnipeg in 1910 where he was associated with many law firms and eventually he established one himself—the present firm of McWilliams, Gunn and Lennox.

His wife, the former Margaret Stovel, of Toronto, was a leader among Canadian women, intensely interested in current affairs and an author of note. She collaborated with her husband in the writing of "Russia in 1926", an account of their tour of the Soviet Union.

Mr. McWilliams was an outstanding leader in YMCA and held many important posts during his long career. On six separate occasions he headed the Canadian delegation to YMCA international conferences and served as Canadian representative on the world committee of the associations.

He lectured in constitutional law and history at the Manitoba law school for a period of six years, 1914 to 1920, during which time he wrote many articles including a short book, "Does History Repeat Itself?"

John Stewart McDairmid, a retired cabinet minister, will succeed to the post of Lieutenant-governor. He is a native of Scotland who speaks of Canada's northland as, "Nature beckoning with a finger dipped in gold". Previously he had acted as mines minister for 11 years, covering the 250,000 square miles of rural Manitoba.

Lunch Truck Steals Business

Instead of passing some directing resolution, city council Monday night assigned to Mayor Waddell a little matter of talking to Percy Harrison about the sphere of his ambulatory lunch truck.

Sam Bickell, 123 Parkhill Rd., taxpayer and in the stationary lunch business six years, complained of Mr. Harrison's competition in the Inverlea Park area.

Ald. Norman Graham told the council that the Harrison "rolling lunch" had taken the Kinsmen out of the play at Nicholls Oval, Sunday evening, "and were they mad," furthermore, that Mr. Harrison had barged into a position that seriously impeded traffic. Ald. Graham said he had to help direct for nearly two hours.

That kind of free wheeling is to be the burden of Mayor Waddell's talk to Mr. Harrison, providing His Worship has it in his nature to put an edge on his reprehension to effect a check on the "rolling lunch."

On the other side of the case, Ald. Doug. Miller remarked that the lunch truck is sometimes invited to parks by people who did not wish to set up a booth for themselves.

Council Approves Legal Suit Against Driver

City Council gave its approval Monday night legal action by the Peterborough Utilities Commission in claiming $1,679.15 from Floyd A. Barkwell for damage to a motor vehicle of the commission in a traffic accident on July 30, 1952.

The information to the Council was set out in a letter from Alex L. Elliott, solicitor for the Utilities Commission. He recalled that Harry G. Beatty of the Utilities staff was injured in that accident on a county road between Port Perry and Oshawa. Mr. Elliott wrote that F. A. Barkwell was "totally responsible for the accident," that Mr. Beatty was driving on Commission business, and that a personal action was now pending between him and Barkwell. The Commission's car was sold for salvage. Permission of the council for the Commission to proceed with its course was required.

City Gets Strip Of Land To Open Street For $1

For a nominal dollar Coca Cola Co. is transferring to the city a strip 60 feet wide along the south side of their property at the southeast corner of Lansdowne St. and Erskine Ave. for the opening of Borden Road.

A similar arrangement has been made by the council with the two owners of adjoining lots to the east. Beyond that, the city owns a right of way for most of the rest of the way to Monaghan Road.

Although the cost to the owners in each case is only a token dollar, they will be getting the advantage of an additional frontage. The city is opening Borden Road for a reach of the proposed sewer that is planned from the west side of the city north of Clonsilla Ave., down Western Ave. and finally emerging at Monaghan Road in the vicinity of the Nashua Paper Co. property.

Royal Black Knights Plan To Mark Derry Day In City

The largest gathering of Royal Black Knights ever held in Ontario is expected in Peterborough on Derry Day, August 8.

Principal speaker will be Leslie H. Saunders, member of the Toronto Board of Control. Many other prominent members of the order will speak at the rally at Exhibition Park which will follow a parade down George St. from McDonnel St. headed by the CGE pipe band.

More than 100 lodges and Crystal Chapters will gather from as far east as Ottawa and as far west as London. Hosts will be Weir, Royal Black Preceptory 261 of Peterborough.

A special train of 12 coaches and many buses have been chartered for Toronto members. Many will make the journey to Peterborough by automobile.

At the gathering in London last year, more than 25,000 people attended and restaurants and hotels were reported taxed beyond capacity.

Quaker Co. Tests Picket By Sending Truck To Pick Up Load At Plant

Picketers On Line Refuse Admittance No Violence Reported As Drivers Turn Back Without Argument

A probing action by the Quaker Oats Co. to find out the reaction of the union's picket line was tried today. Company officials asked two Peterborough trucking companies to try and get through the picket post at Simcoe St. and pick up a shipment of Quaker products in the plant. After a conversation with the pickets, both drivers turned back. No threats were reported and there was no violence or argument.

It is the first time the company has tried to get trucks through the picket line to load products in the plant since Local 293, United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL), went on strike last April 22. In that 11-week period there have been no untoward incidents and picketing has gone on peacefully.

TO LEARN ATTITUDE

'We wanted to find out what the union's attitude would be," explained General Manager James G. Wharry. "We know what peaceful picketing is and we wanted to see what the union's attitude would be if we asked trucks to come in. I think we've found out what we wanted to know."

Mr. Wharry said management was not anticipating any trouble but at the moment hadn't considered whether they would try again to get trucks through the picket lines.

"We're not trying out any new policy," said Mr. Wharry. "The situation is stalemated and we've got to get the stuff out of this place. We've got carloads just sitting there on the shipping floor. We asked the companies if they would come to the plant. They did so and were turned back."

Shortly after 9:30 a.m. Herb Payne of Herb Payne Transport drove to the Simcoe St. picket post in his passenger car.

"I asked them if it was OK to go in and get a load," said Mr. Payne. "The pickets said 'no' so I just turned around and went away."

Within a few minutes a transport from the Hamilton-Peterborough Freight Lines was stopped at the post. The 10-man picket formed a half circle around the front of the truck and told the driver to go back. He turned the truck around and drove away.

William Triggs, president of Local 593, UPWA, said there had been no intimidation.

"The pickets persuaded him to go back," said Mr. Triggs. "It was peaceful picketing."

Office and salaried workers in the Quaker Oats plant, aware of what was going on, watched the brief negotiations from windows in the plant. At least one had binoculars.

TO TIMBER STRUCTURES

In leaving the employment of the city, W. M. Metcalfe is joining the staff of Timber Structures of Canada as sales service engineer. He has been assistant City Engineer since 1949 following graduation from the University of Toronto. With this transfer he will continue to live in Peterborough.

Pulled From Lake Boy Revived By Nurse's Work

BRIDGENORTH — (ENS) — Though handicapped by milling crowds, Mrs. Jean Mongraw of Peterborough successfully revived a near-drowning victim at Chemong Park Sunday afternoon. Now completely recovered the victim was Pat Callan, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pat Callan of 133 Benson Ave., Peterborough.

The youth was swimming off the dock at the Chemong Lake Livery. Diving to retrieve water goggles he had lost, he failed to return to the surface.

Three unidentified youths he was swimming with pulled the lad to the dock where Mrs. Mongraw took over. A registered nurse, she lost no time in applying artificial respiration.

Crowds of people milling about the dock made her attempts at reviving Callan even more difficult, greatly hampering her actions.

Callan revived in a few minutes, however, and he was later driven home by Frank Travis of Peterborough.

Warren Wins Contract For Street Paving

The tender of Warren Bituminous Paving Co. at $68,160.30, lowest of four, for this year's street paving program was accepted by the council Monday. It was recommended by City Engineer Chalmers. The highest bid was $78,702.

The work details are: Monaghan Road, from Frank St. to Sherbrooke St.; Parkhill Road from George St. to Benson; the resurfacing of Aylmer St., from Charlotte to Simcoe; and of McDonnel St., from Aylmer to Reid.

The Warren Company is at present engaged on the paving of Monaghan Road, south from Braidwood Ave. That job was held over from last year. At the City Hall the other day, it was reported that the company intend to complete the Monaghan Road south, contract before the end of this month.

Debunks Legend Of Cobalt Silver

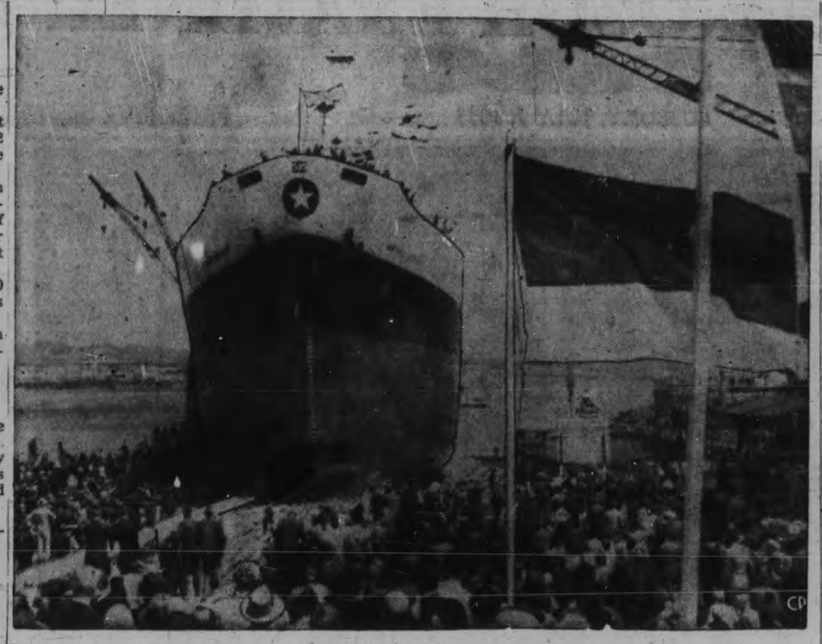
COBALT (CP)—The legend of how silver was discovered here in 1930 was debunked Monday during Cobalt's 50th anniversary celebrations.

Modeste Larose, 81, brother of Fred Larose, who has been credited with discovering silver by throwing a hammer at a fox and missing the animal, said the tale has persisted long enough.

He said it was no accident that Fred, who died at Hull, Que., 12 years ago, discovered silver. He had been prospecting for it.

He and Fred were working on the Timiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway in the autumn of 1903 when Fred made the find near a smithy he had set up at the east end of Cobalt Lake.

Modeste lived at Cobalt for 30 years. For the last 20 years he has lived at Kirkland Lake.



About 5,000 visitors joined with residents Monday to watch a 1½-mile parade through the town.

France Plans To Pay Bank Money Borrowed

PARIS (AP)—The new government of Premier Joseph Laniel today outlined a series of new taxes, reductions of expenditures, and means for paying back advances from the Bank of France through which it hopes to get the nation's teetering economy back on a stable basis.

Roughly, the measures which the Laniel cabinet is proposing are those which caused the downfall of the Rene Mayer government on May 21.

Debate in the National Assembly will take up most of this week, starting with committee hearings Tuesday.

Although he will face powerful opposition on many points, it is believed the assembly will hesitate to throw out Laniel, with the memory of the recent record crisis so fresh in the memory of the deputies.

Chief among the new proposals for raising new money are tax increases on gasoline, diesel oil, and alcohol. Revenue stamps also will be hiked and the fee for passports doubled.

A communique issued after the cabinet meeting which drew up the proposals, said the new income would be used to pay off the temporary loans given by the Bank of France. The new taxes are expected to raise 30,000,000,000 francs ($85,714,200) during the remainder of this year and double that amount in a full year.

Bus Strike Settled In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A three-day bus strike in this industrial area of 1,000,000 persons was settled Monday and AFL drivers started buses rolling in time for the evening rush.

The 1,800 drivers, mechanics and clerical workers of Niagara Frontier Transit Corp. voted to accept a one-year contract providing a wage increase now and another Jan. 1.

The Amalgamated Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees Union Division 1342 announced the vote as 790 to 320 for acceptance of the company offer. The strike, affecting Buffalo, Niagara Falls, N.Y., and adjacent points, began Friday night after the union voted to reject a company offer. The union sought a pay boost for drivers to make up for the loss caused by a reduction in hours last week from 44 to 40. Other employees, already on a 40-hour week, sought an increase.

The new contract gives drivers a 14-cent hourly boost retroactive to July 1 and another three cents Jan. 1. They will receive $1.85 an hour now and $1.88 Jan. 1.

Increases for mechanics amounted to 5.3 per cent now and another 3 cents an hour Jan. 1.

New Canadian Planes Excite Interest Of Military Men

By ANSEL E. TALBERT

OTTAWA.—A "flying saucer" aircraft, embodying revolutionary principles of flight, is under development in Canada. It has excited widespread interest among scientists and military strategists in both the United States and Great Britain.

The aircraft is a huge jet-powered gyroscopic top, 40 feet in diameter, and is intended to fly at supersonic speeds and make rapid changes of direction without the wide banking turns required by conventional highspeed aircraft. It is called the Omega and when looking at it from above or below it has the outline of a disk with one side flattened similar to the shape of the Greek letter.

The craft's appearance bears a resemblance to some of the sketches drawn from descriptions of so-called flying saucers, althought it could not possibly have been the source of any of these reports.

NO INFORMATION

A. V. Roe Canada, Ltd., the manufacturer, officially will not give any information about its Omega project or confirm its existence. Data concerning the project's general dimensions are available from British scientific publications.

In a recent memoir, Air Marshal Sir Robert Saundby, senior air staff officer of the British bomber command during World War II, reveals that the flying disk's pilot will sit in a pressurized plastic capsule in the centre of a nearly circular wing.

According to Air Marshal Saundby, a jet engine of considerable diameter has been designed to revolve in the plane of the flying disk, apparently around a vertical engine shaft.

This unusual jet engine would supply the thrust needed for high-speed forward flight. Through its vibrationless revolutions hundreds of times a minute it also would set up a gyroscopic action which has a powerful stabilizing force during flight.

The leading edge of the saucer-shaped wing has a series of intakes for air and the flattened trailing edge has vanes and control surfaces to be operated by a pilot. Numerous jet exhausts protrude from both rearward sides of the wing adjoining the flattened rear section.

A portion of the intake air flow will be compressed by the revolving engine and thrust out of the side-wing orifices with terrific speed; the remainder will bypass the engine and flow through the flying disk to give "bite" to its control surfaces.

VIEWED BY MONTGOMERY

Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, on of Britain's chief military planners, in April made a special visit to the Avro factory near Toronto, where the project originated, to view the full-size "mock-up" or replica already construced and watch tests with the powered wind-tunnel models. Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent of Canada visited the factory on Friday.

As a result of Lord Montgomery's impressions, John Frost, designer of the saucer-shaped aircraft, is now in England for full discussion of the project with scientists at Farnsborough, centre of British air research.

A wind-tunnel model of Mr. Frosts fantastic aircraft is to be sent to the United States soon for tests at Air Force laboratories. If future trials show the Omega project to be as important as many scientists think, a full-sized piloted prototype may be constructed jointly by the United States, Britain and Canada.

One reason for the considerable interest among allied military circles has been several sightings in the Far East during the last 18 months by Air Force pilots and crew members of more "unidentified flying objects;" one of the objects in question "seemed to have an internal churning movement like flames or fiery gases" in the words of an official report. Another had "a rapidly pulsating gaseous type of exhaust trail" which in the opinion of several observers was "three times the length of the flying object, with both the tail blast and the object bluish in color" like the exhaust of a jet engine.

Man Charged In 1949 Theft

AIX- EN- PROVENCE, France (Reuters)—The beautiful Begum Aga Khan made a brief appearance in court here today to see the opening of a trial of 10 men accused of robbing her of $571,400 worth of jewels in a sensational hold-up four years ago.

The former French beauty queen, wife of the fabulously rich spiritual head of millions of Moslems, is expected to give evidence on Wednesday or Thursday.

The prosecutor said Col. Lindsay George Watson, 50, Franco-British hero of two world wars, was the tip-off man for the gang which held up the Aga Khan's car on the road from Cannes to Nice airport on Aug. 3, 1949.

Watson, Paris-born son of a Scottish father and French mother, denies the charges of aiding and abetting armed attack and receiving stolen goods.

The prosecutor told how the Aga Khan, his wife and her maid and chauffeur were waylaid by three armed men in an efficient, two minute hold-up.

Subsidized Housing Comes Under Fire

MONTREAL (CP) — Subsidized housing was criticized Monday by Canadian builders.

Management committees of both the National House Builders Association and the Quebec Home Builders Association, meeting have jointly, urged Canada's next government to put prospective home owners at the top of its list and provide increased mortgage facilities and lower down payments on national housing administration loans.

Gordon S. Shipp of Toronto, national president, said prospective home owners should be given priority in any housing policy, followed by people who could afford to pay economic rents.

Turkey Made Best Use Of NATO Funds Supplied

By PRESTON GROVER

ISTANBUL (AP)—Of all NATO countries, Turkey has made the most dramatic use of American aid to build up military and economic power under the guns of the Soviet Union.

Aside from a fighting force, the outstanding accomplishment has been expansion of a road system such as the area has not had since it was run by the Romans. It now has 16,000 miles of machine-maintained highway compared with not even a tenth of that three years ago.

In addition, its industrial plant, especially agriculture, has increased to such a degree that it has changed from a wheat-importing country to the fourth largest world wheat exporter.

Turkey has a military force of about 350,000 men which is in sound fighting condition and high in morale. Of this force, about 20,000 are in the navy and 20,000 in the air force. The balance are land fighters.

ONLY CAVALRY

Turkey has probably the only cavalry in the North Atlantic Treaty command, and these three divisions are deployed right next to the 200-mile-long Russian frontier. This is by far the biggest direct contact NATO has with the Russian Frontier.

The Turks insist that cavalry is best suited to cover the choppy, roadless country along this frontier.

A group of correspondents from NATO countries visiting Turkey were shown tank, infantry and cavalry units. This correspondent had been in Turkey during the last war and had seen the army as of that period. The contrast with today is striking. In those days the Turks had five separate types of rifles, the most modern of which were from the First World War.

Today they have modern rifles, including a good one they are making themselves. American artillery has been moved in. Cavalrymen are equipped with machine-guns, rifles and bazookas.

The Turks do not hesitate to name the enemy they are building up against. They have been fighting cold and hot wars with the Russians for centuries. When they put on a small manoeuvre for visiting correspondents, the opposing forces were labelled Turks and Russians, not "Blues" and "Reds" as is the custom with other NATO countries.

Exiled Communist Elected In Recent Italian Election

By FRANK KELLEY
New York Herald Tribune News Service

ROME — The recent parliamentary elections in Italy have posed a difficult problem for the new Chamber of Deputies: whether two Communists with police records — one of them is exiled in Prague — can be seated and enjoy parliamentary immunity.

One of the new Red deputies is Francesco Moranino, director of the Italian "service" of the Prague Communist radio. He was a Communist member of Italy's post-war constituent assembly, then for three years a member of the last Chamber of Deputies until it revoked his immunity so that he could be arrested in connection with the unsolved murder of five former partisans and two of their wives, and the disappearance of 60 former Fascists who were picked up by one of his "goon squads".

Moranino is still in Prague so far as is known. He is supposed to be one of the new Red deputies from Turin where he received a large number of preferential votes in the June 7-8 ballotting.

Experts are now examining the case to see whether Moranino's election automatically restores his immunity or whether the Chamber can vote formally either to restore it or to continue its revocation.

The Communists also elected one Dante Gorreri from Parma who had been in jail for five years at Padua as the "brains" of the post-war theft of gold foreign currency, and valuable documents that had belonged to the late Benito Mussolini and which were en route in a truck convoy from Italy to Switzerland. Several partisans who knew the details were later murdered.

Gorreri's election three weeks ago had the effect under Italian law of springing him from the lock-up at Padua. Before his election Gorreri faced trial next fall in the case.

Moranino was widely known as a partisan guerilla in Piedmont after the Italian army collapsed and surrenderd to the Allies. The son of a worker, he became a Communist at the age of 20.

In 1941 the Fascists caught him making anti-Fascist speeches at Biella, and he was given a prison sentence of 12½ years. He was freed on July 25, 1943, the day Mussolini was overthrown, and was one of the first to organize armed troops against the Germans and the Fascists. His partisan fighting name was "Gemisto".

On November 1, 1944, five partisans of his unit were ordered to Switzerland to make contact with Allied agents. On their way, the five were shot by other partisans of Moranino's command. Moranino afterwards described the five as "spies".

WIVES OF TWO KILLED

In January, 1945, the wives of two of the dead men were summoned to meet Moranino. They were killed before the meeting took place. Finally, on May 12, 1945, at Novara, 60 Fascists were taken prisoner by Moranino's gang. All of them disappeared.

Moranino and another Red deputy, Silvio Ortona, were accused of these misdeeds. Moranino fled to Prague the year before the Chamber lifted his immunity. The Prague radio has since been one of the most bitter and most badly informed critics of the Italian government.

The other Red deputy, Gorreri, was regarded as the ringleader of the "Dongo" affair which takes its name from the town on Lake Como where Mussolini's loot disappeared near the end of the war. Gorreri was once the Red boss of the Como area.

The truck convoy with the dictator's treasurers was stopped at Dongo, and instead of being taken to the nearest military command post, it was diverted to local Communist headquarters. Then it disappeared.

Later, the partisans who knew of the Dongo episode were slain.

World's Airlines Grow Bigger Give Faster, Better Service

By BOB JOYCE

MONTREAL (CP)—The world's scheduled airlines are growing bigger, better and faster every year.

A report on civil aviation in 1952 by Dr. Edward Warner, president of the International Civil Aviation Organization's council, shows that civilian airliners flew farther, carried more passengers and cargo, and touched higher speeds in 1952 than ever before.

The report, an appraisal of progress made in civil aviation since 1944, was published in the current issue of the ICAO Bulletin.

During 1952, despite an oil strike in the spring which curtailed airline operations in North America, scheduled airlines carried 13 per cent more passengers and flew five per cent more freight-miles than in 1951.

The passenger movement alone was equivalent to transporting the population of Greater London or Greater New York from Montreal to Europe.

Last year airlines carried 2½ times as many passengers and five times as much freight as in 1946. In 1937 freight operations were so negligible that no accurate figures are available, but the number of passengers today is 17 times as great as then.

Dr. Warner, exploring the reasons for the increase in traffic, listed improved equipment, better navigation aids and operating methods, all of which contributed to regularity, increase in speed and in economy.

But, he said, "the largest single factor has undoubtedly been the simple, gradual habituation of travellers and traders to the novelty of travelling and shipping by air."

Airlines also have attracted new customers by off-season reductions, excursion rates, and tourist fares, the latter being introduced on North Atlantic services during 1952.

Today in the United States one of every three persons travelling more than 120 miles by paid transport goes by air, and airline passenger-mileage is 20 per cent higher than that of Pullman rail services. In 1946 it was only one-third the Pullman mileage.

Elsewhere in the underdeveloped areas the airplane, the report says, has opened new ways in world trade, permitting goods to move where slowness, hazard, cost, or sheer awkwardness of transport in the past virtually prohibited their shipment.

The year saw the start of the world's first scheduled jet operation, British Overseas Airways Comet service between London, Johannesburg, India and Singapore, and trans-Arctic flights by Scandinavian Airlines between Los Angeles and Copenhagen.

1,400 Workers To Be Dismissed From Ford Plant

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Between 1,400 and 1,500 Ford of Canada employees will be dismissed during August as a result of the shift of passenger car assembly operations to the new plant in Oakville, the company announced Monday.

Virtually all of the men affected, the company said, are temporary employees taken on since last October with the understanding their employment might terminate as a result of the Oakville move.

Notices to the employees said their services will not be required after the company resumes operations following the annual vacation shutdown the first two weeks of August.

CONFIRM ANNOUNCEMENT

Ford officials said the notices merely confirm the announcement made by president Rhys M. Sale in a letter to all employees May 29 which predicted the August layoff.

Following the vacation period, the statement said, passenger car production at the Windsor plant will be on a one-shift basis.

Some 12,000 men now are employed at the big plant here.

Charles McDonald, newly-elected president of local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO), of which Ford employees are members, said: "We can now only reiterate the criticisms voiced when the company announced out of a blue sky last fall that it would move the final assembly operations to Oakville."

Woman, 83 Cheated Out Of $18,000

JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP)—An 83-year-old spinster went out for a dish of ice cream Monday and it cost her $18,000.

Here, said police, is what happened to Miss Nellie Drain:

Miss Drain left her apartment for some ice cream at a nearby soda fountain and passed the time of day with a woman sitting on the next stool until a third woman joined them.

The new arrival breathlessly told of finding a large sum of money and of giving it to her boss in a nearby office building for safekeeping.

OFFER TO SHARE

The women offered to share the find with Miss Drain if she would put up money to show good faith.

That sounded fair to Miss Drain so, accompanied by one of her newfound acquaintances, she went to a New York bank, withdrew $18,000 savings and handed it over to her companion. That left Miss Drain with $1,000.

When they got back to Jersey City the woman said she had to meet her friend at the boss' office and complete the deal. The $18,000 went with her.

Miss Drain waited and waited and then called police.

Member Of Congress Barred From A-Test Causes Uproar In United States Circles

WASHINGTON (CP)—The stir caused here by the announcement by a Democratic member of Congress that he was barred on security grounds from witnessing a recent atomic bomb test today began to swell.

Representative Robert Condon said Monday he was one of some 100 congressmen who accepted an invitation to witness an atomic explosion in Nevada last May. He said two men met him at Las Vegas and "told me I could not see the test for security reasons."

Today a Washington dispatch to the New York Herald Tribune said that Condon "has been under study as a security risk by the military services as well as by the atomic energy commission."
